REFUSED TO REOPEN CASE IN CITY COURT

City Judge Runyon Said That There Were Other Avenues of Relief.

CASE WILL GO HIGHER

ATTEMPT TO SECURE RELEASE OF EDWARD MARCELLUS, JR.

Counsellor W. L. Hetfield, Jr., Says He Will Try Other Methods to Get Judgment in Case Reversed.

City Judge Runyon rendered his decision, this morning, in the argument for a new trial made by Counsellor Walter L. Hetfield, Sr., in behalf of Edward Marcellus, Jr., sentenced in the city court to forty days in the county jail. His decision in the matter were as follows:

"The city court is bound by the same limitations as a justice of the peace and under the provisions of the charter which created the court, it has not the right to open a judgment once entered by it. There are other avenues of relief offered by the laws for those who feel aggrieved by the judgment of the court, therefore the motion for a new trial is denied."

Mr. Hetfield was not in court at the time the decision was made but, on being informed of it soon after, declared his intention of carrying the matter further. This can be done by applying to the Court of Common Pleas on Habeas Corpus proceedings, or by having it brought before the Supreme court through a writ of certiorari. Just which course he will pursue Mr. Hetfield has not yet definitely decided but expects to within a very short time.

Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh's specified contention in opposing the motion for a new trial was to the effect that it would establish a precedent which would in the future, involve the city court in many difficulties. In his argument yesterday, he maintained that not in fifty years had any such motion been granted by courts of the same jurisdiction. Once it was done, he said, the authorities would be appealed to following the trial and conviction of every petty offender brought before the city court.

Gum Arabic Produced by Ants.

Gum arabic is an exudation from certain species of acacia. In order to obtain the gum the stem must be cut or perforated so that the juice may exude, and we are told by M. Walter Busse, who has just been investigating the gum production of German East Africa, that in the majority of cases this necessary perforation is accomplished by ants, without whose labors, therefore, the world could not get its supply of gum arabic—at least with the present case.—M. Busse, in Le Journal d'Agriculture Tropicale.

Last Act the Best.

Penholder (the poet)—Homer was scorned while living. It seems to be the lot of poets to be treated coldly while living and writing; and then, when they die, the world goes in raptures over them.

Spread of the Cockroach.

The common cockroach has spread throughout the civilized world by means of ships. This disagreeable bug comes and goes on ships almost as freely as the rats. The two seem to live together amicably, and they monopolize largely the hold of the ships which carry foodstuffs.—Nature.

Her Taste.

Mr. Fussy (rearranging the things in the parlor)—You have wretchedly poor taste, my dear.

Mrs. Fussy (resignedly)—That's what everybody said when I married you, Henry.—Detroit Free Press.

Solved the Problem.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Dec. 15—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

Topic.—Imperialism of Christianity.—Dan. ii, 44, 45.

Imperialism is "the spirit of empire." An empire consists of a number of kingdoms united together under one government and one ruler, usually called an emperor. The confederation of the German states is called the German empire and the title of the ruler emperor. Though the British ruler is called a king—the king of England—yet the government of Great Britain, including, as it does, many kingdoms and states under it, is justly called the British empire. In these senses Christianity has "the spirit of empire" and is an imperialism (though the word is not a happy one) in character. The kingdom of God in this world embraces all peoples, nations, kindreds and tongues and is ruled by God Himself.

God's kingdom is to be an everlasting kingdom. "And in the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom which shall never be destroyed." The kingdoms of this world are temporal. They rise and fall. They wax and wane. Egypt, Babylon, Greece, Rome, are names of empires that, though once they were great and powerful, have long since lost their glory and their power. Citizenship in them was once a coveted privilege, but today it has no attractions. Not so will it be with the kingdom of God. God's kingdom is eternal in character, and the value of citizenship in it will only increase with the passing of the ages.

God's kingdom is to be a worldwide kingdom. It is to overcome all opposition to it by winning or destroying all nations opposed to it. It "shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms," and its head "shall have dominion from sea to sea and from the river to the ends of the earth." Citizenship in so called worldwide empires has always been greatly prized and esteemed. Roman citizenship was once a most coveted prize, yet the Roman empire included but a small portion of the earth, and the privileges it offered to its citizens were as nothing compared to those offered to the citizens of the kingdom of God. The desirability, therefore, of belonging to God's kingdom should be apparent to all, and we should allow nothing to deprive us of heavenly citizenship.

Citizenship in the kingdom of God is free and accessible to all. "Whosoever will may come" and enroll himself under the banner of the cross and take the oath of allegiance to heaven's King and become a subject of His kingdom. Enrollment in God's kingdom is voluntary. God forces none to come under His rule. His soldiers are volunteers. By the gracious teachings of His word and influences of His spirit He strives to show us what is His will and for our good in the matter, but the choice is left with us. None should hesitate in this choice. By faith in Christ and consecration of our lives to God we should take our place in His eternal and universal kingdom.

BIBLE READINGS.

Ex. xxiii, 31; Isa. ii, 1-3; Ps. ii, 1-8; lxxii, 1-19; Mic. iv, 1-4; Zech. ix, 9, 10; Matt. xiii, 31-33; xxviii, 19, 20; Acts i, 8.

Loyalty.

Loyalty is a characteristic that we admire. Loyalty to the country of our nativity, to our city, to our families and to our friends, is the evidence of strength of character and unwavering allegiance. The same characteristic in our Christian life makes us of more value to the cause of Christ and fills our own hearts with the realization of our privilege in being allied with such a kingdom. Loyalty to the vows we make in our constant endeavor to live up to them, loyalty to the life we profess to live, in our dying unto sin and living unto righteousness, loyalty to the church, with which we are associated in our efforts to strengthen and maintain it, loyalty to Christ as our Master, as well as our Saviour, that His will may be ours, is not only a duty, but a privilege of the Christian.—Presbyterian.

Aphorisms.

Self denial for the sake of either self or denial is but cutting the hands off the spiritual body to increase its working power.

A blessing must be shared before it will be repeated.

God's gifts bless as they are received; they bless twice as they are imparted.

We get much by beseeching; we get more by bestowing.

To repress love is to dwarf it. To express love is to double it.

Real spiritual rest is found only in motion. Hitch your wagon to a star, but not to a fixed star.

God's nobleman is he who ennobles man.—Rev. John E. Pounds, D. D., in Christian Endeavor World.

Hard on the Friends.

A misery told is a misery shared. We cut our cares in two and force our friends to help us bear them. The process may be unpleasant, but the complainer considers no interests save those of his own. Having complained, he has forced another to become a partner in his firm.—Presbyterian Journal.

Make a Business of It.

Make a business of religion. To this end estimate "What will it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?"—Philadelphia Methodist.

No Place.

There is no place this side of heaven where it will be safe for the Christian not to watch and pray.—Presbyterian Journal.

ONLY THE BEST

paint is usable. To be worth putting on it must be durable, and to be durable it must be top quality. The general war of wind, sun and rain upon houses knows no cessation or truce. Paint is the main defense. Put your faith in something that will not fail you. A reliable article at a top price is cheaper than something else sold way down.

KEEP OFF THE EARTH

During the cold and wet weather as much as possible—that is, keep as much shoe leather between the soles of your feet and Mother Earth as you can conveniently carry. It's wisest in the beginning and cheaper in the end to provide yourself with shoes having good solid soles—cold-proof and water-proof, if possible.

We are selling exceptionally good shoes of just this sort for men and women; children, too.

Well built, with broad, heavy soles and with stout uppers.

They're a very paradise of rest for weary feet, and a paradise of economy for weary purses.

"There's nothing in the store which sells as well as Ripans Tabules do. The demand is as regular and steady as for anything we carry in stock. Young and old, male and female seem to buy them. In fact, they seem to be in general demand. Not only that, but the demand seems to come from all classes. The advertisements create the demand, but their merits back it up."

A GIRL'S WINTER COSTUME.

Suggestions For Those Who Have Moderate Incomes.

The girl with a moderate income will find it easy to dress herself suitably this winter. With a tailor made of good cloth and some nice furs she will be able to present herself anywhere. The most practical tailor made is one of black broadcloth, the skirt lined with black taffeta and the jacket with gray satin. Black broadcloth of a good quality is quite as rich as silk or velvet, and it can be worn at all places and at nearly all times of the year. Furthermore, it goes with everything and can be easily renovated from season to season. It is better to buy such a suit ready made than to go to a cheap tailor, but it pays to go to a high class tailor and choose one's own material.

STOLE BOA AND FLAT MUFF.

With a couple of hats, one of black velvet and the other of some pale shade for dressy wear, and a couple of blouses, one of flannel and the other of taffeta, ornamented with a bit of lace, a girl will find herself well dressed for the street, providing she adds to this a pretty set of furs. These may be expensive or not, but they should be of a becoming color and the best quality of their kind.

The latest boa and muff are here illustrated. The boa is of the popular stole shape. The muff is without stiffening. The fur is chinchilla, with made chinchilla tails. JUDIC CHOLLET.

DAINTY UNDERWEAR.

The Right Way to Lace a Corset. Materials For Petticoats.

Fashionable women are most particular about their underwear. Nothing is too fine or too costly for the society belle. Especially does she pay great attention to the fit of her corsets. Of these she usually has three at a time, one for evening wear and two for day wear, apart from any for athletic exercises. The evening corset is often but a mere girdle of sheer batiste or light brocade. The corsets for day wear are of more substantial materials. All are low busted and are laced with three lacings. The uppermost lacing extends only for about five holes, the next reaches down to below the waist line, the third draws in the lower part of the corset. It is thus possible for the wearer to tighten her waist line without in any way cramping her bust or hips.

OF PEAU DE SOIE AND SABLE.

Petticoats can either be very simple or wildly extravagant. Brocade wears the best, and the ordinary glace silk has given place to soft taffeta. Peau de soie or a good quality of satin also makes serviceable petticoats. For evening and dressy wear white lace petticoats are always suitable and dainty.

One of the handsomest of the season's coats is here shown. It can be used both for evening and for day wear. The material is black peau de soie lined with cream satin and faced for some distance down the front with a wide band of sable. The bell sleeves have also wide sable cuffs. The fur collar can either be worn standing or down.

The hat is also of sable trimmed with variegated velvet chrysanthemums.

The Trouble on the Torolito.

BY FRANCIS LYNDE.

(Copyright 1896, by Francis Lynde.)

(Richard Grantley to Eugene Halcott.)

Dear Halcott:

I was foolishly glad to hear from you again; glad to learn that Colorado has given you a little longer lease of life, if no more. Your handwriting is so cheerfully undecipherable that I have not yet mastered your opening sentences, but I gather from a readable word here and there that you were convalescing from an attack of "barn fever," whatever that may be, when you wrote. I don't know the malady; but if you are convalescent that is the principal fact.

You are right in supposing that I know something of Wykamp. He was a classmate of mine in the school of engineering, and was with me one year on the geodetic survey. He is bad medicine in a moral way; is rather unmoral than immoral, I should say; the quality seems to have been left out of his make-up. There are localities on the Carolina coast where he doesn't dare show his face—and he is no coward, either—and even here in Boston where his people are known and respected, there are doors which will never again open to him.

The episode you refer to occurred in New Hampshire, and the facts were swiftly and deeply buried—by the young woman's people, I suppose. I haven't been able, thus far, to get at the details in any sort of sequence, but there was a marriage, which was no marriage, and a woman scorned, and all that; you know the pitiful round of such things. Without knowing anything about the merits of this particular case, I should not hesitate to lay every ounce of the burden of blame on the shoulders of the man. He's bad, as I say; and in his peculiar specialty has few equals and no superiors.

Your plan to block his present game by putting the evidence of one of his former escapades into the hands of the young woman is ingenious, but it won't work. As against the lightest word of a professed lover, all the newspaper charges in the world would weigh as hydrogen—or coronium, if that be lighter. None the less, I'll send you the newspaper clippings, if I can unearth them in the files.

Sincerely, as always,
DICK.

(President Baldwin, of the Glenlivat Land Company, to Chief Engineer Wykamp.)

Dear Sir:

Yours of the 16th, stating that you have made excavations on the site last chosen for the dam in the upper canyon is at hand.

Without going into the technicalities, I must say that I think you are mistaken. I went over the ground last year with our consulting engineer, and he is quite sure that a dam at the point where you are working will be entirely safe. Make such changes in the plan of construction as the nature of the substrata demands, and push the work with the utmost speed. With all due regard for your opinion, I will say that I have always found the members of your profession inclined to err on the side of permanence at the cost of celerity; and the work must be driven. Results are what we want.

Take another week for the excavating, and if you do not strike bedrock, put in concrete and build your dam. A change to the former location, as you suggest, is impossible. Macpherson will not sell, and he is a man of means and influence, abundantly strong enough to fight a battle which would delay us indefinitely. Moreover, the settlers are threatening, and you must keep the peace at all hazards. Your destruction of their flume and ditch was exceedingly ill-advised, and if it be not too late, I would suggest that these be replaced.

Yours truly,
JOHN BALDWIN,
President G. L. Co.

CHAPTER IX.

A MIDNIGHT VISIT.

It was well on in the month of August before I had progressed far enough on the road to convalescence to bear removal from the farmhouse at Valley Head to Macpherson's; and after the buckboard trip to the ranch at Six-Mile became a possibility, I still lingered on at Selter's, being by that time critically interested in the small tragi-comedy working itself out under my eyes as the long summer days waxed and waned. Interested, I say, but involved would be the better word. I could no longer call myself an onlooker.

If there were other reasons for my stay—if, in those short weeks which will always be marked with a red letter in any poor calendar of mine, there had come into my life a thing which common loyalty bade me triple-lock in that chamber of the heart which is at once the sanctuary and the tomb of hopes unrealized and unrealizable, I shall not unfold it here. This is Macpherson's story, and none of mine; but if I say that in those days of leaden-winged convalescence Winifred Sanborn gained an ally whose loyalty was not measured by the hope of reward, it is sufficient.

But though for me the days were as the days of the lotus eaters, the tragi-comedy went on, working out its details with relentless precision. The breach between Selter and the land company widened day by day; and Wykamp's reckless by-play with the Tennessean's daughter gave it the depth of personal hatred as between the vindictive descendant of the Redemptioners and the engineer. Macpherson was still on the side of peace, but it was evident that his influence over Selter was strained to the breaking point. In the family at the farm-house the daughter was at sword's points with the father and mother for Wykamp's sake; and though Wykamp had long since been forbidden the house. Nan met him and walked with him in open defiance of her father's interdiction.

DEPOSIT MONEY NO PLEDGE.

No Assurance That Room-Seeker Will Return for Amount Left as Forfeit.

"There was a time," said the woman who keeps boarders, "when, if a person paid a deposit on a room, I considered it as good as rented, but I don't figure that way any more. Either people have more money than they used to have or less sense of honor. I don't know which. At any rate, there has been a change, and nowadays when a prospective boarder comes along and picks out a room that he says he likes and backs up his word by giving me two or three dollars as a guarantee of good faith, I have no assurance whatever that I shall ever see him again.

"To be sure," said the woman, according to a New York paper, "this reckless expenditure of salary is not an everyday occurrence, but it happens often enough to make me wonder how people can be so careless. I can readily understand the motive, but I cannot appreciate it. The explanation, of course, is that the people like my rooms well enough to take some precaution against losing the option on them, in case they should find nothing more desirable, but that upon looking farther they see something that suits them better, and they would rather sacrifice the deposit fund than decide in my favor. Now and then some one particularly audacious comes back and asks me to refund the money, but generally they are content to let well enough alone. All told, my unclaimed deposit money amounts to about $50 a year, which is not a bad return from the little time invested in showing the rooms."

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Topic For the Week Beginning Dec. 15, "The Universal Dominion." Text, Dan. ii, 44, 45.

"The God of heaven shall set up a kingdom which shall never be destroyed."

The project of uniting all men under one government is not of recent origin. As far back in the history of the race as we have any reliable records the attempt had been made. Nimrod, the half historical and half mythological hero of most ancient times, undertook to bring all into one combination, but left no permanent organization. The history of mankind is a record of attempts to realize a union of all under a central authority. Most instructive and fascinating is the story of the successive failures, the new theories proposed, their testing, the gradual advancement of thought and betterment of condition with each attempt. It is a mistake to suppose that mere thirst for arbitrary power has been the motive force which has raised the various world rulers to their places of influence. Nebuchadnezzar, Rameses the Great, Alexander, Cæsar, Charlemagne and the modern Napoleon each represents a principle in rulership which must of necessity be tested and its adequacy shown or disproved. In all this there has been advancement both in knowledge of human capacities, needs, and also skill in the art of supplying those requirements. The comparative study of government is recent, and much is still misty in our knowledge of the theories of the past and their application. This much is certain: No human government has yet been adequate to the demands upon it; none has been broad based enough to endure all shock and changes of a developing and enlarging civilization. The weak points as well as the strong ones in each we can detect. No one, however, has been skillful enough to correct the evils and offer the perfect scheme.

Two things are essential to the perfection of human government—first, the essential nature of man must be known and the bonds of union must be adapted to secure the highest welfare of each and all in accordance with the requirements of that nature.

Secondly, the personality of the ruler must be such that he is the perfect example and exponent of the principles of his government and the attraction of that personality must constitute the uniting force of the kingdom.

This prophecy of Daniel presents in a narrative ever charming a view of four great world empires, each of which fulfills its mission and passes. Lastly, the God of heaven erects a kingdom which does not pass. We are accustomed to interpret this as a reference to Christianity. Perhaps it has a wider meaning than the organized church. A more adequate idea would be what we term the brotherhood of man.

The gospel of Jesus Christ furnishes the basis for the union of all men in peaceful co-operation such as the world has never conceived outside the line of Christian revelation. It is based on the profoundest truths in human nature, all inclusive and abiding. It is adequate in scope, authoritative in utterance, convincing in appeal, rational in requirements. In the person of Jesus it shows a personality perfect in purity and power and persuasion.

Its basis is supreme love to God and equal love to fellow men. On this is now building the kingdom of God, the republic of man which is destined to endure eternally because the foundation is firm.

Poverty of Spirit.

Those who with heart and soul are gladly poor are promised all that belongs to the future kingdom of God. Their title to such perfection lies in the fact that they already have overcome the world. Already they move in the world of infinite worth, though they suffer in the finite. They are souls to whom God can intrust supreme possessions. What wonder that Ferdinand Christian Baur found in this poverty of the poor in spirit "the most pregnant expression of the original Christian consciousness!" "It is religious consciousness which is penetrated by the deepest sense of the pressure of the infinite and of all the contradictions of the present and yet is infinitely exalted and knows itself, in spite of this, to be far superior to everything finite and limited."—Lutheran Observer.

The Great Physician.

Christ is the Great Physician because of His success. The successful physician has more than he can do. But Christ never turns away a case without a cure and treats all that come to Him. This was His record when upon earth. No one ever sought His help in vain. Obstinate cases of long standing yielded to His treatment. What a testimony to His success are the centuries since He walked with men! As Whittier so beautifully expresses it:

The healing of His seamless dress
Is by our beds of pain;
We touch Him in life's throng and press,
And we are whole again.

—Christian Intelligencer.

The Master Calls.

Hark! The Master calls, "I need you!"
Listen to His gentle voice;
Then with food divine He'll feed you,
Bid your burdened heart rejoice.

Do not wait like doubting Thomas
Till your eyes more clearly see.
Claim at once this precious promise—
"Heavy laden, come to Me."

See the cross on Calvary's mountain;
From its view no longer hide;
Look by faith and see the fountain
Flowing from His pierced side.

Fling your banner to the breezes;
Battle in the Christian's war.
Each recruit you win for Jesus
To your crown will add a star.

—Christian Herald.

WAS HELD UP AND ROBBED

FOUR MEN TOOK $20 FROM JACOB GOODMYER.

'Twas Done in a Dark Lane—One Arrest Made and Others to Follow.

While Jacob Goodmyer, an old West End German, was passing through a lane in the rear of Galbraith's West Third street saloon, about 9:30 last evening, he was stopped by four men. Two pinioned his arms to his side while the others searched his clothing and took from him $20 in bills.

On being released he hurried to police headquarters and from the description he furnished, Sergeant Frederickson had a warrant issued for Austin Gulick, a mason, living on South Second street. Gulick was arrested this morning and locked up. He will be given a hearing before Justice Nash at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Goodmyer was unable to accurately describe his other assailants but the police have since learned their identity. Warrants have been issued for all three and they will probably be apprehended today. All of them reside in the West End.

Fell Down on the Street.

Fred Schuntube, a German forty-five years old, who claimed Stapleton, S. I., as his home, was attacked by heart trouble on East Front street, yesterday afternoon, and fell to the sidewalk. Dr. Long treated him at police headquarters after which he was taken to Muhlenberg Hospital. This morning he was reported as being greatly improved and will leave the institution in a few days.

TALENTED PIANIST.

Recital by Miss Cady, of New York, at Home of Mrs. W. S. Tyler, of West Eighth Street.

A delightful reception and recital was given yesterday afternoon by Mrs. William S. Tyler, of West Eighth street, assisted by her sister, Miss Maude VanBoskerck. The feature of the affair was the piano recital by Miss Harriet Cady, of New York. She is a remarkably fine player, it being said that she excells Letchitisky, her teacher. She has travelled abroad and is known very well in private music circles in New York.

During the afternoon Miss Cady rendered some of her best selections and all were delighted with her work. Some of her renditions were exceedingly difficult, but her execution was perfect. There were seventy-five guests present. Toward the close of the afternoon refreshments were served.

A Bride From the South.

James J. Muldowney, Jr., of West Third street, and Miss Emma Woerner, of Wilmington, Del., were quietly married on Wednesday at St. Paul's Roman Catholic church in that city, by Rev. Father Conley. Mr. and Mrs. Muldowney will reside in that city in the future.

A BANQUET TO THE PASTOR

AFTER SUPPER THERE WAS A THRILLING DEBATE.

The Debate Was So Close That the Judges Left it Undecided.

The congregation of the Mount Olive Baptist church tendered a banquet of honor, last evening to the pastor, Rev. E. E. Jackson. In addition to singing by the Young Peoples Union, a debate was held. It was so close that the judges, Rev. E. W. Crudup and J. W. Smith, left the question undecided. The subject was "Which has been, and is, the greatest benefit to this nation, the pen or the plow?" Rev E. E. Jackson and James Whiting were for the pen and Charles Shelton and David Blow for the other.

The committee in charge of the affair consisted of Deacons D. W. Brown, J. W. Reed, Peter Gordon, George Carter, William Phillips and Alfred Wilson and Trustees Charles Barbour, William Burton, John Seay, Ocsar Green, S. M. Field and Lewis Summerset.

The women who assisted in the serving of the supper were Mrs. P. W. Brown, Mrs. Lulu Dempsey, Mrs. M. Fields, Mrs. Lulu Reed, Mrs. George Carter, Mrs. Peter Gordon, Mrs. William Springs, Mrs. Lizzie Flippings, Mrs. Nettie Jones and Mrs. Clara Johnson.

FUNERAL OF ALEX. MANNING.

His Former Fellow Employes Attend Services in a Body.

The funeral of Alexander Manning was held at his late residence on Park avenue yesterday afternoon. Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, officiated.

There was a large delegation from the Exempt Firemen's Association, and one from the employes of Boice, Runyon & Co., of which firm Mr. Manning had been a trusted employe, present. Rev. Dr. Schenck paid a touching tribute to the worth of the man during his remarks.

Among the floral tributes was a wreath from the firm, another from the employes of Boice, Runyon & Co., and a large mounted crescent from the Exempt Firemen's Association. The pall-bearers were six exempt firemen: V. W. Nash, G. Thorn, George Clark, Joseph Blimm, D. W. Littell and James Searing. Interment was made in Hillside cemetery.

Health and Beauty.

A poor complexion is usually the result of a torpid liver or irregular action of the bowels. Unless nature's refuse is carried off it will surely cause impure blood. Pimples, boils and other eruptions follow. This is nature's method of throwing off the poisons which the bowels failed to remove. DeWitt's Little Early Risers are world famous for remedying this condition They stimulates the liver and promote regular and healthy action of the bowels but never cause griping, cramps or distress. Safe pills. L. W. Randolph.

Must Not Interfere.

On complaint of Chief Doane, Henry Farley, an expressman was severely reprimanded by City Judge Runyon, yesterday afternoon, for interfering with the firemen while they were answering Wednesday night's alarm. Farley drove in front of the apparatus to his own and the firemen's danger, and refused to get out of the way.

—Mrs. Alexander Manning, of Park avenue, desires to express her thanks for the many kind acts of friends during her bereavement.

ENGLISH NAVAL DISCIPLINE.

Remarkable Grasp of Minor Details Displayed by Superior Officers.

The commander of a battleship in the Mediterranean squadron the other day saw reason to suspect that a mourning band worn by one of the midshipmen was too broad. He took the middy into his cabin, measured the mourning band himself, found that it was something like a quarter of an inch too wide, and punished the young gentleman by stopping a week's leave. A few weeks later, says a writer in London Truth, the eagle eye of this same officer detected a microscopic portion of a civilian waistcoat protruding below the monkey jacket of one of his officers. The officer was wearing the waistcoat for the sake of warmth, the weather being chilly at the time. The commander, having harangued him for some minutes on the error of his ways, made the officer remove his monkey jacket and walk up and down the battery and the quarterdeck in that condition, and then sent him below, to the no small amusement of all the members of the ship's company, who were looking on at the time. This way of treating an officer hardly seems to me conducive to the maintenance of discipline. At the same time, it must be a great source of satisfaction to all of us that the ships by means of which Britannia rules the waves are commanded by men with such remarkable powers of vision and such a remarkable grasp of the minor details on which the efficiency of a fleet depend.

MAY MAKE ARMORY OUT OF MUSIC HALL

Joint Drill Room for Company K and City High School Cadets.

A QUESTION OF COST.

THE NECESSARY CHANGES WILL BE QUITE EXPENSIVE.

City Has Lacked a Suitable Hall for Such Purposes Since Crescent Rink Went Into Trade—Estimates Being Prepared.

It is still an open question as to whether or not the old Music Hall building is to be utilized as an armory for Company K, and the Plainfield High School cadet battalion as well as a gymnasium for school boys and soldiers. Estimates are now being prepared and a conference of all those interested will be held early next week to decide the subject. The decision will largely depend on the cost of putting the building in the desired condition.

For several months, the subject has been under consideration. The city has lacked a suitable hall where military organizations can drill and games like basket ball played, since the Crescent Rink became a skirt factory. The members of Company K have been very anxious to obtain proper quarters to be used for drill room and gymnasium. Washington hall has never answered the requirements of the cadet battalion at the City High School. So it was thought that a union of effort might bring about the conversion of the old theatre into the place desired.

The plan met with general favor but there came a hitch when the question arose of meeting the expense of making the changes required. An entire new floor, capable of standing the strain of marching men will have to be built and a new entrance from either Madison avenue or Compton's lane put into use. All this will cost money and considerable of it. Estimates are now being prepared, however, and there will be a chance to see just what will have to be forthcoming in the way of funds.

Of course the primary object of the establishment of the armory in Music Hall is to give a proper drill room, a thing greatly needed by Plainfield's company and the High School cadets as well. A secondary consideration would be its uses as a gymnasium. Basket ball for both Company K and the High School would be sure to flourish and other features of gymnasium life would undoubtedly be introduced.

A number of the local bakset ball enthusiasts, who originally played under the Y. M. C. A. auspices and, of late, have been known as the Fanwood Athletic Club, have expressed a desire to aid in the project, if possible, and say they will bear a share of the expense for the use of the hall for occasional games.

ROLLICKING COMEDY.

Will be Produced at the Casino This Afternoon and Evening.

Rollicking comedy will reign at the Casino, this afternoon and night, when the great farcical comedy success "The Brixton Burglary" will be seen. This comedy has so well established itself through its remarkable run at the Herald Square Theatre, New York, and by its unprecedented English triumphs that it is scarcely necessary at this time to review its many merits. When first produced in this country it was enthusiastically received by metropolitan critics as the most emphatic success in its particular class since "Charley's Aunt." The play has about every merit that a farcical comedy should have. It is eminently clean and will be interpreted by an unequalled cast, headed by W. J. Ferguson, the eminent comedian.

Trainmen Examined.

The trainmen on the High Bridge branch of the New Jersey Central recently visited Jersey City to have their eyes examined, also to be examined in their knowledge of air brakes.

Church Meeting.

There will be a meeting of the members of the Seventh-Day Baptist church in the church tomorrow, when there will be a consideration of the question of calling a pastor.

Red Men's Smoker.

Wetumpkah Tribe, No. 118, Improved Order Red Men, will give a smoker at their next meeting, December 19.

MOLDERS' BALL.

Was Successfully Held in Sangerbund Hall Last Evening—Those in Charge of It.

The third annual ball of the Iron Molders' Union, No. 305, of this city, was held in Saengerbund Hall last evening. Despite the disagreeable weather there was a large attendance of the members and their friends of the fair sex.

All the dances were dedicated to the various unions in this city. Eugene O'Reilly's orchestra furnished the music. Refreshments were served in the basement. J. J. Whalen was in general charge of the affair and he was assisted by Wm. Smith, chairman; Manuel Gilbert, Ernest Derflinger, John Hodges, Wm. Winckler, Robert Gorman, M. A. Leahy, Ernest Rowe, Samuel Hannigan, Daniel Crowley, Peter Russ and James Buckley.

Wm. Bowers, Thomas F. McCauley and Ross Holden acted in the capacity of floor managers. Both from a social and a financial standpoint the ball was a success.

LEAL'S LOST AT BASKET BALL

DEFEATED IN FIRST GAME BY THE NEWARK ACADEMY.

Newark Team Won Easily by Score of 42 to 3—Was a Clean Game.

The basket ball team of Leal's School journeyed to Newark, last evening, for its first match game which was played with the crack team of Newark Academy in the latter's gymnasium. As was expected, Newark Academy won easily, by a score of 42 to 3.

The showing made by the Plainfield boys was not as bad as would seem by the score. The Newark players were very accurate in goal throwing while the peculiar shape of the gymnasium was a serious handicap to the visitors. The game was very clean and free from rough play. The visitors were well treated by the home team. Quite a band of rooters accompanied the Plainfielders over.

The line up:

Leal's School.		Newark Academy.
R. Schoonmaker	RF	Bramhall
G. Abbott, Howard	LF	Ambrose
Hall	C	Currie

GRISWOLD HARTE DEAD.

Was a Newspaper Man, Once Employed in Plainfield.

Griswold Harte, aged thirty-seven years, the oldest son of Bret Harte, died last Tuesday at 112 Lawrence street, Brooklyn. Mr. Harte was well-known in this city, where he lived for some time. While in Plainfield he spent a considerable portion of his time reporting for a local paper.

He was born in SanFrancisco. In early life he was taken to England and finished his education at Oxford University. He was known among newspaper men in every city from New York to California. For several years past he had been connected with The Evening Sun.

Two months ago his health broke down and his physicians warned him to get away from the sea air. He died of consumption. He leaves a widow and a daughter.

Mrs. Josephine Addison, of Brooklyn, has returned from a visit to Mrs. S. C. Mundy, of Stone street.

HOW THE LOCAL FIRE FIGHTER EARNS HIS PAY.

What Constitutes the Daily Routine of the Men Who Are Paid By the City of Plainfield to Protect It Against Fire.

FIRE DEPARTMENT HEADQUARTERS.
Printed by Courtesy of the Newark Evening and Sunday News.

Generally speaking the average Plainfielder has little idea of the duties of this city's firemen. They see them at work occasionally combatting flames or they visit them at the fire houses, where the fireman is apt to be found enjoying a game of cards or pool and sometimes reading. Their life may be said to be a monotonous one in many respects, and yet they are continually on the qui vive.

Now as far as attending fires is concerned that is only one part of the fireman's work. He must be constantly on duty, that is always stationed at the house to which he is assigned, whether it be at department headquarters, or at East Second street, or West Fourth street houses. He is given one hour, three times a day, in which to get his meals, and during these short intervals he is "on duty" and must respond in case of a fire. He sleeps at headquarters and is epxected to be in his bunk at 10 o'clock in the evening. Instead of getting one day off in seven he receives one day in ten, and then, should he be in the vicinity, he is depended upon to answer to an alarm, and to "clean up" when the apparatus is returned to the houses.

Those firemen are jacks of all trades. They clip and shoe horses and keep them well groomed; do odd carpentry jobs about the place; paint and oil the interior when necessary; act as janitors in keeping the place looking spick and span; make up their own beds as well, as do a hundred other things necessary around the house.

Every piece of brass, and there is lots of it, is kept brightly polished and every part of the mechanism is kept well cleaned and oiled. If anything gets out of gear it is set right immediately, for delays are dangerous in the fire department. All the lights on the apparatus as well as about the houses are lighted as soon as it grows dark and care is taken that no lights go out during the night.

When the fireman goes to bed he sees that his gum boots, which are fastened to his trousers, are near him. In the chief's office, in the men's sleeping quarters and down stairs there are alarm attachments, so that if a "still" comes in over the 'phone, everyone will be aroused in a jiffy. As quick as one can say "to say Jack Robinson" the fireman bounds from his cot when he hears the alarm, jumps into his boots, drawing up his trousers as he makes a leap for the big brass pole, which he uses instead of the stairs. As soon as he lands on the first floor chains connected with the stall doors are drawn and out the horses bound, taking their positions beneath the automatic adjustable harness. The harness is snapped as it falls and the drivers mount the seats, while the other men hastily take their properly assigned places on the apparatus. The big doors are swung open and away they go. It is all done in twenty seconds or less.

To one unaccustomed to the place it would seem that disorder reigns while the men are preparing to "get out" but that is far from the case. Each man knows what he must do and he does it with dispatch. If the fire occurs at night, as here described, Assistant Chief Jennings immediately notifies Chief Doane over the 'phone and the latter sends instructions, while Driver Townley takes the chief's wagon at neck-break speed to get the chief. If it happens during the day the chief is generally on the spot and he isssues his orders hurriedly in person. But should he be out of his office, as he sometimes is on official business, instructions are left as to where he may be found and hence he is never "lost."

The fireman takes his life in his hands. When he leaves that house for the scene of a conflagration, who knows but that he will be returned a corpse. When he is once at the fire he must be prepared to accept any risk, in performing the duty assigned to him. Sometimes the men remain at the fire for six hours or more and suffer all kinds of hardships.

At the fire which occurred at the Cadmus mill one year ago the men were on the spot from 5 o'clock in the afternoon until 2 o'clock the following morning. They had nothing to eat during this time, and naturally, as on all occasions, they were drenched. At this fire they had to remove 100 bales of hay and a like quantity of straw. When the chief gives the order to "take up," which means to return to the house, he must be sure that the fire has surely been put out, for he would be much blamed here for a mistake.

As quickly as the men return every section of the hose is removed and hung in the drying tower, while dry hose is replaced on the apparatus. The fires are cleaned out. Fresh material is placed in the fire pits of the steamers and every portion of the apparatus is cleaned and polished. Care is taken to see that the shoes on the horses are all right and that the animals are rubbed down. All rubber coats, boots and hats are cleaned. There is an entire outfit of this kind for each call man as well as the regulars. As soon as this is done they are put in their proper places.

CHIEF T. O. DOANE.

This is the work for which the fireman receives at the most the sum of $60 per month and lodging. Out of this amount he must buy his uniform and rubber outfit. Should he be injured while attending a fire, the doctor's bills are paid by him and not by the city.

A call man gets $25 a year and he must attend 75 per cent of the fires per year. Should he have a new suit ruined, the loss falls on him, and he is expected to keep himself supplied with the rubber outfit to wear while on duty.

DISTINGUISHED GUESTS.

Will Come to Plainfield This Evening to Hear Josef Hoffman Play.

Josef Hofmann has many warm admirers who are always willing to travel a few miles to hear him play. Among them is William C. Whitney, of New York City, who not only has a fine appreciation of Hofmann's musical genius but of his inventive genius as well.

Mr. Palmer, of Chicago, only two days ago offered Mr. Hofmann $100,000 in cash for his automobile invention which Mr. Whitney wants but Hofmann is a millionaire himself and, feeling that he had a good thing in his invention, refused to sell it. Hofmann says that "music only, would make a man mad."

Among the guests from New York, this evening, to hear Hoffmann will be William C. Whitney, Judge Truax and Miss Truax, Mr. and Mrs. John Bleekman, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Hurtt, George Oakes and Miss Mary Oakes, Dr. Crespell and G. W. Oliver.

FIVE CHARGES AGAINST HIM

GUIDON DANTZ'S COUNSEL ASKS FOR JURY TRIAL IN BOROUGH COURT.

A Warrant Also Served on the Italian Charging Atrocious Assault—Hearing Tonight.

Guidon Dantz, who was mixed up in the fighting affray which took place on Watchung avenue, Friday afternoon, December 6, is confonted by five charges lodged against him, and four of these were to be disposed of in the Borough police court last evening, but action was deferred until tonight.

These four charges are drunkenness, disorderly conduct, fighting and keeping a disorderly house. William G. DeMeza appeared for the defendant and after the prisoner had pleaded his counsel asked for a jury trial. This led to a postponement of the case, Recorder Doud in the meantime to decide upon his power to grant the motion.

When Mr. DeMeza asked for the release of his client on $50 bail, Constable Pangborn stepped forward and served a warrant on the prisoner, issued by the county, charging him with astrocious assault. He requested that bail be fixed at $400, and as there was no one to furnish the amount, Dantz is confined in the lockup awaiting the proceedings this evening.

SECOND OF SERIES.

Dance Given at Camera Club Rooms Thursday Evening Was Well Attended.

The second of a series of dances being given in the Camera Club rooms was held Thursday evening, under the patronage of Mrs. Herbert S. Taylor, Mrs. H. C. VanEmburgh, Mrs. Frank H. Smith, Mrs. Herbert Buxton and Mrs. Fred S. Cutter. The committee in charge consisted of H. H. Coward, F. H. Smith, N. R. Titsworth, J. G. McLaughlin and H. S. Taylor. Music for dancing was furnished by Westervelt.

There were thirty couples present, mostly Plainfielders. Included among the out-of-town guests were B. Philip Mravlag, of Elizabeth, and Miss Buell, of Bayonne. In the midst of the attractive programme of dances, there was a brief cessation during which refreshments were served. Dancing was then continued until nearly 2 o'clock. The next dance will be held Thurday, January 9.

MR. BEACH TO LEAVE.

His Request to be Granted If He Can Get Satisfactory Substitute.

Charles Beach, who has been filling the position of tenor in the quartette choir at the Crescent Avenue church, for some time past, has asked to be relieved January 1, owing to the ill health of his wife. Both desire to return to their former home in New York.

The music committee of the church has decided to let Mr. Beach go providing he can get some one for his place who will be as satisfactory as he is. Tomorrow morning Reese Thomas, formerly of the Carl Rosa Opera Company, London, will sing for Mr. Beach, with the purpose of taking the latter's place, if satisfactory. Mr. Beach's yearly contract will expire May 1, 1902.

Services at the Home.

Gospel services will be held at the Industrial Home tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock by a Plainfield mission worker. There will be special music. Anyone desiring to attend may meet at the Home at that hour.

Thomas Brown, of South Second street, who had a foot badly hurt at the Pond Tool Works, was able to leave Muhlenberg Hospital yesterday.

BOROUGH BOARDS IN AMICABLE CONFERENCE

Will be no Trouble Over the Vaccination Question in the Borough.

MEETING LAST EVENING

SCHOOL BOARD WILL PROBABLY ACT AT MONDAY'S MEETING.

Not Contended That School Board Can Compel Vaccination, But Can Keep Away Those Who Have Not Been Vaccinated.

A conference between representatives of the Borough Boards of Health and Education was held, last evening in the Somerset street school building to consider the question of vaccination. As might be expected, everything was harmonious and there was a well defined feeling that the two official bodies should act in perfect accord.

Both desire to prevent any spreading of small pox should an epidemic break out, and it is only a question of what powers are vested in the two boards to accomplish the end. Dr. W. E. Honeyman and B. J. Shreve attended the meeting on behalf of the health authorities while the regularly appointed committee of the educational officials represented that body. The members of this committee are John H. VanWinkle, Sr., chairman, A. D. V. Honeyman, Dr. J. H. Cooley and S. St. John McCutchen.

The right to compel vaccination was first taken up and the representatives of the Board of Health made it plain that it is not contented that the school trustees have any lawful right to compel this precautionary measure to be taken. It was claimed, however, that the Board of Education is empowered to prevent the attendance of any pupil in the schools who has not been vaccinated within a period of two years. To this the Board of Education entirely agreed.

The question then arose as to the most feasible plan to have the pupils vaccinated. There was an unanimous opinon expressed that it would be a hardship to issue a madatory at once in this respect and that some allowance should be made.

The termination of the conference was that the delegates of the Board of Education would bring the matter before that body, at its meeting Monday evening, for action. It is expected that final disposition will be made of the subject at this time.

People Believe In It.

It has been cynically said that anything can be sold by advertising now-a-days. This is not so. Many liniments have been advertised but only one — Perry Davis' Painkiller — has stood the test of sixty years' use. To-day its popularity is greater than ever and is based not upon what anybody says but upon what the remedy does. There is but one Painkiller, Perry Davis'.

COLUMN FOR THE SHOPPERS

SOME OF ATTRACTIONS TO BE FOUND AT LOCAL STORES.

A Few Interesting Items Concerning Greater Plainfield's Merchants.

This is the time of the year when poultry and game are especially enjoyable. Fine Jersey ducks, capons, turkeys, rabbits, and the like may be procured with dispatch by 'phoning to Smalley Brothers, the North avenue butchers.

The choicest lot of vegetables in the market are always to be found on the stands of W. W. Dunn, the Park grocer, at the corner of Duer street and Lincoln place. There is nothing in season which is not on sale at Dunn's model store.

You can't deceive a woman, when it comes to a question of the delicacy of the scent of a perfume. This is what Druggist John P. Powers, of Somerset street, claims. He carries a complete line of all the standard makes, and invites inspection.

Gavett's crockery and china store is always a Mecca for shoppers during the holidays. The large display of china and Dorflinger's cut glass is pleasing to the eye whether the visitor intends purchasing or not. More novelties are shown this year than ever before and all are suitable for Christmas presents. Open evenings.

L. W. Randolph, the West Front street druggist, has placed an order for nearly $500 worth of Huyler's celebrated confections for the holidays. A good portion of this has been secured on the orders of the patrons and it will be delivered at their convenience.

A genuine treat is the verdict of the many thousands who have been fortunate enough to taste a piece of Warnock's mince pie. Each pie is made of pure ingredients and under Mr. Warnock's personal supervision at his West Front street store. No Christmrs or any other dineer is complete without one.

It will be eight years ago next April that Putnam & DeGraw opened their dry goods store in West Front street, and with each succeeding year there has been a steady increase in their business. Mr. Putnam has just completed his purchase of holiday goods making the store one of the most attractive in the city.

Saved His Life.

"I wish to say that I feel I owe my life to Kodol Dyspepsia Cure," writes H. C. Chrestenson, of Hayfield, Minn. "For three years I was troubled with dyspepsia so that I could hold nothing on my stomach. Many times I would be unable to retain a morsal of food. Finally I was confined to my bed Doctors said I could not live. I read one of your advertisements on Kodol Dyspepsia Cure and thought it fit my case and commenced its use. I began to improve from the first bottle. Now I am cured and recommend it to all." Digests your food. Cures all stomach troubles. L. W. Randolph.

THEATRICAL.

"The Liberty Belles" will remain at the Madison Square Theatre, New York, but two weeks longer. Notwithstanding the great hit it has made, contracts for another attraction previously made will prevent an extension of its run. One of the secrets of the success of this piece is that new features have been introduced each week. Monday evening, the McCoy sisters, remarkable acrobatic dancers, who have just returned from Australia, had a place in the programme and presented a sensation. The dormitory scene, with its pretty girls in novel and attractive costumes, is the talk of New York.

Talk on Boy's Work.

Monday evening at the Y. M. C. A. Hall, Chas. R. Scott, State secretary for boys work, will give an address on boys work in New Jersey as carried on by the Young Mens Christian Association. The address will be illustrated by some seventy-five stereopticon views, showing the work in the boys camps and elsewhere. Boys and their parents are especially invited, while the admission is free to all.

Two things in the treatment of nasal catarrh are now fully understood. First: the drying process is a delusion that produces more mischief than benefit. Second: science, common sense and experience proclaim Ely's Cream Balm to be instant relief, and final, certain cure. It cleanses the diseased membranes and never makes the patient sneeze. Price 50 cents. Sold by druggists and by Ely Brothers, 56 Warren Street, New York.

Public is Warned.

In accordance with a recent action of the Plainfield Board of Health cards have been placed in all the local trolley cars warning persons against expectorating on the platforms or floors of the same. Violations of the decree will be punishable by a fine of $20.

WON IN THE CLOUDS.

Pretty Romance of a Girl Astronomer in Paris, France.

Venerable Admirer Proposed to Her While Both Were Viewing Venus from a Balloon and Was Made Happy.

Miss Dorothee Klumpke, a San Francisco girl and the greatest woman astronomer in the world, is now the central figure in a most remarkable love romance, writes a Paris correspondent. She was wooed and won while in the clouds. While she was up in the balloon making photographs of the stars her scientific colleague seized the occasion to propose and was accepted.

The happy man is Dr. Isaac Roberts, a famous English astronomer, who is 72 years of age. He is the head of the observatory at Crowborough, in Sussex county, England. He writes the letters Sc. D., F. R. S., F. R. A. S., F. G. S. after his name.

Miss Klumpke and Dr. Roberts first met at the astrophotographic congress in 1887. He was deeply impressed by the excellence of her photographs of the heavens. He himself was engaged in this kind of work in England and he was much impressed by the superiority of his feminine rival in France. He began an exchange of photographs with her —photographs of the heavens, of course.

He learned to admire her, not only as an astronomer, but as a woman. Gradually a courtship began in the picturesque Paris observatory, where Miss Klumpke holds a very important position. He pursued it whenever the interests of science permitted. Science he found was all too exacting. There was hardly a moment when the fair young astronomer was not engrossingly absorbed by her duties. Miss Klumpke's special duties consist in observing and recording the stars in the Paris belt. She is one of the most accomplished photographers of stars. In her pursuit of this work she has been accustomed to go up in a balloon. She is an absolutely fearless aeronaut.

DOROTHEE KLUMPKE.
(American Woman Astronomer Attached to Paris Observatory.)

Dr. Roberts accompanied her in several of these balloon ascents as a humble admirer and acquirer of knowledge. It was on one of these ascents that he at last found time to propose.

Parisian friends and admirers of Miss Klumpke thus described the scene: It was a gorgeous night, with a myriad of stars shining clearly in the heavens. Below were the twinkling lights of Paris faintly indicating the outlines of houses and buildings. The balloon was sailing through the pure and silent upper air. The charming astronomer, her evening's work done, lingered with her hand on the telescope to meditate and enjoy the beauty of the scene.

It was the psychological moment. She was gently aroused from her reverie by the pleading of her learned companion. She remembered his worth and his devotion. He won his cause. Hereafter the two astronomers will share their study of the stars.

It is a significant fact that Venus was the star which Miss Klumpke was chiefly observing when this romance occurred. The superstitious will immediately draw their conclusions from that. The moon was also photographed, but whether that had any influence one would hardly venture to say.

In spite of her profound scientific attainments Miss Klumpke is of pleasing appearance and dresses quite tastefully. She won her place in the Paris astronomical observation over the heads of the 50 Frenchmen who were competing, and she now has charge of the department which computes the measurements of the stars in the Paris belt, with several young Frenchwomen under her direction. She has a special bureau of her own in the great observatory garden, and it is covered with ivy and surrounded by flowers. Here Mrs. Klumpke works eagerly from nine in the morning until five in the afternoon, and at night she stays up in the round tower with her telescope turned searchingly upon the stars or goes up in a balloon to study them better. She delights in it, and the heavens to her are as intimate as the little garden of her bureau, where the snails crawl over the paths and the French roses bloom.

SCHLEY IS BLAMED

The Admiral Condemned on Eleven Points.

TWO REPORTS BY COURT

Dewey Gives Him Credit For the Santiago Victory.

COMPLETE STATEMENT OF FACTS

Majority Opinion Finds That Admiral Schley Was Guilty of Vacillation, Dilatoriness and Lack of Enterprise, but His Conduct In Battle Was Self Possessed.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—The report of the Schley court of inquiry was promulgated by Secretary Long late last night. There are two reports. Admirals Benham and Ramsay concur in the first, which is signed by Admiral Dewey also as a matter of form. Admiral Dewey makes a separate report, although he agrees with the findings of facts subscribed to by the others. The majority report condemns Admiral Schley on eleven points, while Admiral Dewey sustains him in most particulars.

The majority opinion finds in brief that Admiral Schley should have proceeded with the utmost dispatch to Cienfuegos and maintained a close blockade, that he should have endeavored to have obtained information of the Spanish squadron there, that he should have proceeded to Santiago with dispatch, that he should not have made the retrograde movement, that he should have obeyed the department's orders, that he should have endeavored to capture the Spanish vessels in Santiago, that he did not do his utmost to destroy the Colon, that he caused the squadron to lose distance in the loop of the Brooklyn, that he thereby caused the Texas to back, that he did injustice to Hodgson, that his conduct in the campaign was characterized by vacillation, dilatoriness and lack of enterprise, that his official reports on the coal supply were misleading and inaccurate, that his conduct during the battle was self possessed and that he encouraged in his own person his subordinate officers and men.

ADMIRAL W. S. SCHLEY.

Admiral Dewey in his report says that the passage to Cienfuegos was made with all dispatch, that in view of his coal supply the blockade of Cienfuegos was effective, that he allowed the Adula to enter Cienfuegos to get information, that his passage to Santiago was with as much dispatch as possible, keeping the squadron together; that the blockade of Santiago was effective and, finally, that he was the senior officer off Santiago, in absolute command, and entitled to the credit due for the glorious victory which resulted in the total destruction of the Spanish ships.

It is recommended that, in view of the length of time which has elapsed since the occurrence of the events of the Santiago campaign, no further proceedings be had in the premises.

A STATEMENT OF FACTS.

The flying squadron, consisting of the Brooklyn, Massachusetts, Texas and Scorpion, under the command of Commodore W. S. Schley, U. S. N., sailed from Key West about 8 a. m. of May 19, 1898, with orders from the navy department and from the commander in chief of the north Atlantic station to proceed with dispatch (utmost) off Cienfuegos, to capture the enemy off that port if possible or to blockade him and to maintain the blockade as close as possible.

The flying squadron arrived off Cienfuegos on the morning of May 22 and established a blockade. During the day the ships lay off the port at various distances in no particular order. At night they formed in column of vessels, headed offshore, and moved at only sufficient speed for keeping positions. The small vessels performed picket duty inshore of the large ships.

Commodore Schley did not proceed with utmost dispatch off Cienfuegos and blockade that port as close as possible.

At 10 o'clock a. m. May 22 the Dupont arrived at Cienfuegos with a dispatch from the commander in chief, dated Key West, May 20, 1898, which informed Commodore Schley of the probability of the Spanish squadron being in Santiago de Cuba and ordered him to hold Cienfuegos until the receipt of more positive information.

At 1:20 p. m. May 22 the Iowa arrived at Cienfuegos, and at 7 p. m. of the same date the Scorpion left Cienfuegos for Santiago.

At 8:15 of May 23 Commodore Schley received by the dispatch vessel Hawk the following dispatch and memorandums from the commander in chief:

Dispatch (No. 8), dated Key West, May 21, 1898, which states that the Spanish squadron was probably at Santiago and ordered Commodore Schley, if he was satisfied that the Spanish squadron was not at Cienfuegos, to "proceed with all dispatch, but cautiously, to Santiago de Cuba, and if the enemy is there blockade him in that port."

A memorandum dated off Havana, May 21, 1898, which directed Commodore Schley to mask his movements in leaving Cienfuegos.

A memorandum which stated that a good landing place had been found by Commander McCalla thirteen and a half miles west of Savanilla point, that the Cubans had perfect knowledge of what was going on within Cienfuegos, that the Cuban forces in the San Juan mountains controlled the railway between Cienfuegos and Trinidad and that there were fair roads from the landing place to Cienfuegos.

At 8:20 a. m. May 23 the Castine and the collier Merrimac arrived at Cienfuegos.

At noon on the same date the British steamer Adula was permitted to go into Cienfuegos.

At 7 a. m. May 24 the Marblehead, Vixen and Eagle arrived at Cienfuegos.

About 10 a. m. the Marblehead and Eagle proceeded to the landing place, thirteen and a half miles west of Savanilla point, communicated with the insurgents, landed stores for them, learned that the Spanish squadron was not in the harbor of Cienfuegos, rejoined the squadron at 3:30 p. m. and reported to Commodore Schley the information obtained.

No work was apparently in progress on the fortifications of Cienfuegos while Commodore Schley was off that port.

No efforts were made by Commodore Schley to communicate with the insurgents to discover whether the Spanish squadron was in the harbor of Cienfuegos prior to the morning of May 24.

Signal lights were displayed on shore at night May 22 and May 23, but Commodore Schley had no information which enabled him to interpret them.

Before sailing from Cienfuegos Commodore Schley received reliable information that ships could be coaled in the vicinity of Cape Cruz and in Gonaives channel.

The flying squadron, with the exception of the Castine, sailed from Cienfuegos about 8 p. m. of May 24, the heavy ships in column of vessels, the light ships on the right flank and the collier Merrimac on the left flank. At 10:10 a. m. of May 25 the light vessels were shifted to the port beam and the collier to the starboard beam.

Before midnight of May 24, owing to heavy rolling, the forward compartment of the Eagle filled with water, which reduced her speed.

On May 25 the wind was fresh from the eastward, the weather was bad and the sea heavy for small vessels. The squadron reduced its speed to enable the Eagle to remain with it.

On May 26 the weather improved, the wind veered to the westward and became light, and the sea moderated.

At 1:30 p. m. Commodore Schley sent the Eagle to Port Antonio to coal and then to return to Key West. At noon of May 26 the Eagle had sufficient coal to steam ten knots per hour for three days.

At 5:30 p. m. the squadron stopped about twenty-two miles to the southward of the port of Santiago and was joined by the scouts Minneapolis, Yale and St. Paul.

At 6 p. m. May 26 the engines of the collier Merrimac were temporarily disabled. The engines were changed to work "compound," and at 4:20 p. m. of May 27 she was able to make six knots with her own steam. The broken parts of the engines were repaired on board the flagship, all repairs being completed at midnight of May 28. The Yale towed the Merrimac while disabled.

The commanding officer of the St. Paul visited the flagship, in obedience to signal, took with him a Cuban pilot and had a conversation with Commodore Schley.

Commodore Schley had no conversation with the senior commanding officer of the scouts and obtained no positive information from the scouts regarding the Spanish squadron.

At 7:45 p. m. May 26 Commodore Schley changed the course of the flying squadron to the westward and signaled to his squadron, "Destination Key West via south side of Cuba and Yucatan channel as soon as collier is ready; speed nine knots." The squadron proceeded westward eighteen miles, stopped at 11:15 p. m. (the tow lines of the collier having parted), drifted until 3:40 p. m. May 27, resumed its westward course for twenty-three miles, stopped again at 7:15 p. m. and drifted until 1 p. m. of May 28.

At 9:30 a. m. May 27 the Harvard joined the flying squadron, and her commanding officer delivered to Commodore Schley the following dispatch, dated May 25, addressed by the department to the Harvard at St. Nicholas Mole, Haiti:

"Proceed at once and inform Schley and also the senior officer present off Santiago de Cuba as follows: All department's information indicates the Spanish division is still at Santiago de Cuba. The department looks to you to ascertain fact and that the enemy, if therein, does not leave without a decisive action."

Then follows the history of the coaling of the squadron.

Commodore Schley made no effort to ascertain whether the Spanish squadron was in the harbor of Santiago. He left said harbor entirely unguarded from 6 p. m. of May 26 to 5 p. m. of May 27 and guarded only by the scout St. Paul from 6 p. m. May 27 until about 6 p. m. of May 28.

The flying squadron arrived off the harbor of Santiago de Cuba, seven miles south of the Morro, at 6 p. m. May 28 and established a blockade.

The distance from Cienfuegos to Santiago is 315 miles.

Commodore Schley did not proceed with all dispatch from Cienfuegos to Santiago de Cuba.

Early on the morning of May 29 the Cristobal Colon and other vessels of the Spanish squadron were discovered at anchor in the harbor of Santiago about 1,200 yards from the entrance.

No attempt was made by Commodore Schley on May 29 or May 30 to capture or destroy these Spanish vessels.

At 1:30 p. m. May 30 the cruiser New Orleans and the collier Sterling joined the flying squadron.

At 10:55 a. m. May 31 Commodore Schley shifted his flag to the Massachusetts.

At 11:10 a. m. the flagship Massachusetts signaled: "The Massachusetts, New Orleans and Iowa will go in after dinner to a distance of 7,000 yards and fire at Cristobal Colon with eight, twelve and thirteen inch guns. Speed about ten knots."

At 1:30 p. m. the three vessels designated steamed in column toward the entrance to the harbor of Santiago, heading to the eastward, at about ten knots speed. The ships passed the harbor entrance about 7,000 yards distant from the Morro, firing at the Colon and the shore batteries with ranges varying from 7,000 yards to 8,200 yards. All projectiles fell short.

When the ships had passed to the eastward of the entrance, the flagship turned offshore, followed in succession by the other ships, repassed the entrance and fired as before, but with ranges varying from 9,000 yards to 11,000 yards. Some of these projectiles fell near the Colon.

The fire was returned by the ships in the harbor and by the land batteries, but no large guns were used by the batteries. Several projectiles passed over our vessels, but no injuries were sustained.

The flying squadron did not withdraw at night from the entrance to Santiago harbor to a distance at sea. The blockade was maintained at an average distance of about six to seven miles from the harbor entrance during the day and probably somewhat nearer during the night. Two vessels performed picket duty at night two miles inside of the line of vessels. The Spanish squadron was discovered to be in the entrance to Santiago harbor steaming out about 9:30 a. m. July 3, 1898.

The Brooklyn at that time was heading to the westward of north, about 6,300 yards southwest three-quarters southwest from the Morro, which was practically her blockading position.

Large vessels coming out of the harbor of Santiago were obliged to head about southwest by south, and the Spanish vessels therefore in coming out until clear on the shoal to the westward were obliged to head directly for the position of the Brooklyn. When clear of this shoal, the Spanish vessels turned in succession to the westward and took a course nearly parallel to the land.

The Brooklyn stood toward the Spanish vessels with varying helm, fired one shot from her forward turret at 3,500 yards range, which proved short, and then engaged with her port battery. When about 1,400 yards distant from the leading Spanish ship, the Teresa, the Brooklyn turned to starboard, with her helm hard aport, and continued so to turn until she headed to the westward, parallel to the course of the Spanish ships. The commanding officer of the Brooklyn put the helm hard aport, and at almost the same instant Commodore Schley gave the order "Hard aport."

When the Brooklyn's helm was put hard aport, the Teresa was about 1,400 yards to the eastward of north from the Brooklyn, the Viscaya was to the eastward of the Teresa, and the Colon was to the eastward of the Viscaya. When the Brooklyn completed the turn and was heading to the westward, parallel to the course of the Viscaya, the Viscaya and the Colon were about 2,400 yards to the northward and westward of the Brooklyn.

The turn of the Brooklyn was toward the Texas. The Texas stopped and backed her engines.

On July 3, 1898, about the time the Brooklyn began her turn to starboard, a conversation regarding the proximity of the Texas took place between Commodore Schley and Lieutenant A. C. Hodgson.

Admiral Schley caused to be published in a daily newspaper a letter addressed to him by Lieutenant Commander A. C. Hodgson, dated June 11, 1899, in which Lieutenant Commander Hodgson said, "The colloquy published in the New York Sun and alleged to have taken place between you and me on the day of the battle off Santiago, July 3, 1898, never occurred." Admiral Schley did not have published the other letters of Lieutenant Commander Hodgson in regard to this matter.

Then follows the opinion of the court as announced above.

THE RESULT A SURPRISE.

The result was a complete surprise, and it is probable that no prophecy has approached the truth. Instead of one report there are two. Both are signed by George Dewey, president, and by Samuel C. Lemly as judge advocate. This is a form said to be recognized in all courts of inquiry, the signatures of the other members not being necessary. But it is explained that Admiral Dewey signed the second report, a minority report, to express his qualification of or dissent from the views expressed by the court, comprising besides himself Admirals Benham and Ramsay, in the first report.

When the first information of the findings of the court were conveyed to Admiral Schley, he was seated in the reception room of a hotel chatting with friends and several newspaper men and evinced no signs of nervousness over the outcome.

When the conclusions of Admiral Dewey were read to him, Admiral Schley showed his pleasure, and it was evident from his manner that he regarded the statement from Admiral Dewey as a vindication of his cause.

Schley's Counsel Disappointed.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 14.—Mr. Isidor Rayner showed keen disappointment when the findings of the court of inquiry were communicated to him. He announced that he would go to Washington as soon as his engagements will permit, probably Monday or Tuesday, and he will counsel Admiral Schley to fight the case to a finish by every appeal that is possible. In an interview he said: "I would prefer now not to say anything in connection with the opinion. I think the country will almost unanimously accept Admiral Dewey's judgment, the testimony was so overwhelming upon almost every one of the specifications. I am absolutely satisfied that the opinion of the two judges is at total variance with the opinion of the country and that this will not by any means terminate the controversy."

Additional Naval Improvements.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—Secretary Long has sent to the house additional estimates for naval improvements, including $203,000 for the naval station at Cavite, $150,000 for the Washington navy yard, $314,000 for the Puget Sound naval station, $260,000 for Mare Island, Cal.; $77,000 for the Norfolk (Va.) navy yard and $100,000 for the Boston navy yard.

For a Military Post at Manila.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—Secretary Root has submitted to the house an estimate of $500,000 for a permanent military post in the vicinity of Manila to accommodate two full regiments of infantry, two squadrons of cavalry and two battalions of artillery. He says that General Chaffee strongly recommends this permanent establishment.

Labor Situation Darker In Germany.

BERLIN, Dec. 14.—The most recent investigations into German labor conditions show the labor situation to be growing worse. The Arbeits Markt, a newspaper, says there were 224 applicants for 100 vacancies in November as against 200 applicants for the same number of vacancies in October.

The Argentine-Chile Situation.

BUENOS AYRES, Dec. 14.—The Chilean reply to the representations of the minister of the Argentine Republic to Chile has not yet been made known. The newspapers here publish bulletins assuring the public that all matters between the two countries will be honorably arranged.

Cold In Nebraska.

LINCOLN, Neb., Dec. 14.—Zero weather and worse is prevailing all over central and southeastern Nebraska, and the mercury is steadily falling. Street thermometers in Lincoln last night registered 6 degrees below zero, a drop in twenty-four hours of nearly 40 degrees.

Earthquakes In Italy.

ROME, Dec. 14.—Earthquakes were felt last night in the province of Catania, Sicily, and in the southern Italian provinces of Calabria and Lecce.

A PHILIPPINE TARIFF

Bill to Provide Temporary Revenue Before House.

EARLY PASSAGE SEEMS ASSURED.

The Measure Is a Substitute For the Original Payne Bill, but Only One or Two Important Changes Appear.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—The house, after less than an hour's session, adjourned until Tuesday. The bill to temporarily provide revenue for the Philippine Islands was reported by Mr. Payne, and by unanimous consent an order for the consideration of this bill on Tuesday and Wednesday next was adopted, general debate to close at 4 o'clock Wednesday, when the bill will be placed upon its passage. The official announcement of the death of the late Representative Brosius of Pennsylvania, which occurred last summer, was made by Mr. Gassell, his successor.

The Philippine tariff bill, as finally reported, is a substitute for the original Payne bill, which, however, it follows throughout except in a few minor particulars and the addition of a proviso to section 6 that all articles subject under the laws of the United States to internal revenue tax or on which the internal revenue tax has been paid and which may under existing laws and regulations be exported to a foreign country without the payment of such tax or with benefit of drawback, as the case may be, may also be shipped to the Philippine Islands with like privilege. Where imported materials on which duties have been paid are used in the manufacture of articles manufactured or produced in the United States there shall be allowed on the shipment of said articles to the Philippine archipelago a drawback equal in amount to the duties paid on the materials used, less 1 per cent of such duties.

A Sad Case of "Holy Ghost and Us."

AUBURN, Me., Dec. 14.—Mrs. Marie Lombard, who was baptized in the Androscoggin river at Shiloh on Thanksgiving day by members of the Holy Ghost and Us society, is dead of pneumonia. Twice the members of Mrs. Lombard's family drove the leaders of the society from the house. At first the religionists insisted that prayer would save the sick woman. They were compelled to leave, and a doctor was called. The praying band returned and threw away the medicine which the doctor had left. They were driven out a second time and threatened with arrest if they came back.

Pennsylvania Wants All or None.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Dec. 14.—Governor Stone has returned to the war department the warrant for $102,000 received by him in part payment of Spanish-American war claims of the state of Pennsylvania against the general government. The reason for the return is stated to be that the government refused to pay portions of the claims, and the state insists that every claim is just. It is contended that if the $102,000 is accepted now it will be regarded as a tacit consent of the state that the refusal to recognize some of the claims was warranted.

A New Trust Company.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 14.—It was announced here yesterday that a new trust company, with a capital of $5,000,000, to have offices in Baltimore and New York, is being organized by local New York and Washington capitalists. It is likely that the Hon. E. E. Jackson, ex-governor of Maryland, will be elected president of the company. He is one of the leading men in forming it. The banking house of D. A. Keister & Co. of New York is looking after the New York end of the company.

To Tear Up Railroad Tracks.

ASHLAND, Wis., Dec. 14.—It has been finally determined to tear up the rails of the Washburn, Bayfield and Iron River railway and sell them, as well as all other property. Residents of Bayfield county are protesting and may be able to stay the action of the receiver for a time at least. An order just issued states that all traffic will be suspended Saturday evening and that on Monday morning men will be put at work taking up the rails on the main line and on the Port Wing branch.

NOT ON THE MAIN LINE.

When the era of good roads first visited this section of the State, Plainfield occupied a prominent place on the continuous chain of good thoroughfares which united New York with New Brunswick, Trenton, and on to Philadelphia. In course of time, however, the good roads became more numerous and now the usually selected route between the two great cities, New York and Philadelphia, passes to the east and south of this city. The first of the links which were eventually supposed to bind New York to Philadelphia by trolley included Plainfield. Now it looks as if history would repeat itself and that the through trolley would follow the same course as the main thoroughfare and pass closer to the shore by several miles.

During the last week, the mind has been fairly bewildered with rumors and reports concerning trolleys and trolley deals involving many strange and unexpected results. Some of it is without foundation undoubtedly. But where there is so much smoke, there certainly must be considerable fire. It is evident that some very important things are happening for the trolley system of the State. Their full import cannot be appreciated now. If reports are to be credited, the last few day have seen the movement started which will result in conecting Trenton with New York by electric railroads. Trenton and Philadelphia are soon to be joined, only a small link being needed. But Plainfielders will regret to see that this through line promise to pass south and east of this city, crossing to Staten Island or round through Elizabeth and Newark. Plainfield will have its through traffic with New York, if these schemes are realized, but it will be as a separate line and not as part of the trunk road which has been so often referred to in the past.

All Plainfield is interested in the new management of the Elizabeth, Plainfield and Central Jersey Street Railroad Company. If the new president and his general manager will put the road and its equipment in first-class condition, they will secure all the aid that the people of Plainfield can give them. If the service is a good one, there is not any doubt but it will win such an increased patronage as to make the change a profitable one to the company. The people are ready and willing to use the cars but they desire decent cars and ask that they be run with something like regularity.

No matter how superior an article may be or how great may be the people's advantage in dealing at a particular store, the proprietor's business will not reach anything like its possibilities unless the public shall be informed of the facts day after day, comments the Philadelphia Record. There can be no large trade without publicity. As to the mthods of publicity, all experience shows that newspaper advertising is not only the most direct and effective, but also the cheapest.

When the councilmen next meet the officials of the Plainfield Water Supply Company, let them make it understood that a new contract with the water company should contain a provision which will allow those citizens who desire it to have meters installed at their homes.

Only words of high commendation can be said for the first of the subscription concerts which will be given at the Casino this winter under the supervision of A. H. Atterbury.

Every day brings more forcibly to mind the fact that never has Plainfield had such a variety of entertainments given during the early winter months as it has this year.

It would be a great thing if the old Music Hall could be converted into an armory and gymnasium for the members of Company K and the boys of the City High School.

The "Shopper's Column" is full of interesting things these days.

EXCHANGE PULPITS.

Rev. J. D. Braker Will Preach for Rev. J. W. Richardson.

Rev. James S. Braker, formerly of the Scotch Plains Baptist church, but now of Waltham, Mass., will occupy in exchange the pulpit of the Park Avenue Baptist church tomorrow morning and evening. The theme of the sermon in the morning will be: "Taking a Man At His Lowest Point." The evening sermon will be on the theme, "The Zone of Conquest."

Rev. Mr. Baker has had a very successful pastorate during the three years of his residence in Massachusetts. Over three hundred have been added to the membership of the church, a debt has been paid, a mission started and a strong church has been established.

A FINE ACCOMPANIST.

Frank J. Smith Filled That Role at Subscription Concert at Casino.

In the account of the subscription concert at the Casino, in yesterday's Daily Press, the name of Frank J. Smith, the accompanist, was unintentionally omitted. Mr. Smith is so well known to Plainfield audiences that he needs no introduction. The high class of his work is also well recognized that it is hardly necessary to say here that his accompaniments formed a very pleasing feature of an altogether delightful programme. Mr. Smith accompanied all the vocalists in both solo and quartette selections.

An Envangelist's Story.

"I suffered for years with a bronchial or lung trouble and tried various remedies but did not obtain permanent relief until I commenced using One Minute Cough Cure," writes Rev. James Kirkman, evangelist, of Belle River, Ill. "I have no hesitation in recommending it to all sufferers from maladies of this kind." One Minute Cough Cure afford immediate relief for coughs, colds and all kind of throat and lung troubles. For croup it is unequalled. Absolutely safe. Very pleasant to take, never fails and is really a favorite with the children. They like it. L. W. Randolph.

The Long and the Short of It.

Pray do not be long short of coal
Your wants we long to fill
And make you long in comfort—
In pocket longer still.
In short, if you are short of fuel.
But are long-headed though,
Buy long weights where the waits are short—
To Consumers' Coal Co. go.

Kicked in the Jaw.

While attending to a horse in the stable attached to Philip H. Currin's grocery store on Somerset street, Tuesday, Raymond Schenck was kicked in the jaw by the animal. He contracted a cold in the injured part and is now suffering from a much swollen face.

A Good Place to Learn.

C. P. Hoagland, of the Somerset Democrat, paid a visit to Chief Doane, of the city fire department today. He came in the interests of the Somerville fire department to obtain some knowledge to be put in use in the new fire house in the latter place.

Foot Was Crushed.

Wm. Gordon, of Watchung, while assisting in some work at the houses of the Plainfield Ice and Cold Storage Company, a few days ago, met with an accident whereby his foot was badly crushed. He has scarcely been able to work since.

The large photograph of Mayor Newton B. Smalley, to be placed on the wall of the Borough council chamber, is on exhibition in Rowley's drug store on West Front street. It is the work of Horace Woodward.

Exempts to Celebrate.

The committee, recently appointed at a meeting of the Exempt Firemen's Association, will meet Monday evening to arrange for a proper celebration of Christmas-tide.

Services at German Lutheran.

Hereafter there will be preaching in German in the morning and preaching in English in the evening Sunday at the German Lutheran church on Grove street.

Did Not Nominate.

The Retail Clerks' Association did not nominate officers last Wednesday evening as expected. This will be done at the next meeting, two weeks hence.

DUNELLEN.

The past season has seen more stone put out than in some time past, and in all about 15,000 tons were quarried. The condition of the roads made it impossible for teams to get to the crusher and for any stone to be quarried so the machinery will be boarded up and the horses and other attachments at the crusher brought into town for the winter. If weather conditions are favorable the crusher will start running again early in April of next year.

A number of the fire hydrants were blown out yesterday by Superintendent Blair. The hydrants are being blown out from time to time to prevent a repetition of the trouble at a recent fire when the hose became clogged up with stones.

Perhaps You Wonder

if the tormenting cold that made last winter one long misery will be as bad this year. Certainly not, if you take Allen's Lung Balsam when tickling and rawness in the throat announce the presence of the old enemy. Do not expect the cold to wear itself out. Take the right remedy in time. Allen's Lung Balsam is free from opium.

DRAMATIC STUDENTS.

Are Said to be Excellent Actors and Actresses.

The seniors of the American Academy of Dramatic Art and Empire School of Acting, who are to appear at the Casino Thursday, are numbered as among the best "stock" players in the country. They are actors and actresses in every sense of the word and their performances at Frohman's Empire Theatre, New York, is the subject of highest praise from the press of that city. They are to appear here in two original plays, "The Money Spinner," and "A Duet in Two Flats," said to be unusually interesting. This performance is worthy of most liberal patronage. Reserved seat tickets on sale Monday.

MOOT TRIAL.

Will be the Feature of Literary Society's Meeting Tonight.

A moot trial will be held by the members of the Plainfield Literary Society at their meeting this evening.

An accident case, the defendant being a street railway company, will be tried, with John H. VanWinkle, Jr., as judge. The counsel for the plaintiff will be N. Douglass Drake, while the defendant's interests will be looked after by J. Henry Crane.

Harvey R. Linbarger and C. E. Drange will be the witnesses for the plaintiff and C. M. Dolliver and R. G Jeffrey will be called by the defense.

Health and Beauty.

A poor complexion is usually the result of a torpid liver or irregular action of the bowels. Unless nature's refuse is carried off it will surely cause impure blood. Pimples, boils and other eruptions follow. This is nature's method of throwing off the poisons which the bowels failed to remove. DeWitt's Little Early Risers are world famous for remedying this condition They stimulates the liver and promote regular and healthy action of the bowels but never cause griping, cramps or distress. Safe pills. L. W. Randolph.

Cards Out for Reception.

Cards have been issued for a reception and tea to be given by Mrs. F. S. Martin, of Hillside avenue, at her home, Thursday afternoon, December 19, from 4 until 7 o'clock.

HEARING TODAY.

Austin Gulick, Charged With Highway Robbery, Still in Jail.

Austin Gulick, of South Second street, the young man accused by Jacob Goodmeyer as being one of the four men who held up and robbed him in the rear of Galbraith's saloon, Thursday night, still languishes in a cell at police headquarters. He was to have had a hearing before Justice Nash, yesterday afternoon, but a postponement became necessary. It will instead take place this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The other men charged with being accomplices of Gulick are still at large but their arrest is only a question of time. The whereabouts of all are known.

Added Another Notch.

Patrolman Morris Higgins added another notch in his pistol, yesterday afternoon, after killing a bull dog belonging to no one in particular. The animal was seized with rabies and with 100 boys in its wake made a tour of the West End. It was finally cornered by the patrolman on Liberty street, near South Second.

Joseph S. Powlison is very ill at his home, on Grandview avenue, a general breaking down of his system being the trouble.

LABOR FEDERATION.

The Closing Days of Scranton Convention Busy Ones.

INCREASE OF OFFICERS VOTED DOWN

Effort to Commit the Delegates In Favor of Abolishing the Militia Failed—Labor Men Against Anarchy and Ship Subsidies.

SCRANTON, Pa., Dec. 14.—The convention of the American Federation of Labor held three sessions yesterday and disposed of more business than on any previous day of the meeting. The session last night was decided upon so as to enable the delegates to complete the work of the convention today.

One of the principal features of the day's proceedings was the defeat of the proposition to increase the number of vice presidents from six to eight. The increase was recommended by the committee on law, but many delegates made warm speeches against the increase. Charges were made that the executive council, of which the vice presidents are members, was back of the proposition, but this was vehemently denied.

A resolution instructing unions to hold aloof from the militia of the several states was debated for a long time. Strong language against the use of the militia in times of strikes was used, but the whole subject was tabled.

The convention decided to increase the per capita tax of national and international unions from one-third to one-half of 1 per cent per member per month and also agreed to raise the per capita tax of federal and local trades unions from 5 to 10 cents a month for each member, the increase of 5 cents to go toward the raising of a defense fund for those unions. During the day the committees reported many resolutions on other matters, and favorable action was taken on many of them.

The convention decided to take no action on a resolution condemning anarchy and a resolution protesting against ship subsidy legislation, because the American Federation of Labor is already on record as decidedly against anarchy and ship subsidies.

Consideration of the report of the committee on boycotts consumed much of the time of the evening session. There was a struggle over the matter of boycotting a cash register company of Ohio. Both sides explained the trouble, and as a result the company was placed on the "unfair list" by a large viva voce vote.

Teller Fitcham Stole $114,000.

BALLSTON, N. Y., Dec. 14.—Inspector Graham has completed a thorough examination of the books of the teller of the First National bank at Ballston Spa and has transmitted his report to the comptroller of the currency. The inspector finds that Fitcham's alleged embezzlements reach the total sum of $114,000, nearly exhausting the surplus and undivided profits, but leaving the capital intact. Fitcham's condition is unchanged.

Arrested For Larceny.

BOSTON, Dec. 14.—On a warrant charging the larceny by false pretenses of promissory notes aggregating $39,500 in value Joseph A. Burleigh of Laconia, alleged to be the manager of the American Linen Fiber company, was arrested here. The notes are said to be the property of W. W. Potter of Longwood of the W. W. Potter Shank company and of the Potter Publishing company, both of Boston.

Virginia Town Has Fatal Fire.

ROANOKE, Va., Dec. 14.—The little town of Graham, in Tazewell county, was visited by a disastrous fire at early morning which caused Emery Stafford to lose his life and a property loss of from $25,000 to $30,000. An entire block of business houses was destroyed.

Died In His Office.

VIROQUA, Wis., Dec. 14.—William F. Lindemann, a well known banker, died suddenly while sitting in his private office. Mr. Lindemann for many years was a partner in the banking business with ex-Secretary of Agriculture Jeremiah M. Rusk.

Extreme Cold In Colorado.

DENVER, Dec. 14.—The coldest weather in Colorado this winter was experienced yesterday. In the mountain region the thermometers generally registered below zero, the lowest that has been reached being 12 degrees below at Gunnison.

More Land For Syracuse.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Dec. 14.—Syracuse university trustees have bought thirty-four acres of property adjoining the campus, including Mount Olympus, the highest point overlooking the city. The campus now consists of eighty-four acres.

Weather Probabilities.

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

Yellow fever was reported in Santa Lucia, British West Indies.

The new Siamese minister presented his credentials to the president.

A severe blizzard raged in southern Wyoming, with great loss to stock.

Secretary Hay is to be invited to be orator at the McKinley memorial services.

Telegraphic communication between London and north of England and Scotland was interrupted by storm.

It was reported from Costa Rica that business is in a demoralized condition, with political feeling very bitter.

ONLY THE BEST

paint is usable. To be worth putting on it must be durable, and to be durable it must be top quality. The general war of wind, sun and rain upon houses knows no cessation or truce. Paint is the main defense. Put your faith in something that will not fail you. A reliable article at a top price is cheaper than something else sold way down.

KEEP OFF THE EARTH

During the cold and wet weather as much as possible—that is, keep as much shoe leather between the soles of your feet and Mother Earth as you can conveniently carry. It's wisest in the beginning and cheaper in the end to provide yourself with shoes having good solid soles—cold-proof and water-proof, if possible.

We are selling exceptionally good shoes of just this sort for men and women; children, too.

Well built, with broad, heavy soles and with stout uppers.

They're a very paradise of rest for weary feet, and a paradise of economy for weary purses.

A well-known Armenian gentleman, whose efforts in behalf of his countrymen have borne considerable fruit, writes as follows: "I had been suffering with indigestion for months. My food would distress me, and many sleepless nights would I pass with an overladen stomach. I did not have much faith in patent medicines, but I had heard so much about Ripans Tabules, that I thought I would give them a trial. I took one after each meal, and on the second day I already began to feel that they were helping me. Therefore I continued to take them faithfully till I used up a whole box. Not only did they entirely cure me of my indigestion, but my appetite has so improved, that it is causing much content and pleasure to the other members of my family. As to myself, I do not hesitate a moment to state here that Ripans Tabules are a wonderful remedy for such troubles of the stomach as I had, and now I am so attached to them, that I shall always have some in the house for the use of the family in case of need, and I also shall recommend them to my friends, whenever I have the opportunity."

NEW SILK DESIGNS.

Persian and Indistinct Flowered Effects Fashionable.

The silks displayed for winter wear are of the richest description. There are superb brocades, sheeny satin antiques and plain and brocaded taffetas. Damask, copies of old stuffs seen in pictures, silks a blur of brilliant color in undefined floral designs, others in wide and narrow stripes in the delicate pompadour tintings, brocades with true lovers' knots connecting bouquets of roses, forgetmenots and other old fashioned flowers—all these are in the ascendant.

The patterns now shown are of rather unobtrusive size and are more often in mixtures than in distinct floral designs. Broche panne is one of the novelties of the season. The pattern, in old ivory tones, is raised and seems as if carved on the groundwork. Satin is not very much in evidence. The pliable liberty weaves are the ones utilized for evening dresses and blouses.

Irish laces are being revived for gowns. Filet, guipure, cluny and bruges are also popular. Venetian lace is used by those with whom price is no object.

The evening dress in the cut is of white mousseline de soie and black chantilly, relieved by an embroidery of silver and jet. The front of the gown is cut princess, with a Louis XVI. jacket effect of the black chantilly. A wide flounce of the chantilly appears on the skirt, where it gradually increases from a very narrow band in front to a very wide ruffle in the back.

FASHIONABLE MATERIALS.

Zibeline and Camel's Hair Very Smart For Street Costumes.

Zibeline is the fashion of the moment, and it is undeniably smart. Camel's hair effects will be certainly popular as the winter goes on, and the scattered white hairs in the soft woolly grounds of dark tints are sufficiently new to gain admiration. All the hairy goods will be especially popular with young people who have slender figures. They will be made up Russian blouse fashion and combined with bands of fur.

For dressy wear smooth faced goods are without rivals. Gowns of black cloth are handsome trimmed with heavy bands of wavy lace. This lace is frequently appliqued over white and biscuit colored silk. Ecru lace is also used, but is toned down with traceries of black velvet. Applications of black panne are all the rage. Very often the black panné is heavily stitched with silk in a pale color. orate gowns are longer than ever, but the well dressed woman will consider her height in this respect.

Blouse fronts of glace silk are very useful to go with tailor mades. Some of them for morning wear are made with a broad center plait and tiny tucks on either side. They have high folded or tucked collars kept soft and little undersleeves with tucked wristbands to correspond.

The frieze gown illustrated is of a deep red, and it is trimmed with both narrow and wide black braid. The blouse opens over a vest of lighter red broadcloth, with a tiny chemisette and stock of cream mull. The tie is of black moire.

The Trouble on the Torolito.

BY FRANCIS LYNDE.

(Copyright 1898, by Francis Lynde.)

It was in the hope that the girl might still be induced to listen to reason that I had written to Grantley; but when the forgotten newspaper story was finally in my hands I was as one who has been suddenly made responsible for the safety of a powder-magazine. For, hidden under the charitable hyperbole of the reporter who had written the newspaper account, there was a story too despicable for any recounting: the story of Wykamp's perfidy and Winifred Sanborn's dishonoring. Having the proof in my hands, I knew not what to do with it. It was incredible that it should not bring the girl to her senses; but without showing it to her I could hardly hope to make her believe it. And to put the clipping, and Grantley's letter of explanation which accompanied it, into the hands of Nancy Selter, was like setting the clockwork of an infernal machine in order and turning it over to a passion-mad girl with power to set it in motion. Bruited abroad, there was no limit to the trouble for which the story might be responsible. It would inevitably destroy what small peace of mind Winifred had been able to gather up out of the wreck of the past in the new environment. It would probably cost Wykamp his life, at the crack of the mountaineer's rifle in ambush, or at the hands of a vigilance committee upon which every man in the settlement would be eager to serve. Failing in this, it might easily make a murderer of Macpherson. I knew my friend's character and the strength of it; but there be provocations too mighty to be shackled by any promise of forbearance.

Under the circumstances I could do nothing but watch and wait; and, as the time passed, I did not dare to leave the Selter household. Slowly, and by inches, as it were, it was driven in upon me that I should be compelled to set the infernal machine in motion as a last resort, if I would not be a party to another crime; but I refrained until it became clearly evident from Nan's contemptuous attitude toward Winifred that Wykamp had given the girl his own version of the shameful tale. After that, I waited only for what might promise to be a fitting opportunity.

The opportunity came one day when Selter was afield, and her mother's absence at one of the neighbor's left Nan alone wth me. They had slung a hammock for me under the shelter of the farm-house porch, and the girl was sitting on the doorstep, sewing. Not knowing any trajectory of indirection in such a matter, I sent my first shaft as straight as I could aim it.

"Nan, you care a great deal for Mr. Wykamp, don't you?" I said, sitting up and trying to secure an eye-hold upon her.

She bent lower over her work, and a dull flush began to creep slowly up under the softened brown of her neck and cheek.

"Is that any o' your business?" she queried, antagonistically.

"It is. I owe you my life, Nan, and I can't keep silence and see you throw yourself away on that scoundrel."

"Humph!" she said. "Paw an' maw 've been puttin' you up to say that, I reckon."

"Neither of them has ever said a word to me about yourself or the engineer. But I know what I am talking about. The man is a scoundrel, dyed in the wool. He doesn't mean to be honest with you; he has never meant to be honest with any woman he has ever made love to."

She went on sewing steadily, and but for the dull flush deepening now to crimson I should not have known that I had touched her. But the explosion came at last.

"You're cowards, all of you!" she burst out, the beautiful eyes which were her major charm flashing indignation, and the ripe lips curling scornfully. "You don't darst say it to his'n face—nary one of you!"

"Be patient, Nan, if you can. I'm only trying to do you a service. Bring him to me and I shall show you how willingly I shall confront him with his past and give him a chance to clear himself—if he can."

She was silent for a full minute. Then she said:

"He's done cleared himself—to me."

"Then he has lied to you."

She flashed out again at that.

"I say you don't darst call him a liar to his'n face! I said a minute ago 'at it was paw an' maw 'at set you on. I know better, now. It was the school-ma'am; that's who it was. You needn't to tell me anything about her. I know!"

"What has Wykamp told you about Miss Sanborn?"

"That's none o' your business, either. But if I was her, I'd keep mighty quiet. I'd be 'shamed to let on, I would so."

"Miss Sanborn has never lisped a word to me, or to anyone, Nan. And she has nothing to be ashamed of; she was innocent as—as you mean to be. You will understand me when I say that if I were her brother the world wouldn't be large enough to hold Wykamp and myself."

"I don't believe it," she said, stubbornly. "You can't prove nare thing ag'inst him—none of you."

"I can. I can prove that which should make most men and all women despise him."

"Humph!" she said, again. "Talk's mighty cheap."

It was now or never. I had come to my final round of ammunition, and if the shot missed the battle would be lost. I took the newspaper clipping from my pocket-book and read it aloud to her, prologuing it with as much of Grantley's letter as was necessary to clear the reporter's story of any possibility of being misunderstood. She heard me through with her needle at her lip, and I was dismayed to see her eyes grow hard with added incredulity. The shot had missed.

"Let me see that," she commanded, when I had made an end.

I returned the slip and the letter to my pocket-book.

"Not now, Nan. You are disappointed and angry, as you have a right to be. But you should quarrel with the man—not with the facts."

"I don't believe nare single word of it, an' I never will, 'less'n I see it with my own eyes." She said it deliberately and quite without heat. "You've jest fixed it up amongst you, an' it's a mean lie from beginnin' to end. If I cared enough about it I'd tell him what-all you say."

I shrugged my shoulders. "I owed it to you to tell you, Nan, and I've paid the debt. The facts are exactly as I have stated them, and if you still refuse to believe it will be the worse for you. I have spoken first to you because it seemed no more than fair, but I must warn you that I can't in justice allow the matter to rest here."

Her needle was flying again, and it was well that the thread was strong.

"What-all will you do?" she queried, without looking up.

"I shall do what I ought to have done in the first instance—go to your father with this information."

I expected another outburst and braced my flagging nerves against the shock of it. It did not come. She relapsed into dogged silence, keeping her place on the door-step and sewing diligently until her task was finished. Then she went into the house and I saw her no more.

I meant to carry out my ultimatum that very night when Selter should be free to listen to me. It was a hazardous thing to do, since it might lead to a murder; but it seemed to be a duty clearly defined. And when I reflected that I should have ample opportunity to suggest temporizing measures before Selter could go to extremities, I did not hesitate.

But the time proved unpropitious. It was late when the farmer came in, and when he had eaten his supper not any diplomacy of mine sufficed to compass an interview which might promise to be free from interruption. I gave it up, finally, and went to bed in my room under the rough rafters' consoling myself with the thought that a day more or less could make no difference.

None the less, the threatened climaxing of the tragi-comedy oppressed me, and my dreams were those half-real horrors which seem too terrible to be true, and too vivid to be phantasies. In one of them I fancied Nan had come to my room to avenge the arraignment of her lover. I saw the door open by inches, heard the creak of the clumsy hinges, saw her figure in the half-light made by the moonrays silting through the cracks in the shingling. I made sure it was a reality and not a dream. I could hear the night wind sighing in the canyon, and the muffled roar of the Torolito among its bowlders. She had one hand behind her as if she would keep the weapon concealed, and as she crept nearer the horror of it grew upon me until I could feel the sweat standing thickly upon my forehead. Not until the shadowy figure had faded into indistinctness behind the chair where I had thrown my clothes could I break the spell and rise on my elbow. When I was unquestionably awake, some of the imaginings proved to be indubitable realities. The wind was sighing in the canyon, and the tumbling stream lifted its hoarse roar in deep-voiced accompaniment. The moonbeams were sifting needle-like through the chinks between the shingles, and notwithstanding the dim half-light, I could have sworn that the door was moving slightly on its hinges. Also, the cold sweat of terror was unmistakable.

The following morning, when I dressed to go down to breakfast, I felt for my pocket-possessions in mechanical obedience to a life-long habit. They were undisturbed; but when I glanced into the pocket-book I realized suddenly that my dream had been something more than a vagary of the night. The newspaper clipping and the letter from Grantley were gone.

GREAT WILD HORSE HUNT.

An Expedition Sent to Central Asia by a Noted Dealer in Wild Beasts.

In recent years the catching of wild animals for zoological parks and circuses has by no means deteriorated as an industry. In July of last year Carl Hagenbeck, of Hamburg, the wild animal dealer, sent an expedition to Mongola for specimens of the wild horse to be found there, reports the New York Sun.

The special kind of wild horse that Mr. Hagenbeck was after was more than usually swift and elusive, and to overcome the difficulties in the way of its capture his men hired seven troops of Kirghiz horsemen, numbering about 2,000 in all, and mounted on animals almost as swift as the wild horses.

The latest reports received here are that the agents have secured 46 colts, nearly equally divided between males and females. Brood mares had to be taken along, one for each colt, to serve as adopted mothers for the young captives.

When the expedition gets out of Mongolia it will have to travel more than two months through a rough country before it reaches the nearest station on the Central Siberian railway. After that the captive horses will have to travel by rail nearly 2,800 miles to reach Hamburg.

Several of the captives have been sold already, it is said, at about $2,500 a pair, a price that will buy a pretty good blooded horse of almost the best domestic stock.

For Conscience' Sake.

"Conscience money" in Great Britain now amounts to thousands of pounds annually. The first sum noticed was on March 30, 1789, when £360 was carried to the public account in consequence of a note received by the chancellor. The writer, with troubled soul, implored him, "as an honest man, to consider the money the property of the nation, and to be so just as to apply it to the use of the state in such manner that the nation may not suffer by its having been detained, and thus to ease the conscience of an honest man."

Asylum for Domestic Animals.

A Frenchman living at Genesse, near Paris, has an asylum for domestic animals. Among them are a pig aged 25, a cow aged 36, and a mule aged 72 years.

TRADE CONDITIONS.

Manufacturing Plants Never More Busy—Textile Prices Firm.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

It is most fortunate that the vagaries of speculation are not always deleterious to legitimate business. Railway stocks fell sharply, yet full returns for November show that earnings were 11.5 per cent greater than in the same month last year and 18.1 per cent over those of 1899. Industrial and traction shares were even more violently disturbed, yet the manufacturing plants of the nation were never more fully occupied. Numerous labor controversies have been settled, and the rate of wages is at the highest point ever attained. Retail distribution is of massive proportions, with dealings in holiday goods the conspicuous feature.

Conditions in the leading industry are still more strikingly promising. Despite the full engagement of most steel mills well into next year, the week has brought a large amount of new business, particularly in railway equipment. Stability of prices continues the best feature, inflation being wisely prevented by controlling interests.

Raw material in the textile industries has developed distinct firmness. Cotton not only retained the spasmodic gain that followed the government report, but made a further advance, and indications of continued strength attracted liberal purchases by spinners.

Western grain producers and dealers have expressed great faith in the future of prices, many announcing their intention to hold supplies until spring, when the scarcity would be marked and quotations reach a more profitable point.

Failures for the week numbered 273 in the United States against 240 last year and 17 in Canada against 26 last year.

Revision of Forms, Not Substance.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—Considerable progress has been made by the Presbyterian revision committee, and at the end of today's sessions it is hoped to have completed tentatively the work to be submitted to the general assembly at its next meeting. The committee has agreed upon a tentative statement of the reformed faith in untechnical terms. It makes sixteen articles. This is intended for popular use in explanation of Presbyterian doctrine and is not intended to take the place of the Confession of Faith. There is no change in the substance of the theology of the church, but a change only in the forms of expression designed to make the people understand what the church believes.

Protection Proposed For Italy.

ROME, Dec. 14.—Signor Zanardelli, the Italian premier, in the course of a long statement in the chamber of deputies yesterday, in which he showed how the efforts of the Italian government had improved the health and material prosperity of Naples and the southern Italian provinces, announced that he hoped to conclude commercial treaties with Germany and Austria benefiting Italian agriculture. With that end in view, the premier said, he was studying a tariff which it was proposed eventually to provide as a means of defense against foreign tariffs. The government also hoped to conclude satisfactory agreements with Russia and Brazil.

Lipton Bewails His Loss.

LONDON, Dec. 14.—Sir Thomas Lipton said last night: "I have been informed from New York that all the Shamrock II.'s sails, gear and blocks have been destroyed by fire. This is a tremendous handicap. I am not speaking of the financial loss, but all this material had been specially tested, and the entire boat is now left in the condition of a newly launched yacht. While I am not willing to say that it will absolutely prevent a race, it is a great disappointment and an immense handicap in the future."

Safe Crackers In Ohio.

MASSILLON, O., Dec. 14.—Burglars during the night cracked the safe of the Massillon Paper company and Warwick & Juntis' flour mills. Some certificates of deposit and other papers were stolen, but no money was secured. At Warren safe blowers wrecked the safe in the Pennsylvania railroad depot. The outer door was blown off, but the inner vault resisted their effort.

Miss Hay's Wedding.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—The marriage of Miss Helen Hay, daughter of the secretary of state, and Mr. Payne Whitney of New York will occur Thursday, Feb. 6, at the Church of the Covenant in this city. Rev. Teunis S. Hamlin, the pastor of the church, will officiate, assisted by two visiting clergymen. About 600 invitations will be issued.

Friends In Council.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 14.—The second day's session of the American Friends peace conference was devoted to the reading of numerous papers advocating the principles of peace. Arguments advanced by the speakers were exhaustively discussed and elaborated by the Friends in attendance.

Mrs. Bonine Acquitted.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—The jury in the trial of Ida Bonine, accused of the murder of James Seymour Ayres, Jr., the young census office clerk killed in the Kenmore hotel last spring, last night returned a verdict of not guilty after being out about four hours.

Two Negroes Hanged.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Dec. 14.—Frank Cannon and Will Kelley, both colored, have been hanged at Helena, Ark., for the murder last July of Isaac Lane and his wife, colored, on Sixty-six island in the Mississippi.

A Christmas Fact.

"The future has a golden tinge,
The past, too, may be pleasant,
But just about the Christmas-tide
There's nothing like the present."
And of all presents worthy praise
Thro' Christmas-tide resounding,
You'll find none worthier than those
In Collier's stock abounding.

WHAT THEY SAY OF PRESS' LATEST STEP

Complimentary Words Regarding the Last Improvement to Our Equipment.

WHAT IS SAID ABOUT IT.

DAILY PRESS' PROSPERITY IS NOTED BY ITS CONTEMPORARIES.

All Praise the Appearance of the Newspaper in Its New "Dress" —Commend the Installation of Typesetting Machine.

Since The Daily Press appeared two weeks ago, in its new "dress" of type, set by the Simplex type setting machine, there have been many pleasant things said by the newspapers of New Jersey. The prosperity which has come to this newspaper and its enterprise in taking the forward step are generally noted.

Here are some of these complimentary notices:

ThePlainfield Press appeared Monday in its new dress of type, set by machinery. Bro. Force is progressive.—Westfield Standard.

The Plainfield Daily Press appeared yesterday in a complete new dress of type. It presented a neat appearanec and gave evidence of the prosperity which has come to the paper.—Elizabeth Times.

The Plainfield Press makes a handsome appearance in a new dress of type and announces the introduction of a type setting machine in the office. The Press is a credit to Plainfield and to New Jersey journalism.—Camden Post-Telegram.

The Plainfield Press is resplendent in a new dress of type. The Elizabeth Times has enlarged to 12 pages. The Trenton Times announces the purchase of a new perfecting press of enormous capacity, and so the story goes—everybody, even the publishers seem to be prospering.—Asbury Park Press.

The Plainfield Press is the latest candidate for congratulations. It has made its appearance in a brand new dress of type, set on the Simplex type setting machine which the Press has installed as a part of its equipment. The Press is an excellent paper, and it deserves the success it now enjoys. —Elizabeth Journal.

The Plainfield Press has added a Simplex type-setting machine to its plant, and on Monday appeared in a complete new dress. We are pleased to notice this evidence of the prosperity the Press is experiencing, and hope it may continue. The Press is an excellent newspaper, and is conducted in a dignified and able manner.—Rahway Advocate.

The Plainfield Press has put in a Simplex typesetting machine, and looks very neat in its new dress in which it appeared Monday. It is a progressive, enterprising newspaper, and the Plainfield people know how to encourage their newspapers by liberal patronage, for which those who are advertisers receive large returns, there as elsewhere.—Rahway Union-Democrat.

Typesetting by hand is becoming a thing of the past and many good workmen in that line are being thrown out of employment. But newspaper proprietors must progress with the age. The Plainfield Daily Press is prosperous and enterprising enough to install a new Simplex typesetting machine, and now appears in a becoming new dress, as pretty as a picture.—New Brunswick Home News.

FORMER 'PLAINS PASTOR HERE

PREACHED AT PARK AVENUE BAPTIST CHURCH.

Rev. J. S. Braker, of Waltham, Mass., Exchanged Pulpits With Rev. J. W. Richardson.

Rev. James S. Braker, pastor of the Baptist church at Waltham, Mass., and Rev. J. W. Richardson, pastor of the Park Avenue church, exchanged pulpits Sunday morning and evening. At both services here Rev. Mr. Braker was listened to attentively by large congregations, in which there were number of the members of the Scotch Plains Baptist church, of which he is a former pastor.

"The Zone of Spiritual Power" was his theme in the morning and "Taking a Man at His Lowest Point" his topic in the evening. In the morning in a concise manner he presented the features of a life of prayer, specifying three attributes of prevailing prayer and indicating that the sphere of power in the world is where the prayer saint stands. The danger of the present trend of Christian life is devotion to cause and the interpretation of human problems through second cause. When the soul is pushed by adversity, or prosperity into the presence of God, it enters into the fullest sweep of power and becomes an Israel, princely with God and among men. Prayer is a process in character building. They who limit prayer limit God.

As men becomes informed concerning prayer, said he, they come to know their own powers. The revelation of the Christian self-hood is the fastness of the Christian life. The zone of spiritual power is the sphere of spiritual conquest.

WHITE LIFE FOR TWO.

Continuation of Series of Special Sermons at Monroe Avenue M. E. Church.

"A White Life For Two," the phrase first given utterance by Frances Willett, formed the theme for Rev. John McMurray's sermon at the Monroe Avenue church, last evening.

The discourse dwelt with the severe punishment dealt out by society to women who have strayed from the path of virtue while equally guilty men are looked upon with indifference. In his opinion, Mr. McMurray said, both should suffer alike and not until this is accomplished would Christ's remedy be found. Unchastity in women, Mr. McMurray declared, was deplorable but there is only one way of curbing the evil and that is to reform the men.

HOW 'TWAS PREPARED FOR MESSIAH'S ADVENT

First of a Series of Special Sermons by Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck.

WAS GIVEN YESTERDAY.

WHAT WAS THE SHARE OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

Prepared the Foundation for the Laws of Today — Jews Were Selected as God's Chosen People.

"The World's Preparation for the Advent of the Messiah," was the subject of the first of a series of three special sermons, preached at Trinity Reformed church, yesterday morning, by the pastor, Rev. Cornelius Schenck. The other sermons will be given on the next two succeeding Sunday mornings.

Yesterday morning Pastor Schenck took for his text Galatinas 4-4: "When the fulness of time was come, God sent forth His Son." The idea conveyed by the speaker was that when the time was right, when the cup was full to the brim, God gave His son to redeem sinful men who were under the law. Prior to that time there was great preparation for the Advent.

The pastor said that truly was God employing the idle kingdom of the Roman Empire to prepare the way and make it straight. The Roman conquered to rule and he made statutes that governed the people. The Roman laws are today the basis of most legislation in Christan Nations.

The part of the Jew in the preparation for the Advent of Christ is well known, said Pastor Schenck. A universal salvation was the plan of God and He selected the Jews as His people. He put in Abraham the idea of salvation to reach the people and then gave His son to fulfill the mission.

Mr. Schenck said that man had failed to save himself and it is Christ and His Gospel that must save. One's duty is plain and Christ is the only antidote for sin.

Next Sunday morning Mr. Schenck will preach on the subject: "The Messiah's Advent in the Fulness of Time."

THE SAME CASTE.

Dramatic Students Who Will Appear at Casino Thursday Night.

The American Academy of Dramatic Arts and Empire School of Acting will give a performance at the Casino Thursday night, presenting two original plays, "A Duet in Two Flats" and "The Money Spinner." "The Money Spinner" was originally produced in Loudon, England, the cast including such people as Mr. and Mrs. Kendal and John Hare. The production to be given at the Casino is identically the same as performed at Chas. Frohman's Empire Theatre, New York.

Miss Dorothy Turner, playing the leading female role, was universally voted by the New York press in general as strikingly suggestive of Miss Maude Adams in both appearance and manner. Miss Laura Wall, as "Dorinda Croodle," Grant Mitchell as "Baron Croodle" and Maurice Wilkinson as "Harold" received the highest commendation for their work.

LAD'S SAD DEATH.

Leonard Irving VanPelt Taken Ill Tuesday and Passed Away Saturday Night.

A particularly sad death occurred Saturday night at the home of Mrs. Gertrude Scott VanPelt, of Park avenue, when her only son, Leonard Irving VanPelt, aged sixteen years, passed away after a short illness with scarlet fever. He was taken ill last Tuesday and from that time he grew rapidly worse.

Mrs. VanPelt and her son only recently came to Plainfield that the latter might enter the High School. They previously lived at Astoria, L. I.

The deceased was a son of the late Rev. Dr. Daniel VanPelt, whose tragic death by drowning occurred about a year ago last October in Hell Gate, New York, where he was bathing. Since coming to Plainfield young VanPelt made many friends and his sudden death will be a shock to them all.

The burial will take place at Shawangunk, Ulster county, N. Y., at the convenience of the family.

LAWLOR ARRESTED.

Charged With Being Another of Goodmeyer's Assailants—Gulick Held for Grand Jury.

Patrick Lawler, of John street, another of the four young men accused by Jacob Goodmeyer of highway robbery, was arrested in the West End, last evening. He was locked up at police headquarters and will probably be given a hearing before Justice Nash, this afternoon.

Austin Gulick, the first man arrested on Goodmeyer's complaint waived examination before Justice Nash, Saturday afternoon. As the offense charged is not bailable in a justice's court he was at once committed to Elizabeth.

It is said that Goodmeyer is anxious to withdraw the charge against Gulick as he believes he was not one of the men who took his money. It is alleged Gulick was simply with the other three and took no part in the proceedings.

THE GREAT PIANIST, JOSEF HOFMANN, HERE

As Ward Stephens' Guest, He Gave Plainfield a Great Musical Treat.

MISS PIERPONT SANG.

MANY GATHERED AT RESIDENCE OF MRS. D. M. MOORE.

Mr. Hofmann Astonished His Listeners by His Phenominal Display of Musical and Technical Force.

In spite of the stormy weather, 150 music lovers gathered at the residence of Mrs. David Moore, Saturday evening, to hear the great pianist, Josef Hofmann, and well were they repaid for braving the storm. Never has Plainfield had the honor of entertaining such an artist, let one say genius. Hofmann looks like a mere boy but he has the power of a giant.

The company had just nicely seated itself when Mr. Hofmann, accompanied by Ward Stephens, came down the stairs and walked through an enthusiastic group of music lovers into the parlor where stood a Steinway concert grand piano sent out expressly from New York for Mr. Hofmann's use. The pianist was greeted very warmly and Mr. Stephens announced the first number to be played as he did all of the others for there were no printed programmes. In this way the audience had the full benefit of the artist's inspiration.

Perhaps the most beautiful composition the pianist played was the first one, the Chopin Sonata in B minor op. 58. This work is not so popular as the one, op. 35 with the Funeral March, but each movement of this sonata is more beautiful in itself, any one of the four movements could be played without the other three without in any way marring the beauty of the entire work. Again it affords the pianist a splendid opportunity to display a variety of touch, the delicate piquancy of the "Scherzo" movement with its scintilating runs preceding the "Largo" movement with its warm rich melody and the sound of chimes, is a contast strikingly beautiful. Then the Finale with its great theme full of fire and hurling defiance at the coquetry and seductiveness of the two preceding movements. It was like the march of a great body of warriors fighting their way to victory. It moves along firmly and surely, everything is mowed down before it with a determination that commands your respect and the last chord stands out in victorious splendour. It says to you plainly you have triumphed.

Hofmann's playing especially of the last movement of this Sonata has never been excelled. It stamps him at once a Titanic genius. Like the "Tannhauser" overture Hofmann's playing always reaches another climax.

This number was followed by three Chopin numbers, the "Berceuse," a "Waltz" in C sharp minor and the "Etude" on the black keys. Some people were heard to say it was the playing of the "Berceuse" that won their hearts. Some felt like crying and perhaps did smother a few tears but it showed Hofmann's beautiful soul for a few minutes. The waltz is a familiar one and so is the etude which was played with beautiful rhythm and showed wonderful finger elasticity.

Then followed the Liszt's "Venezia Napolia", a composition of striking brillancy and abounding in technical difficulties, but Hofmann knows one technical difficulty and played with a dash that almost took one's breath away. This concluded Hofmann's first part of the programme and as it was very warm he went up stairs to cool off a bit.

Mr. Stephens then introduced Miss Ida Mae Pierpont, a woman of striking beauty and the possessor of a charming and sympathetic voice. She was given an enthusistic welcome and sang "Island of Dreams" by Adams, "The Sweetest Flower" by Van der Stucken, "Der bist die Ruh", by Schubert, "Das Veilchen," by Mozart, and "Mighty lak a Rose" by Nevin.

Miss Pierpont's voice is one of unusual sweetness and purity. If she won the audience with her first song by the time she sang the last one she had completely captivated them. Her rendering of "Das Veilchen" was one of the most artistic things of the evening's programme. Mr. Hofmann said afterwards that he seldom listened to singers but Miss Pierpont's artistic

DANTZ IS NOT WANTED HERE

PART OF FINE WILL BE REFUNDED IF HE LEAVES BOROUGH.

Was Tried Saturday Evening and Found Guilty on Two Charges.

Guidon Dantz, of Watchung avenue, will be better off in worldly goods, provided he removes from the borough before the first of the new year. Recorder Thomas Doud tried him on two of the four charges preferred against him in the borough court, Saturday evening.

For disorderly conduct and for keeping a disorderly house he was fined $30. The condition was annexed to the penalty inflicted that should he leave the borough before January 1 and remain away, $15 will be refunded to him. On the other hand, should he continue to reside in North Plainfield, he will be tried on two other charges.

William G. DeMeza represented Dantz and made a request for a jury trial, which was refused.

ANOTHER FAKE STORY.

Tale About Gowns for Reinhart-Thayer Wedding Being Held in Quarantine Caused Indignation.

Much indignation has been expressed in the borough over the story, which has gained circulation, to the effect that some of the gowns for the Reinhart-Thayer wedding were held in quarantine at the home of Miss Mary VanDeventer, a dressmaker, on Grove street.

Health Inspector Pangborn declares that there was not a bit of material in the establishment intended for the wedding. He says that what unfinished goods and gowns there were in the place, when the scarlet fever quarantine was effected, were thoroughly fumigated and notice of this was placed upon the labels of the Board of Health permitting the removal of the goods.

MARCONNIER'S SUPPLY.

M. Seymour Purdy Preached at Trinity Church Last Evening.

A very interesting sermon was preached by M. Seymour Purdy, of the Theological Seminary, New Brunswick, last evening at Trinity Reformed church. Mr. Purdy is the supply at Marconnier chapel

He took for his text St. John xi-28: "The Master has come and calleth for thee." The speaker reviewed in a helpful way the story of Christ raising Lazarus from the dead, of how Martha sought Him and how He sent for Mary, her sister. He then likened Christ's raising Lazarus to that of raising those of the present day from their sins.

Mr. Purdy is an excellent speaker and impresses all with his earnestness.

THE GOOD AND ILL OF MODERN PLEASURES

True Position of Recreation Pointed Out in Sermon by Rev. A. C. Nickerson.

AT ALL SOULS CHURCH.

ITS EVILS DUE TO ITS DISPROPORTIONATE POSITION.

Man of Today Needs a Certain Proportion of Healthy Amusements for General Health and Mental Poise.

The true position of recreation in every life furnished a topic of discussion for Rev. A. C. Nickerson, pastor of All Souls' Unitarian church, who delivered a discourse on "The Good and Ill of Modern Pleasures," yesterday morning. His chief contention was that all the ill that has come to the world through enjoyment has been due to the disproportionate position given to pleasure.

He referred to the cultivation of the mind to the neglect of the body declaring that the hard student was an aenemic individual and also cited the type of man produced by over devotion to the beliefs of the church, who he also claimed was aenemic. In illustration he pictured the mediaeval artists' idea of the Fathers of the Church. The natural reaction of athletics is to be found in the fact that the leading colleges are as widley known for their position in sports as in scholarship.

There is public provision for rational amusements, substitutes for Puritan stocks and the repression of fun, said he, the park, playgrounds and free gymnasiums being examples, all necessary for general health and mental poise. The business man of today, with his hard work and great responsibilities, due to the complexity of modern life, needs counter-active exercise, such as golf, rowing, climbing and the like. There is nothing wrong in working and playing hard, but it is apt to be done without thought of the ideals of religion.

In conclusion, Rev. Mr. Nickerson made a plea for the life of the soul and spirit of man. He cited as the good comrade not the man who sympathizes with his brother in sorrow nor the good fellow who shares his brother's joys, but the one who rejoices when his brother rejoices and weeps when he weeps and above and beyond these shares in his ideals of religion.

QUICK WITS IN THE CROWD.

Cart Tail Orators Often Encounter Them at Open Air Political Meetings.

Some of the swiftest kind of repartee comes out in political campaigns between the cart tail spellbinders who address open air meetings and their audiences. Inside a hall the average New Yorker feels diffident about interrupting the speaker with questions or comments, but when standing in a crowd in the street his nerve is generally with him, and many a sharp crossfire of verbal missiles results. The recent campaign in this city was no exception, says the New York Tribune.

A Tammany orator, who is also a petty officeholder, drawing salary and "perquisites" from the city, had been fervently urging a crowd at the Bowery and First street to support Croker's ticket, ignoring for ten minutes frequent questions shouted at him which he did not care to answer. At last his temper got the better of him, and, singling out one of his tormentors, who had been especially vociferous on the subjects of "Ice" and "Ramapo," he shouted:

"What are you yapping for, cur?"

"Because I see a thief!" came the reply, quick as a flash. A roar of laughter from the crowd drowned the orator's retort to that, if, indeed, he had any.

Fireman Barred by Customs Law.

According to a Vienna correspondent a fire recently broke out at Hermannisreuth, an Austrian village near the Bavarian frontier. A Bavarian fire brigade which was stationed only three miles away hastened to the rescue, but the Austrian custom-house authorities refused to allow the fire engines to pass the frontier without paying the usual tax on imported machinery. The Bavarian firemen naturally turned back and half the village was burned down before the nearest Austrian fire brigade could reach the scene.

A HEAD END COLLISION.

Eight Dead and Eleven Injured on the Illinois Central.

ROCKFORD, Ill., Dec. 16.—Failure on the part of a conductor to obey orders is supposed to have been the cause of a head end collision on the Illinois Central between Irene and Perryville. The two trains were the eastbound passenger train and a through freight from Chicago, going west. As a result eight people are dead or missing and eleven injured.

The smoking car, express and baggage cars were piled upon the locomotives, penning in the occupants of the smoker. Only three of the half dozen in that car escaped. The others were penned in and, if not instantly killed, were roasted to death, and their bodies, with those of the engine crews, were entirely consumed. All efforts of the survivors to reach the victims were unavailing.

The temperature was 20 degrees below zero, and an icy wind was blowing, the point where the wreck occurred being in a shallow cut, affording no protection. The injured were without hats and wraps and suffered terribly. By the united efforts of the survivors one car was pushed back from the wreckage to escape the flames, and the wounded were placed on the bunks inside.

Two hours elapsed before any relief was at hand. Then an engine arrived from the east and pulled the car to Irene, three miles distant.

Three Lives Lost In a Wreck.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Dec. 16.—A freight on the Philadelphia and Erie division of the Pennsylvania railroad went through the bridge spanning Lycoming creek between this city and Newberry yesterday. Three lives were lost. The train was known as fast freight No. 83 and was running three hours late owing to the disarrangement of the schedule in consequence of the storm. The bridge spanning the creek was a two span iron structure, the first span of which gave way beneath the train. The engine and nine cars were ingulfed in the icy waters. The creek was greatly swollen as a result of the heavy rains, and it is presumed the middle pier had been weakened. No efforts could be made to reach the bodies on account of the height of the waters.

Eight Killed In Montana Wreck.

HELENA, Mon., Dec. 16.—A special from Kalispell says a wreck occurred on the Great Northern railway near Essex, in the Rocky mountains, soon after midnight yesterday. The engine, mail car and smoker remained on the track, but all the other cars were derailed. Some of the cars were overturned, and all were more or less Wrecked. Eight were killed. Two elderly women were hurt internally, and neither is expected to survive. Fourteen other persons were more or less seriously hurt.

THE WEEK IN CONGRESS.

Important Matters to Be Attended to Before Holidays.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—Senate forecast: The disposition of the senate is to do little business beyond acting upon the Hay-Pauncefote treaty before adjournment for the holidays. In accordance with the agreement reached Friday the treaty will be voted on before the senate adjourns today. Senator Teller made the first speech of the day. The opponents of the treaty admit there is no doubt of ratification. Tomorrow the announcement of the changes in committees will be made, and there is a probability that after this announcement the senate will adjourn until Thursday, when the adjournment for the holidays will take place, extending to Jan. 6.

The house this week will pass the bill to provide temporarily revenues for the Philippine Islands which was reported from the ways and means committee last Friday. Under the agreement made general debate will extend throughout tomorrow and until 4 o'clock Wednesday, when a vote will be taken. There will be no opportunity to amend the measure. There will be a break in the party lines on both sides of the house. The general belief is that the bill will receive as many Democratic votes as it loses votes on the Republican side.

Iglesias' Sentence Denounced.

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—The sentencing of Santiago Iglesias to imprisonment under the Spanish law in Porto Rico was denounced at yesterday's meeting of the Central Federated union. The mission of Iglesias was approved by the central body when he left this country armed with credentials from the American Federation of Labor for Porto Rico. A delegate moved that a committee be appointed to draft resolutions denouncing the sentence and calling on the United States government to make an investigation of the whole matter.

Liberals Take Colombian Town.

WILLEMSTAD, Island of Curaçao, Dec. 16.—The Venezuelan general Vicente Sanchez, who is now here on his way from Maracaibo to Caracas, reports that 1,000 Colombian Liberals, distantly supported by 4,000 Venezuelan troops, captured the Colombian seaport town of Rio Hacha, on the northwest coast of the Guajira peninsular, Dec. 10, after Generals Clodomiro Castillo and Cirio Pupo, both Venezuelans, had defeated 2,000 Colombian Conservative troops near Treinta. Treinta is about thirty miles southwest of Rio Hacha, in Colombian territory.

WAR TAX REDUCTION

Chairman Payne Discusses This Important Question.

SOME REVENUE CHANGES LIKELY

Ways and Means Committee Will Take Up the Matter Soon After the Holidays—Some of the Proposed Cuts.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—Chairman Payne of the ways and means committee says that no definite plans have been made thus far for considering the question of further reducing the war taxes. At the same time there has been much informal discussion of the subject, considerable data has been gathered concerning the items which can be best reduced, and there seems to be a general purpose on the part of the members of the committee to push this important question to the front soon after the holidays. In speaking of the matter Mr. Payne said:

"With a surplus of about $100,000,000, I have no doubt the ways and means committee will frame a bill reducing the revenues, probably on the general lines of the last war tax reduction bill. But there is no particular hurry in dealing with the subject, as there are several contingencies which may call for a large increase in government expenditures, and it will be well to understand pretty well what our expenditures are to be before finally determining on a large reduction of the revenues. When we make the reduction, we ought to make it as large as can be made with safety. In my judgment the committee will take the matter up soon after the holidays. Whether we will have hearings or not will depend upon the pleasure of the committee."

In the absence of action by the committee Mr. Payne will not discuss the prospects of reduction on particular items. Already, however, several interests have applied for hearings. These include the representatives of the tea interests, who desire to have the 10 cent tax imposed by the war revenue act taken off of that product. No formal application has been made by the representatives of the beer and wine interests, but both are expected to make strong efforts for reductions on their respective taxes. Suggestions have also reached members of the committee that the war tax imposed on banking capital be taken off.

Another proposition is for the doing away with the withdrawal stamp taxes on imported merchandise, particularly on tobacco, as these withdrawal stamps are said to be very onerous to importers. The large tobacco interests have not yet made known what, if any, further reduction they would seek on tobacco, but the independent producers of manufactured tobacco and snuff are understood to desire a reduction from the present rate to 6 cents per hundred. Bills have been introduced proposing a reduction as low as 2 cents per pound. There is no suggestion thus far that further changes will be made on cigars and cigarettes. Owing to the large amount of surplus there is some sentiment among members in favor of wiping out the entire list of war revenue taxes at a single stroke, thus leaving the revenue and custom laws upon the basis that existed prior to the Spanish war.

May Take Schley Case to Court.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 16.—Rear Admiral W. S. Schley has notified Attorney General Isidor Rayner that he is ready to take any action with reference to his case that Mr. Rayner may advise. Mr. Rayner expects to meet the admiral in Washington tomorrow. When asked whether he favored a congressional investigation, Mr. Rayner said: "I doubt whether a proceeding of this sort is the proper one. It generally assumes a political aspect. At this time I am of the opinion that the matter should be prosecuted in the courts. There are plenty of ways in which this can be done, and this week we will begin to consult and determine upon our course of action."

Firemen Suffer In Brooklyn Fire.

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—Fire destroyed the large factory of the Brooklyn Cooperage company in Williamsburg. Seventeen firemen were burned, some of them seriously. Henry M. Palmer, a brother of Lowell M. Palmer, president of the cooperage company, was also scorched. The plant is the most extensive of its kind in the country and furnishes the American Sugar Refining company with all its barrels. The loss is estimated from $150,000 to $250,000.

Famous Shoemaker Dead.

HAVERHILL, Mass., Dec. 16.—Death has removed Mark Knipe, a shoe manufacturer of national repute. He also was one of the most prominent ornithologists and taxidermists and enjoyed the distinction of being the only man in New England who was present at the coronation of Queen Victoria. He was born in Buckingham county, England, seventy-three years ago.

An Accidental Shooting.

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—Michael Flynn was accidentally shot and killed by his friend James Hayes of Jersey City while they were snipe shooting on the meadows in that city. Hayes tripped and fell, his gun was discharged, and the load of shot struck Flynn in the breast. Hayes was arrested pending official investigation.

Senator Sewell Slightly Better.

CAMDEN, N. J., Dec. 16.—The condition of United States Senator Sewell, according to his physicians, is more encouraging. The senator during yesterday rallied from his sinking spell of the previous night and is now said to be in no immediate danger.

DESTRUCTIVE FLOOD

New York and Pennsylvania In Grip of Great Storm.

RAILWAYS AND BUSINESS PARALYZED

Loss In These States Will Reach Into Millions and Take Weeks to Repair—Other States Suffer In Less Degree.

UTICA, N. Y., Dec. 16.—A phenomenal raise of the Mohawk river has caused the destruction of thousands of dollars' worth of property as well as privation and distress among hundreds of families along its banks.

Several days of warm weather sent the snow and water from the hills into the river in torrents. This, coupled with a heavy rainstorm during Saturday night, swelled the river nine feet above its normal water line, and the city and its suburbs are under water for miles. All trains were stalled by washouts at Oriskany, Greenway and Rome. One hundred feet of track and bed was washed out four miles east of Rome, and no trains can enter the city from that direction.

The streets in East Rome are under three feet of water, which swept away 2,000 feet of road leading to Stanwix. People were carried from their homes in boats. A serious break in the canal feeder at Delta occurred at noon. Two bridges were carried away, and the volume of water when it reached Ridge Mills, six miles below, swept 200 feet of the main road into the river. Many families are without fuel, and the city officials are making every effort to relieve the suffering.

At Oneida the heavy rain raised Oneida creek until it overflowed its banks and flooded the eastern portion of the city. Cellars were filled, and the water was from one to three feet deep on the first floors of residences. The Ontario and Western railroad tracks were covered for nearly a mile. The fire in the engine of a passenger train was put out, and the train stalled in the water. The tracks have been repaired. The damage will probably reach $10,000.

West Canada creek overflowed its banks and washed away bridges at Nobleboro and Trenton. The dam of the Hinckley Fiber company at Hinckley, N. Y., gave way and released 10,000 logs. The logs took away the false works of a new bridge on the Mohawk and Malone railroad at Poland and also a highway bridge between Poland and Newport. A number of bulkheads were broken, a grist mill at Trenton was carried away, and many manufactories along the creek were flooded. The damage is estimated at $25,000.

The dam at the electric light plant at Morrisville burst, demolishing three houses and three barns. The place will be in darkness for two weeks. A dispatch from Marathon, Chenango county, reports greatest flood damages in forty years, amounting to many thousand dollars.

Great Damage at Ithaca.

ITHACA, N. Y., Dec. 16.—The most disastrous flood Ithaca has experienced since 1857 resulted from the heavy downpour. A conservative estimate of the damage caused to property in this city places the loss at $150,000, and it is highly probable the total loss will aggregate $200,000. The destruction was greatest along Six Mile creek and Fall creek gorges. By midnight these streams were torrents, and their volume was swelled to ten times normal proportions. On the north side of Six Mile creek, just at the foot of State Street hill, one dwelling house was carried away, and this morning not a trace of it could be found. The power and lighting plants of the Ithaca Street Railway company were washed out, and two trolley cars were swallowed up in the torrent. All street car traffic was suspended and the city left in total darkness. In addition all the gas mains were flooded, and last night the only available source of light for the residents was found in oil lamps.

The Chenango River Rampant.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Dec. 16.—The rainstorm which ended here at 4 o'clock Sunday sent the Chenango river over its banks and caused a flood which has not been equaled for twenty-two years. Hundreds of cellars of dwellings are flooded, that of a large department store to such an extent that the fire department has been called on to pump it out, and much damage has been done to business houses on the river front. A large section of the First ward is a foot under water and cut off from the rest of the city except by boat. The river road up the Chenango is under water for five miles, and all travel is suspended. The county farm buildings are surrounded by water several feet deep. Not an Erie or Lackawanna through train passed through the city from 9 p. m. Saturday to early this morning. The Lackawanna main line is clear from here to Scranton.

Chemung and Canisteo Overflow.

CORNING, N. Y., Dec. 16.—The Chemung and Canisteo valleys have had the biggest flood since June, 1889. Rain fell in torrents for nine hours. Snow then fell until several inches were on the ground. The Chemung and Canisteo rivers overflowed their banks, and for miles east and west of here the lowlands are flooded, and great damage has been done. At Painted Post the entire village was under water all Sunday and the water two feet deep in most of the dwellings. The Erie, Lackawanna and New York Central railroads all suffered from the washouts and landslides.

Five Hundred Families Driven Out.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Dec. 16.—The worst flood ever experienced in Syracuse occurred yesterday when Onondaga creek rose six feet in a period of less than nine hours and, overflowing its banks, spread devastation in all directions. Five hundred families were driven from their homes by the deluge, and as many more were excited almost to a degree of panic. Property was damaged to the extent of $250,000. The damage resulting from the storms and floods in the villages and cities adjacent to Syracuse is enormous.

Forty-four Head of Cattle Killed.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Dec. 16.—The heavy storm caused several large landslides on the Erie railroad between this city and Pondeddy. In a collision between two trains one man was killed and several injured. The bridge over the Neversink river settled several inches. The gale did much damage throughout this section. A barn on the Cummings farm, owned by James W. Sproul of New York, was blown down killing forty-five head of blooded cattle. The structure was the largest of its kind in the county.

Great Damage at Troy.

TROY, N. Y., Dec. 16.—This city was visited by a terrific wind and rain storm which did damage amounting to about $50,000. Roofs were torn off buildings, trees blown down and telegraph and telephone wires grounded. No electric cars were run between this city and Albany Sunday, owing to the tracks at Devines, four miles south of here, being a foot under water. The ice in the river has all gone out.

Twenty Bridges Washed Away.

AUBURN, N. Y., Dec. 16—The terrible storm did a great amount of damage in this vicinity. Twenty bridges on the Lehigh Valley railway south of this city were washed away. Besides this the track was undermined in many places and blockaded by landslides. All traffic from this city south over the Lehigh has been suspended, and it is thought it will be several days before trains are again running.

RUIN IN PENNSYLVANIA TOWNS.

Flood's Damage In Mining Towns Enormous.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 16.—A storm which for severity and destruction has not been equaled in this section for twenty-five years has visited eastern and central Pennsylvania, causing almost unprecedented damage and resulting in the loss of at least four human lives. The havoc in the coal regions is enormous, and the loss to railroad and mining companies will amount to millions of dollars. The Schuylkill, Lehigh, Susquehanna and Juniata rivers have risen as high as fifteen feet above their levels, and all of their tributaries have overflowed, inundating the surrounding country in more than a dozen counties.

Innumerable washouts have occurred on the Pennsylvania, Philadelphia and Reading, Northern Central, Lehigh Valley, New Jersey Central and Lackawanna railroads. Bridges were carried away, and traffic is at a standstill. The delegates to the convention of the American Federation of Labor are stormbound at Scranton, with no idea when they will be able to leave.

The force of the water weakened the supports of a bridge spanning a creek near Williamsport, and as a result a freight train was wrecked and three men killed. At Oneida, near Hazleton, a miner was swept from a bridge and drowned.

In the Schuylkill valley forty-eight mines were flooded, and in the Lehigh and Lackawanna regions the destruction is equally great. Hundreds of mules were drowned in the collieries, and it will be weeks before many of the mines can resume operations.

In some sections the water reached the second stories of dwellings, and the town of Westmore, near Wilkesbarre, is submerged. Many of the residents have left their homes in boats. Similar conditions exist along the Juniata river, farmers being compelled by the steadily rising water to abandon their homes.

The flood was rendered more disastrous by the melting of the snow on the mountain sides. The storm broke with great severity after the rain had been falling incessantly for several days. At Pottsville and other places in Schuylkill county ten inches of rain fell in twenty-four hours.

The high wind accompanying the rain unroofed many houses, and the individual losses will be considerable.

Worst Flood In Thirty Years.

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Dec. 16.—The very worst flood in the Lehigh valley since 1862 started yesterday, following a two days' drenching rain which melted the snow in the mountains, causing the Lehigh river to become a raging torrent. The traction company's power houses are flooded with seven feet of water which drowned fires under the boilers. No trolley cars were run after 10 o'clock in the morning, and Allentown was in darkness last night. The Adelaide silk mill sustained a loss of over $50,000 by flood. Eight feet of muddy water is on the first floor, completely covering the warping and winding machines and ruining all the silk on the machines. The American Steel and Wire company's wire and nail plants are under water, and thousands of dollars' damage has been done there.

Over a Million Dollars Loss.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., Dec. 16.—Schuylkill county has experienced the greatest flood in twenty-five years, resulting from a continuous rain of several days which caused the Schuylkill river to overflow its banks. The total loss is estimated at over $1,000,000. Forty-eight collieries of the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron company and other corporations are flooded and will be idle for at least a week. In the Post colliery at Ashland thirty mules were drowned. A score of township and railroad bridges were washed away, including three in New Castle town

MRS. FLORENCE HUNTLEY.

Brainy Writer and Newspaper Woman Now Is Editor of an Influential Iowa Paper.

Mrs. Huntley, who suggested the famous Spoopendyke sketches to her husband, wrote one of them when he was sick and did other matters ordered by impatient editors when he was bedridden, has assumed editorial charge of the Iowa City Republican. Mrs. Huntley, since the death of her husband in 1886, has herself become well known as a writer on a variety of subjects, from the style of sketches that made her husband famous to treatises on economics. She is the author of two books, "The Dream Child" and "Harmonics of Evolution." For a time she was credited with being the real writer of all the "Spoopendyke" stories, but this she denies. It was her husband's frail health which brought about her entrance into the literary field. "The people who laughed over the humorous things my husband wrote," she says in a biography, "would have felt tears burning in their hearts if they could have seen this frail, delicate man, racked with pain and burning fever, sitting bravely at his desk writing jokes to pay our board bills. Now and then, when I could not bear to see him working thus, I prevailed on him to let me do it for him. In this way I wrote considerable, but it was always supposed at the office that I acted as his amanuensis. Once, when driven by necessity, he agreed, against his inclination, to write a serial story. Three weeks after the beginning of 'Daddy Hoppler' he broke down completely and was ordered to sea by his physician. An increasing board bill and an unfinished contract stared us in the face and nerved me to the rashness of writing the next installment, for which I received $20. This encouraged me. At the end of five weeks my husband returned, considerably improved, and found me with all bills paid and a new serial under way and the editor apparently none the wiser."

SALVATION ARMY LOAN.

A Project That Is Far-Reaching In Its Industrial and Humanitarian Possibilities.

The floating of an issue of $150,000 30-year five per cent. gold bonds by the Salvation Army, in furtherance of its western colonization project, calls public attention to what is without doubt the most practical and the most rational plan to provide for the poor of the great cities that has been attempted in this country.

Like every philanthropical enterprise of this character, the Salvation Army colonization scheme has its business aspects as well as its humanitarian side. Projects of this character fail in their humanitarian purpose unless they can be successfully financed.

The bonds about to be issued are to be secured by a mortgage upon the colonization lands of the Salvation Army, which now have an estimated value of $250,000. That the investment in the bonds is regarded as a good one, not only from a financial point of view but from the standpoint of a sane, practical and worthy scheme for lifting up the submerged classes in the large cities, is shown by the fact that $120,000 of the bonds have been taken by Senator M. A. Hanna, Myron T. Herrick, Washington E. Connor, George E. Hopkins, John E. Mulholland, Benjamin F. Tracy and others. That there can be no question about the social and industrial success of the project is also indicated by the fact that there are now on file applications from over 1,000 families, now residing in large cities, who are anxious to secure the privilege of settling on a model farm in any of the three colonies that are to be established.

The project, says the Chicago Record-Herald, is far-reaching in its industrial, civilizing and humanitarian possibilities and merits public encouragement.

KEEP OFF THE EARTH

During the cold and wet weather as much as possible—that is, keep as much shoe leather between the soles of your feet and Mother Earth as you can conveniently carry. It's wisest in the beginning and cheaper in the end to provide yourself with shoes having good solid soles—cold-proof and water-proof, if possible.

We are selling exceptionally good shoes of just this sort for men and women; children, too.

Well built, with broad, heavy soles and with stout uppers.

They're a very paradise of rest for weary feet, and a paradise of economy for weary purses.

Buildings Ruined and Stock Killed.

BROOKSVILLE, Miss., Dec. 16.—This locality was visited by a violent windstorm, demolishing a number of houses and killing horses and cattle. The rainfall was almost unprecedented and was accompanied by hail and sleet. No fatalities are reported, although several negroes were injured.

Connecticut Lands Flooded.

WINSTED, Conn., Dec. 16.—The heavy rainstorm raised the streams in in this vicinity about three feet, and acres of land were submerged. A washout occurred on the Central New England railroad, and traffic was delayed for some time.

Coldest Day In Chicago.

CHICAGO, Dec. 16.—Yesterday was the coldest day Chicago has experienced in the month of December since the weather bureau was established here thirty years ago. For three hours the mercury stood at 12 degrees below zero.

Cold In Georgia.

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 16.—Following in the path of the rain and wind of the past two days, a cold wave struck here, the thermometer registering 24 degrees above zero.

A COSTLY CHICAGO BLAZE.

Traction Company Loses Car Barns and One Hundred and Sixty Cars.

CHICAGO, Dec. 16.—The total destruction of the Lincoln avenue car barns of the Chicago Traction company, with more than 160 street cars, resulted from a fire that was discovered at an early hour Sunday morning. Besides the building nearly all the grip cars and trailers used on the Lincoln avenue line were destroyed. The intense cold of the past two days contributed much to the spread of the flames, as the fire hydrants in the vicinity were found to be frozen. When a supply of water had been obtained by thawing out the hydrants, after a delay of twenty minutes, the building was doomed. Soon after the first stream was directed on the flames the entire second story of the building was ablaze and fell, with about 100 open summer cars that were stored there.

The intense cold of the early morning added to the difficulties presented by the fire and made it necessary to work the men in shifts, exhausted workers being relieved by comrades who had had short rests in neighboring stores, which were thrown open to the fire fighters.

President John M. Roach of the traction company placed the loss at about $130,000, partly covered by insurance, but the exact amount he was unable to state.

Alaskan Improvements.

SEATTLE, Wash, Dec. 16.—Major W. R. Abercrombie, who for four years has been supervising and directing the United States government development and exploration work in the Copper River valley, has arrived here from Alaska. He has been consigned to the command of the Thirteenth infantry in the Philippines. As a result of his work the town of Valdez has sprung into existence, from which point the military road has been constructed 234 miles to the interior. A stretch of 170 miles of telegraph from Valdez to the interior is also up and in working order. In the construction of this all American highway to the Yukon the government has expended $121,000, and already gold to the value of $160,000 has been taken out.

Remains to Be Moved to Kansas.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 16.—Arrangements have been made to bring the body of General Henry Leavenworth to Fort Leavenworth for final burial. The body is now buried at Delhi, N. Y. It is expected that the body will be brought here in about six weeks. There will be imposing military ceremonies when the body is buried for the last time. There is talk of erecting a monument to General Leavenworth near that of General Grant in the Fort Leavenworth triangle. General Henry Leavenworth founded Fort Leavenworth by establishing a cantonment on the reservation in 1827. He was a noted soldier of the war in 1812 and an Indian fighter.

The Chinese Crisis.

PEKING, Dec. 16.—The Manchurian question has reached a stage which best informed observers consider to be a crisis in Chinese history. The Chinese government is beset between Russia on the one hand and Great Britain, the United States and Japan on the other. The government is helpless and will yield to that faction able to bring the strongest pressure to bear. Prince Ching is distinctly more friendly to Great Britain than was Li Hung Chang.

Sheep Herders Frozen to Death.

BUTTE, Mon., Dec. 16.—A special from Billings says a cold wave is sweeping eastern Montana. It is reported that two sheep herders were frozen to death on the plains south of Billings. It is feared stock will suffer severely. At the Crow agency the thermometer registered 23 degrees below, and at other points east 47 below was reached. Specials from other parts of the state tell of general snow and falling temperature.

New England Escapes.

BOSTON, Dec. 16.—Except for freshets in Maine rivers and some of those in the western part of Massachusetts, the storm which swept up from the south and passed over New England to the provinces caused little damage to property in New England.

ROUNDING UP REBELS

General Bell Active In Batangas Province.

CONCENTRATION CAMPS PROCLAIMED

Insurgent Leader Torres, Pardoned by Chaffee, Professes Submission to American Rule—Severe Earthquake at Manila.

MANILA, Dec. 16.—General J. Franklin Bell has been exceedingly active in Batangas province, where he intends by every means available to stamp out the insurrection. There are daily small fights between the insurgents and the men of General Bell's command in which the former are almost invariably routed. Lieutenant Hennessy of the Eighth infantry, together with one American scout and six Filipinos, captured an insurgent major, with forty-two men, twenty-two rifles and 850 rounds of ammunition, without the loss of a man.

A number of captured documents and papers now in the hands of General Bell implicate in the insurrection the presidente and other prominent natives of Lian, Batangas province. General Bell has notified the natives in Batangas that on Dec. 28 he purposes to concentrate them in the neighborhood of the towns. He will move their live stock, rice, etc., within the limits of concentration. After this date everything outside these limits will be confiscated.

The roads from Batangas and Laguna provinces are lined with a continuous stream of native men, women and children in carryalls, carts and mounted on carabaos seeking safety from the horrors of war. The column under Colonel Theodore J. Wint of the Sixth cavalry is tireless in its operations against the insurgents and has received high praise from the military authorities.

The insurgent general Torres, who was found guilty by a military commission of ordering the assassination of an American corporal and sentenced to be hanged, but whose sentence was disapproved by General Chaffee, broke down when he was released. He said it was just that his life be spared because he was innocent of the crime imputed to him. He has expressed his highest regard and warmest feelings for General Chaffee and his appreciation that the supreme military power in the Philippines is in the hands of such a man. Torres says he is submissive to the existing conditions.

Patterson, the English secretary to Sixto Lopez, who was expelled from the Philippines for refusing to swear allegiance to the United States, has left for Hongkong on the United States army transport Warren.

The worst earthquake shock since 1868 was felt here yesterday. One house was wrecked and many houses damaged.

MARCONI'S GREAT FEAT.

Inventor Widely Congratulated on Saturday's Wireless Success.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Dec. 16.—Congratulations from Newfoundland and abroad are pouring in on Mr. Marconi on his wonderful feat of wireless transoceanic telegraphy. The inventor dined last night with Sir Cavendish Boyle, the governor of Newfoundland, in order more fully to explain all the details of his experiments to the latter, who will send a lengthy dispatch on this subject to the British cabinet.

Mr. Marconi has made a further explanation of his transoceanic signals. He said he expected them to be stronger than they were. He was very confident that he would receive them. He attributes their faintness to midocean wind currents and imperfections in his kite apparatus. He expects better tests today if the weather enables his balloon to ascend. There is some fog on the coast. Foggy conditions will give better signals than will clear atmosphere.

Electrician Pupin Doubts Not.

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—M. I. Pupin, professor of electrical mechanics at Columbia university, says that he fully believes that Marconi succeeded in signaling between the coasts of Newfoundland and Cornwall, England, by his system of wireless telegraphy on Saturday. Continuing, the professor said: "The signals were very faint, as I read in the report, but that has little to do with it. The distance, which is about 1,800 miles between these two points, was overcome, and further development of the sending instruments is all that is required."

Signals Sent From England.

LONDON, Dec. 16.—At the Marconi station at Poldhu a great circle of twenty poles has been set up, each one of which is 150 feet high and bears an aerial wire. Provision has been made for unusually powerful currents from the poles, and at prearranged times and intervals continuous signals have been sent from them.

West Virginia Town Destroyed.

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., Dec. 16.—The fire at Salem, seventy miles east of here on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, destroyed practically the entire business part of that city. Fifty-six houses, stores and other buildings were destroyed. The loss is estimated at more than $200,000, with little insurance.

Fatal Gasoline Explosion.

HARGRAVE, Manitoba, Dec. 16.—Two lives were lost here in a fire that was caused by the explosion of a gasoline engine. The fire totally destroyed the engine house of the elevator owned by E. A. Holmes. Five men were in the engine room when the explosion occurred.

THE HOLIDAY TIME.

The holiday season for the local merchants is at its height. With Christmas only nine days away, the horde of Christmas shoppers is out in force. The last year has been a prosperous one for most of the people of the land and there is every promise of unusual activity even for the holiday time. The local merchants have realized the fact and have prepared to meet it with a display of Christmas goods never before equalled in this city.

The great problem for the merchant of the suburban town is how to persuade the local buyer to buy of him instead of doing his shopping in the big city. The chief argument advanced for the city stores is that they have a far greater variety at a lesser price. By degrees, the Plainfield merchants have been building up their business here which now admits them to carry goods the equal of any to be found in New York and at just as reasonable prices. They have gone to considerable lengths this year to give the people of Plainfield a complete assortment from which to choose. The prices compare favorably with those in New York.

Let those who are planning to do their Christmas shopping this week visit the local stores and see if they cannot supply all that is desired. The trip to New York with its expense and crowds is avoided and the money kept in circulation in towns adds just so much to the advancement of the city. If the present effort of the merchants is appreciated, they will be encouraged to even greater ones in the future.

Those Plainfielders who, as friends of Ward Stephens, had the pleasure of listening to Josef Hofmann, the celebrated pianist, Saturday evening, enjoyed a rich musical treat. It was Mr. Hofmann's first visit to Plainfield and he found the city very much to his liking. Plainfield is, indeed, fortunate in numbering Ward Stephens among its residents. There are few cities of this size which can boast of a visit from such a distinguished musician as Mr. Hofmann.

All along the line of the New Jersey Central, from Bayonne to Somerville, the commuters are in very dissatisfied state of mind at the present service given by that company. Where there happens to be another railroad, many patrons of the Jersey Central have gone to it in search of better service. In this city, where the Central has the monopoly of the trade, the only thing to do is to "kick." It may be that a united "kick" will have the desired effect.

Among the first of the Christmas numbers published by any of the New Jersey newspapers is that of the Sunday Newark News. It has a handsome colored supplement and contains a great deal of interesting reading. The Somerset Democrat, of Somerville, also has an elaborate Christmas issue which reached the exchange desk last week.

In another column will be found some of the pleasant things which have been said about The Daily Press and its present change from hand to machine composition and the accompanying new "dress." We appreciate those kind words and thank our contemporaries for the pleasant things that they have said about us.

The public idea of a fireman's duties have been rather vague at best and so the article in Saturday's Daily Press on that subject was read with much interest. For the cut of the fire department headquarters, we were indebted to the courtesy of the Newark Sunday News.

There are some demands which, if made by the people as individuals, have little influence on corporations of a quasi-public character. If, however, the city officially makes the same request, it has a far greater influence.

WHAT OTHERS SAY.

Clippings From Other Newspapers Which May be of Interest to Plainfield and Its Citizens.

Another electric railroad enterprise is now projected, from which Elizabeth may gain no inconsiderable advantage. It is, in brief, a trolley road from Newark to Carteret, running through the city of Elizabeth, and thence in due time, advancing to Perth Amboy. It is proposed to widen the Central Railroad bed across the meadows, lay a new track and equip it with electricity. Then cross the Central Railroad main lines by an overhead bridge, pass through this city by one of the streets and take the shore line—a spur of the Central—through to Carteret. This will afford the people of the latter place easy access to and from this city and will bring a large amount of trade here. It is in a modification and enlargement of the plan, often advocated in The Journal, of a trolley line through South Front street, extended to Cartaret. Such a line as the one in view will connect Elizabeth with all the factories along the sound, and will be a valuable road from the day it is built.—Elizabeth Journal.

An Envangelist's Story.

"I suffered for years with a bronchial or lung trouble and tried various remedies but did not obtain permanent relief until I commenced using One Minute Cough Cure," writes Rev. James Kirkman, evangelist, of Belle River, Ill. "I have no hesitation in recommending it to all sufferers from maladies of this kind." One Minute Cough Cure afford immediate relief for coughs, colds and all kind of throat and lung troubles. For croup it is unequalled. Absolutely safe. Very pleasant to take, never fails and is really a favorite with the children. They like it. L. W. Randolph.

HE WROTE THE CHECK.

Denver Bank President Did Not Hesitate When Confronted by a Desperate Man.

David H. Moffatt, president of the First national bank of Denver, solved to his own satisfaction the question of whether a man should give up money to an assassin or not, states the Philadelphia Press.

Several years ago a man came into the First national bank and went into Mr. Moffatt's private office. In his hand was a bottle containing a light-colored viscous fluid.

"Mr. Moffatt," he said, "I am a desperate man. This bottle contains two ounces of nitroglycerin. If I explode it, you and I and the bank building will be blown to smithereens. I want $22,000. I want you to write out a check for that amount, take it to the cashier, get the currency and give it to me."

"I didn't believe," said Mr. Moffatt, "that the man had nitroglycerin in the bottle. I didn't believe that he would have used it if he had. But at the same time there was a chance that he did; there was a chance that he was a fanatic; there was a chance that he would have killed us both.

"I figured the thing out in my mind quickly—a man's mind acts readily under such circumstances—and I came to the conclusion that it was better to give him the $22,000 than to run the risk of my life, for $22,000 was only a couple of weeks' income. Death was eternity. I went to the cashier's desk, wrote the check, got the currency, gave it to the man, and he walked out with it and has never been seen since."

work commanded his attention and gave him keen pleasure to listen to her. The audience plainly wanted more but the evening was so warm that Miss Pierpont asked to be excused.

The second part of Mr. Hofmann's programme contained the following numbers: "Duette and Spinning Song," by Mendelssohn; "Espagnole," by Moszkowski; the "Mephisto Waltz," by Liszt; "Durch die Volken, "by Hofmann; "Etincelles," by Moszkowski,"; and the "March Militar," by Schubert-Tausig.

The audience was amazed by Hofmann's gigantic power and fine interpretations of everything. Many who had worshipped at Paderewski's shrine were willing to worship at Hofmann's. The playing of the "March Militar" was a fitting climax to the evening's programme, and everybody expressed themselves as having had the treat of their lines.

Mr. Hofmann returned to New York Sunday morning, played a rehearsal at Carnegie Hall and, in the evening, played at the Metropolitan Opera House.

THEATRICAL.

Frederick Bond, general stage director of the Proctor Stock Co., remains a second week at Proctor's Fifth Avenue Theatre, appearing this week in the title role of Wm. Gillette's earliest success, "The Private Secretary." This rousing comedy has been held dear to the hearts of American theatre-goers for many seasons, and it is still as funny and popular as ever. There is not a stock company in the country but what puts it on at some time during each season and "The Private Secretary" week invariably proves to be the best of the year. "The Fair Weather Estate" will be the curtain raiser and several star vandeville turns will hold attention between acts and keep the performance continuous. Two clever monologue artists have prominence, Charley Case being engaged to tell stories and Billy S. Clifford to give his "Chappy" imitations. Clothilde Antonio, in artistic posturings; Mason and Francis, in a rural sketch; Tom Brown, finger whistler, and the Madcap Trio are others.

Health and Beauty.

A poor complexion is usually the result of a torpid liver or irregular action of the bowels. Unless nature's refuse is carried off it will surely cause impure blood. Pimples, boils and other eruptions follow. This is nature's method of throwing off the poisons which the bowels failed to remove. DeWitt's Little Early Risers are world famous for remedying this condition They stimulates the liver and promote regular and healthy action of the bowels but never cause griping, cramps or distress. Safe pills. L. W. Randolph.

He Wanted to Explain.

The man up by the front door of the car was badly bowlegged, but no one had noticed it as he entered, and the fact would have entirely escaped observation had he not suddenly queried of the passenger on his left:

"You noticed my legs, of course?"

"Not particularly," was the reply.

"I thought I saw you squinting. My legs are bowed."

"Sorry to hear it."

"But I want you to know how it came about," continued the man. "I wasn't born this way."

"No?"

"No, sir, I wasn't. It has all come to me from having to hitch along on the kitchen roof and climb through a window when the old woman locks me out of nights, and I want the blame placed where it belongs."—Boston Globe.

A Horseshoeing "Parlor."

It has come to be the fashion to call any place of business a "parlor." For many months we have been surfeited with parlors of all descriptions, but it remained for the blacksmiths to lay on the last straw. The proprietor of a Fifty-third street shop took the lead in this direction. He painted out the commonplace sign by which he had hitherto advertised his trade to the public, and substituted the inscription: "Horseshoeing Parlors." The letters are large and gilt, on a black background, and are bound to attract attention to the novel "parlors," which, notwithstanding the high-sounding appellation, are the same old regulation blacksmith shops they always were.—N. Y. Times.

The Elephant's Ancestry.

Where did the elephant get his trunk? A satisfactory answer to this wearisome conundrum is at last forthcoming. Among the 38 boxes of fossil remains just received at the Cromwell road museum from the Libyan desert there has been discovered an interesting vertibrate, which is considered by Dr. Andrews to be the original ancestral form from which developed the ancient mammoth and the modern elephant. If this proves to be accurate it will settle the controversy as to the origin of the proboscidean mammals, which has long puzzled the paleontologists.—London Chronicle.

Pictures Painted While You Wait

The Methods and Personalities of a Lightning Landscape and Marine Artist.

FORMERLY he took a window, here or there, for a few weeks, set up his easel, grabbed his pallette and brushes, and painted pictures "while you wait," in the presence of admiring and wide-eyed spectators.

The world has never seen such another picture-maker as this Henry H. Engelhardt. His pictures are, for the most part, landscapes and marine views, and they range in size from a long, slim, horizontal, panel-shaped affair of 22x3 inches, to large canvasses three feet long and two feet wide, and sometimes larger.

Success has driven this busy, and earnest, and artistic man out of the windows into a den, but it is a very large den that is simply stacked and stuffed with pictures. At one end of this big room is a comparatively small window, to admit light. Otherwise the place seems somewhat dark. One wonders how a man can paint in such a place, but Engelhardt doesn't take time to bother about the details of "studios," "ataliers," "atmosphere" and "dilletante environment." His business on earth is to make pictures, and he makes them.

In the window days he made pictures for sale at retail, for the most part. Some samples were exhibited in and about the window, or in the room to which the window belonged, if he had secured space enough, and a salesman was there to talk of them and tell the price, and sometimes there were small orders to fill. But now he does all his work on big orders, and instead of a salesman he has a couple of men to pick up the paintings as they tumble from his brush and easel, and to "suit and size" them, put them in frames, pack and ship them, and hundreds of the canvasses are packed without frames and sent to their destination "crated."

To tell a typical artist of the day that you know a man who can paint a picture in oil, 22x26 inches, in 11 minutes by the chronometer, and a picture, at that, undeniably good and artistic, is to invite credulity as to your veracity, or contempt of your art judgment—probably both. But this man Engelhardt does these things, and much more remarkable ones.

This writer lately led a man of the world, an author of international reputation, an art critic, a person of excellent taste in all such matters, to Engelhardt's den, and was delighted to see him grow enthusiastic over the work of the man, its cleverness, its freshness, its strength and the celerity with which it was done.

One time, in Louisville, Ky., in the window days, a wealthy man there asked Engelhardt how many pictures he could paint in a day.

"Well, I never timed myself for such a stretch as that," the artist replied, "but I think I can do 150 of the small ones in nine working hours."

He meant by "the small ones," landscapes on canvasses of 10 by 16 inches.

The Kentuckian bet the artist a thousand dollars that he couldn't do it.

Next day Engelhardt painted the pictures, up to the standard, in the time specified, and two more for good count, pocketed the wager and went on with his painting.

Herewith are presented some samples of Engelhardt's work from photographs of a group, another that he painted to order from a suggestion, to illustrate a song entitled "Fetch Over the Canoe," and a portrait of the artist.

Engelhard is of German stock, and he began painting when he was 12 years old. "Just took it up," and taught himself. Observation, hard work, application, natural deftness and genius, made him the quickest painter in the world, and his work is real, true and worthy.

Engelhardt has traveled far and wide, and painted all the way. But he paints only from nature, and that in its most picturesque and charming moods and scenes. Nothing salacious, questionable or unreal ever comes from his brush.

Moreover, this artist is a real man, and a most engaging one, without effort. He will talk to two or three persons at a time and paint right along. He talks brightly, at that, and on all sorts of subjects. He has his ideas, and pretty strong ones, about politics and religion, science and art, and will make a farmer happy with conversation about live stock and crops.

Sometimes a mendicant comes along and prefers his little plea. The artist, still eyeing his canvass, will transfer his brush to the pallette hand, drop the other into a small pocket of his paint-stiffened overalls, and fish out a coin, the first one that comes, and never looking to see what it is, passes it to the beggar and goes on with his painting, and his story, if he happens to be telling one, for he is a man of humor, withal. No time seems to ever be lost from the picture, that grows as does the shadow of a passing cloud upon the brown carpet of a hillside in autumn.

Mostly, instead of the pallette with the thumb hold in it, Engelhardt has his colors on a slab, at his right. Plenty of brushes, and unconventionly large ones, are there. He sets a canvass on his easel and with a few dexterous passes the background and clouds appear. The lake or stream—and there is nearly always one or both, often a cataract—come from another brush, a house, castle, cottage, whatever is necessary, or whatever is in his mind's eye, protrudes immediately, trees grow by magic, and you know what they are, if you have any woodcraft. Rocks, cliffs, bluffs, border the water, boats appear, if needed, sedge grass and briar, waterlilies and shore flowers spring up with a few mystic touches, and there's your painting, a good one, pleasing to the eye and genial. Something that a man has done to make a spot in the world more cheerful.

Crab Shells as Barometers.

The Araucanians, of southern Chili, use the cast-off shell of a crab as a barometer. It is white in fair, dry weather, but the approach of a moist atmosphere is indicated by the appearance of small red spots. As the moisture in the air increases the shell becomes entirely red, and continues so throughout the rainy season.

SEPARATE WAISTS.

Velvet and Lace Blouses For Theater and Dinner Wear.

There is a decided craze for velvet, and costumes made of this material can be seen on all sides. Most of them unfortunately are of very cheap material. This is poor economy, as nothing wears so badly and looks so tawdry as cheap velvet. Bands of taffeta, peau de sole and satin are used as trimmings, and the favorite style seems to be the blouse or the Louis XVI. The velvet skirts are cut in the new serpentine shape. They are, many of them, made with a couple of gored ruffles edged with a fanciful application of taffeta. Two or even three gored flounces are taking the place of the single flounce which has so long been popular.

For theater wear nothing can equal the chic of one of these clinging velvet skirts worn with a fluffy lace blouse. These blouses are frequently made of alternate strips of insertion and black velvet. They are collarless and have elbow sleeves finished with smart bows of velvet and lace ruffles.

A seasonable idea for a dinner waist may be suggested by our illustration. It is made of alternate shirrings of white chiffon and wavy bands of black chantilly. The decolletage is very prettily cut so that the shoulders are exposed, and on the left side just below the shoulder there is a large crumpled bow of black velvet. The smart sleeves end with a frill at the elbows. They also are decorated with velvet bows. A plain skirt of black velvet would go very well with such a waist.

The variations in winter coats are almost endless. The Eton Russian blouse and Louis XVI. styles are the favorites. The coat collars are small and flat, to permit the wearing of separate boas of fur. ure largely on winter coats with the collar in the new flat shape, and the costly chinchilla is displayed in the edition de luxe of the winter coat and Russian blouse.

Large collars deepening almost into capes are too picturesque not to be noticed, for they are admirably adapted to wear with the portrait hats, the velvet coats and the sweeping skirts. Most of these collars are of heavy Russian lace when used on coats and of mull taffeta and veiling when worn with dresses. Wide sailor collars consisting of fur are seen on some of the more youthful fur Etons.

Our illustration shows a coat with a triple cape. Deep blue melton is the material. It is made with strapped seams and is lined throughout with squirrel. The turnover collar and revers are of sable.

The hat is of deep blue felt with a pheasant's breast. JUDIC CHOLLET.

CHAPTER X.

AND WHAT CAME OF IT.

In deference to my illness, as well as to the fact that I paid liberally for my footing in the Selter household, I was not required to rise at daybreak and breakfast with the family; and I was rather later than usual on the morning following the night of bad dreams and worse realities. Mrs. Selter served me, as she usually did, and Nan was not visible. Knowing the girl's excellent reason for avoiding me, I thought little of it at the time, being swallowed up in anxious conjectures as to what use she would make of the stolen letter and newspaper clipping.

But as the day wore on and still she did not appear, anxiety became dread, indefinable and unreasoning, but mighty in proportion to the portentous possibilities. It was to little purpose that I tried to argue myself into a calmer frame of mind; that I wrought out the problem of chances again and again in a vain endeavor to prefigure what would come of it. At the worst, it appeared, she could only betray me to Wykamp; or, if jealousy should prove stronger than love, hold her knowledge of the shameful facts as a sword over Winifred's head; but, as the event was to show forth, I reckoned entirely without my host, as one is likely to reckon when the inscrutable secrets of a woman's heart are involved.

The long day brought no explanation of Nan's absence. From my post of observation on the porch I saw Wykamp ride past on his way to his work; and I made sure that he did not repass until he returned late in the evening at the tail of the straggling procession of workmen. Winifred returned from the schoolhouse at the usual hour in the afternoon, and my anxious scrutiny of her face as she came up the walk from the gate and stopped for a word with the convalescent before going to her room assured me that as yet the blow had not fallen upon her. Still Nan did not appear, and her prolonged absence, and the stolid indifference of her father and mother to it, puzzled me not a little. I would have given much to know what had happened in the family councils in those early hours of the morning when I had slept the sleep of the unsuspecting.

By nightfall the indefinable dread had grown until it had become an agony of apprehension. For two days Macpherson had intermitted his evening visits to the camp at Valley Head; and after supper I watched and waited in the hope that he would come. It had been no part of my plan to make him a confidant in the results of the Grantley investigation, but under the changed conditions it now seemed to be the wisest course; and I was half daft at the thought that the story might reach him through another channel. So I kept my post in the hammock until nine o'clock, and then went to my room to stay only till I could be sure that the family had gone to bed. When the farm-house was still and dark, I found my overcoat and crept downstairs with my shoes in my hand.

The moon was well above the uplifted eastern horizon when I put on my shoes and propped myself in the hammock to continue the pointless vigil. There was not the vaguest promise that anything could come of it. At the most I could only make sure that Nan did or did not come home. And yet, if life itself had been at stake, I could scarcely have gone back to my room and to bed.

The night was as perfect as night can be in a region where both night and day are beyond the imaginings of the dwellers in lower altitudes. The hazeless air was tremulous with the murmurings of nature's silences. It seemed that I had never before realized how white the moonlight could be, nor how black the shadows. The wind, what zephyr's-breath there was of it, was up the valley; and on its wings came the scents of sun-cured grasses and the distance-softened notes of an accordion played by one of the workmen in the engineer's camp. The very atmosphere was eloquent of peace, and the restless urgency of the latter-day struggle for existence seemed far removed. After a time the moon rode higher, and the hammock under the porch-roof swung in the blackest of the shadows. The night air began to grow cooler, and I buttoned my overcoat and filled and lighted my pipe.

It must have been nearly ten o'clock when Nan returned. I heard her step in the road and extinguished my pipe. She came up the walk with footsteps lagging, as one who fights with fatigue; and she let herself into the house silently and without looking to right or left. One thing, and one thing only, had I learned by being a silent witness of her home-coming. She had come from somewhere down the valley; otherwise the wind would not have brought me the warning of her approach.

It was fully half an hour later before I could make up my mind to go to bed. There was less than nothing to watch for now, and, despite the overcoat, the chill of the night struck deep. I climbed out of the hammock stiffly and took a turn in the door yard to start the blood a little. From the gate I could see the foaming torrent of the Torolito rushing past on the opposite side of the road in its final plungings to the level of the lower valley. I had long since remarked that the river was always much higher at night, and been puzzled to account for it until Macpherson had explained that the night flood-tide in a snow-fed stream is proportioned to the heat of the preceding day.

The August day had been unusually hot, and the river was in full flood. Its thunder filled the silence of the night—made it, I had almost said—but not to the exclusion of other sounds. While I lingered at the gate the click of a horse's hoofs came wind-borne from the direction of the engineer's camp. There was a low cottonwood growing on the embankment of the ditch just outside the gate, and I crawled between the wires of the fence and crouched in the shadow of the tree.

The horseman was the engineer. He was riding slowly, and his face was turned from me as if he were inspecting the turbulent stream as he followed its course in reverse toward the upper canyon. I divined his purpose. Some one—Selter, I think it was—had commented upon the unsafety of the timber coffer-dam which Wykamp had put in to divert the course of the stream while the workmen were making the excavation for the foundations of the permanent structure; and the engineer was on his way to see how the temporary barrier was standing the pressure of the night flood.

It was no concern of mine, and but for the fact that in the act of rising I heard the house door open I should have gone in to put idle speculation to bed. But it did not seem worth while to arouse curiosity touching my late vigil and I crouched still lower in the shadow of my cottonwood when a man crept out at the slowly opened door and went off at a shuffling run across the nearest field. It was Selter, and I wondered if he had been sharing my vigil, and to what end. He came out into the road at the point where the ditch crossed it, still running; and when he held on up the dry bed of the ditch instead of keeping to the road, I understood his object. By following the line of the ditch and crossing the canyon on its flume above Macpherson's placer, a man on foot might reach the dam-workings in the upper canyon in advance of a horseman on the trail.

Again I said it was no concern of mine; and if Selter had carried his rifle—as he did not—he should have gone unfollowed by me. Once more my hand was on the gate-latch, and once more the warning wind brought the click of horseshoes on the hard surface of the road. Looking eastward I could make out the figure of a horseman rising and falling in a rapid gallop up the gentle ascent from the schoolhouse. Some vague premonition drove me to the shadow of my tree again, and I saw the horseman as he cantered past; saw his face and caught a glimpse of the short repeating rifle of the cow-boys unslung and lying across the saddle.

It was Macpherson; and Nan's long absence was explained as clearly as need be. It was to the young stockman that she had carried the proof of Wykamp's villainy, though to what end no man might guess. But the result was before me. Macpherson had forgotten his promise to Winifred; forgotten that vengeance belongs to God and not to man; and was on his way to call the engineer to his accounting.

I was in no doubt as to the outcome. I knew Macpherson well enough to be sure that he would give his antagonist a fair chance to defend his life—and no more. As I have said, I saw his face as he rode past me. There was no passion in the fixed stare of the eyes or in the out-thrust jaw. It was rather the cold and unflinching determination of a mild-mannered man goaded past endurance, and it was terrible to behold.

At the moment I was sure of nothing but that the tragedy must be prevented at any cost, and I set out to run after him as fast as a sick man might. With presence of mind which was entirely mechanical, I forsook the road at the point where Selter had left it, running up the dry bed of the ditch which traversed the small inner valley beyond the "hogback" on a higher level than that followed by the rough wagon-road. As it chanced, the choice of the ditch saved my life, though when I had wallowed a panting quarter of a mile in the dry sand of the channel I was fain to curse the impulse which had made me forsake the trail.

A hundred yards below the dam-workings my ditch crossed the trail below and the stream by a box-flume bridge; a crazy structure on spindling stilts that weaved and racked under me as I ran. I did not dare to look down or aside until I had won across; and then I saw that I was too late, and that I was on the wrong side of the stream. The wooden coffer-dam was built out from the other side of the canyon; and the engineer, leaving his horse where I had once left mine, had climbed to the top of the timbering to look down into the seething flood hammering at its upper side and sweeping foam-flecked past its outer extremity. And on the trail below, with his horse neighboring playfully with Wykamp's, was Macpherson, waiting quietly until the engineer should finish his inspection and come down.

How to Get Through With Christmas Cheap

It is not so much because we are stingy, nor on account of lack of love or charity, that we desire to make a fine art of getting out of Christmas cheap. Strenuousness increases with civilization, and as wages mount higher, so do desires; and the standard of living burdens us.

The Modern Christmas List.

In ye good olden time, one gave to one's immediate family the Christmas gift, but now all the dear five hundred must be remembered. Unquestionably, one's family must be provided for, then there are the relations on both sides the house. The friends of ages ago come in for their share. Those to whom we are indebted socially should be included, and business friends not forgotten. The maid and washer-woman certainly receive attention. The industrious, deserving young woman who has so little to brighten her life we feel moved to include. The lonely young man away off from everybody and everything appeals to our consciences; and the poor whom, with their children, we have always with us.

Is it a wonder we begin plotting and planning months before the 25th of December? A wonder we now and then make use of encumbering Christmas trifles presented us in the past? A wonder we haunt the bargain counters and basement aisles? A wonder nervous prostration has us in its hold by the time the holidays have arrived?

No, and yet again No. All homage to the men and women who practice the art of Getting Out of Christmas Cheap.

The Foxy Shaving Pad.

And it is marvelous what one can get for a quarter; things worth having, as well as things that merely cumber the house. Nowadays one can get an excellent linen handkerchief, a man's big one or a lady's very fine one, for that price. And say what you will about the lack of originality displayed in selecting kerchiefs for gifts, they always come in handy.

A little affair not out of place for a man that is his own barber is a shaving-pad. These pads vary in price from 25 cents to $1.25, the difference consisting in the quality of the leather used for the cover to the block of paper. They look like thick, leather-bound, silver-ornamented diaries, memorandum-books, or things of that sort; and quite a number of maidens stop at the counter where they are kept and ask to look at "those dear little books." Even when they see chased on the silver plate set in the middle of the cover 'A Clean Shave," they fail to grasp the nature of the article. Yesterday I saw a pretty young girl, who had insisted on having the "book" removed from the case so she could inspect it closely, let go its ribbon hanger hastily, as if it burned her fingers, when told that that which she coveted was a shaving-pad.

Exceedingly pretty ink-wells can be bought for five and twenty cents in almost any store which makes a specialty of Christmas novelties. I saw an old silver gargoyle-sort of thing that was very pleasing, and I am sure would make its possessor smile every time he dipped his pen into its well. And this old fellow was valued at only a quarter. The tape-measures that can be bought for a modest sum are great in number and variety, this year the counters are all tumbled over with them. A handsome, bodyless head of a Moorish gentleman smiles at you, and if you pull the tassel of his fez ever so gently, out pops a yard measure. An Arab's cigar responds in the same way, and also the pipe that an Indian carries in his mouth. You press a bug in the mouth of a frog, a grain of corn in a chick's, and a tape-measure appears ready for use. A goat, a donkey, and a pig all carry them in their hollow interiors, a baseball cap and a tall hat contain them.

The city stores show that anyone can make the animal pin cushions that are so much in vogue. I saw one that was especially amusing, a cat constructed of yellow velvet. Tabby sat up, about five or six inches high, very soft, fat and contented-looking. Her ears were shaped of the velvet, her face painted in, and her whiskers, which stuck out most naturally, were of long needles. Pins were thrust in all over the body, but she looked eminently comfortable. A gray velvet deer head, with brown bead eyes, bore an agonized expression with its many prickings. A muzzled dog appeared equal to the occasion, also a yellow owl, and a saffron chick with a red comb.

For Needles and Pins.

A linen cover decorated with holly makes a pretty case for the utilitarian telephone directory that hangs in so conspicuous a place. Jewel-pockets are nice things to have when traveling, and are meant to hang around the neck. They are made with a flap that fastens securely with two patent fasteners. These pockets sell at 35 and 50 cents.

Thirty cents will buy a tiny pair of blue denim pantaloons, and for a fewer cents one could easily make them. On each leg is a sizable piece of sandpaper on which, in brown letters, are written these elegant lines:

"Scratch your matches on my breeches,
'Twill save your mother lots of stitches."

A man uses a pin about once a year, and to meet this possible need there are several flat pin books offered, the best made of leather. A tiny purple and yellow pansy, made of chamois, contains two stiff leather pockets that hold black, white and pink court-plaster, a quite sensible little gift, easily carried in the pocket (so accessible), and costing only a little.

The Engagement Ring for Christmas.

Divers silver and mother-of-pearl tools are offered in the way of envelope openers, paper knives and bookmarks. People usually accumulate a quantity of these, and I doubt if they use them often; the articles, with the contrariness of inanimate things, usually keeping out of the way when wanted. About as senseless a thing as I have seen was a small pine club, painted blue, ornamented with blue ribbon and having stuck in it three gilt hooks. I asked what it was for, and a clerk answered: "Oh, to hang things on." Visions of incongruous heavy overcoats and tall hats immediately arose before me, but she added: "Keys, buttons, or anything of that sort." Mere lumber, neither ornamental nor useful—but can be had for a quarter.

And the tired shopper, worn out with the jostling of the Christmas purchasers, with the scheming to make a slim purse answer the demands of a fat list, at the eleventh hour is ready to take anything that offers itself cheap, even if it be only a pine club with foolish small hooks.

A bit of a flowering plant is a graceful gift, a gift that will keep the giver's memory green and that will prove a daily joy to the recipient. A scarlet salvia one can purchase for 15 cents, a red geranium for 10 or 15, a beautiful, feathery asparagus fern for a quarter. A bunch of carnations, one perfect rose, gives joy in the cold midwinter weather, but of course the pleasure is short-lived. A holly wreath is always acceptable at the holiday season, and these wreaths can be obtained at prices ranging from 10 to 30 cents. The long, trailing, green, mossy mouse-foot costs but a few cents a yard, and twined about chandeliers, pictures and windows gives an unwonted holiday air to one's rooms. And some sprigs of the waxen-berried mistletoe add to the general hilarity.

Send Your Friend Christmas Greens.

The young man that has lately become engaged can kill two birds with one stone; give his fair betrothed the engagement ring for a Christmas present. She at least will feel better about it than the maid described in the little verse:

For months she wondered what the Yule would bring;
A jeweled vinlagrette or golden guard,
A pearly necklace or a diamond ring.
And now she weeps. He sent a Christmas card."

KATHERINE POPE.

HE FELT RELIEVED.

Freely Surrendered His Valuables When Not Asked for an Office.

It was a long ride through a desolate and dangerous country, and the politician sought to relieve the monotony by philosophic musings on his recent victory and embarrassments that even success brings, relates the Philadelphia North American.

"Hold up your hands!"

The stage coach gave a lurch and stopped. The ray of light that shot into the vehicle turned the spattering rain into myriads of evanescent gems.

"What do you want?" asked the politician with a firmness that showed that he had faced danger before.

"Your money."

"Here it is."

"Your watch and diamond ring."

"They are yours."

"I must say yer good-natured, anyhow," said one of the highwaymen.

"Not at all. Are you sure that's all you desire?"

"What in thunder did you think we wanted?"

"I was afraid"—and the politician's voice trembled a little—"you wanted an office."

Unaccountable.

Teddy—Rather pretty woman over there with the mail cart!

Harold—I suppose that's the husband with her?

"Um. Seems fond of him, too."—Judy.

SPORTING NEWS

STRIKES AND SPARES.

The bowling team of the Y. M. A., of Hope chapel, will roll a team from New Brunswick on the local alleys this evening. Following the game the visitors will be entertained in various ways.

The fine showing made by the bowlers of the Westfield Club at Cranford Thursday evening in The Daily Press League games, was a general surprise. Only a week before, Westfield lost two out of three games to Roselle on Westfield alleys by scores that were remarkably poor. Westfield's game Thursday evening was like that of former years and promises, if continued, to keep that club well up toward the top of the league.

The Park Club will roll its next game in The Daily Press Bowling League Thursday evening on the alleys of the Roselle Casino. The local bowlers are quite hopeful of making a good showing. It is a strong team that can win a series of games on Roselle's alleys. If the Parks can win out once and make a good showing in the other two, they will be doing well. Of course, it would be more pleasant to win two out of the three but Roselle has some crack bowlers and they know their own alleys very well.

BASKET BALL.

After the holiday rush is over, it is expected that the Fanwood Atheletic Club will begin the basket ball season at the Fanwood club house. It was thought that play would begin long before this but the young men who are interested in the sport there have been so busy with other matters, that basket ball had to step to the background until the press of other things is over.

The Alis A. A. is prepared to put a basket ball team on the floor if a series of games can be arranged with other local teams. There are a number of experienced basket ball players in the membership of the club and it is believed that a strong team can be assembled in a short time. If the Company K basket ball team can find a suitable place for a game, a series will be arranged with that team. The Alis boys will not, however, make any attempt to schedule games with any out of town teams.

ROD AND GUN.

James Dunn and William Demler have returned from a hunting trip to Pluckemin with twenty-four rabbits and seven squirrels.

The trap-shooting at Whitehouse Thursday attracted a very large number of sports from this city and vicinity. Among those from Plainfield present were Den. Gavin, Scott and "Bill" Terry and "Kid" Calloway. In the shoot at the first te birds Den. Gavin and three others tied for second money, each making a score of eight. The second ten bird shoot was even better than the first. In this event Den. Gavin again made a good score, this time killing nine birds, finishing second. After the above contests there were two five bird shoots. In each of these Gavin made three kills, but failed to get any money.

FOOTBALL.

The Y. M. A. football team, of Hope chapel, recently received a communication from the Association team, of Perth Amboy, asking for a game. It was too late to arrange one for Saturday and it will probably be played the coming Saturday on Hope Common.

THE MORMON FAITH.

Polgamy Still Is I's Keynote and Strongest Hold.

So Says Dr. Sarah Elliott Who Is About to Make a Tour for the Purpose of Spreading Anti-Polygamy Propaganda.

Dr. Sarah J. Elliott, of Utah, is about to make a tour of Colorado for the purpose of spreading an anti-polygamy propaganda. She is a deaconess of the Episcopal church, and is lecturing for the league that is urging a constitutional amendment to prohibit polygamy.

"Two thousand Mormon elder priests," said Dr. Elliott to a New York World correspondent, "are now in every state and territory of the union, seeking by misrepresenting the actual conditions and teachings of the Mormon faith to create outside of Utah public sentiment more advantageous to the system than it could possibly secure if the whole truth were known. In view of these and many similar facts, I am appealing to the patriotic women of our country who successfully labored to prevent a polygamist from entering congress.

"In Utah there is no separation of church and state. The church of the Latter Day Saints, or the Mormon church, is so magnificently organized they are prepared to work anywhere. The subject of polygamy is never mentioned in the missionary work of the elders, who are sent out all over the world to make converts; but when the women and girls are landed in Salt Lake they are informed that only through marriage can their souls be saved, and blindly they walk into the trap. In every other state polygamy is a degradation, while in Utah it is an exaltation. The Mormon's system of ethics has produced abnormal women.

"A premium of 160 acres of land is offered as an inducement to women and young girls to leave their homes and country and settle in Utah; in this manner many tracts of land are acquired by the man who marries four or more wives. It was generally supposed that the unseating of Roberts in congress would be a deathblow to polygamy, but this is a mistaken idea, as the power of the Mormon church is growing stronger all the time. As Senator Hoar remarked, there is growing in Utah a power so great that unless we check it now the time will come when we will have to fall down and worship it.

JOSEPH H. SMITH.
(President of the Church of Latter Day Saints.)

"Many years ago, when George Q. Cannon was indignantly turned down in congress and returned to Utah, Brigham Young, in his sermon to his followers in the tabernacle, said: 'Never mind; we will have a voice yet in the American congress and force polygamy down their throats.'

"In violation of the pledges of Mormon leaders made before statehood, the president of the Mormon church is now living publicly in his official residence in Salt Lake City with the last acquisition to his polygamous household. An effort to secure his prosecution has failed. Many who at first obeyed the law and ceased their unlawful cohabitation have followed the president's example and resumed their polygamous relationships, and are having children by plural wives.

"This polygamous element is the dominant power in the church and in the politics of the state, as public sentiment against the state laws makes them practically unenforceable. It is almost impossible to induce officials elected by Mormon votes to enforce the law. The polygamous priesthood, thoroughly organized, directs the conscience of the Mormon people, and through political influence thus acquired controls the official conduct of the office holders.

"Not only have a number resumed polygamous relationship, but the best of circumstantial evidence points to the unmistakable conclusion that Apostles John W. Taylor, George Teasdale, the late Apostle Abram H. Cannon and other prominent Mormon ecclesiastics have taken new plural wives.

"The only certain check upon the progress of this evil is found in bringing polygamy within the jurisdiction of the federal courts, whose officers will owe no political obligation to the influential criminals whom they will be called upon to prosecute for this class of offenses."

Progress in the Holy Land.

The advance of civilization is noted in the Holy Land, where American beer has become a popular beverage. Jerusalem now has electric lights, telephones and phonographs; and trolley lines are talked of to connect that celebrated city with Bethany, Bethlehem, the Lake of Galilee, and other places famous in Bible history.

NEW JERSEY CENTRAL ROUNDLY CONDEMNED

Board of Trade Will Officially Call Attention to Unsatisfactory Service.

LOTS OF COMPLAINTS.

RESOLUTION PASSED AT BOARD MEETING LAST NIGHT.

Two Industries Wanted to Locate in Plainfield—Little Other Business Was Done at the Meeting.

Condemnation of the New Jersey Central and parsimonious treatment its officials accord Plainfield's traveling public took up the greater part of last evening's Board of Trade meeting. To the list of complaints which the board has voiced time and again, more were added by the members, in the giving of which the management of the road was scored is scathing terms. The outpsoken indignation resulted in the secretary being empowered to express to Vice-President Warren, not only the displeasure of the Board of Trade but also that of every citizen of Plainfield.

The chief complaint of the evening seemed to be the apparent indifference maintained by the road's officials in regard to requests for better train service and prompter methods in moving freight. The former fact is known to commuters while the latter is apparent to shippers. Merchants about the city have been objecting for months at the seeming laxity with which their goods are carried backward and forward and lately the officials of the Pond Tool Works have taken similar action. The recent changes in the train service have resulted, one of the board members declared, in several commuting families leaving the city while others were only awaiting for spring before moving. The present condition of the old depot was also roundly denounced and it was ordered that this be mentioned in the secretary's letter to Mr. Warren.

The report of the committee having in charge negotiations with the Ingersoll-Sergeant Drill Company was tersely summed up by President Woolston as follows: "We have met the enemy and we are theirs." The report was received with much laughter.

Secretary Runyon read two communications both from parties interested in locating factories. The first was from C. Benton Dix, of New York, and implied that he represented a number of concerns wishing to remove from the city, but gave no particulars. The secretary was asked to write for further information. The second communication was from the Albany Button Company, which stated that it would take quarters in this city providing the citizens would take $15,000 worth of stock in the concern. As the weekly pay roll was announced at $200, the members thought the outlay of the amount wanted was a little too high for such a return.

A report in regard to the South Plainfield trolley extension was read by the secretary, but it was, in the main, the same as read many times before, namely that all the consents had been secured with the exception of the trustees of the Baptist cemetery. It was moved that the matter be pushed in order to have the question before the Common Council at an early meeting.

The only other business transacted was the election as members of Peter McDonough, M. Abrams and M. Weinburger.

Public Installation.

Redwood Camp, No. 10262, Modern Woodmen of America, will hold a public installation of officers in Red Men's Hall, Monday evening, January 13. The formal function will be followed by a reception and dance. A musical programme has been arranged for the occasion.

Reception to Machinists.

A reception to the machinists of this city will be given in the Y. M. C. A. Saturday evening, December 28. On this occasion Martin and White's Zobo quartette will furnish the musical programme.

Christmas Services.

Special Christmas services will be held Sunday at the First M. E. church. In the afternoon at 2:30 o'clock the Sunday-school will hold its special services.

—Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Titsworth returned home Saturday evening, and have taken up their residence on West Seventh street.

In attempting to get in the wagon, against the protests of the driver, he received three well aimed blows on the head from the butt end of a whip and was finally driven off with a bleeding head.

APPEAL IN RHYME.

What is Needed for the Plainfield Children's Home.

The managers of the Children's Home on Watchung avenue are in special need of necessary and useful articles ot this season of the year. A novel appeal in verse is made by them. Here it is:

WANTED.

Wanted at once, without delay,
Some nice large checks—please write today.
Our friends, alas, are getting slow
And winter now is here, you know.

Wanted—pound packets; anything.
That's large or small or tied with string
Tea, sugar, coffee, raisins, rice,
Cocoa or currants, cakes or spice.

Wanted—for little children these
Ribbons and shoes; their feet may freeze.
When winter winds blow cold and high,
And shoes it costs so much to buy.

Wanted—Some good sized rolls of stuff,
Our work room never has enough.
And many thanks your way will come,
If you will kindly send us some.

Wanted—kind people everywhere,
Our thanks to come, our work to bear,
To listen to our pleading cry
And something for our needs supply.

Other things are desired, such as dolls, toys, carts, boxes of tools, work baskets and books. All donations may be sent to Mrs. M. E. Kimball, president, 724 Watchung avenue.

LOCATION CHANGED.

Watchung Silk Company's New Mill Will be Erected on Chatham Street.

The Watchung Silk Company has decided on a change for the location of the new silk mill to be built soon. It was formerly intended to erect the building on Washington avenue nearly opposite the glove factory, but it was afterwards discovered that in the purchase of the property there were some irregularities.

To overcome this trouble the land was released. Instead the company has purchased a plot of ground on Chatham street, opposite the North Plainfield cemetery, owned by J. B. Coward.

The plot is 110x125 and is in every way adapted for such a building as the company proposes to erect. There is plenty of light and the building will not be as close to the water as in the former grounds elected. The deal for the Chatham street property was effected yesterday.

THURSDAY'S ATTRACTION.

Excellent Company of Dramatic Students Appears at Casino.

"A Duet in Two Flats" and "The Money Spinner" is the very superior bill to be presented at the Casino, Thursday night, by seniors of the American Academy of Dramatic Arts, and Empire Theatre School of Acting.

Nothing more pleasing or interesting has been offered here, for the artistic work of this organization has been the subject of highest praise from the New York press and the several audiences at the Empire Theatre, at which house they have appeared for the last three seasons. They are considered superior to any regular stock company in the city, and the majority are under engagement for leading roles in plays to be sent out next season by the Messrs. Frohman.

The leading role in "The Money Spinner" is taken by Miss Dorothy Turner, who in appearance and manner is strikingly suggestive of Maude Adams. Reserved seats tickets for this performance can now be secured at Rowley's drug store, as well as at Armstrong's.

HORSE FELL INTO A TRENCH

FELL BACK WHILE BEING HOISTED OUT AND FATALLY INJURED.

Animal Dropped Dead Shortly After Removal—Driven by Martin Duffy.

Despite two warning red lights erected over the excavation, a valuable horse belonging to Liveryman D. S. Roberts and driven by Martin Duffy, of the borough, plunged into a sewer trench on West Second street, near Madison avenue, late last night. It was eventually gotten out but dropped dead within five minutes after its removal.

When the animal first fell in the hole, Duffy secured assistance and rigged a block and fall from old tree limbs. The animal was then raised to the top and was on the point of being lifted over to one side when the limbs broke and the horse fell back. It was a clear drop of ten feet and it was this second fall which resulted in severe injuries and subsequent death. A second attempt to remove it proved successful but the animal dropped dead soon after reaching the surface.

Several witnesses aver that the lights were burning brightly and there was no excuse for Duffy's driving into the opening. The police declare the man was intoxicated.

And the Decision at the Literary Society's Trial Was Reversed.

Two well-defined sun dogs were visible in the sky yesterday afternoon. Many Plainfielders watched the mock suns, which appeared to the right and left of old Sol about 3 o'clock. This is taken as a sign of an impending storm.

Y. M. C. A. WORK AMONG BOYS OF NEW JERSEY

Described in an Illustrated Lecture by State Secretary Charles R. Scott.

AT Y. M. C. A. LAST NIGHT.

PICTURED THE LIFE IN THE Y. M. C. A. SUMMER CAMPS.

What is to be Done for Plainfield Boys—State Secretary of Boys Work Told of His Department.

A good-sized audience composed of boys and many adults gathered at the Y. M. C. A. Hall last evening to enjoy an illustrated lecture given by Charles R. Scott, State secretary for boys' work. Previous to the lecture a pleasing vocal solo was given by Phillip VanArsdale, accompanied on the piano by Miss Waterbury. Mr. Scott exhibited nearly seventy-five views showing the kind of work being done in this State by the Y. M. C. A. for boys.

He explained the working and operation of the boys' camps at Lake Champlain, Northfield and other places, showing how pleasure and the study of the Bible, with applied Christianty, is working wonders for hundreds of boys. He also showed pictures of the various boys' branches in New Jersey, mostly interior views, which gave one an adequate idea of the way the boys spend a portion of their time in cultivating their minds spiritually, physically and intellectually. All these pictures and the earnest talk by Mr. Scott interested the boys present and served as a stimulus for geater efforts in the local association. It is the purpose of the Plainfield association to take a deeper interest in boys' work and to this end it has been suggested that a membership in the boys' department would make a suitable Christmas present.

It was announceed that a boys' Bible class is held every Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the Y. M. C. A. Hall and it is proposed to organize a class of "First Aid to the Injured," soon. Beginning this week a boys' meeting will be held every Friday afternoon in the hall at 4 o'clock and all boys are cordially invited.

The lantern slides were operated last evening by A. V. Searing, Jr., and he materially assisted to make the evening one of much enjoyment to all.

TO GIVE CONCERTS.

A Zobo Quartette Formed to Unite With A. E. White, Reciter.

A zobo quartette has been organized by Horace J. Martin, of Jackson avenue. It is proposed to give concerts in this vicinity during the winter months. Arthur E. White, of Pittsfield, Mass., has formed a partnership with Mr. Martin in this venture.

Mr. White has a reputation as a clever dramatic reciter and impersonator. He has removed to this city and will appear in all the concerts given by the zobo quartette.

COLUMN FOR THE SHOPPERS

SOME OF ATTRACTIONS TO BE FOUND AT LOCAL STORES.

A Few Interesting Items Concerning Greater Plainfield's Merchants.

The Green Trading Stamp Company's store will remain open evenings to 9 o'clock until Christmas.

The Rogers' Sea Food Company has nothing but the best buyers in its employ to make the daily selection of fish and deep sea denizens. Thats why it enjoys a liberal patronage.

A special line of dates, nuts and fruit have been added to the stock at Fred Firstbrook's grocery store, on Liberty street, to meet the demands of the Christmas trade. Choicest lots and at smallest prices.

The crowd of little folks, as well as big ones, that gather at Harper's, 411 Park avenue, every day, gives the place the appearance of fairyland. Good old Santa Claus has made it his headquarters for toys and every purchaser is a happy one.

Everything that you can think of for Christmas can be found at the store of the Rockfellow Grocery Company. Fruits, nuts and candies—anything and everything thats good to eat. And don't forget that their prices are always right.

Some men would rather be out of existence than out of fashion, but such are not the men who have for many years had their clothes made by W. H. Sebring, of West Front street The latest decree in fashions as well as the finest cloths are synonymous at this house.

Those stylish gloves and dainty handkerchiefs used by the women of Plainfield at that swell social function recently, were, as everyone knows, purchased at Peck's on West Front street. It is well-known that the daintiest and prettiest things for women are found at this store.

The attractive window window display at E. S. F. Randolph's drug store, corner of North and Watchung avenues, has been favorably commented upon by many Plainfielders. Tastefully arranged in the window is a large assortment of perfumes and toilet articles, which furnish ideas for Christmas presents.

Nothing is more acceptable as a Christmas gift than a piece of sterling silverware. It charms the recipient and the giver knows it will be both appreciated and satisfactory in use. Santa Claus might be tempted to choose many of the good designs displayed at Collier's on Park avenue—rich patterns, fair prices.

A well-kuown society man of Plainfield while calling on his fiance a few evenings ago was attracted by a cozy corner in the parlor. Oriental rugs, draperies, etc., of the finest texture all combined to make the parlor a scene of beauty. It was learned that the artists from Woodhull & Martin's carpet department had designed the corner. A similar effect can now be seen at the department in the Babcock building.

THEATRICAL.

At Keith's Union Square Theatre, next week, the Great Rudinoff heads the long bill of excellent artists. Mons. Rudinoff has been in this country but a few days, and this will be his first appearance in New York in some years. Jacques Inaudi, the mental marvel; Newell, Chinquilla and Dufree, musicians; The Pageant of Nations; Hedrix and Drescott, song and dance artists; Robinson and Grant, grotesque acrobats; John Zimmer, juggler; Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Kelcey, sketch artists, and many others. GREAT STORM IN MAINE.

Damage Done Will Come to a High Figure.

PORTLAND, Me., Dec. 17.—This state is suffering from one of the most severe storms in its history, hourly reports telling of disaster that adds thousands of dollars to the aggregate damage. The three principal rivers and innumerable smaller streams have overflowed their banks, submerging vast areas, washing away bridges, buildings and great quantities of logs and lumber and flooding factories, mills and dwellings. The Maine Central railroad has moved no trains since early Sunday, and the eastern section is entirely cut off from the western part. Through trains between Portland and Bangor are not expected before Thursday.

The Bangor and Aroostook railroad and the Canadian Pacific railroad's lines are in nearly as bad condition. With few exceptions the great mills on the Androscoggin, Kennebec and Penobscot rivers were unable to start their machinery yesterday because of high water, and thousands of men are temporarily without work. Many cities and towns report great damage to streets, families driven from their homes, street railways inoperative through flood and districts inaccessible because of bad roads. Telegraphic and telephonic communication, though interrupted between many points, has stood the strain well.

Only one death has been reported, a fireman named Patten, whose engine on the Canadian Pacific railroad plunged into a washout. A similar accident on the Maine Central resulted in the injury of three persons, one of whom may die.

Madison, on the upper Kennebec river, sustained the greatest damage of any place, with a money loss of fully $500,000. One section of the town in which are big mills for hours was at the mercy of the roaring river, logs and ice crushing and overturning buildings. The flume at the pumping station was carried away, and the town's water supply was cut off.

MARCONI FEARED.

The Anglo-American Cable Company Seeks an Injunction.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Dec. 17.—Marconi has just returned here from Cape Spear, where he experienced poor luck. The weather was rendered extremely unpleasant by fog, wind and a rainstorm, and the inventor was unable to decide upon a site for his proposed station. He could not see the surrounding country, and a general view of the physical features of the country in the vicinity is necessary before fixing upon a site. Mr. Marconi wishes to avoid the presence of a high hill behind the station. Hills in the background are detrimental to the system if they are in the line of transmission, as they weaken the signals by causing a rebound.

On returning here from Cape Spear Marconi was served with legal documents from the solicitors of the Anglo-American Telegraph company notifying him that the said company possesses an exclusive monopoly of the telegraph business within Newfoundland and its dependencies and demanding that he cease his experiments and remove his apparatus forthwith else the company would apply to the supreme court for an injunction restraining him from further trials.

Marconi has not yet decided as to what course of action he will take in this matter, but he regards this action on the part of the Anglo-American Telegraph company as the best proof of the importance of his new discovery.

Cuban Petition Sent to Congress.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—President Roosevelt has transmitted to the senate a petition signed by Senor F. Gamba and other residents of Cuba urging commercial reciprocity between that island and the United States. They say that owing to the comparative cheapness of European goods the sale of American products is decreasing in Cuba and that unless an arrangement can be made for a differential in favor of the United States this country soon will find that it has no market in Cuba.

Secretary Root's Brother Married.

CARROLLTON, Mo., Dec. 17.—Mrs. Anna Ray Quesenberry, daughter of Robert D. Ray, formerly judge of the state supreme court, and Dr. Oren Root have been married here. Dr. Root is the only brother of Hon. Elihu Root, secretary of war, and is a professor of mathematics in Hamilton college, New York. Mrs. Quesenberry was principal of the Carrollton High school. The wedding was a quiet one. Mr. and Mrs. Root left for the east.

Flood's Damage at Ithaca.

ITHACA, N. Y., Dec. 17.—Latest developments in the flood situation in Ithaca show that the loss by damage to property was underestimated considerably. It now appears that the municipality itself will suffer more than $100,000 loss, and the Ithaca Street Railway company's property sustained damage to the amount of $50,000. The original estimate of $200,000 will be almost doubled.

Presidential Postmasters.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—The president has appointed the following postmasters: Pennsylvania—James Bickerton, Duquesne; John C. Koch, St. Mary's; John R. Roberts, Slatington; B. J. Bowman, Berlin. New York—George Ripperger, Long Island City. New Jersey—Verner W. Forgie, Belleville.

Arabian Steed For Roosevelt.

MANCHESTER, Vt., Dec. 17.—A letter has been received here from Captain John Coff at Morocco saying that he expected a fine Arabian saddle horse to reach him from the interior about Dec. 10 and that the animal would be shipped to Washington for President Roosevelt's use.

TREATY IS RATIFIED

Vote on Hay-Pauncefote Convention Stood 72 to 6.

SENATE'S ACTION WITHOUT SENSATION

All Efforts to Amend Failed—Five Hours of Speechmaking Preceded Vote—Nomination of Knox as Attorney General Confirmed.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—The senate yesterday afternoon ratified the Hay-Pauncefote isthmian canal treaty by the decisive vote of 72 to 6. The vote was reached a few minutes before 5 o'clock, after almost five hours' discussion behind closed doors. There were no sensational incidents during this entire time. The debate was confined exclusively to a discussion of the merits of the agreement and the policy of its provisions. The principal speech of the day was made by Senator Teller in opposition to the treaty, and he was followed in rapid succession by twelve or fifteen other senators, who spoke briefly either for or against the motion to ratify.

Among the other speakers of the day were Senators Clay, Fairbanks, McCumber, McLaurin of Mississippi, Culberson, Mallory, Mason, Tillman, Bacon and Bate. Senator Clay was one of the southern senators who spoke in advocacy of the treaty. He contended that the treaty should be ratified because it secured the abrogation of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty.

Senator Mason made a strong plea for the treaty, expressing his gratification that American diplomacy had succeeded in securing such a triumph as was this treaty over the original Hay-Pauncefote agreement.

Senator Bacon's speech was made in connection with a motion to amend the treaty. In presenting this amendment he said that he was in favor of a canal and would vote for the treaty with the Davis amendment. He said he opposed the treaty because he did not believe it would give the United States full control of the canal. He said that Great Britain rejected the amended Hay-Pauncefote treaty, but sent us another treaty about identical with the former treaty as amended except as regards the Davis amendment. He considered that fact the most important feature of the whole controversy.

There was an exceptionally full senate when the time arrived for a vote, but the certainty of ratification had become so apparent that there was comparatively little interest in the proceeding. The votes on the amendments succeeded each other quickly.

Senator Culberson offered an amendment to insert the Davis fortification amendment of the last session. This was defeated—15 to 62.

Senator Bacon then offered an amendment striking out of the preamble in the reference to the Clayton-Bulwer treaty the words "without impairing the general principle of neutralization established in article 8 of that convention;" also the following words in article 2 relating to the purchase of stock, "subject to the provisions of the present treaty;" also all of article 3, relating to the neutralization of the canal; also all of article 4, declaring against change of territorial sovereignty. All of this was embodied in one amendment and defeated—18 to 60.

The treaty was then ratified by a vote of 72 to 6.

The nays were Bacon, Blackburn, Culberson, Mallory, Teller and Tillman.

Just before adjournment the senate confirmed the nomination of Hon. Philander C. Knox to be attorney general of the United States.

Benefit Association Insolvent.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 17.—The Masonic Mutual Benefit association will ask for the appointment of a receiver, according to an announcement made at the headquarters of the organization here. There are said to be forty unpaid death claims amounting to $80,000 and only $6,500 to meet these obligations. The association has a large membership made up of Masons in various parts of the state. A high death rate, failure to get in new members and a low rate of assessment are the causes assigned for the collapse. For many years the association was a prosperous fraternal organization, and it paid many millions in death claims.

No Naval Arch.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—Park Benjamin, president of the naval arch commission, the organization having charge of the proposed naval arch and water gate at the Battery in this city, announces that the project has been given up, for the present at least. The arch and gate were to have cost $1,300,000, and $500,000 had already been pledged. The outcome of the Schley trial, revealing so much dissension in the highest ranks of the navy, is given as the cause.

To Fight Whisky Trust.

PEORIA, Ill., Dec. 17.—It has been learned that nineteen independent distilleries are planning for a campaign against the Distilling Company of America, otherwise known as the whisky trust. Eighteen of these distilleries are already in operation, and the nineteenth, a mammoth concern, with a daily capacity of 30,000 gallons of high wines, will be started Jan. 1 in this city.

Killed Herself and Child.

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—Mrs. Minnie Blumberg of Brooklyn, while despondent over long continued illness, lay down on her bed, placing her children, Nettie, aged two, and Celia, aged three, one on each side of her. She then turned on the gas, and when help came Mrs. Blumberg and Nettie were dead. Celia is precariously ill at a hospital.

A FIGHT IN COLOMBIA

Liberals Defeated In a Bloody Engagement.

TOWN OF NOMBRE DE DIOS DESERTED

Foreigners Suspected of Aiding the Government—Expedition Has Left Colon to Rid the Coast of Insurgent Bands.

COLON, Colombia, Dec. 17.—A schooner just arrived here from a town on the Caribbean coast called Nombre de Dios brings the news that the Colombian government troops to the number of seventy which left Colon a fortnight ago for Viento Frio had an engagement with the Liberal forces at Nombre de Dios last Friday. The Liberals numbered 250 men, chiefly recruits from along the coast. They were badly armed, the majority carrying nothing but machetes. They were fairly well intrenched, however, at Nombre de Dios.

A bloody engagement ensued in which the casualties on both sides amounted to eighteen men killed and forty wounded. The government troops succeeded in carrying the intrenchments and driving the Liberals from the town back on to the hills behind it.

During the engagement the women and children of Nombre de Dios, together with the United States vice consul at Colon, Mr. Hyatt, and other foreigners, sought refuge on a small island facing the scene of the engagement. The government troops are now on their way back to Colon.

Mr. Hyatt reports Nombre de Dios to be now practically deserted and as unsafe for foreigners, the Liberals believing the latter have been aiding the government. Mr. Hyatt is also the manager of a manganese mine. Nombre de Dios is the center of American manganese mining interests. There is a railroad running from this port nine miles back into the country, but owing to the unsettled condition of affairs traffic on the railroad and mining operations have been suspended during the past month.

The Colombian gunboat General Pinzon, after driving the Liberal forces out of Cocle, will leave a portion of the troops she carries at this point and then proceed immediately to Nombre de Dios.

The Colombian gunboat Boyaca, which arrived at Panama last Friday, again returned in the direction of Agua Dulce Saturday night, carrying on board 200 government troops and a large supply of provisions. The Liberal leaders Porras and Lorenzo are supposed to be retreating in the direction of La Negrita.

The gunboat General Pinzon, with 100 troops on board, left here yesterday morning for Cocle, where the Liberal forces are fairly numerous. She will rid this part of the coast of Liberal bands and will also be on the lookout to intercept Generals Porras and Lorenzo should they attempt to reach any Atlantic port from which it is believed they would probably sail to Costa Rica in quest of re-enforcements, ammunition, etc.

The Conservative soldiers landed here by the General Pinzon now garrison in detachments of from 25 to 100 men all the stations along the railroad between Colon and Panama.

The reported purchase by Colombia of the Chilean cruiser Presidente Pinto cannot be confirmed.

Danish West Indies Sale.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—As a result of the negotiations that have been in progress between Secretary Hay and Mr. Brun, the Danish minister, the last obstacles of substance to the preparation of the treaty of cession whereby the United States will become possessed of the Danish West India islands has been removed. It is said that the points of difference have been adjusted in a manner to insure the acceptance of the treaty by the United States senate, and it is even possible that the convention may be laid before that body before the holiday recess. The decision of the supreme court in the insular cases has made easier the preparation of the treaty on satisfactory lines, it is said.

Train Purposely Wrecked.

SPOKANE, Wash., Dec. 17.—It is believed the fatal wreck near Essex, Mon., was not an accident, but a crime. A telegram has been received from H. W. Kennedy, assistant general superintendent of the Great Northern, who has visited the scene of the wreck, saying: "There is not the slightest doubt that the train was deliberately wrecked by parties unknown. I think they were discharged employees."

Rev. L. G. Broughton Badly Hurt.

BOSTON, Dec. 17.—Rev. Lon G. Broughton of Atlanta, Ga., who preached at Tremont temple Sunday, is under the care of two physicians at his hotel on account of injuries sustained while attempting to board a moving street car. Ignorant of the extent of the injury, he afterward preached afternoon and evening. During the night the doctors were called. No serious result is anticipated.

Hanged Himself In Jail.

STAFFORD SPRINGS, Conn., Dec. 17.—Stephen Callamer, aged thirty-five, committed suicide in the Stafford jail by stripping a blanket to make a noose and hanging himself from the bars of his cell. He was confined in the jail Saturday after threatening to kill his wife and all her relatives. He attempted to carry out his threat, but was overpowered.

OBJECTION BY SCHLEY.

Long Asked to Withhold Approval of Court's Findings.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—At a conference between Admiral Schley and his counsel held yesterday it was decided to ask Secretary Long to withhold his approval of the findings of the court of inquiry until such time as the admiral, through his counsel, can file an objection thereto.

Admiral Schley was in consultation with his counsel, Hon. Isidor Rayner and Mr. M. A. Teague; also General Felix Agnus of Baltimore and Congressman Schirm of Maryland. After the conference Admiral Schley authorized Mr. Teague to make the following statement:

"We have been in consultation as to what further proceedings shall be taken. Nothing definite has been determined upon so far as civil or criminal action of any kind against Maclay and his sponsors are concerned. Maclay's claim that the findings of the court are a vindication for himself and his book is absolutely spurious. There are no less than half a dozen instances in the book in which, even if he were to accept the findings of the court and incorporate them in the volume and change it to suit the findings, the book would still be criminal libel."

Mr. Teague called on Mr. Long and asked the secretary to indicate his probable action in the premises. The secretary replied that the request would be granted and his action on the findings and the dissolution of the court withheld until the objections were received and he had an opportunity to consider them. He stated that he would communicate with Admiral Schley in writing and asked how long a time counsel desired to present their objections. Mr. Teague replied that they would be ready for presentation by Thursday or Friday of this week.

GOVERNOR GREGORY DEAD.

Rhode Island Chief Magistrate Succumbs to Bright's Disease.

WICKFORD, R. I., Dec. 17.—William Gregory, governor of Rhode Island and Providence Plantations, is dead at his home here of acute Bright's disease following a succession of illnesses. After an indisposition of nearly two months he returned last Friday to the state capital, and his death was the indirect result of a cold contracted then, which brought on uræmic convulsions. Governor Gregory was the first governor of the state to die in office for nearly a century and a half. Under the constitution Lieutenant Governor Charles Dean Kimball of Providence becomes the acting governor for the remainder of the term and on Jan. 7, 1902, will be sworn in as governor of the state for the term to which Governor Gregory had been elected on the 5th of last month.

William Gregory, the twenty-ninth governor under the constitution, was an example of a self made man. From a loom fixer he became mill superintendent and finally owner of two worsted mills. He was president of a national bank and a director of several of the foremost banking institutions in the state.

Governor Gregory was born in Astoria, N. Y., Aug. 3, 1849, and received his early education in Westerly. In 1875 he married Harriet Vaughan, who, with her two children, survive him.

Wrecked Off Atlantic City.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Dec. 17.—The bark Sindia, which was blown ashore Sunday, will probably prove a total loss. Captain McKenzie believes the craft cannot stand the strain of being refloated, although wrecking tugs are on the ground working to save her. She is lying on her side within 150 yards of shore. The vessel is owned by the Standard Oil company and is valued at $200,000. Yesterday afternoon the schooner Edith E. Dennis, from Greenport, N. Y., to Tuckerton, N. J., cargo of oysters, went aground in Little Egg harbor. It is expected she will be floated with little damage. Captain Oliver is in command.

Blizzard In Nebraska.

LINCOLN, Neb., Dec. 17.—A storm of unusual severity is sweeping over southeastern Nebraska, with increasing violence, and bids fair to become a blizzard. Some snow is falling, and, with a high northwest wind, it is drifting, but trains are not badly delayed thus far. This is the fourth day of intense cold. Reports from the range country indicate no heavy losses among stock on the ranches, but owing to the number frozen to death en route shipping will be abandoned until the weather shall moderate. L. T. Garnett, living near Trumbull, was frozen to death while looking after his cattle.

Frozen to Death at Lyons, N. Y.

LYONS, N. Y., Dec. 17.—William H. Walker, whose residence is unknown, but who was employed as a painter on the Pan-American buildings at Buffalo, was found frozen to death five miles north of Lyons. He was on his way to Sodus Point, where he said he had a son. He carried a certificate of membership in the American Detective association of Indianapolis, Ind., dated Sept. 11, 1897.

AFTER THE FLOOD.

Waters Receding and the Railroads Slowly Picking Up.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 17.—Advices from all sections of the eastern half of Pennsylvania, over which area Saturday night's storm raged furiously, are to the effect that the waters covering the flooded districts are receding and that railroad and telegraphic communication are slowly being restored. From Towanda comes the announcement of three deaths caused by the flood near that town and the additional statement that two others will die from the effects of exposure.

The damage to property and the pecuniary loss from enforced suspension of many industries will reach many hundreds of thousands of dollars. Dozens of coal mines are flooded, along with hundreds of industrial concerns located along waterways, thus throwing idle thousands of men. It is estimated that more than 40,000 persons have been rendered idle. The Susquehanna river, which rose at some points twenty-nine feet above low water mark, is going down.

The railroad situation is gradually becoming better. At 5 o'clock last night the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad started a train for New York. Direct communication with that city had been cut off from Scranton and Wilkesbarre for forty-eight hours, and trains were sent via Sunbury, Harrisburg and Philadelphia, a distance of 330 miles. The direct route is only 145 miles.

The Central Railroad of New Jersey is still tied up as far as through service is concerned. Trains are being run between local points. The Lehigh Valley railroad has opened its through service between Buffalo and New York city by making a detour over branch lines, thus passing around the flooded district.

Repairing Flood Damages.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Dec. 17.—The washouts on the Mohawk division of the New York Central and on the Binghamton division of the Lackawanna have been repaired, and today trains are being run on schedule time. The Lehigh Valley, being unable to use its main line from Buffalo to New York, sent a long delayed through train over the New York Central tracks. The New York, Ontario and Western used the Central tracks from Oneida to Oswego.

The Susquehanna Receding.

LANCASTER, Pa., Dec. 17.—The Susquehanna river at Columbia, this county, at 5 a. m., after having attained an unprecedented height for this time of the year, twelve feet above low water mark, began to fall. The fall, however, was barely perceptible, and great anxiety is felt of the probable effect when the flood from up the river strikes this section. The water reached within three feet of the Port Deposit and Columbia railroad at Washington borough and other points south of Columbia, but did not impede traffic. The Union Iron mill at Columbia, employing 200 men, was forced to shut down by the high water. One hundred thousand feet of timber was carried away from Billmeyer & Small's yard at Wrightsville. The cofferdam at the big power plant being erected at York Haven was washed away, and other serious damage was done.

Still Working on Stone Case.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—Late advices received at the state department from its agents in Turkey show that they have not remitted their efforts to secure the release of Miss Stone and are again seeking to open up communication with the brigands, with probability of success. It is believed that the kidnapers at last have begun to realize that the sum of $66,000 now in the hands of Mr. Dickinson represents all the money that can be secured as a ransom.

Mrs. Bonine on Eligible List.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—The civil service commission has decided to restore the name of Mrs. Lola Ida Bonine, who recently was acquitted of the murder of James Seymour Ayres, Jr., to the roll of eligibles for appointment to the civil service. Just prior to the death of Ayres Mrs. Bonine had successfully passed an examination for skilled laborer in the government printing office, but pending the result of the trial her name was held up.

Mechanicstown Office Discontinued.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Dec. 17.—The postoffice at Mechanicstown, two miles from here, has been discontinued by order of the postmaster general owing to the small business done. The village was once a thriving manufacturing center, but conflagrations, removals and deaths caused the population and business to dwindle.

ROSEBERY'S SPEECH

British Liberal Leader Sounds Party's Warcry.

URGES FOLLOWERS TO GET TOGETHER

Long Looked For Effort Somewhat Disappointing Because of Its Vagueness—England's Sad Condition Pictured.

CHESTERFIELD, England, Dec. 17.—Lord Rosebery's long expected and much heralded speech delivered here last night was received with marked enthusiasm by an immense crowd. It can hardly be said to have thrown much light along the pathway of the Liberal party. That the speech was a finished oratorical effort was amply testified to by the frequent applause with which the speaker was interrupted. But it is doubtful when he had finished if his most admiring listener could have given any justification for his enthusiasm save that it was Lord Rosebery.

Resolved into its elements, the speech merely said, "Get together." The speaker himself confessed that he did not pretend to say how this cohesion should be accomplished. In urging his fellow Liberals to reorganize Lord Rosebery quoted the following words from the message of President Roosevelt: "We hope to keep going by slow steps, not by bounds. We must keep our eyes on the stars, but we must also remember that our feet are on the ground."

The following was the tenor of the former premier's speech: The ministry was wrong, but the Liberals should be very careful how they tried to set it right.

Turning from the immediate outbreak of the war, Lord Rosebery touched upon education, in which he said Great Britain was woefully behind her sister nations. Her commercial development was also sadly atrophied, said the speaker, and the time would soon come when Britain would be forced to fight for trade supremacy. She would then be as helpless as though armed with bows and arrows.

Lord Rosebery maintained a discreet vagueness on the question of his personal inclinations concerning the leadership of the Liberal party. He said he could not imagine himself in the position of a minister. But in the next breath he told how he would reorganize the war office if it fell to his lot. He said this reorganization, however, should be postponed.

Waylaid by Lieutenant Governor.

MISSOULA, Mon., Dec. 17.—James Blockley, T. D. Plunkett and Theodore Booth, strangers in Missoula, while returning to their hotel from a party given by Mrs. Frank Higgins, mother of the lieutenant governor of the state, were waylaid by three men. Booth, who represented the Globe Tobacco company of Detroit, Mich., sustained a fractured skull and may die. His companions were unhurt. The sensational feature of the assault lies in the fact that Lieutenant Governor Higgins was one of the assaulting party and was assisted by his brother, who is a deputy state game warden. The third assailant is said to have been W. W. McCormick, a deputy sheriff. Higgins admitted his participation in the assault, but refused to discuss it other than to say it was deserved. Presumably it grew out of some occurrences at the Higgins party.

German Grand Marshal Resigns.

BERLIN, Dec. 17.—Count von Eulenberg, grand court marshal of Prussia and commander of the First division of infantry, has resigned from the army. It is understood that Count von Eulenberg's action is a result of the Blaskowitz-Hildebrand duel. This, together with the recent resignation of General von Alten, the commander of another East Prussian infantry division, is taken to mean that Emperor William is resolutely determined to suppress dueling except under the most unusual circumstances.

Fourteen Thousand Idle.

SHAMOKIN, Pa., Dec. 17.—Fourteen thousand men and boys have been rendered idle because of Sunday's flood in this district. There are fourteen collieries owned by the Philadelphia and Reading railroad and the Pennsylvania railroad in this region, and all of them were flooded by the heavy downpour. It will be several days before all the collieries will be able to resume.

NO CAUSE FOR ALARM.

With so much talk about smallpox, vaccination and isolation hospitals, it is not surprising that the people of Plainfield are beginning to be alarmed. As a matter of fact, however, there is very little real cause for uneasiness. While it is a fact that the dread disease has appeared in New York and in parts of New Jersey not many miles away, there is really little chance of its appearance here. While an epidemic is possible, it is by no means probable.

The Boards of Health of both city and borough realize the possibility and believe in the saying that "forewarned is fore-armed." So the preparations have been made to present a possible spread of the dread disease should it, by any chance, make its appearance in this immediate neighborhood. The first sign of it would mean prompt action on the part of the health authorities which would stamp it out and prevent its spread.

As a matter of fact, however, Plainfield is not a city where that disease is likely to obtain any strong foothold. Where the people realize the full import of the situation and are ready and willing to take the necessary precautionary measures, there has been but little trouble in controlling the disease. One of the greatest enemies of smallpox is plenty of pure fresh air and thorough and proper ventilation is a very important factor in checking it. It is in the tenament districts where proper ventilation is an unknown quantity that the smallpox is found at its worst.

If the people of Plainfield will use every means to keep their homes properly ventilated even if the day does happen to be cold, they will be doing their share in fighting off the dread disease. If, by any means, the disease should appear here, the Plainfield Board of Health is ready to deal with it and there need be no fear of any serious epidemic. There is no cause for worry either that the disease will appear here, or that, once here, it will assume any serious proportions.

The Philadelphia Record says the systematic advertiser looks over the field to form an estimate of the share of business he can get and the amount he can create by advertising. A certain number of persons, for example, intend to buy new hats. There are others who can be induced to buy new hats through advertisements. If the advertiser has the money he will ake as much newspaper space as he thinks necessary. If his means be limited he will take as much space as he can. He will always find the investment profitable.

Jersey City is decidedly interested in the proposed tunnel under the Hudson river of the North Jersey Street Railway Company. It will naturally mean a great deal to that community and will surely be the means of bringing many thousands of residents to that immediate vicinity. When New York can be reached from Jersey without a trip by ferry, there are many who will move into this State without delay.

The great flood which swept down the Lehigh river and flooded the lower portions of the city of Easton ought to convince the Ingersoll-Sergeant Drill Company that their best interests would be advanced by a removal to a safer location.

Most of the local churches have arranged to hold their special Christmas services next Sunday. Some elaborate musical programmes have been prepared. The Christmas festivities will be held some evening of the week following Christmas.

The cold wave which swept over this part of the land Sunday caused a remarkable fall of temperature. Inside of thirtysix hours, the mercury fell fifty degrees. Such sudden changes of temperature are responsible for much illness.

It is said that the new management of the Elizabeth, Plainfield and Central Jersey Street Railway Company is going to put the trolley service in the best of condition. The change cannot come too soon to suit the public.

Every man, woman and child will find something interesting in the "Shoppers' Column" on page two.

TEA TABLE TALK.

Short Sketches That Are Not Always News, But Just as Interesting.

The failure of the trains to run on schedule time on the New Jersey Central is causing a deal of annoyance to commuters. That the officers of the road are aware of the state of affairs is shown by a little incident that has leaked out. Recently Counsel DeForest gave a dinner in honor of President Baer, of the Central and Philadelphia and Reading. Three guests were late and as they came in Baer said to Gen. Manager Warren, "There, Warren, are three more men late on account of delay of trains on the Central."

Louie D. W. McIntosh, of Arlington avenue, gave a dinner at his home, Saturday evening, to ten friends, in honor of the birthday of Frank Hedden. It was a pleasant affair and it will long be remembered by those present by one thing if not any other, and that is the menu. It cannot be truthfully said that the composition of the edibles originated from the fertile brain of Oscar, the celebrated chef of the Waldorf-Astoria, but it was enjoyed by the guests as though served under his supervision. In detail it was as follows:

SOUPS.
Paris Green Blue Vitriol Red Tape

An Envangelist's Story.

"I suffered for years with a bronchial or lung trouble and tried various remedies but did not obtain permanent relief until I commenced using One Minute Cough Cure," writes Rev. James Kirkman, evangelist, of Belle River, Ill. "I have no hesitation in recommending it to all sufferers from maladies of this kind." One Minute Cough Cure afford immediate relief for coughs, colds and all kind of throat and lung troubles. For croup it is unequalled. Absolutely safe. Very pleasant to take, never fails and is really a favorite with the children. They like it. L. W. Randolph.

To Spend Honeymoon Abroad.

Mr. and Mrs. John T. Thayer, who were married at Grace P. E. church Thursday evening, sailed for Europe Saturday on the Steamer Lahn. They will make an extended sojourn in Italy and before returning from their honeymoon trip will visit other places on the continent. On their return they will reside in Charleston, W. Va., where the groom is engaged in the practice of law.

—At the church meeting in the Seventh-Day Baptist church last Sunday David E. Titsworth was appointed chairman for the next church meeting to be held possibly within a short time.

PLANS A HUSBAND BOUNTY.

Japanese Government Proposes to Reward Girls Who Marry College Students.

Maidens of Japan who succeed in interesting young Japanese students long enough to induce them to get married will be rewarded in the near future with matrimonial dowries by the mikado's government if the plans of leading Japanese statesmen prove as successful as expected, according to Secretary Yomma, of the Japanese consulate in Chicago, reports the Chronicle.

What led the secretary to make the announcement as to the prospective husband bounty bill was the published account of the lecture in which Prof. Starr, of the University of Chicago, made the sensational statement before his class in anthropology that the marvelous advance of the Japanese in the learning and civilization of the western countries had proved too rapid and was making them the victims of an epidemic of brain fever that threatened their extinction as a nation.

"Statistics show that students in Japan are affected more by eye troubles from overstudy than by brain fever," said Secretary Yomma. "It is true that our young men are very studious, but our young women are not expected to be scholars. They are encouraged in the cultivation of feminine graces and charms, and it is becoming a fad with some of our statesmen to advocate a liberal marriage bounty for the maiden who proves herself sufficiently fascinating to cause a young man at college to forsake his books long enough to get married."

DEFECTIVE DINING TABLES.

They Give a Man No Chance to Cross His Legs—Complaint of an Epicure.

"I have discovered a very great defect in the architecture of the dining table," remarked an epicure the other day to a New Orleans Times-Democrat man, "and the defect is universal. I have found in my time but very few tables built after my ideal, and it seems to me that some man interested in matters of this sort ought to start a revolution along these lines. When I sit down to a meal I want to rest. Eating and resting ought to go together. Restfulness at meal time, absolute comfort at the table and good food of the wholesome kind are things that will commend themselves to most men.

"Now, I have what I may call a mealtime hobby. I always want to cross my legs under the table. Most men do, I believe. And why not? It is a comfortable position. It enables one to sit more erect, too. I do not know what etiquette says about one's legs and feet during meal time, but I suppose it goes no further than to suggest that they should be kept under the table, which is correct, I ween. But I insist that among my inalienable rights is the right to cross my legs, and to cross them under the mahogany at that if it pleases me to do so and adds to my comfort.

"And yet it is a fact that one rarely enjoys this gracious privilege because of the awkward, grotesque and unhappy architecture of the dining table. The tables ought to be differently made. They ought to be roomier, so that a fellow would have ample space in which to cross his legs if it pleased him to do so. Of course, if one does not want to cross one's legs at meal times one need not do it, so the change could do no harm."

Health and Beauty.

A poor complexion is usually the result of a torpid liver or irregular action of the bowels. Unless nature's refuse is carried off it will surely cause impure blood. Pimples, boils and other eruptions follow. This is nature's method of throwing off the poisons which the bowels failed to remove. DeWitt's Little Early Risers are world famous for remedying this condition They stimulates the liver and promote regular and healthy action of the bowels but never cause griping, cramps or distress. POLICEMEN ON GUARD.

To Prevent Repainting of Roughly Humorous Signs on a Newly Married Pair's Cottage.

While William J. Carr, of Philadelphia, the crack oarsman of the Vespers Boat club crew that won the championship in France last year, is in Washington with his bride, who was Miss Frances A. Frewen, a policeman is on guard at the home Carr prepared in Philadelphia for his bride, to prevent a repetition of scenes of hilarity by his boatclub friends, whose decorations proved so successful that the police reserves had to be called out to disperse the crowd.

The happy couple returned from St. Malachi's church to find their new home emblazoned with the news of their wedding, and the streets crowded with riotous friends.

Across the top of the second story was suspended a sign reading: "Lover's Roost," while a gigantic sign bearing the words "Oh, what bliss," flapped across the center of the house. Another along the lower floor read: "Just married."

Streamers of red, white and blue festooned the windows and trailed over the sides of the house to the very roof. The sedate and snug home was fairly hidden under the gay trappings of joy. Never were bride and groom so thoroughly advertised by their loving friends.

Carr, who rowed No. 4 in the Vesper eight that won the world's championship in Paris last year, is a big, manly fellow, who has paid court to Miss Frewen for several years.

When the carriage returned from the church the gay young bride and groom were startled almost out of their senses. Carr leaned from the window with a pale face, while Mrs. Carr nearly fainted. But when the eight voices chorused: "How do you like your reception, Carr?" the groom smiled bravely and introduced his wife.

SHE'S A SPARRING CAT.

Feline Boxer of Washington Market, New York, Ready Always to Meet All Comers.

There is a sparring cat in Washington market whose antics would make a hit upon the stage, says the New York Sun.

She is a common gray tabby, belonging to nobody in particular, but following the natural habit of cats in keeping where fish food is plentiful, she can generally be found near the fish stands. She does her stunts in the aisles when one of the boys has time to play with her.

A touch on the head will make her rear up and strike out deftly with right and left paws. She leaps a foot in the air at times to strike at a boy's hand, but when the blows fall they are usually as harmless as if she wore boxing gloves.

Only when she is under the greatest excitement does she permit her claws to protrude beyond the velvety pads and when she bites she seldom breaks the skin, but woe to the foe who strikes at her and runs away.

She will stand up to the fray as long as passes are made at her, but should her tormentor turn to run, Tabby fastens to the calf of his leg with both teeth and claws and holds on until he renews the fight with his hands.

She is so used to fighting men that the biggest of dogs has no terrors for her.

Circus Man's Witty Speech.

George Sawyer, the English circus man, is a wit as well as an expert equestrian. On being asked what steps he would take should a certain wild beast break out of his cage, he promptly replied: "Blamed long ones."

KEEP OFF THE EARTH

During the cold and wet weather as much as possible—that is, keep as much shoe leather between the soles of your feet and Mother Earth as you can conveniently carry. It's wisest in the beginning and cheaper in the end to provide yourself with shoes having good solid soles—cold-proof and water-proof, if possible.

We are selling exceptionally good shoes of just this sort for men and women; children, too.

Well-built, with broad, heavy soles and with stout uppers.

They're a very paradise of rest for weary feet, and a paradise of economy for weary purses.

After paying some money I owed, we spoke of my boy of ten years whom I had along with me. The boy was not feeling well; his stomach appeared to be out of order and he was getting thin. I told the doctor that I had given the boy a Ripans Tabule the night before. Then I told him what the ingredients were—rhubarb, ipecac, peppermint, aloes, nux vomica and soda—and he exclaimed, 'What's that? What's that?' Upon repeating the formula he said, 'Good, very good. You could not give him anything better. The rhubarb is what he needs for the stomach, and the nux will tone up the system. Continue giving him one each night and he will be all right.' He gave me no further prescription for the boy and charged me nothing for the advice.'

...THE... True Spirit ...OF... Christmastide

By MAUD ROBINSON

"THE romance of Christmas is gone; only this much remains," sighed the society woman wearily as she stepped away from the Christmas tree she was decorating.

"Meaning the children's part?" queried her friend.

The society woman nodded. "And that's fast going too. Even this tree, which would have driven me half crazy with joy when I was a child, will hardly evoke more than a few polite 'Ohs!' from Teddy and Mary's overdressed, overeducated and overcritical little playmates."

"But if that is the case why do you tire yourself; why do you do it?" persisted the friend. "Why not give your children their presents alone in a simpler manner?"

"FOOD! CLOTHING! TOYS!"

The society woman smiled at the other's simplicity. "My dear," she said, "you don't realize it's a way of bringing certain of our old families together. Quite an English idea, don't you know. Each year we have the tree at a different house. Last year it was at Mrs. Van Allstyne's, this year it's at my house, next year it will be at Flossie Witherington's, and so on through our set. You can't begin too early surrounding your children with the right coterie"—

"Oh, you don't understand the true spirit of Christmastide, the true spirit of giving, at all. That's the trouble!" sighed her friend.

"I don't understand giving!" returned the society woman indignantly. "I wish you could have seen the library this morning. Why, the very floor was covered with every possible size of package. Why, I sent things to every blessed person who remembered me last year"—

"And who could be of service to you this"—

The society woman blushed. "Oh, well," she expostulated, "you know, present giving isn't wholly a matter of sentiment nowadays, and I had to be discriminating. Besides I sent a lump sum to each of my charities and"—

"Had it over with as soon as possible."

"I think you're hard!" cried the society woman, anxious to set herself right in her friend's eyes. "Why, I don't do a bit differently from any one else. We all pay our obligations at Christmas or at Easter, and I dread Christmas! It's a bore and an imposition."

"Because your Christmas isn't Christmas, because it isn't a time of joy, simplicity and good will—joy in giving out of a full heart to others, not in furthering your own interests. Christmas is not merely turkey, plum pudding and gifts. It has a far deeper meaning. It is a time for showing your love to those who are nearest your heart, for giving a little happiness to those who have no one to love them. I would rather never give a present at all than one which I gave half heartedly or because I must. They understand the spirit of Christmastide in France with their simple childlike faith, the midnight mass at which old and young kneel to celebrate the birth of the Christ Child, the family feast afterward, to which all the poor are welcomed. And even in the great cities, in Paris, leaders of society, beautiful young women, rich and titled, steal up the dark stairways of loathsome tenements, knock at crazy, dilapidated doors, and before they can be discovered they are gone. The wretched mother of a family of starving little ones opens the door, the light of her candle streams over a great bundle which lies across the threshold. 'Food! Clothing! Toys! Surely the Christ Child himself sent them!' And below the merry donor takes another bundle from the hands of her waiting servant and ascends another stair. And that," concluded the society woman's friend simply—"that is the true spirit of Christmastide."

The Trouble A on the Torolito.

BY FRANCIS LYNDE.

(Copyright 1898, by Francis Lynde.)

My end of the flume was in the shadow of the canyon wall, and I knew that neither of them could see me; but I stood up and waved my arms and shouted to them. My tongue clave to my teeth, and whether my cries were louder than whispers, I know not. It mattered little; the thunder of the torrent was deafening, and no warning shout of mine could dominate it. With shaking knees I climbed a little higher on the canyon wall to lay hold of a gnarled tree growing from a cleft in the rock. When I looked again, the engineer had turned to creep back over the cob-house timbering of the coffer-dam. In the balancing instant I saw a worm-like thread of fire eating its way up into the black shadows on the downstream side of the timbering; saw it, and saw that Macpherson had seen it. He was urging his horse up the trail, and his ringing shout came to me above the din and turmoil of the waters. Then the thread of fire disappeared and a rumbling crash shook the mountain like the shock of an earthquake. I heard the grinding crunch of shattered timbers, and when I looked again the coffer-dam had become a mere log-jam in the seething whirl-pool, and the released torrent was breast-high on the trail where Macpherson had halted. But for the sight of him sending his horse zigzag up the steep acclivity opposite, I should have fainted and fallen. As it was, my brain reeled and a horrible nausea seized me. For at that moment Macpherson flung himself from the back of the scrambling bronco and ran out on the wreck of the timbering to look down into the surging maelstrom roaring through the gap. I looked, too, and saw what he saw. In the spume of the caldron, clinging desperately to one of the half-submerged logs of the wrecked coffer-dam, was the engineer. I saw his face upturned in the moonlight, and it was the face of a man whose life had eaten out the fortitude wherewith a brave man may go to his death.

And on the broken timbering above, within arm's-reach of the drowning man, Macpherson stood and looked down upon him. He had but to withhold his hand, and God's vengeance would fall swift and sure upon the poor worm writhing on its log in the reek and spume of the whirlpool.

CHAPTER XI.

LA PETITE GUERRE.

It was a sodden thing, limp and unresponsive, that Macpherson dragged out of the maw of the hungry whirlpool and carried across the tottering wreck of the coffer-dam to the half-finished excavation in the opposite canyon slide. When I joined him, by way of the precarious flume-bridge and a scramble along the steep acclivity down which I had once shot to a plunge in the icy waters of the stream, he was making a fire in the shelter of the excavation, hurrying tremulously and muttering to himself like a man gone daft. In the excitement of the moment he seemed to take my presence quite as a matter of course.

"Look him over, Jack, for God's sake, tell me if I'm a murderer!" he gasped, going down on his hands and knees to blow the spark in the kindling.

He had propped the engineer in a corner of the cutting, and I lost no time in obeying the command. As nearly as I could determine there were no bones broken; but there were two or three slight scalp wounds, and the man was well drowned.

"Pull yourself together, Angus, and help me," I said, throwing off my overcoat. "The fellow's drowned, and he's a dead man if we don't get to work on him pretty suddenly."

Fortunately, we both knew what to do, and how to go about it; but there was a despairing half-hour or more of it before the first long-drawn sigh of returning life rewarded our efforts. Macpherson worked silently, with set teeth and the tireless patience of a piece of machinery; and when Wykamp began to breathe naturally he sank back and covered his face with his hands. A pebble rattled down the slope of the excavation and I looked up. Selter was standing at the pit-edge, gazing down upon us like a man lately aroused from his first sleep.

"Well, I'll be dad-burned!" he said, clambering down to stare first at the two of us and then at the unconscious engineer. "This yere's what all the rumpus was about, eh? Dam bu'sted to kingdom come, an' that ther'—" his epithet was quite accurat but wholly unreportable—"drowned dead as a do'-nail! Hit waked us all up down't the house, an' I thort I'd thess mog along up an' see what-all'd happened."

Mac took his face out of his hands.

"Let up on that, Jake," he said, quietly. "Or perhaps I'd better tell you to stick to it for your life. I know why the dam went out, and so does Mr. Halcott. If he doesn't know—" indicating the sodden figure at the other side of the fire—"you are safe to lie out of it. And you're just in time to cover your tracks. Hustle yourself down to the engineer's camp and rout them out. Tell them the boss is here half dead, and have them send for him."

Selter's face, sharply relieved in the firelight, was a study in baffled enmity mingled with fear. But he made no more denials and went straightaway on his errand, leaving us to watch with the half dead one. It was a long time before Macpherson broke silence to say:

"How much do you know, Jack?"

"All of it, I think; except that I'm taking it for granted that Nan is responsible for some things—your being here for one."

"She isn't," he said, soberly. "But she has told me what you didn't think it was safe to tell me, if that's what you mean."

I shook my head. "The ways of a woman are past finding out. What possible object could she have in signing her lover's death warrant after that fashion?"

The flush under the bronze in Macpherson's face may have been no more than the reflection of the ruddy firelight.

"YOU FOLLOWED HIM TO KILL HIM."

"Have you forgotten the pony and the riding-lessons?" he asked, shamefacedly.

"No."

"Well, it appears that she hasn't. I oughtn't to tell it, even on her, but it seems that she has been playing that thing—" with a contemptuous nod toward the unconscious engineer— "off against—against Miss Sanborn." His laugh was forced, and it was not pleasant to hear. "I don't believe she considered him in the matter at all. What she had in mind was the hope that her information would turn me against the schoolmistress. As a matter of fact, she was unwise enough to say so in so many words."

"And instead of that, it sent you out with murder in your heart. I don't wonder."

The unpleasant laugh came again. "Don't take sides with the devil," he said, shortly. "I ought to kill him, but I've promised not to, and I—"

He covered his face again, bursting out presently in an upbubbling of mingled wrath and remorse.

"Oh, my God, Jack! you don't know what a temptation it was when I saw him down there gasping and struggling; as good as dead, and by no act of mine. All I had to do was to turn and walk away. You're right; there was murder in my heart for the tenth part of a second, then, though there hadn't been up to that moment."

"And yet you followed him up here for the express purpose of killing him," I persisted.

His look was of blank surprise. "Oh, no," he said. "Haven't you heard?"

"What can I hear when you stay away and I am shut up with a family in which speech is so dear that the common gossip of the settlement is at a premium?" I retorted, irritably.

"That's so; I forgot. We've been coming to blows down in my end of the valley—the boys and Wykamp's men. Connolly and Kilgore have both been making camp-fires of the stakes again, and day before yesterday the reprisals began in dead earnest. I've lost half a dozen prime steers; and last night we saved the hay stacks by standing guard over them with the Winchesters. This afternoon, Mexican George took a pot-shot at Bart from behind a bowlder in Elk canyon—missed him, of course; a Greaser can't hit anything—and I thought it was about time to serve notice on the man who is responsible. That's what brought me up here to-night. They told me at the camp that Wykamp had come up here, and I thought it would be a good chance to get him by himself."

"Forgive me, Angus," I said, in honest contrition. "You're a better man than I thought you were; a better man than I'd be under the same conditions, I'm afraid. What will you

ONE WAY OUT.

A Resident of Plainfield Shows the Way.

Only one way to cure a bad back.
Liniment and plasters may relieve it,
They won't cure it.
Bachache mean sick kidneys.
Doan's Kidney Pills cure all kidney ills.
Plainfield people prove this.
Read a case of it:

Mr. S. J. Conklin, traveling salesman for a New York confectionery house, 134 West Front street, says: "I was subject to pain in the back and hips which at times I felt in my side. I tried different kinds of kidney cures but received little or no relief. I read a great deal about Doan's Kidney Pills and I went to L. W. Randolph's drug store and got a box.

I took three boxes altogether and was wonderfully improved. Doan's Kidney Pills are a good remedy and accomplish all that is claimed for them."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no substitute.

THE BRONX ROCKING STONE.

Many Tons in Weight Yet Can Be Easily Moved by One Strong Hand.

The rocking stone which stands on the flat surface of an out-cropping of rock on a little eminence in Bronx park does not attract so much attention as the animals there do, by any means; but there are, nevertheless, always interested people walking around it, and trying to see if they can move it, says the New York Sun.

This great fragment of rock, which weighs perhaps eight or ten tons, or more, has in its general outlines a form in some rough semblance to an egg. It lies on its side, and so nicely balanced is it that one man of fair strength can readily move it; and almost any two persons can start it into the rocking movement of which, through a small radius, it is susceptible.

A woman comes up and lays her gloved hands upon it and presses gently; it doesn't budge.

"Why, it doesn't move," she says.

But two or three women together can set the great stone rocking easily.

And no matter who it may be that sets the rocking stone in motion, he is pretty sure to find in setting it rocking a sort of fascination.

BUY WATCHES AS TRINKETS.

Women Do Not Wear Them as Timekeepers, Says a Jeweler.

"No, I don't believe that there are many women who buy a gold watch to keep time," declared an Eighth street jeweler the other day, according to the Philadelphia Record. "The best proof of my assertion is in the fact that while we sell quite a number of watches to women we have very few women's watches in our repairing department. Men, on the other hand, come in every day to have their watches repaired, and they keep our repairing department busy the whole day long. Some of them are mighty particular, too, to have their watches timed almost to the second.

"Women, as a rule, buy a gold watch as a trinket. They pin it on the breast like a medal. Some wear it at the waist with a quantity of other trinkets. You have no doubt seen many such women on Chestnut street. It is only the professional woman whose business requires her to have strict time who buys a timepiece for the purpose for which it was made. A trained nurse is an instance. And as a rule the professional woman buys a silver watch. But women will be women, you know!"

ILLINOIS PUMPKINS.

Treated by a Process That Renders Them Superior to the Canned Article.

A new use has been found for the pumpkin, which promises to be an innovation in southern Illinois. An apple evaporator at Noble is being used for the drying of pumpkins, and the product finds ready sale on the market, says a Flora (Ill.) correspondent of the St. Louis Republic.

The pumpkins are cut into long strips, and dried very much in the same manner as apples. These evaporated strips are then pressed into cakes, which are ready for the market. This dried pumpkin has been tested by bakeries and hotels in the cities, and is pronounced superior to the canned article. It is claimed that 90 per cent. of the pumpkin can be evaporated.

In this section of Illinois the pumpkin grows to an enormous size. A specimen weighing 70 pounds was on exhibition in this city a few days ago.

The growers are receiving three dollars per ton for the fruit, and many farmers have grown a ton to the acre in their corn fields this season, despite the unprecedented drought.

Bricks Per Capita.

Two hundred and fifty million bricks are used in a month in the United Kingdom; that is, each inhabitant uses 90 in a year. Each American averages 150.

SAVED MASTER'S LIFE.

Farmer Was Imprisoned Under Fallen Tree and Dog Took One of His Boots Home.

According to a Susquehanna (Pa.) correspondent of the New York World, John Reegan, a farmer of Gulf Summit, went out upon a hill near his house Thursday to cut down trees, taking with him his dog Tiger. He cut a tall oak, which fell in such a way that it knocked him down and imprisoned him in a little depression. Had it not been for the depression his life would have been crushed out, but as it was he was held a prisoner, and struggle as he would he could not free himself.

He shouted and his dog appeared. Tiger apparently realized at once the dangerous predicament in which his master was placed, and also the fact that he could do no good on the spot. He tugged awhile at the imprisoned man, and then started off for home on a wild rush.

Arriving at the farm house, he set up such a howling that the attention of every one on the place was attracted to him. All wondered what could be the matter with him, never suspecting the true cause of the trouble. No attention was paid to his noises except to scold him.

The dog now made off back to where his master lay, and a few moments later was again heard howling at the farm house door. The first person who approached him saw that he had one of his master's boots in his mouth, and it was at once surmised that something was wrong with Reegan and that the intelligent brute was trying to convey a message.

The dog barked with delight when several of the farm hands set off with him to see what was up. The men found Reegan almost unconscious and suffering greatly. The unfortunate man was released, and was found to have suffered no serious injury.

Tiger is now a great hero.

A PULPIT ROMANCE.

Preacher Asks Congregation for Mate for Brother Divine and Is Accommodated.

For two Sundays Rev. Willard N. Streeter, who has a pastorate in a Vermont village near the town of Roxbury, Vt., preached in Emmanuel church, at Springfield, Mass., in the hope of receiving a call to the vacant pastorate. He told the parishioners that he had a minister friend in Vermont who was anxious to marry that he might carry on his pastoral work more successfully. This clergyman friend, he said, was getting well along in years—in fact, was nearly 60, and he felt his loneliness.

He asked if there was not in Emmanuel church a woman who would be a suitable helpmate for his friend. The parishioners suggested Miss Nellie Lard, 40 and fair, and an earnest church worker, as just the kind of wife a clergyman should have.

Acting upon this suggestion, says the New York Journal, Rev. Mr. Streeter sent Miss Lard's name to Rev. William P. Squires, of Roxbury, Vt. A correspondence was begun and took such a favorable turn that Rev. Mr. Squires came to visit Miss Lard. It was a case of love at first sight. Last Sunday Miss Lard applied for a letter from the church to the one in Roxbury and explained to her friends that she was to be married, but that the romance was to be kept secret. The wedding took place in Miss Lard's home after a courtship of less than two weeks.

CIRCULAR TO BE ISSUED BY THE BOROUGH BOARDS.

Final Result of Troubles Between Health and School Authorities Over Vaccination.

A circular, addressed to the citizens of North Plainfield, will be issued jointly in a few days by the Boards of Education and Health, on the subject of vaccination.

This was decided upon at a meeting of the Board of Education held last evening. Both bodies are powerless to enforce vaccination of the teachers and pupils as a means of warding off a possible small pox epidemic. All the power given to the school authorities is to prevent the attendance of pupils, not vaccinated, should an epidemic break out.

It is this that the board wishes to be understood, but it is also desired that all parents see that their children are vaccinated at the earliest possible date. A recommendation to that effect will probably be included in the circular.

FUNERAL OF MRS. CARNEY.

Services Were Held From St. Mary's Church This Morning.

Funeral services were held this morning in St. Mary's church, over the remains of Mrs. Dennis Carney, Jr., who died at the home of her sister, Mrs. James Harden, of West Second street. They were conducted by Rev Father Farley. There was a very large gathering of relatives and friends in attendance. Those who acted as pall bearers were Fred Fleming, Patrick Neylon, John Powers, John Carney, Arthur McGinley and James Reagan. Interment was made in St. Mary's cemetery.

REFURNISHING WINDSOR.

The Old Furniture in the Castle Will Be Burned to Prevent Its Circulation.

His majesty intends to clear out a good deal of the old furniture and fittings at Windsor castle and replace them with his own. Having this in view, old residents have been on the lookout for signs of a bonfire somewhere in the precincts of the castle, for in past times, when any chairs and tables and other articles therein were condemned, it was the practice to have them burned, says Modern Society.

The object of this was to prevent pieces of furniture stamped with the queen's monograms from being let loose, as it were, and so allowed to drift into the hands of brokers, and thence into the possession of persons having no right to them, but willing to pay almost any price to be able to display such royal articles in their own houses. It was a wasteful expedient, but one can understand the need of such a precaution. There have been so many instances of royal gifts and discarded articles being found in shops and stores that some means of prevention are quite necessary. But up to the present time there have been no indications of a holocaust.

Cities That Remind You of People.

According to a writer in the July number of Harper's Magazine, cities, like human beings, have distinct personalities, are frivolous, progressive, somber or gay, much after the people about us, and produce as vivid impressions on the mind. Denver and Chicago are cordial good fellows who slap one on the back and call new acquaintances by their Christian names. When Salem or Annapolis is mentioned a vision is invoked of mittened and kerchiefed old ladies drinking tea from dishes of rare Nanking. New York is the resplendent wife of a banker, pushing her noisy way in the world and dazzling foreign courts with her diamonds, much to the disgust of passe Mistress Boston.

WHAT PEOPLE ARE DOING

SOME BRIEF PARAGRAPHS OF A PERSONAL NATURE.

Many Folk of Greater Plainfield Are Entertaining or Being Entertained.

Mrs. E. J. Firstbrook, of West Fifth street, has returnod from a visit to friends in New York, Miss Bessie May Rowland, of San Francisco, is visiting Mrs. S. F. Davis, of Kensington avenue.

Elmer Brown, of Albany, N. Y., is the guest of his brother-in-law, Harry Green, of Putnam avenue.

Miss Weigmann, of West Front street, has returned home after a visit with friends in New York.

Miss Harriet Louise Townsend, of Brooklyn, is the guest of Mrs. S. M. Thompson, of Putnam avenue.

Miss Katie Bodine, of the borough, has secured a position as saleswoman at Woodhull & Martin's during the holidays.

—All bills against the city must be in the hands of the city clerk by December 21 to issue payment by the old Common Council.

Nelson A. Miller, of Washington avenue, was a guest at the annual dinner of the Olympic Club, of New York, last evening.

William McDowell Drake, leader of Drake's Band, is lying at the point of death at the home of his father, Gen. J. Madison Drake, of Elizabeth.

Charles R. Scott, State secretary for boys' work, was entertained while in this city by George L. Babcock, of the committee on boys' work of the local association.

Receipts Were Large.

The West End Hose Company netted $811.33 by its recent fair. Mrs. Herman Klinsman has been awarded $20 in gold for getting the most money and goods for the affair and Mrs. Charles Keller $15 for being second in the contest.

Religious Address.

Samuel Ridout, of Baltimore, will deliver a religious address in the meeting room, Babcock building, Madison avenue side at 3:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. All are invited. No collection.

Making Sure of His Honesty.

As the daily train reached a Vermont village the other day an antique-looking dame thrust her head out of he window opposite the refreshment room and briefly shouted:

"Sonny!"

A bright-looking boy came up to the window.

"Little boy," she said, "have you a mother?"

"Yes, ma'am."

"Do you go to school?"

"Yes, ma'am."

"And are you faithful to your studies?"

"Yes, ma'am."

"Do you say your prayers every night?"

"Yes, ma'am."

"Can I trust you to do an errand for me?"

"Yes, ma'am."

"I think I can, too," said the lady, looking steadily down on the manly face. "Here is five cents to get me an apple. Remember, God sees you."—Boston Courier.

Keeping a Straight Line.

What man has learned by dint of thought and experiment some of the lower animals appear to know through instinct. An instance is furnished by the "spiral swimming" of certain organisms, such as the spherical-shaped volvox and several elongated infusorians. As they revolve about the axis of progression as does a projectile fired from a rifled gun, the consequence is, as Dr. H. S. Jennings points out, that they are able to travel in a straight line, as they could not do otherwise, the revolution compensating with absolute precision for any tendency to deviate from a straight course. Without such a device many of these minute creatures would simply describe circles, making no forward progress.—Scientific American.

Civilization Drives Out Game.

The fur trade of Canada has long since sunk into insignificance, compared with its proportions half a century ago. The country decried by a French philosopher as a region of ice and snow, which France could well spare, is now famous as a large exporter of the best wheat and apples and other products which attest the richness of the soil and the favorable climatic conditions for the sustenance of human life. The fur trade has now lost the picturesque aspect it sometimes assumed during the French dominion and in the palmy days when the factors of the great company were lords of the north.—Collier's Weekly.

Malaprop in the Police Court.

Two good stories come from recent law and police cases. A witness treated Judge Bacon to some remarks which his honor did not approve. "Don't talk to me like that," said the judge, "or I shall have you committed for contempt of court." "I am not aware," the witness replied in injured tones, "that I have said anything contemptible." In the other case a cabman was fined for obstructing the traffic. On hearing the sentence he raised his voice in complaint. "It's cruel 'ard," he said. "What I get fined for other cabmen can do with impurity."—London Globe.

SECOND REGIMENT IS SIXTH IN EXCELLENCE

Annual Report of Inspector General of Rifle Practice Has Interesting Facts.

FIRST TROOP IS FIRST.

FOR SEVENTH YEAR RETAINS FIRST PLACE FOR EXPERT MARKMANSHIP.

Excellent Showing Made by the Entire National Guard and Naval Reserve—The Year's Results.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, Dec. 18—The annual report of General Bird W. Spencer, inspector-general of rifle practice of New Jersey, gives some interesting figures for the past year.

The camp instruction of rifle practice was established pursuant to general orders No. 12, office of the adjutant-general, May 23, and was continued from the period of July 1 to September 16.

During the camp of instruction from August 30 to Septebmer 7 was held the annual meeting of the National Rifle Association, the New Jersey State Rifle Association and the United States Revolver Association.

During this period also there were two international contests, one from the Palma trophy, between teams from Canada and from the United States, and one for the challenge cup, between teams from Ireland and the New Jersey State Rifle Association.

In the organization figure of merit, the First Troop heads the list, completing its seventh consecutive year in this position.

The troop has two experts, nineteen sharpshooters and thirty-three marksmen out of a total of fifty-nine, with a figure of merit of seventy-two per cent., an increase of fourteen per cent. over the year 1900. The next in order of merit follows the same as last year, viz.:

Battery A, Field Artillery, this being the third year that this organization occupies second position. The figure of merit is seventy per cent., as against fifty-six per cent. last year.

The third in order of merit is the Signal Corps, with a figure of merit of sixty-five, an increase over 1900 of thirteen per cent. The Signal Corps also occupied third position in 1900.

The fourth in figure of merit is Battery B, Field Artillery; the fifth in figure of merit is the Fourth Regiment, the sixth is the First Regiment, the seventh is the Second Regiment, the eighth is the Third Regiment, the ninth is the Naval Reserve, and the tenth is the Second Troop.

Battery B, Field Artillery, rose from tenth place in 1900 to fourth place in 1901.

The Fourth Regiment figure of merit fell off .03; the Second Regiment increased .01; the Third Regiment decreased .02. and the Naval Reserve decreased .01.

Out of 4,489, the total strength of the National Guard and Naval Reserve, 2,716 reported at the range for rifle practice, of which 21 qualified as experts, 147 as sharpshooters, 1,029 as marksmen, 314 as first-class and 1,206 as second-class.

Companies A, B, D and E of the Second Regiment were permitted to practice during the second week in July, under the supervision of Colonel Charles A. Reid, assistant inspector-general of rifle practice, on a temporary range erected near this city.

For the first time in the history of the National Guard, a comprehensive system of armory practice by the organizations having armory rifle ranges was established during the past year, and those qualifying and entitled to armory decorations show a very gratifying result.

Separate Exercises This Year.

The Christmas entertainment will be held at Marconnier chapel Thursday evening, Dec. 26. The members of the chapel and Sunday-school will not join Sunday evening with Trinity Reformed church in the latter's Christmas service as has heretofore been the custom. It has been found that the trip is quite long especially at this time of year.

Good Thing.

The old summer trolley cars used on the local lines last summer have been sent to the company's barn near Westfield. It is doubtful if some of them are ever used again in this city.

Christmas at the Home.

The Christmas tree celebration at the Children's Home will probably be held Friday afternoon, Dec. 27.

FATAL ENDING OF INJURIES

MRS. MAGDALENA MAGAR DIED IN BROOKLYN YESTERDAY.

Left Plainfield Labor Day and Met With Accident—Never Walked Again.

Mrs. Magdalena Magar, a well-known Painfieder, died at the home of her son, John Magar, in Brooklyn, yesterday morning. She was in her eighty-eighth year and had lived over half that time in the borough, mostly on Grandview avenue.

Mrs. Magar left this city last August to visit her son, at that time being in the best of health despite her advanced age. She intended to return on the day following Labor Day but just previous to that she made a misstep and broke a tendon in her hip. She never walked afterward and her health began to decline terminating fatally yesterday.

In addition to the son at whose home she died, she leaves two others, Charles Magar, of the borough, and Christopher Magar, of Paterson, and one daughter, Miss Julia Magar, of Brooklyn, formerly of this city. The funeral and interment will be at Brooklyn, Friday afternoon.

A SATISFACTORY CHOIR

Male Quartette Now Singing at the Services in the First Presbyterian Church.

Several changes have recently been made in the personel of the male quartette, which sings at morning and evening service at the First Presbyterian church. Clifford Braider, the organist, now has a quartette which is doing very satisfactory work.

Elmer Cutting is the first tenor. He is well-known in local musical circles and has an excellent voice. E. Maxwell Honeyman, the second tenor, gave up a place in one of the big New York church choirs to sing here. Sydney R. Titsworth, who was on the quartette of the Alfred University Glee Club, is filling the position of first bass as long as his studies at Columbia P. and S. School will permit. The second bass is Wilson Derby, who possesses a good voice and knows how to use it.

For the Christmas services Sunday, the choir will be augmented by four more male voices. The double quartette thus formed has been practicing for several weeks and will undoubtedly give a very satisfactory musical programme at the Christmas services.

MAKE THE CHILDREN HAPPY.

Laudable Undertaking of Relief Association at This Season.

The Plainfield Relief Association committee, having in charge the annual tree entertainment, asks for donations of toys, books, and money from all interested in the work.

There will be at least 200 children to be made happy at this time and any contributions will add to their pleasure and happiness. Books, and toys may be sent to the rooms of the association, 544 West Front street, as soon as convenient. Money contributions will be gladly received by the following members of the comimttee: Mrs. Ernest R. Ackerman, Mrs. W. A. Woodruff and Mrs. E. T. Barrows. 2

Hand Painted Pillows.

At the request of a number of her friends who attended the recent exhibition at her home, Mrs. Robert A. Meeker has placed a number of her beautiful hand painted sofa pillows in a window at Powlison & Jones. They are excellent specimens of her handiwork and are admired daily by crowds of shoppers.

Preparing Scott Collection.

H. P. Scott, brother of the late Colonel Scott, who recently arrived from Kansas, is now busily engaged arranging the valuable relics and effects of his brother prior to offering them for sale. A room in the Stillman building, on West Front street, has been secured.

Donations for the Children's Home.

Mrs. M. E. Kimball, president of the Children's Home, desires The Daily Press to say that all cash donations for the Home can be sent to her or the treasurer of the Home. Other donations should be sent to the Home in North Plainfield.

Public Meeting.

The members of Howell Division, No. 97, Sons of Temperance, are planning for a public meeting to be held in their rooms Monday evening, Dec. 30. There will be prominent speakers and an interesting programme.

Planning Good Time.

Mrs. James E. Kimball is chairman of the Christmas committee at the Seventh-Day Baptist church. She, with the assistance of her committee, is planning for a most enjoyable time.

TOOK HIM IN.

Then These "Friends" Turned Him Out on the Street With His Pockets Rifled.

A Plainfield young man, who lingered too long over the cup that cheers, Monday night, will have occasion to remember the subsequent "jag." He fell in with a number of alleged friends who took him in tow, landing at the home of one of them.

While there his pockets were rifled and a generous supply of cash which they contained was deftly removed. The inebriate was then trundled out to the sidewalk and left to get home as best he could.

On coming to his sober senses he missed the amount and realized he had been "taken in." Through fear of publicity he has refrained from having the offenders arrested, but the facts have leaked out nevertheless.

AWAITED DEATH PATIENTLY

MRS. BESSIE RITZEMAN DIED THURSDAY AT NEW YORK.

Was Miss Curry's Special Care at Westfield Fresh Air Camp Last Summer.

Many visitors to the Fresh Air Camp at Westfield last summer will remember Mrs. Bessie Ritzeman, the sick woman, whom Miss Currie brought out from New York suffering with a cancer, and they will remember the house built by Mr. Runyon for her special use. Last Thursday Mrs. Ritzeman died at 613 East 16th street, New York. Her sickness and suffering was remarkable for patience in suffering and her clear and simple trust in God's love.

She committed her three children to His keeping, who had promised to care for the motherless little ones. The one great desire of her heart was that she might be Miss Currie's ministering spirit, who for six months had cared for her so patiently, lovingly supplying all her needs in every way.

The band of mothers that Miss Currie had gathered around her and friends from Westfield and Elizabeth attended Mrs. Ritzeman's funeral Saturday. Remarks made by Rev. Mr. Fairchild and David M. Torrey, of Westfield, will never be forgotten by those present. It was the request of the deceased that Mr. Torrey speak at the funeral, he having visited her faithfully since the close of the camp.

FUNERAL OF MRS. VANDERWEG.

Conducted From the Residence on Elm Place Yesterday.

Funeral services were conducted, yesterday afternoon, over the remains of Mrs. Wiske Vanderweg at her late residence on Elm place. They were in charge of Rev. Charles E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, and were attended by a large number of relatives and friends.

At the close of the services the remains were interred in the North Plainfield cemetery. Those who acted as pall bearers were Frederick and William Vanderweg, of Roselle; Fred Decker, of Westfield; Martin Vanderweg, Albert and John Utzinger, of this city.

ASK THAT CHILDREN BE VACCINATED NOW

Circular Letter by School and Health Boards of the Borough About Ready.

ONE FOR EVERY PARENT

RECOMMENDS THAT IT BE DONE BEFORE NEW YEARS.

Asks That All Who Have Not Been Vaccinated in Five Years Submit to the Operation Without Delay.

Prompt action has been taken by the proper borough authorities to prevent an epidemic of small-pox in North Plainfield. An open letter has been drawn up jointly by the Board of Health and the Board of Education and a copy of it will be placed in the hands of every parent in North Plainfield before the end of the present week.

The prevelance of the dreaded disease in other localities has caused the authorities to proceed at once in the matter. The Board of Education has power to debar any pupil from the privileges of the schools, unless vaccinated, but it is not desired to place any undue hardship on the parents by closing the schools until the pupils are vaccinated. Consequently this will not be done unless public safety should require it. The recommendation is urgently made, however, that all children who have not been vaccinated within a period of five years be attended to properly at once by some qualified physician.

It is believed that no further notice will have to be issued and that before the children return to school at the expirtion of the Christmas holidays all will be vaccinated.

DIDN'T SUCCEED.

Farmhand Failed to "Get Square" But Managed to Get Term in County Jail.

Oliver Eriksen, a farmhand of near New Market, waxed wroth last night because he was ejected from a local saloon. He resolved to "get square" and his befuddled brain conceived the idea of hurling a cobblestone through a front plate glass window of the drink dispensary, worth many dollars. It took him too long, however, to draw back his arm, and before the stone could be thrown it was knocked from his grasp by Patrolman Totten, who arrived just in time.

The officer was roundly berated for his interference, but that didn't prevent him from locking Eriksen up. This morning City Judge Runyon gave him his choice of $5 or twenty days. He took the latter.

NOW AN ACTIVE INDUSTRY

THE STONE QUARRY AND CRUSHER AT CHIMNEY ROCK.

Jersey Central Has a Branch to the Quarry and Gets its Ballast There.

It was about fifteen years ago that William Haelig located in Bound Brook and established what is known today as the Bound Brook Crushed Stone Company, an industry that is not excelled anywhere in this vicinity. Mr. Haelig saw an opportunity of operating a stone crusher in the gorge to good advantage.

From the start the business was a success and the steady increase compelled Mr. Haelig to purchase modern machinery. It was then the company formed and thirty acres of land was leased of English parties for a term of ninety-nine years. This land is on Watchung range west of the gorge.

As the business increased the question of the Jersey Central Railroad Company building a branch to Chimney Rock was agitated. Two years ago this branch was built. As this is the only stone crusher along the Jersey Central Railroad, the company has contracted with the stone company to buy ballast for use along the road. Most every day a train load of this stone goes out of the quarry.

The company's output comprises telford, rip rap, square building stone and paving blocks. The quarry is a scene of constant activity. The monthly pay roll amounts to $2,400. A 125 horse power engine furnishes power for crushing the stone, its capacity being 1,500 tons a day. Thus far the company has furnished 14,000 tons of stone to improve the streets of Bound Brook. Gradually the operations at this point are taking away the western range of the Watchung mountains at one of its most historical points.

In presenting gifts each received something appropriate. In many cases there was no end of fun furnished by this part of the programme. The tree was brilliantly lighted and filled with gifts. The committee in charge clipped the presents from the tree and as the names of the members were called they advanced and in a neat speech received their gift. At the conclusion of these festivities a bountiful collation was served.

THE REPUBLICANS NAME BRADLEY FOR SPEAKER

Jersey Republican Assemblymen Held Caucus at Trenton Yesterday.

BACHELLER IS BEATEN.

OPINION SEEMS TO BE THAT FRANCIS CANNOT BE BEATEN.

George J. Coe, of This City Named for Journal Clerk—Judge Cross' Chances to be President of Senate.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, Dec. 18—There was little or no friction in the caucus held by the Republican wing of the State Assembly, yesterday. By the caucus it has been definitely decided that William J. Bradley, of Camden county, will be the speaker of the House. The only opposition to him came from Essex county, which presented "a favorite son," J. Harry Bacheller, who polled the vote of that county and that of two other members.

The consensus of opinion is that it is too late to make any formidable opposition to Senator Charles Asa Francis, of Monmouth county, whose ambition it is to be president of the Senate. Had Judge Cross announced himself earlier it is believed that the defeat of Senator Francis could have been accomplished, but the latter has now secured enough pledges, it is thought, to beat him. The organization of the Senate will not take place until a few weeks hence and in the meanwhile it is possible that the chances of Senator Francis may undergo some change.

The other offices in the lower house for which candidates were selected by the Assembly caucus are as follows:

Clerk—James Parker, of Passaic county.

Assistant clerk—George E. Poole, of Morris county.

Journal clerk—George J. Coe, of Union county.

Supervisor of bills—George R. Grover, of Essex county.

Sergeant-at-arms—Frank Tantum, of Monmouth county.

First assistant sergeant-at-arms—David O. Parker, of Ocean county.

Bill clerk—George P. Powell, of Essex county.

Assistant bill clerk—Dr. John B. Davis, of Camden county.

The steering committee appointed by the newly chosen leader of the House, John G. Horne, of Burlington county, was as follows: Edmund G. Stalter, of Passaic county; J. Harry Bacheller, of Essex; Joseph H. Tillotson, of Bergen; John E. Montgomery, of Middlesex; Charles Wright, of Burlington; Ephraim T. Gill, of Camden, and William J. Moore, of Cumberland.

George J. Coe, who has been selected as journal clerk is a Plainfielder. He resides on Third place, but has not taken an active interest in local politics. He filled the position last year and hence his qualifications give him an advantage over other aspirants. Before the caucus adjourned a resolution of sympathy was extended to Senator Sewell and his family.

CHRISTMAS FEAST.

How it is to be Celebrated at St. Joseph's Church This Year.

Rev. Father Miller, rector of St. Joseph's church, has arranged to celebrate three masses on the occasion of the Christmas Feast. High mass will be celebrated at 5:30 o'clock in the morning and at 8:30 o'clock low mass will be said. This latter mass will be especially for the children of the parish. At 10:30 o'clock there will be another high mass also. The children's festival will be held in the Sunday-school room, Sunday afternoon, Dec. 29.

It is the purpose of the officers of Trinity Reformed church to have the church painted early in the spring. A considerable sum has already been raised for the work and the balance will be secured before the edifice is painted.

LITERARY.

Thackeray's second visit to the United States (1855-56) will be the subject of James Grant Wilson's second paper on the novelist's relations with America, in the January Century. Like the previous budget of reminiscences, it will be profusely illustrated with rare portraits of Thackeray and sketches from his own humorous pen. From some of his letters to his friends on this side of the water, it would appear that the distinguished author was not averse to investments in American securities, some of which failed to prove immediately profitable. Gen. Wilson's list of Thackeray manuscripts in this country includes the Brookfield letters, in two volumes, for which J. Pierpont Morgan paid $16,200 at the Augustine Daly sale.

McCoy; "Aunt Margaret's Christmas Box; or Christmas on the Plains," by Morris Wade; "A Real Conqueror," a school story by Ben Hains.

The following departments occupy a page or more each: Boys as money makers and money savers; boys in games and sports; home industries for boys; the boy's library; boys in the home, church and school; helps for young orators; the Order of the American Boy; the boy stamp and coin collector; boys in the animal kingdom; for boys to think about; the boy photographer; the boy journalist and printer; the Agassiz association of young naturalists; the puzzle department, and what boys are doing.

THEATRICAL.

There is enough of entertainment of almost every character in Klaw & Erlanger's production of "The Sleeping Beauty and the Beast" at the Broadway Theatre, New York, to satisfy the most extravagant desires. Comedy, romantic drama and spectacle are most artistically blended in the wonderful conglomeration displayed in this novel attraction. From the rise to the fall of the curtain something new is shown every moment and laughter and exclamations of wonder follow in rapid succession. No amusement seen on Broadway in years has given such genuine satisfaction as this. Those who have labored under the impression that "The Sleeping Beauty and the Beast" is solely a fairy story and exposition of scenery have been most pleasantly disappointed. The comedy and comic incidents alone make it a most entertaining amusement without consideration of its romantic story and display of the most gorgeous scenery and costumes imaginable. Christmas Eve the eighty children employed in the production will be entertainod after the performance. The Palace of Crystal will be decoraied with holly and made a gigantic Christmas tree. Every child in the company will be given a stocking filled with candy and nuts and presents of various kinds. The decorated scene will be shown the audience in the last act.

AMERICANS IN DANGER.

They Have Left Nombre de Dios and Are at Colon.

COLON, Colombia, Dec. 18.—A boat has just arrived here from Playa Donna, distance less than one mile from Nombre de Dios, where the Colombian Conservative and Liberal forces fought an engagement last Friday. She brings a few sick government soldiers. The troops wounded in last week's engagement have been left at Nombre de Dios. All Americans connected with the manganese mine at that place have arrived at Colon. They recognize their lives would be endangered if they remained at Nombre de Dios. Re-enforcements are being sent to Playa Donna from Colon. The Colombian gunboat General Pinzon was seen yesterday morning off Playa Donna. Foreigners there are claiming protection from the American and British consulates here.

The French cruiser d'Estrees has arrived here. She relieves the French cruiser Suchet, which has sailed for Martinique.

A court of inquiry consisting of lawyers representing the Royal Mail Steamship company, the Panama Steamship company and the Panama Railroad company, of which Mr. Hudson, British consul at Panama, will be president, is to be held at Panama this week. The court will endeavor to attach the blame for the loss of £10,000 which was shipped to Lima, Peru, by the Bank of England in January, 1900. When the boxes supposed to contain the money were opened at Lima, they were found to be filled with iron and not specie. It is supposed that the money was stolen while in transit across the isthmus.

No Trains For Four Days.

ITHACA, N. Y., Dec. 18.—Railroad service from Ithaca to New York and Philadelphia has not been resumed, and regular trains will not be run before tonight or Thursday morning. Southbound passengers have been sent north to Geneva, where they were able to make connections with the Lehigh Valley main line. The Delaware, Lackawanna and Western has not finished repairs of several washouts on its branch between here and Owego, and no trains have left here over that line since Saturday night. In consequence all mails are greatly delayed. Last evening the Ithaca Street Railway company secured power for running its cars from its new plant just established at Renwick. Lighting facilities have now been fully restored to the city.

Italian Deputies In a Row.

ROME, Dec. 18.—Signor Ferri, Socialist, whose refusal to leave the chamber of deputies Monday after he had been ordered to do so, owing to his declining to withdraw certain remarks which were objected to, resulting in an adjournment of the house amid great disorder, furnished a further diversion in the chamber yesterday. Being excluded from the floor on account of his conduct Monday, Ferri watched the proceedings through a glass door at the back of the chamber. When the house refused to modify the president's order of censure and exclusion against Ferri, the latter smashed the glass and shouted epithets through the hole. This resulted in again breaking up the sitting amid great disorder.

CAPITAL AND LABOR

Great Conference In New York Has Closed.

A COMMITTEE OF THIRTY NAMED.

Speech of President Gompers Frequently Applauded by Capitalists. Every Strike Might Have Been Averted, Says Mitchell.

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—Mr. Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, and Mr. Frank P. Sargent, grand master of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, were among the speakers at the second day's session of the great capital and labor conference in the rooms of the board of trade and transportation, 203 Broadway. Both urged co-operation between employer and employee, and Mr. Gompers took occasion to make a brief reference to trusts.

The conference came to an end shortly after 1 o'clock in the afternoon, and an arbitration committee of thirty, suggested by Senator Hanna, to be composed of employees, employers and the neutral element, was appointed by Mr. Oscar S. Straus, chairman of the conference.

Horace M. Eaton, general secretary of the Boot and Shoe Workers' union of Boston, was making an address when Mr. Gompers entered the room. Mr. Gompers was warmly greeted by Archbishop Ireland and Senator Hanna and was called upon for a speech.

Mr. Hanna sat during the address with an unlighted cigar between his teeth. He listened attentively and frequently applauded.

Mr. Gompers said the individual workingman had been referred to in the discussion; but, he declared, the efforts of the individual against the few capitalists were as idle as the attempt of a vessel to ride out a tempestuous sea without a rudder.

"I do not believe," he said, "in having the rights of one capitalist toyed with, nor do I believe in having the rights of the weakest workingman trampled upon. Nor do I believe in this thing of trusts interfering in the political affairs of the country and especially in the judiciary."

Great applause greeted this last sentiment. Mr. Gompers said that by arbitration the workingman meant the calm and reasonable talking over of business about the table in office or union meeting room or in some neutral place. Such a movement, he said, made for the good of all.

"We want better relations with the employing class," said Mr. Gompers,

SAMUEL GOMPERS.

"and nothing can bring this about more quickly than well organized bodies of workers. Coming from the American Federation of Labor, the greatest federation of workers in the world, let me assure you that these workers have no fear for the future. They rely on the justice of their cause and on the grit and the manhood that make up the American character."

Mr. Gompers' speech was loudly applauded. He took a seat near Mr. Hanna and was congratulated by those around him.

John Mitchell, president of the United Mine Workers, was the next speaker.

"I have been in many strikes," he said, "and I have never seen a strike that could not have been averted if the employers and the men had come together and argued the point in dispute. I think the solution of the labor problem lies in the quiet talking over of difficulties between employer and employed. If that is done, then all strikes and lockouts are at an end."

A Gift For Express Employees.

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—The 10,000 employees of the American Express company in the United States were made happy this morning when President James C. A BREAK IN CABINET

Postmaster General Smith Tenders Resignation.

PAYNE OF WISCONSIN TO SUCCEED.

Change Regretted by the President, but Mr. Smith Feels That Personal Business Demands His Attention.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—Charles Emory Smith of Philadelphia has tendered to the president his formal resignation as postmaster general, to take effect early next month, and Henry C. Payne of Wisconsin, vice chairman of the Republican national committee, has accepted the tender of the office, to which he will be nominated immediately after the holiday recess. Mr. Smith has agreed to remain until Jan. 15 if necessary, but will return immediately thereafter to Philadelphia to resume the editorship of the Philadelphia Press.

This change in the cabinet was formally announced at yesterday's session of the cabinet. All of the members of the cabinet expressed their profound regret, and the president paid a very impressive tribute to the services and personality of the retiring member of his official family. He said that he had sought to persuade Mr. Smith to alter his determination and to remain in the cabinet, but without success.

CHARLES EMORY SMITH.

and he had finally accepted Mr. Smith's reasons as decisive.

Mr. Smith first announced to the president the latter part of last month that he had decided to return to his editorial duties. The president at that time urged him to remain. Mr. Smith, however, had been frequently reminded by his business associates of the editorial duties devolving upon him and was anxious to return to them. He had several talks with President Roosevelt on the subject and finally on Saturday afternoon last formally tendered to the president his letter of resignation. It is stated that no other changes in the cabinet are at present contemplated.

Mr. Smith has been postmaster general since April 21, 1898, succeeding James A. Gary of Maryland virtually at the outset of the Spanish war. Mr. Gary had been one of President McKinley's original cabinet appointees, but felt himself physically unable to bear the strain of cabinet duties during the war.

All of the assistant postmasters general were summoned by Mr. Smith late in the afternoon, and his announcement of the change was a distinct surprise to them. He gave assurance that his action meant no changes among his assistants.

Henry C. Payne, who succeeds Charles Emory Smith as postmaster general, has been a citizen of Milwaukee for many years and has been prominent in political circles of Wisconsin for over twenty-five years.

For several years past he has been Republican national committeeman from Wisconsin and during the last two national campaigns was vice chairman of the national Republican committee. Mr. Payne was postmaster of Milwaukee for ten years, serving under Presidents Grant, Hayes and Arthur. He was one of the receivers of the Northern Pacific railroad early in the nineties, when that property was in the courts. Later Mr. Payne became connected with various large railroad interests.

Will Not Give Up the Cave.

BOWLING GREEN, Ky., Dec. 18.—Suit has been filed in the Edmondon circuit court on behalf of W. Scott Miller of Louisville to secure possession of the Mammoth cave property, of which he was recently elected manager at a meeting of the trustees held at Washington. The suit is instituted against H. C. Gauter, who has been manager of the property for fourteen years and who refuses to vacate in favor of Miller. Judge Settle granted a temporary restraining order against Gauter.

A Sword For Admiral Wildes.

BOSTON, Dec. 18.—Rear Admiral Wildes, U. S. N., who commanded the cruiser Boston at the battle of Manila, was the recipient of a handsome sword from his many friends in the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce here. The hilt of the sword and all metal work excepting the blade is of 18 carat gold. The trappings are regulation, with buckles and fixtures of gold. The scabbard is of black leather intwined with laurel.

Battleships at Havana.

HAVANA, Dec. 18.—The United States battleships Alabama and Massachusetts have arrived here. The mayor of Havana and members of the municipal council met the vessels on a tug profusely decorated with Cuban and American flags and escorted them to their moorings. Extensive preparations are being made to entertain the officers of the American ships while they remain in this port.

DESTRUCTIVE EARTHQUAKE.

Great Loss to Property In New Zealand.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 18.—New Zealand news received by steamer gives details of great destruction of property in the Cheviot district by an earthquake. In the town of Cheviot and surrounding country the damage will reach $100,000. Scarcely a building was left standing. The fine homestead of Sir George Clifford was wrecked.

Great fissures opened in the earth, and water issued from them. In one office a heavy safe was thrown across the room, and brick chimneys fell like toy houses. The people were panic stricken. At Waiin river great cracks opened in the river bed, into which water poured. Then they closed, and volumes of water were sent hundreds of feet into the air.

News comes from Australia that Captain Voss and his little forty foot canoe arrived at Sydney Nov. 20, having made the voyage safely from British Columbia. He will go from Sydney to Ceylon on his voyage around the world.

Journey of the Liberty Bell.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 18.—The joint special committee of city council on the South Carolina Interstate and West Indian exposition has announced the official escort and the itinerary of the old Liberty bell, which will be placed on exhibition in the Philadelphia building at Charleston. The escort will be headed by Mayor Samuel H. Ashbridge and will include a number of city officials and representatives of the business interests of the city. The old Revolutionary relic will leave here on a special train on Monday, Jan. 6, at 8 a. m. and is due to arrive at Charleston Thursday, Jan. 9, at 10 a. m. The train will pass through Harrisburg, Pa.; Hagerstown, Md.; Charlestown, W. Va.; Roanoke, Va.; Bristol, Tenn.; Asheville, N. C.; Columbia, S. C., and Savannah, Ga.

Marconi's Plans.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Dec. 18.—The Marconi Wireless Telegraphy company of London and the Anglo-American Cable company, also of London, have opened negotiations for the settlement of the difficulty between them arising from Mr. Marconi's work here. In the meantime, as it is important that Marconi's operations be expedited, he will cease his experiments here and will leave next Sunday for Nova Scotia, where, in the event of the failure of the present negotiations, he will select another site for a wireless telegraph station. The inventor's work in Nova Scotia will occupy him about a week. He then leaves for London via Halifax. Marconi expects that the negotiations between the two companies will be satisfactorily terminated before he reaches England.

City Fathers Injured.

NEWARK, N. J., Dec. 18.—As twenty officials and friends of this city were returning from Verona the horses attached to the stage in which they were riding were unable to hold the vehicle as it came down a long hill, the snow clogging the horses' hoofs. The horses were soon galloping, and at the foot of the hill the stage upset. Alderman Horace Holcomb, Alderman Elmer Horton and Olaf Scharin were very severely hurt. Fears are entertained that Alderman Holcomb will not live. The other members of the party were more or less injured. They had been attending the dedication of an addition to the Newark Boys and Girls' home.

The Capture Important.

LONDON, Dec. 18.—The capture of Commandant Kritzinger, who has been styled "the De Wet of Cape Colony," is regarded as very important. He has been a troublesome and energetic invader of Cape Colony and is credited with more barbarities than any other commandant except Scheepers. In a recent proclamation he called himself the chief commandant of Cape Colony. During the last few days most persistent reports, emanating both from South Africa and from Boer headquarters in Europe, of an approaching crisis in South African affairs have been current.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Dec. 18.—The British bark Sindia, from Hiogo, Japan, July 8 for New York, which went ashore Sunday morning off Ocean City, broke in two amidships yesterday and will be a total loss. Her cargo, which consists of baled goods and Japanese novelties for the Christmas trade, is completely saturated. Much of the cargo is washing out to sea, and some of it is being cast up on the beach.

KEEP OFF THE EARTH

During the cold and wet weather as much as possible—that is, keep as much shoe leather between the soles of your feet and Mother Earth as you can conveniently carry. It's wisest in the beginning and cheaper in the end to provide yourself with shoes having good solid soles—cold-proof and water-proof, if possible.

We are selling exceptionally good shoes of just this sort for men and women; children, too.

Well built, with broad, heavy soles and with stout uppers.

They're a very paradise of rest for weary feet, and a paradise of economy for weary purses.

A PIONEER DEAD.

Thomas Kelly, Famous as a Stagecoach Man Long Ago.

LIBERTY, Mo., Dec. 18.—Thomas Kelly, one of the most widely known men in the west during frontier days, is dead at his home here, aged eighty-seven years. In 1837 he entered into partnership with General Thomas L. Price to run lines of stages from Jefferson City to Van Buren, Ark; from St. Louis to Independence and from St. Louis to Weston and St. Joseph, Mo. In 1843 the firm of Price & Kelly secured from the government a contract for a weekly mail delivery from Independence, Mo., to Salt Lake City, and a line of stages was run between the two points.

Price & Kelly also owned and operated the great Santa Fe stage line between Independence and Santa Fe, N. M.

The civil war ruined the stage business, and Mr. Kelly went to California and engaged in staging until the railroads came, when he returned to Missouri.

Redmond at Cork.

CORK, Dec. 18.—When Mr. Redmond arrived here, he was escorted to his hotel by an enthusiastic and demonstrative crowd, burning tar barrels and carrying torches and accompanied by bands of music. Mr. Redmond addressed the assembly. He said that before another six months the Irish league would be as powerful in the United States as was the American Land league in the time of Parnell, for he had succeeded in his mission to the United States, which had for its objects the arousing of the sympathy of the Americans and securing the cooperation of Irish Americans. Irishmen in the United States, said Mr. Redmond, had spontaneously initiated the movement, and he believed it would now produce as generous financial aid for Ireland as it had ever done before.

Gifts For Chicago University.

CHICAGO, Dec. 18.—The University of Chicago yesterday was made the recipient of $1,625,000 in gifts at the hands of friends of the institution. President William R. Harper announced the new endowments late in the afternoon, the occasion being the fortieth convocation of the university. John D. Rockefeller was first among the donors with $1,000,000 for the general endowment fund of the school. He also contributed $250,000 more for the general needs of the university during the school year of 1901-02. Additional gifts totaling $375,000 were also announced, but the purpose and donors of this last sum were not made public.

A Reception For Governor Hunt.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Dec. 18.—A committee of the most prominent citizens is planning an elaborate reception for Governor Hunt when he arrives here Friday from New York, which port he left Saturday last on board the steamer Caracas. The programme includes the governor being escorted from the wharf to the palace by citizens, three companies of soldiers, a battalion of police, the children of the public schools and three bands of music. There will also be a big public ball, fireworks and a banquet. Funds to defray the expenses are now being collected.

Two More Flood Victims.

TOWANDA, Pa., Dec. 18.—Two more deaths from the flood have been reported, making five lives thus far known to be lost in this (Bradford) county. A telephone message from Austinville, in the western part of the county, states that Mr. and Mrs. Abner Richards, well to do residents of that place, aged fifty years, were swept down the stream while endeavoring to save their poultry from the rushing waters. Their bodies were found a half mile from their house half buried in the sand and debris.

Polish Priests Excommunicated.

SCRANTON, Pa., Dec. 18.—At the convention of the priests of the Scranton diocese Bishop Hoban formally pronounced the ban of excommunication against all the independent Polish priests in his diocese. This is aimed particularly at Rev. Frank Hudor of South Scranton and Rev. John Meyrick of Wilkesbarre, who have been conducting independent churches for several years.

Dr. Koch's Theory Contradicted.

BERLIN, Dec. 18.—A new case of the transference of animal tuberculosis to man is attracting the attention of the Berlin medical profession. A butcher was operated upon for lupus of the hand at the Berlin university clinic Monday. Dr. Erich Lexer expressly emphasized this case as contrary to the theory of Dr. Robert Koch.

A PHILIPPINE TALK.

House Discusses the Islands and Their Revenues.

SCHLEY RESOLUTIONS INTRODUCED.

Wheeler of Kentucky Wants the Admiral's Case Investigated Again. Schirm of Maryland Proposes a Vote of Thanks.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—The bill to provide temporary revenues for the Philippine Islands was debated in the house yesterday and will be voted on today at 4 o'clock. It was the first debate of the session and was conducted calmly and without display of temper. Several lively exchanges and an impassioned speech by Mr. De Armond (Mo.), who has just returned from a trip to the Philippines, in opposition to the retention of the islands were the features.

Mr. Payne, the floor leader of the majority, opened the debate. Owing to the indisposition of Mr. Richardson the duty of opening for the minority devolved upon Mr. Swanson (Va.). The other speakers were Mr. Grosvenor (Rep., O.) and Mr. Robertson (Dem., La.), for the bill, and Messrs. Shafroth (Silver, Colo.), De Armond (Dem., Mo.), Thayer (Dem., Mass.) and Patterson (Dem., Tenn.), against it. Mr. Robertson said he would support the bill because free trade with the islands and reciprocity with Cuba, which was threatened, would destroy the sugar interest of his state. Today Mr. McCall, a Republican member of the ways and means committee, from Massachusetts, will oppose the bill, time having been granted him by the Democrats.

Representative Wheeler of Kentucky, a member of the house committee on naval affairs, introduced a resolution for an investigation of the Schley case. The resolution recites the results of the recent court of inquiry and adds:

"Whereas, Admiral George Dewey, recognized as the foremost naval officer of the republic, entirely disagrees and dissents from the opinion of his colleagues on said board of inquiry; and,

"Whereas, the American people desire that the conduct of Rear Admiral Schley should be investigated and passed upon by citizens of the republic in no wise connected or identified with the navy department; therefore be it

"Resolved, That the committee on naval affairs of the house of representatives be directed to inquire into the conduct of Rear Admiral Schley from the time he assumed control of the flying squadron up to and including the engagement with the Spanish fleet off the coast of Cuba."

Representative Griffith of Indiana introduced a resolution for an investigation of the navy department and of the Schley case. The preamble expresses confidence in Admiral Schley, recites the allegation of the Maclay history and refers to reports that Captain Crowninshield and other naval officers were furnished proofs of this history. The large amounts of prize money received by Admiral Sampson and Captain Chadwick and the small amounts received by Admiral Schley and the captains of the ships participating in the Santiago battle are set forth as among the subjects to be investigated.

Representative Schirm of Maryland introduced resolutions which it is said to a considerable extent represent the views of the Maryland delegation in congress. After reciting the opinion of Admiral Dewey in the recent court of inquiry the resolutions recite as follows:

"That the opinion and finding of Admiral George Dewey be and it is hereby indorsed as the only opinion and finding justified by the evidence adduced and pertinent facts established before the court of inquiry.

"That the thanks of congress are hereby extended to the said Rear Admiral Schley, retired, and to the officers and men under his command for their brave and efficient conduct in achieving the victory over the Spanish fleet under the command of Admiral Cervera."

Chairman Hepburn of the house commerce committee said that, now the Hay-Pauncefote treaty had been ratified by the senate, he would crowd the Nicaraguan canal bill to a vote in the house with as little delay as possible. The report on the house bill will be exceedingly brief. He was inclined to the opinion that the bill might be passed under suspension of the rules. He expressed the opinion that the differences in the house and senate bills could be adjusted, as there was no conflict in essentials.

Mail Clerk Killed.

MARSHALLTOWN, Ia., Dec. 18.—In a collision between a passenger train and a freight at Potter, a station on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul road, Mail Clerk J. E. Carpenter was killed and Engineer Ben Giles severely injured. Seven passengers were slightly hurt. The accident is attributed to the failure of the air brakes on the freight train.

Statues For Trinity Church.

LONDON, Dec. 18.—Four statues of the holy evangelists, made out of Dumfries sandstone, ten feet in height and aggregating eight tons in weight, have just been shipped to New York. They are a gift from Mr. and Mrs. William Fitzhugh Whitehouse to Trinity church and will be placed in vacant niches outside the church tower.

No More American Pork.

BREMEN, Dec. 18.—The Weser Zeitung says the discontinuance of microscopical meat inspections in the United States, as has been reported, simply means that Germany's imports of American pork will cease January 1, 1902.

A POSSIBLE CHANCE.

Never in the history of the New Jersey Central Railroad has there been such general dissatisfaction with the service of that company. There is a failure to agree as to the exact cause of the trouble but the opinion that it exists seems unanimous. During the course of the last few months, the complaints have been loud and numerous. Now the Board of Trade has taken up the subject and has called the attention of the officials of the railroad to the subject and asked for redress.

It will be remembered that the Board of Trade held a conference with the railroad officials regarding the new station and that the results of it were generally satisfactory. At the time the members of the board were favorably impressed by Vice-President Warren. The new station was built and while it resulted in changes that are not entirely satisfactory to the people of Plainfield, it is an improvement over the old state of affairs.

The result of the present attempt of the Board of Trade to secure concessions from the railroad company will be watched with decided interest. Other attempts have been made along the line, in some case by the municipal authorities, themselves, to gain improved transportation facilities but without avail. The outlook for success for the Board of Trade is not, therefore, very bright. There is a chance of success and the attempt will do no harm even if nothing comes from it. There is assuredly a condition of affairs there which ought to be remedied and the citizens should not fail to take advantage of any possible means to bring about the desired result.

The project of a trolley line to South Plainfield appears to be dead for the time being. Another year ought not to be allowed to lapse before the line is in running order. A stage service between this city and the Lehigh Valley Railroad can never furnish satisfactory transportation. Now that the Jersey Central appears to be giving such service, it is time to make the best possible use of the Lehigh Valley. It is greatly to be regretted that neither the Lehigh Valley nor the Pennsylvania Railroad passes through this city. With competition, it would be far easier to secure improvements in local service.

Among the vast army of rumors afloat concerning the proposed tunnels under the Hudson river, there is one which declares that an alliance between the Pennsylvania and Philadelphia and Reading Railroads is quite likely. This will be good news for Plainfield if it only happen to be true. When the day comes that the trip to New York can be made without the journey over the ferry, Plainfield will gain many hundred new residents.

An attempt is being made by the Seventh-Day Baptist church of this city to secure Rev. George B. Shaw, now in charge of the New York church of that denomination, as pastor here. Rev. Mr. Shaw has said that it would be impossible for him to come, but much pressure will be brought to bear and it is hoped that this vigorous young clergyman can be prevailed upon to change his decision.

A very excellent institution is the Children's Home and any countributions, either in cash or articles of clothing and provisions, will be put to a very good use. The Christmas season is coming on and the managers of the Home are particularly desirous of supplying the children with a little out of the ordinary in honor of the day. It is a good chance to assist a worthy charity.

The columns of The Daily Press, these days, contain many notices concerning the various celebrations of Christmas in churches, Sunday-schools and fraternal organizations. It seems as if there were even more than usual this year.

Company K is booked to have new overcoats in honor of the company's participation in the anniversary of the battle of Trenton. The local soldier boys will be glad that Trenton was captured.

Why is it that West Front street, between Somerset street and Park avenue, is invariably filled with waste papers when the wind blows out of the north and northwest?

It is a good sign when various industries are anxious to locate in Plainfield. It shows that the attempt to point out Plainfield's advantages has not been in vain.

WHAT OTHERS SAY.

Clippings From Other Newspapers Which May be of Interest to Plainfield and Its Citizens.

Different New Jersey cities have different ideas about street pavements, but, unlike New Brunswick, most of them stick to one kind. Elizabeth and Newark incline to asphalt, while Trenton, heretofore, has been partial to telford. Recently, in the last-named place, however, vitrified brick has come into favor and found to be an improvement over the telford, as well as the old Belgian blocks, which were for a long time considered the proper thing in street building. A perfect pavement has yet to be dicovered. Vitrified brick comes fairly close to it from an economical standpoint. The bricks are liable to chip, but the cost of repairing is not great, not nearly so much as repairs to asphalt or telford cost. There is no doubt, however, that asphalt is the most desirable pavement, being far superior to any yet laid, and, if properly laid, does not frequently need repairing. But there is always plenty of opportunity for jobbery in laying asphalt and generally the defects don't begin to show until it is too late to hold anybody responsible. —New Brunswick Home News.

TEA TABLE TALK.

Short Sketches That Are Not Always News, But Just as Interesting.

Among the finest collection of photographs to be found in the city is the possessed by Aaron M. Higgins, of Liberty street. The pictures were all taken by Mr. Higgins and are the equal of an expert. They represent scenes from various places in this country and all rare of great interest.

PLOT OF THE PLAY.

Story of "The Money Spinner" Which is to be Given at the Casino.

"The Money Spinner," which is the principal play to be presented by students of the Empire School of Acting at the Casino tomorrow night, is an original play by Pinero, the well-known English dramatist. The inharmonious mixture of social froth, dregs and good brew in "The Money Spinner," is similar to that in "Caste."

A Scotch lord is the suitor of one daughter of a besotted French gambler, and a second is the wife of a "middle-class" commercialist, and the association is made to show that "kind arts are more than coronets," or, at least, that good qualities may or may not run in the blood.

An otherwise worthy man has misappropriated and lost employer's money and will be exposed tomorrow if he does not make restitution. His fond wife is the offspring of a blackleg, and knows how to play tricks with cards. Her former sweetheart, a wealthy man, is by chance a visitor at this juncture. The temptation comes to the distracted woman to win from him unfairly the money with which to save her husband. She makes the attempt and is detected. Thereupon her opponent in the fraudulent game becomes her saver by voluntarily paying the debt of dishonor.

Owing to the length of the bill, the performance will begin at 8 o'clock precisely. Reserved seats secured at Rowley's and Armstrong's pharmacies.

An Envangelist's Story.

"I suffered for years with a bronchial or lung trouble and tried various remedies but did not obtain permanent relief until I commenced using One Minute Cough Cure," writes Rev. James Kirkman, evangelist, of Belle River, Ill. "I have no hesitation in recommending it to all sufferers from maladies of this kind." One Minute Cough Cure afford immediate relief for coughs, colds and all kind of throat and lung troubles. For croup it is unequalled. Absolutely safe. Very pleasant to take, never fails and is really a favorite with the children. They like it. L. W. Randolph.

John Blimm, formerly of Plainfield, but now of New York, has been in this city for a few days, being called here by the death of a relative.

LEDERER'S.

THE POPE'S INCOME.

It Is Obtained from Peter's Pence and Audience Fees.

Total Amounts to About One Million Dollars a Year, Leaving a Deficit of Half a Million Altogether Unaccounted For.

The financial position of the papacy after the loss, in 1870, of the temporal dominions of the church, is a question with which many outsiders have grappled, but which no one can answer with any degree of accuracy. There are no estimates discussed and no financial statements made in the vatican; the pope is his own chancellor of the exchequer; he furnishes the necessary funds for the administration of the Holy See, and money matters are settled by him with his accountants under a triple seal of secrecy.

Still, says the Cincinnati Commercial Tribune, during the last 20 years of papal seclusion in the apostolic palace many data have leaked out on which an approximate estimate can be formed, if not of the income, certainly of the expenditure of the Holy See.

When Rome became the capital of Italy the new government did not interfere with the benefices of the secular clergy and though friaries and nunneries have been suppressed, their inmates have been provided for from a special government fund. Since then other congregations have cropped up under foreign auspices to such an extent that the religious orders in Rome, including the wealthy Jesuits, are said to own property to the amount of £12,000,000 sterling. Consequently the lower clergy, far from proving a drain on the papal treasury, help materially to its replenishment.

The cardinals are mostly archbishops, and draw their revenue from their sees. Only some 25 eminences are Curia cardinals, who reside in the Eternal City, and act as ministers to the pontiff in the government of the universal church. Each of them draws a yearly salary of £1,000.

CARDINAL PAROCCHI.
(Vice Chancellor of the Holy Propagarda at Rome.)

The pope, whose temporal sovereignty is now restricted to the Vatican and Lateran palace, which are recognized as extra-territorial by the Italian government, has not given up his claims on his lost provinces of central Italy. He has nuncios and apostolic legates in most of the Christian states whose duties are not limited, in Catholic countries, to mere ecclesiastical affairs; he keeps a skeleton army of two or three hundred men for parade purposes on the occasion of grand receptions; and has a numerous retinue of prelates and chamberlains and a staff of employes.

The chamberlains and military officers are rich laymen with nominal salaries, but the Curia cardinals, the diplomats, the majority of the court prelates, and all the subordinate employes cost money, and it is asserted by people in a position to know, that the papal court and diplomacy cost his holiness not less than £300,000 a year.

It is relatively easy to total the expenditure, but the income is a problem bristling with difficulties.

When Pius IX. refused with indignation the annual subsidy of £140,000 offered him in 1870 by the Italian invaders he was known to possess invested in foreign stocks, about £1,000,000 sterling. This investment has been since then gradually increased by another £500,000, and it yields at present a revenue of not less than £50,000.

The institution of the Obolo—Peter's pence—a revival of an old tax over Christendom, collected in all the bishoprics of the Catholic world—gave, in the first years, an ample revenue, which, however, has now insensibly dwindled to about £60,000 per annum. Efforts, strenuous efforts, have been made to stir up the generosity of the faithful, and jubilees, beatifications of saints, pilgrimages and other religious gatherings follow each other in rapid succession. The great papal jubilee is ascertained to have brought to the papal coffers in round numbers £160,000, but in ordinary years those papal celebrations only add some £40,000 to the income of the holy father.

Other sources of revenue are special audiences granted by his holiness. Every devout Catholic admitted to see the pope and receive his blesing is expected to leave a sum of money with the prelate on duty in the ante-chamber, and these special audiences are frequent, often weekly, sometimes daily, and cannot bring less than another £50,000 a year. A well-known English duke, for instance, is reported to leave a thousand sovereigns whenever he visits the pope.

So far an income of £200,000 is approximately accounted for, but how and where the balance is scraped together to meet the admitted yearly outlay of £300,000 is beyond the ken of ordinary mortals.

Proceedings of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union County.

[OFFICIAL]

Adjourned meeting of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the county of Union, N. J., held on Thursday, Nov. 21, 1901, at 2:30 p. m.

Roll call showed 16 members present.

Absent, Freeholder King—1.

The minutes of the previous meeting, reading of bills being omitted, were on motion approved as read.

COMMUNICATIONS, PETITIONS, ETC.

From Sheriff Robert G. Houston, as follows, viz:

Sheriff's Office,
Elizabeth, N. J., Nov. 19, 1901.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

Gentlemen: Your attention is directed to a decision recently rendered by the Supreme Court of this State in the case of George Virtue, Sheriff, etc., prosecutors, vs. the Board of Freeholders of the county of Essex, defendant. In the opinion of the court, filed in that case, reference is made to several acts under which the Board of Freeholders have claimed the right to the custody of the county jail, including the act under which your honorable board now claims the right to the care of the jail of this county and the prisoners therein.

After reviewing the same and the legality thereof, the court says:

"We conclude, therefore, that the various statutes which have been referred to so far as they deprive the sheriffs of the custody of the county jail of their respective counties, and of the prisoners confined therein, and placed it in the hands of Boards of Freeholders, are incoperative and void."

Your attention is especially directed to this opinion, which was filed in the office of the clerk of said court Nov. 15, 1901.

It is apparent upon the reading of this opinion that I, as sheriff of the county of Union, am not only entitled to the care of the county jail and the custody of the prisoners therein, but to receive the emoluments, fees and rewards appertaining thereto, and also that it is my duty as a public officer to take charge of the jail and the prisoners, and to enforce such duties with respect thereto as are imposed on me by law

I therefore respectfully request and demand that your honorable board deliver up to me the care and custody of said jail and the prisoners confined therein in order that I may properly proceed to discharge the duties of my office.

And you are hereby respectfully notified that so long as you deprive me of the possession of said jail, and hinder me in the discharge of my duties as Sheriff, I shall hold you liable for all fees, profits and awards that would accrue to me were I in the actual possession thereof, as by law I am entitled to be.

Yours respectfully,
Robert G. Houston,
Sheriff Union County, N. J.

On motion of Freeholder Farrell received and referred to the county attorney.

NEW BUSINESS

Freeholder Woodruff inquired if the county attorney could give any information relative to the completion of the trolley road on Westfield avenue.

County Attorney Coddington replied that he had conferred with the trolley company, and work on said avenue would be pushed as soon as the company could procure the rails, which might be in two or three months' time.

Col. Hine, of the trolley company, being present, addressed the board, and said in part that his company did not intend to default on the construction of the trolley road on Westfield avenue. The company was under heavy bonds to complete the same. Such materials as the company had been able to secure had been distributed along the line of the road.

It was impossible, however, for the company to secure the rails at this time, and it might be six weeks before the rails were on hand. Upon the arrival of the rails the work would be begun at once, and the road completed in two weeks.

By Freeholder Farrell:

Resolved, That the appropriation for the hospitals be appropriated, and the county collector directed to pay the same as follows:

Elizabeth General Hospital, $4,000; Muhlenburg Hospital, $2,400; Alexian Brothers Hospital, $1,600. Total, $8,000.

Freeholder Robison moved the adoption of the resolution, and on roll call it was unanimously adopted

The following bills, properly audited and approved, were read, and on roll call unanimously ordered paid, viz:

SEVERAL KLONDIKE WOMEN

And How They Made Money In the Frozen North.

NOT quite four years ago two young woman who had been domestic servants journeyed up the Yukon to Dawson. They were thoroughly nice, good girls, with better manners and bringing up than hundreds of Klondike women who made more pretensions. They expected either to cook or keep house for somebody, they did not know whom. In the Klondike there is every temptation for a good woman to fall into evil ways if there be the least possibility of her doing so, but these girls were resolute in their determination to get money honestly or not at all.

For a considerable time they did not get it. They shivered in their canvas tent and ate the provisions they had brought with them. As these diminished the respect of all who knew the girls increased. At length, after the usual stampede, a new mining camp was opened on a creek some fifty miles from Dawson. That was the chance for the girls. They had their goods conveyed to the new diggings by pack horse and dog team, while they themselves footed it thither through bogs and creeks and along dangerous mountain paths. They opened a laundry. It was well patronized from the first. In a few months one of them married a man worth $75,000. The other continued with the laundry alone.

Woman a tender flower, is she? What think you the young Klondike laundress does when her supply of soap and starch gives out in the mining camp fifty miles from Dawson? She herself proceeds alone with one of those half wild Eskimo dog teams over the rugged trail to Dawson, purchases her supplies and returns in the same manner, trusting and sure and safe, to her cabin in the mining camp. No danger befalls her. You may put it down as a universal truth: There is no place where a good woman is so safe as in a mining camp, where the most desperate characters among men are supposed to gather and do gather. In the dead of winter, the thermometer far below zero, Ellen and her dog team may be seen gliding swiftly over the ice trail, she running alongside and urging with her whip, the dogs trotting with the heavy sled behind them. Is it not a fine picture of independent womanhood?

There are other women who have made more money less worthily. Two, no longer either young or handsome, whose career on the variety stage in the States was about over, went to Dawson soon after the first saloon vaudeville theater was opened. In two years they "went out" with $20,000 apiece. Then there is Mrs. Blank, "coining money hand over fist," it said of her. Formerly she was proprietor of a restaurant—no matter where. It was a respectable, well conducted place, not greatly remunerative, however. But there she learned her business. With a little capital she made her way to Dawson, looked about her and presently opened a roadhouse on the trail between Dawson and one of the great mining camps. At her house miners and travelers stop for rest, food and drink. The proprietress herself stands behind the bar and deals out the drinks to her customers. She plies men with alcohol till they scarcely know their heads from a football, then when they hand out their bag of gold dust to pay her she takes two or three or four times as much as the liquor is worth even at Dawson prices, and the men are too drunk to discover the steal.

One refined and estimable lady who was a pioneer woman in Dawson found no suitable opening in the Klondike, so with the first rush to Cape Nome she went there with the mining people and started a laundry. Now she is succeeding very well.

There, too, is Dr. X., a woman physician of high character and rare professional attainments. Arriving in Dawson she was confronted with the discouraging fact that the Canadian restrictions on foreign physicians were such as would prevent her going into practice there. Nothing daunted, she accepted a place as trained nurse in a hospital at a fine salary, with some time left for outside work. She is one of the most successful of woman Klondike pioneers. Long ere she is tired of work or incapacitated for it she will be a rich woman. ALEXANDRA COSMO.

The Trouble on the Torolito.

BY FRANCIS LYNDE.

(Copyright 1898, by Francis Lynde.)

"Get over on the aggressive side—". The man on the other side of the fire stirred uneasily and groaned, and Macpherson waited until I made sure that Wykamp was still beyond eavesdropping. "Get over on the aggressive side, and begin the development of my placer. As a stockman they can do me up cold, every time; but when I turn miner I shall have the entire legal machinery of the greatest mining state in the union behind me. The boys will be up here with their picks and shovels to-morrow morning, and we shall build a flume and make a peremptory demand for water. We'll get it. Not even the Glenlivat syndicate is big enough to buck against a miner's right. And when we've used the water in our riffle-boxes, it can go down to the settlers for their burnt-up fields."

"I see," I said. "Why didn't you do it long ago?"

"The time wasn't ripe. Between us, I don't hope to make anything out of the placer. We've all planned at it now and then, and nobody has found more than a few 'colors' to the pan. But it comes in pat now, just at the right time. Public sentiment is strong on the side of the settlers, and against the land company; and I happen to know that President Baldwin is beginning to be a bit uncertain about this location for the dam. Did you see the pit before the coffer-dam went out and filled it up?"

"Yes."

"It was fully 20 feet deep and they were still in this loose shale. If they go on and put in their masonry, it's pennies to dollars that the first cloud-burst takes it out." Baldwin knows the risk, and so do the stockholders. The stock has gone down ten points in as many days. That was why they got together and made a pool to try to buy me out."

"Decent figure?"

"Fairly decent. They strained a point—all the points, I imagine, in the present uncertain condition of affairs; but I wouldn't sell for twice fifty thousand."

"I don't blame you; it's more than a money fight."

Macpherson's soft brown eyes flashed responsively. "Much more. We charge Selter wth making it a personal matter, but I'm afraid it's come to be that with me. The day when I can run that fellow out of this valley at the tail of a broken enterprise will be a happy one for me. It's the least I can do—and the most. And I'll do it, if I live."

Wykamp flung his arms abroad like a man in a bad dream. I laughed aloud. The grim humor of the thing was irresistible. Here for an hour we had been straining every nerve to save the life of a man whose death was every way desirable—but I checked myself at once. Macpherson was glowering at the prostrate figure beyond the fire in a way that made me shiver. I made haste to rank the fires of wrath.

"It is unfortunate that Selter has put himself on the wrong side of the criminal fence," I remarked.

Macpherson responded quickly, as if glad of the diversion.

"It is; devilish unfortunate. The thing hangs by a thread. If that fellow suspects that it was giant powder and not the flood, we'll all hear from it."

"Will he suspect?"

Macpherson shook his head. "He'll reason it out, if he hasn't been too badly shaken up. And we'll be lucky if we're not dragged in as witnesses." He went silent for a minute, and when he continued his thought was for me. "Say, Jack; suppose you take the back track to the farm-house. There is no need of your being mixed up in this! and if you're not here when his men come, no one will be the wiser. Follow the bed of th ditch and you won't meet them.'

The advice was sound, but I hesitated.

"But that will leave you to bear the brunt of it alone, Angus."

He waved me off. "Go on, and go now, or it will be too late. I'm in for it, anyway, because he saw me. Get a move."

I went at that, scrambling across to the line of the ditch and wallowing downward through the dry sand of its bed. Half-way to the gap in the hog-back I could look down upon the party of rescuers on its way up the trail, and was half minded to turn back when I saw it was headed by the Mexican. But I went on when I reflected that Macpherson would account for himself quite as well without as with me. None the less, it was a relief, a few minutes later, to be overtaken by my friend at the point where the ditch crossed the road to enter the Selter field.

"They are bringing him down?" I queried.

"Yes. He came to and sat up just after you left. He isn't hurt very much."

He would have dismounted to make me ride, but the distance was nothing.

"Will you go back to the Six-Mile to-night?" I asked, when we reached the gate. "Selter will put you up."

"No; I'll go on back. If I didn't show up before morning, the boys would raid Wykamp's outfit. Good-night. You go in and take about three fingers and go to bed. You'll be in luck if this doesn't down you again."

CHAPTER XII.

FOR BETTER OR WORSE.

Macpherson's foreboding that the strain and exposure of the trying night would be too much for me was as true as many another reluctant prophecy. The following morning, and for many mornings thereafter, I was unable to leave my room or my bed beneath the low-pitched rafters; and Mrs. Selter and Winifred came and went and ministered to me. Macpherson came, also, like the loyal friend that he was, sitting with me night after night, after the day's hard work on the placer bar; and when I was once more able to take a passing interest in the things that are, he told me what had befallen.

It came out by littles while Angus watched with me in the intervals when sleep would not come for all my wooings. Wykamp had not been seriously injured in his narrow escape; had ridden to his work the following day, in fact, with his head bandaged and a fierce frenzy of determination driving him. The force on the dam had been doubled; a night shift had been put on, and, as Angus talked, I could hear the hum of the dynamo in the electric plant set up to furnish the light for the night gang. As a result of all this increased activity, the dam was nearing completion, and the stock of the land company was no longer a drug in the market.

As for Macpherson, he had turned miner as he had promised to. His demand for water had been promptly acceded to, and so far from proving an obstructionist, the engineer had allowed his own workmen to build that portion of the miner's flume which delivered the water at the placer-workings. More than that, he had re-established the settlers' ditch, and had thereby quieted the opposition of every farmer in the colony save one. That one was Selter. In reopening the ditch which served the homsteaders at Valley Head, Wykamp had built a new flume and surveyed a new line, being constrained thereto, he explained, by the location of the newly begun workings on the placer bar. And, since Selter's holding lay nearest the canyon, it had been possible to run the new ditch so that it served every acre in the colony save those within the Tennessean's fences.

It was Winifred who told me about this, and naturally her sympathies were with the farmer. "It seems such a needless piece of injustice," she said, in conclusion.

In all our talks I had been careful to ignore the very existence of such a person as Wykamp; but at this time I ventured to suggest that the injustice to Selter might be a bit of personal animosity.

She did not reply at once. There was that in her face which betrayed the struggle between womanly reticence and an overmastering desire to share her burdens with a sympathizing listener. In the end the burden outweighed the conventions.

"I have suspected that, too," she said. "That is the reason why I have refused to teach an autumn term. I must go away, Mr. Halcott."

I took this as a beginning of a confidence, and made it easy for her by pretending not to understand.

"It is because I am here that Mr. Selter is made to suffer," she explained. "He was on good terms wth the company until—until—"

"Spare yourself, Miss Winnie; I know what you would say. But you are quite mistaken. The quarrel between Selter and the man who shall be nameless between us does not hinge upon your presence here."

She looked troubled. "May I ask you to tell me what it does hinge upon?"

I hardly knew how to answer her. It would be shameful to tell her what was apparent to everyone else in the settlement; that Nan's open liaison with the engineer, grown more flagrant since my ineffectual attempt to break it off, Macpherson told me, was at the bottom of Selter's feud wth Wykamp. And yet it was no time to fence with dissimulation.

"Haven't you seen?" I asked. "Jacob Selter is a plain man, and not over-scrupulous, as we all know. But he is a father."

Her eyes went wide in deeper trouble and the shock of it filled them with quick tears.

"I have been very blind," she said. "It must be prevented. I will go to Nan and tell her what she ought to know."

WILD ILLINOIS REGION.

Remarkable Tract of Land in Tazewell County That Resembles an African Jungle.

An African jungle transplanted to central Illinois would be the best description that could be given to a remarkable tract of land in Tazewell county, lying along the Hackinaw river, near the village of Lilly. This tract, in local parlance, is known as "the Lost Forty." It is without doubt the wildest piece of land in all Illinois and consists of a continuous series of abrupt and deep ravines, says the Illinois State Journal.

Not a foot of the tract could be cultivated. The ridges are full of fox dens, wolves are occasionally found and turkey buzzards hover over it in large flocks. Even people familiar with the territory have been lost in the dense forest. Except for a few giant oaks, the wood has no commercial value.

The tract is known as "the Lost Forty" because no one knows who owns it. For years it has been used for trading purposes, and many unwary persons from a distance have advanced money upon it and taken mortgages in various sums, only to receive a questionable title to a worthless piece of land. On the Tazewell county tax books the 40 appears with "Owner unknown." The land is watered by innumerable springs and the Mackinaw river, which winds its way through it.

Age of Responsibility.

In England the law looks upon every one over the age of seven as a responsible being; and every child beyond that age can be prosecuted as a criminal. The same age is accepted in Russia and Portugal. In France and Belgium the age is eight, in Italy and Spain it is nine; Norway, Greece, Austria, Denmark and Holland decline to prosecute a child under ten; and this is the rule also in some of the Swiss cantons. In Germany the limit of responsibility is fixed at 12.—N. Y. Sun.

Porcelain Tower for Paris.

Paris is to have a porcelain tower which will rival in size and beauty any similar structure in China. It is to be over 130 feet high, covered with porcelain decorations made for the purpose at the government factory of Serves, and will be erected in the Park of St. Cloud, on the site of the old tower known as "Diogenes' Lantern."—N. THE DOLL HOSPITAL.

Once It Was a Curiosity, Now Most Cities Have One.

For a Few Cents Quaint Old "Doctors" Will Rejuvenate and Patch Up Dollies That Have Seen Better Days.

[Special New York Letter.]

THE case was a very serious one. The old man looked over his spectacles and said:

"Dear me; this is dreadful. How did it happen?"

The mother—I call her a mother by courtesy, but she was only seven years old—handed up the fragment which was once a doll. There were tears in her eyes as she placed the wreck on the counter. Her voice trembled as she faltered:

"Do you think you can fix Maudie up, mister?"

A smile lighted up the face of the old man.

"Dear me, yes," said he. "I've fixed up a good many worse dollies than that. You come here next Wednesday and you'll have the prettiest doll you ever saw. She will be better than new."

The little girl's face beamed like a morning glory in the early sunlight.

"I'll be here," she said. "You take good care of Maudie."

There are a million others in New York just like this little girl. Some, it is true, are dressed in laces and silk flounces. The mother of "Maudie" had on a cheap little dress. Her shoes were open on the side. She lived in one of the streets down town, in the top story of one of the big tenement houses. Some of the other little mothers sing lullabys to dainty wax dolls who, if they spoke in their native tongues, would jabber in French "just like anything." "Maudie" was not of this kind. When at her best she was a cheap, homely doll, with a common cloth body and a painted china head. Now her body was ripped and soiled and her head was broken. But her mother loved her just as much—yes, more than the French doll was loved. But whether the little girls live in the fine mansions on Fifth avenue or in the dingy tenements on the side streets, they all must have dolls.

And it was this love of the dolls that has opened the way for an industry that has spread over the city. "Doll hospitals" have become quite numerous in Manhattan and Brooklyn. A few years ago when a doll was broken it was either carried around by its little owner a helpless cripple or else was consigned to the ash barrel. But now it is quite a different matter. You go to the "doll hospital" and a skilled "doctor" can make your doll almost as good as new at a cost of a few pennies.

I have seen at least six of these "hospitals" in different parts of New York. Of course they are not "hospitals." They are really repair shops for dolls, but the name catches the fancy of the little people, who imagine their "dollies" are endowed with the breath of life. The ingenuity which the "doctors" display in repairing dolls is remarkable. Out of an apparently hopeless case they can remodel a doll that would be a pride to the most particular little maiden in the city. Most of the men who engage to make whole the unfortunate dolls have been formerly employed in the big factories. The majority of them came from Germany, that mighty workshop of toys and promulgator of the legends of good old Chris Cringle.

In this busy work-a-day world of ours few stop to think of the importance that the doll plays in our moral and mental philosophy. The kindergarten folk have thought of it. They have advocated a generous distribution of dolls among all the little girls in the country—yes, in every country; among the rich and the poor. There is something in a little girl from the time she learns to walk that makes motherhood dear to her. She turns naturally to a doll. If she cannot get the genuine article she will roll up an old rag, a bit of carpet or dress a stick and play with it. It is this feeling that the kindergarten seeks to encourage. It is the first lesson in home life—the first lesson in civilization.

Dolls have been known in all times, even among barbarous nations. The African child in the tropics hugs its doll of wood, and the tiny Eskimo girl in the frozen north presses to her breast her "baby" carved from bone. No one has been able to find out just who had the first doll baby. Some believe that the word meant idol in French. In German a doll was called puppe, from the Latin word pupa—a girl. In the earlier years of civilization dolls were imported into Great Britain from the Netherlands and were known as Flanders babies. Old Flemish dolls were made of wood and quaintly carved and flashily dressed in bright colors. A great many still come from the countries bordering along the Rhine and from France and Switzerland, but within the last few years England has been the largest manufacturer of dolls in the world. Immense factories have been put up, and expensive machinery has enabled the manufacturers to turn out a supply much cheaper than can be made by hand. An illustration of the large business done there in that line was shown some time ago when it was brought out in a lawsuit that one manufacturer expended $2,500 annually for glass eyes for the dolls he made. In the time of Queen Victoria the dolls sold in England had mostly blue eyes, while those intended for Spain had black eyes. For America both black and blue eyes are in favor, although the blue have the preference.

However, cheap as dolls have become, there are still some of the children of the poorer classes who are unable to obtain them, or who, when they break them, cannot replace them. It is to those little ones that the "doll hospitals" especially appeal. Besides mending the dolls the "doctors" fill another long-felt want. They supply dolls for second-hand stores. On the East side there are many stores where toys are sold at a much lower price than even the big department stores can sell them for. They consist principally of second-hand dolls that are supplied by the "doctors" in the little shops. It often happens that a child fails to return for her doll. After it is kept for her a reasonable time it finds its way to one of the East side toy shops. Then many broken dolls are tossed into the garbage boxes and eventually are taken to the shop of the "doctor" and sold for a penny or two.

Just now the "doll hospitals" are doing a rushing business. Although still considerably in advance of the holidays, many are preparing for Christmas. The workmen are kept busy gluing on heads, patching up eyes and mending arms and legs. They are getting ready for the army of little girls that will press their noses against the windows of the shops in a few weeks and point out their favorites in the line of dazzling beauties spread before their gaze. One would be surprised to see how attractive these old dolls can be made. A little paint, a bit of pretty cloth fashioned into a dress, and a dainty doll is the result. Many a mother whose income is scant, and who is obliged to count the worth of a dime to its full extent, has taken advantage of the "doll hospital" to bring joy to her little one on Christmas morning. She has gone to the bottom of the old trunk and dragged forth the remains of last year's doll. The "doll doctor" has done the rest, and his fee has been in the reach of the grateful mother.

So when we see the odd signs as we whirl by on the elevated trains or hurry along the side streets, let us think for a moment of the lessons they teach us. Let us think of the joy that these lowly "doctors" of decrepit dolls have brought to the thousands and thousands of little mothers with wan faces and tattered clothes who hug their "babies" closely to their breasts and sing the songs of babyland.

I know a mother who has cherished in her bureau drawer the remnant of a French doll. It is marred and defaced. Its dress is torn. Yet the money is not coined that would buy that doll. The little one who loved it so dearly has long since passed away. But the doll is cherished as a sweet memory of the past.

SPORTING NEWS

STRIKES AND SPARES.

Tomorrow evening's series of games etween the Park Club and Roselle Casino on the latter's alleys will be the concluding set of games in The Daily Press Bowling League this year. The activity in the league will be resumed January 2 when Roselle will visit Cranford.

Just at present, there is a tie for first place in The Daily Press Bowling League. The Park Club and the Roselle Casino have each won two games and lost one. Tomorrow evening's match will therefore decide which of the two clubs is going to stay in the lead at the start. Roselle has the advantage because the games are to be rolled on the alleys in that place butt here is a fighting chance for the Park Club and the local bowlers would make a strong attempt to get the best of the series if possible.

The first of the famous series of games between the bachelors and the benedicts of the Park Club will be rolled on the alleys of that club Saturday evening. Unusual interest has been shown in that sport this winter by both old and young and so the match is expected to rouse the Park Clubites above the usual pitch of enthusiasm. The two teams will be composed of ten men each and then the sides of the alleys will undoubtedly be lined with the friends and families of the members of both teams.

The next series of games in The Daily Press Bowling League will be rolled tomorrow evening on the alleys of the Roselle Casino. On that occasion, the Park Club will send its team to try conclusions with last year's champions. The Roselle boys are rolling in fair form this year but number several new aspirants for honors on the team. The composition of the local team is not yet announced but Captain W. R. Faber will probably have F. O. Ball and Sydney Smith as a foundation for a strong team. It is possible that W. A. Townsend will be able to roll.

BASKET BALL.

It is believed that the Fanwood Atheletic Club will have no trouble in securing the Fanwood clubhouse this winter for its games of basket ball. The hall of the clubhouse is not an ideal place for the game but it is the best to be had there and will probably be utilized. Practice will be started as soon as the holiday season is over.

An interesting basket ball game is scheduled for Friday night when the regular Y. M. C. A. team will meet the boys of Leal's School. The Y. M. C. A. team ought to win as it has the advantage of much more practice and epxerience. Some of the school boys are putting up a stiff game and it is possible that they may make a better showing than their opponents expect. A limited number of invitations will be issued by the two teams. The rest of the audience will be admitted on payment of a small fee.

Election at Unity.

FUNERAL OF MISS BEERBOWER.

Plainfielders Attended the Services at Chatham Yesterday.

The funeral services of Miss Mary E. Beerbower, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Beerbower, were held yesterday morning at 11 o'clock from the residence of the parents at Chatham. The services were conducted by the pastor of the Presbyterian church at Chatham, and were largely atended.

Among those attending from this city were Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Staats, Former Judge W. A. Coddington, H. C. VanEmburgh, Mrs. J. A. Haynes, also the Sunday-school classmates and the teacher of the deceased from the First Prsebyterian church.

There were a great many floral tributes from the friends of Miss Beerbower, who was loved and esteemed by a host of persons. The interment took place at Elizabeth yesterday afternoon.

But Another Man by Name of Duffy Who Was Driving.

Martin Duffy, of the borough, was in nowise connected with the incident which resulted in the death of a horse, belonging to D. S. Roberts, on West Second street, near Madison avenue, Monday evening. The man, who did drive the horse and who was said to be intoxicated at the time, was Thomas Duffy. Martin Duffy bears an excellent reputation and has never been arrested.

Special Matinee.

Miss Adelaide Hendricks, a comedienne of the first water, appearing in a curtain-raiser, "A Duet in Two Flats," at the Casino tomorrow night, appeared at a special matinee Friday last at Charles Frohman's Empire Theatre, New York. The New York Dramatic News gives the following criticism: "Her simulated anger, her laughing sarcasms, her pointed shafts of wit, were felicitously rendered and she handled the part with a graceful flexibility of style highly creditable."

He Succeeded.

Nicholas Rooney, one of a gang of linemen erecting poles near Fanwood for the Western Union Telegraph Company, was paid for the first time in a month last night. The plethora of coin brought him to Plainfield to get rid of some of it. He succeeded and also landed in the police station. This morning City Judge Runyon suspended sentence.

CLOSED THE SHOP.

New Tenant is After His Landlord in the Justice Court.

Justice Mattison has reserved his decision until Monday in the tort case brought by John Goff, Jr., against Benjamin Billian, which was tried yesterday. The plaintiff is suing to recover $200 damages, which he alleges is due him for unlawfully distraining goods belonging to Goff which were in his fish and oyster shop in Bound Brook.

It appeared from the evidence produced by the plaintiff that Billian, the landlord, closed up the shop Nov. 5, for the non-payment of rent, part of which it is claimed was due until Dec. 8. The value of the goods is small compared with the amount claimed by way of damages. Robert M. Clark represents Goff, while Henry C. Suydam is counsel for Billian.

A seventeen-year-old daughter of Mrs. Kate Dunlap, of 124 North avenue, complained to Patrolman Overbaugh, last evening, that Daniel Shea and John Moran were fighting in her mother's apartments. The officer ascended the stairs but was refused admittance. He then waited until the men came out and ordered them to appear before Chief Kiely.

They did so, this morning. The matter was fully investigated by Chief Kiely and City Judge Runyon after which the men were released as the authorities could find no grounds for a complaint and there was no other complainant. Many sensational rumors concerning the case were current about town but all proved to be false.

Was That Helen Keller.

Helen Keller spent her summer vacation in Halifax, and when the Indiana visited that Canadian city Miss Keller was invited to go on board. Lieut. James J. Raby did the honors of the day. In a letter which speaks of that visit, he writes: "It was an honor to show Miss Keller over the Indiana, and the very happiest incident of the cruise for me. Her delight at being aboard was a great pleasure to me, and more than once my eyes filled with tears when I looked at her beautiful face that could not return my gaze. She is a wonderful woman, and I was astonished at her knowledge of ships, and their appliances. When we showed her the turret she wanted to know where the 'sighting-hood' was. I had never before known a woman who knew what a sighting-hood is, so you can well imagine my surprise." When the Spanish war was in full blast Miss Keller first heard from the newspapers of the "sighting-hood," and it was ever after her ambition to know for herself what it was.—Boston Transcript.

Tyrolean Epitaphs.

A German traveler has discovered some quaint epitaphs in a Tyrolean cemetery. On a tombstone in a valley of Tux was this inscription: "In pious remembrance of the honest widow, Anna Kriedl, forty years long." A miller is thus remembered: "In Christian memory of H——, who departed this life without human assistance." A farmer, whose initials only are given, and who appears to have been the author of his own epitaph, has this memorial: "Here rests in God, F. K. He lived twenty-six years as man, and thirty-seven years as husband." On the tomb of a man who fell from a roof and was killed are these words: "Here fell Jacob Hosennkopf from the roof into eternity." This wail of a desolate husband caps the climax: "Tears cannot bring thee back to life, therefore I weep."—Detroit Free Press.

The Pullman Sleeper.

"I heard a funny conversation not long ago on a Pullman," said a traveling man. "It was bedtime and two ladies near me were getting themselves ready to turn in. They were talking about the inconveniences of it, when I heard one remark:

"'Well, I must say that I do not like these sleeping cars at all.'

"'Oh,' responded the other, in a more cheerful frame of mind, 'wait till you have lived awhile in a flat, as I have, and you won't think the sleeping car is so bad, after all.'"—Detroit Free Press.

GIVES ACCOUNT OF WASHINGTON'S FUNERAL

Rare Old Newspaper in Possession of Frank Runyon, of This City.

ULSTER CO. GAZETTE.

OTHER INTERESTING THINGS ABOUT THE OLD PAPER.

Strange Things to be Found in the Advertising Columns — A Little Sheet in Good Stage of Preservation.

A newspaper of great interest is a copy of the Ulster County Gazette, published at Kingston, N. Y., by Samuel Freer & Son, under date of Saturday, January 4, 1800. The paper is the property of Frank Runyon, an employe of the U. S. Express Company, and residing in West Second street.

The paper is of special interest and value by reason of the fact that it contains an account of the death and funeral of George Washington. It also contains much news relative to the events in history, much as the action taken by Congress and the glowing words of tribute spoken at that time by men who were peers in the world of thought and intellect.

Considerable space is devoted to foreign news and to the details of engagements had on foreign soil. A pathetic poem on the death of Washington also appears, as written by a "young lady." The eloquent words spoken at that time by President John Adams are also given much space.

As regards the advertisements there are many of peculiar interest. John Schoonmaker offers for sale the one half of a saw mill in the town of Rochester, also a stout, healty, active negro wench. John Wiest offers $2 reward for the return of an excellent gun taken out of the store of Abraham I. Hasbrouck, about a year since.

Another person advertises the loss of a watch. The person, who has found or may find it, "will meet with a suitable reward by handing it to the Printers." Still another person advertises a strayed red bull and the advertiser says any person having taken up the said bull will be thanked by giving information thereof to the Printers.

The proprietors of the paper advertise cash given for rags, and there are a number of sheriff's notices in the paper, showing that this important personage had just as much trouble in those days as now. Several of the merchants advertising in the paper mention the fact that they will exchange their goods for cash or produce only, it evidently being a fixed custom to bring produce in exchange for other necessary articles.

The Gazette is less than twelve inches wide and eighteen inches long. There is nothing in the paper to indicate its price, but it is presumed that a good sum was asked, it being difficult to get news and print the same in those days. Aside from the fact that the paper is brown with age, it is in an excellent state of preservaion and every part is intelligible. The use of the letter f for s is somewhat confusing until one becomes accustomed to it.

A GREAT DISPLAY.

Now to be Seen at Store of Isaac Lederer on Front Street.

The aisles at Isaac Lederer's, on West Front street, are crowded these days with shoppers taking advantage of Christmas prices. Such a display as is shown there is seldom surpassed in cities of this size. The counters are covered with novelties of the eason and the prices placed upon them are much lower than is usually asked for Christmas goods.

Many new designs have been added to the assortment shown in the china department and the decorated ware is specially fine. Much pains has been taken in the handkerchief department to gather a large assortment, for there is always a big demand for such articles at this time. Perfumery, sterling silver ware, fans, furs and toilet articles are to be found in large collections, not to mention the umbrellas for which there is an increasing demand.

Married at Parsonage.

Miss Hattie Ingraham and Spencer Scribner, both of 500 West Fourth street, were married Saturday evening. Rev. Joseph O. McKelvey officiated, and the ceremony was performed at his home.

THE M'KINLEY MEMORIAL

APPEAL TO PLAINFIELD PEOPLE FOR ITS SUPPORT.

Contributions Will Be Received at This Office — Its Object.

To the people of Plainfield:—A national organization has been formed to erect a suitable memorial to the late President McKinley which will stand for ages as a loving tribute paid by a loyal and patriotic people to commemorate his public services and his splendid character. Every State in the Union has its auxiliary organization to further the object. The Governor-elect is at the head of the executive committee in this State. It is intended that the offerings of the people shall be voluntary with full opportunity for all to contribute.

As a member of the executive committee I am desirous that Plainfield should do her part by making a contribution that will fittingly express the sympathy of her people with the movement. Therefore I ask every individual who can afford it to contribute something to make Plainfield's part worthy of notice.

Contributions will be received at the office of The Daily Press, the Courier-News or by myself.

WITH CONNOR'S NEW BOOK

SELECTIONS READ FROM "THE MAN FROM GLENGARRY."

Interesting Meeting at the Congregational Church Last Evening.

An audience, that filled to overflowing the lecture room of the Congregational church, gathered last evening to enjoy an evening with "The Man from Glengarry," by Ralph Connor. The story is a tale of the lumbermen of the Ottawa, and has excited considerable interest among book readers.

Rev. Charles L. Goodrich, pastor of the church, was in charge of the meeting, which was opened with a soprano solo by Miss Bertha VanN. Willis. She sang "The Four Leaf Clover," accompanied by Miss Sadiee Mae Howell. Miss Willis, as usual, delighted all who heard her. Her sweet clear voice, under perfect control, gave a perfect rendition of the Scotch song.

That part of the story under the title of "The Finish of the Fight," was read by Alex. Millar. "After the Fight, the Prayer Declined," was read by Rev. Charles L. Goodrich, while "The Prayer Offered," was given by Miss Addie Parker Jackson. "Yankee's Theology," a part containing not a little humor, was assigned to Miss Annie Ellis. The whole story is intended to give the idea that it is Christian living and not profession that proves the ideal Christianity, and in this the story proved helpful.

During an intermission in the service Miss Willis again favored the audience with another Scotch song, and at the close she sang "Loch Lomond." Miss Howell's accompaniment was perfect and added not a little to the enjoyment of the musical part of the programme.

SEPARATE COMPANY TO MANAGE TUNNEL LINE

North Jersey Company Will Simply Connect With It at Jersey City.

SMALL CARS IN TUNNEL.

CONNECTION WILL BE MADE WITH METROPOLITAN TRACTION CO.

Size of Tunnel Will Not Permit North Jersey Cars to Run Through It—Statement of General Manager Young.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Jersey City, Dec. 18—General Manager David Young, of the North Jersey Street Railway Company, has made public an interesting statement regarding the plans for the completion of the old Hudson River tunnel to connect Fifteenth street, Jersey City, with Morton street, New York.

His statement shows that the North Jeresy Street Railway Company will not assume any liabilities for the tunnel company. The latter is to be a distinct corporation formed by Fred B. Jennings, of New York; Horace C. Golding, John Young, of London, and others. These gentlemen are to raise the necessary funds for the completion of the tunnel independent of the traction company. The North Jersey Traction Company merely agrees to connect its lines with the tunnel after it is finished.

The tunnel company will run its own trolley line through the tunnel, and these cars, owing to the small diameter of the tunnel, will be smaller than the regular trolley cars. The North Jersey Company will run its cars over a pier to land its passengers near the mouth of the tunnel. There the passengers will change cars for the underwater route to New York. On the New York side the Metropolitan Traction Company will make similar arrangements with its patrons. The fare to be charged for the tunnel route is not fixed.

The North Jersey officials emphasize the fact that the North Jersey company will not add to its debt or increase its stock as result of this tunnel deal. The tunnel company expects to have several million dollars in hand in a few weeks to start work. There will be two tubular tunnels running side by side.

FIXED BAIL.

Austin Gulick and Patrick Lawlor Released From County Jail After Giving Bail.

Upon the request of the prisoners' counsel, Francis J. Blatz, Judge Vail in the Court of Sessions, yesterday morning, fixed bail in the cases of Austin Gulick and Patrick Lawlor, the two Plainfield men accused of highway robbery, at $200 each. The amount was immediately furnished and the men were released.

Gulick's bond was signed by Jacob Schlick, of this city, and Lawlor's by William Motley, of Elizabeth. The men will be tried before the next session of the Grand Jury.

They also have a splendid line of men and women's hosiery, gloves, handkerchiefs and umbrellas, all popular goods at Christmas time. It has always been the policy of Putnam & DeGraw to invite inspection and they do so this year.

ALARMED BY BIG FLOODS

Ingersoll-Sergeant Company Calls Off New Factory at Easton.

AT A STANDSTILL NOW.

Present Plant and Proposed Site Were Badly Flooded—No Contracts Made—Will Probably Look Again for New Site —Plainfield's Chances.

A sudden halt has been called by the officers of the Ingersoll-Sergeant Drill Company to the plans for the enlargement of its plant at Easton The directors had decided in favor of accepting the offer of the city of Easton to build bridges to connect with available lands across the Lehigh river and contracts were being prepared. The recent floods, however, caused a sudden change of heart and the subject of a new site is now just where it was two months ago.

When the Lehigh river overflowed its banks, it swept into the plant of the Ingersoll-Sergeant Company doing many thousands of dollars worth of damage. It also flooded the land across the river where the company had decided to build the addition to its manufactory. Bridges went down before the torrent. The possibilities of future visitations of this nature were immediately appeciated by the officers of the company and the decision in favor of Easton was suddenly recalled.

It is now impossible to say what will be done next regarding increased facilities for the drill company. The English directors have returned to their homes and will not be able to return for some time to come. It is not likley that the additions will be erected in South Easton unless the people of that city can devise some means which will guarantee the factories protection from any further floods. It is not believed that this is possible to do.

The Pennsylvania Railroad project to tunnel under the Hudson river may have a direct bearing on the choice of a new site. It will open up a large territory heretofore unavailable on account of lack of transportation faciltities and result in the location of the new plant on Long Island or some other part of New York State.

Plainfield's chances would suffer materially unless the Jersey Central could make some traffic arrangement with the Pennsylvania whereby its trains could utilize the tunnel. This change of plans regarding Easton will, however, make it still possible for the company to locate here.

TOLD OF COMPRESSED AIR AND ITS USES

First of Series of Popular Lectures Was Given by A. E. Kenney.

WAS VERY INTERESTING

PICTURED SOME OF THE USES TO WHICH IT IS PUT.

Sketched the History of Compressed Air, Described its Practical Uses and Showed Some Clever Experiments.

A subject of much interest not only to the scientifically inclined but to the general public, that of compressed air, was discussed last evening in an able manner by A. E. Kenney, of Watchung avenue, on the occasion of the opening lecture in the series, which is being conducted under the auspices of the North Plainfield Board of Education.

A large audience, chiefly made up of parents of the pupils of the schools, was in the assembly room of the Somerset street school building when S. St. John McCutchen in prefacing his introduction of the speaker took the opportunity of explaining the reason for the series of lectures and especially the ends they are supposed to serve.

Mr. Kenney's lecture was divided into three parts, first, a history of the subject, second, illustrations of its practical uses; and third, experiments. He declared that the subject offers a field as broad as any scientific topic of the day and he explained the importance of air generally. The first practical use to which compressed air was put, said he, was a century before the Christian era, when the doors of a temple were opened and closed by the rarifaction and condensation of air.

As the various views were cast on canvas by means of a stereopticon operated by A. V. Searing, Mr. Kenney showed the many uses for which compressed air is available. Among the stereopticon illustrations were those showing its use in drilling metals and ores, as well as wood, carving marble and granite, hoisting baggage on cars, painting cars and buildings, shearing sheep, cleaning the cushions and interior decorations of passenger cars and rooms, pumping water without the aid of piston or plunger, running a mine locomotive, repairing a railroad road bed, sinking caissons for bridges and restoring the injured fronts of smoke ruined buildings.

In Paris, he said, compressed air is sold to consumers in the same way as gas, heat and light are in this country. His experiments were quite interesting. Later in the series Mr. Kenney will deliver a talk on electricity and its uses.

HE WANTS ALL VACCINATED

SUPERINTENDENT MAXSON SENDS A WRITTEN REQUEST TO PARENTS.

While He Does Not Fear an Epidemic in City Schools, He Will be Prepared.

To prevent any risk that might be run by delaying the matter, Superintendent Henry M. Maxson has taken speedy action to render impossible a small-pox epidemic among the pupils of the city schools. He is not inclined to believe that there is any probable danger of an outbreak of the disease in this community, but at the same time he desires to fulfill his duty.

To every parent of a pupil in the public schools he has made written request in the name of the Board of Education that the child be vaccinated at the earliest possible moment. It is desired that this be done before the end of the Christmas holidays, so that when school opens after the beginning of the new year all pupils will have undergone the operation.

The greatest danger, as Superintendent Maxson sees it, is the liability to contract the disease while riding in railroad and trolley cars, for there children are apt to come in contact with persons from outside the city and borough.

NEW RECTOR FOR ST. MARY'S

REV. FATHER SMYTH TRANSFERRED TO JERSEY CITY.

Has a More Important Charge—Rev. Father Egan, of Morris Plains, Succeeds Him.

Beginning with the new year, St. Mary's parish will be under the supervision of a new rector, Rev. Father Smythe having received notice of his transfer to the parish of St. Joseph's church, Jersey City. The priest named as his successor is Rev. Father Andrew M. Egan, of Morris Plains.

Father Symthe visited his new parish, Tuesday, and upon his return in the evening it became rumored that the Plainfield priest would leave here immediately after the Christmas feast. There are over 5,000 souls in his new field, but he will have the assistance of two other priests and the work will not be as hard as it has been here. The promotion is taken to be in the nature of a reward for faithful and able service, which Father Smythe has rendered in St. Mary's parish.

During his incumbency here he has succeeded in wiping out a debt of $35,000 on the church edifice and the rectory as well as building a substantial school and convent for the sisters. He is a native of county Cavan, Ireland, and has been in the United States for thirty years. He took his sacred orders in the old country.

GOOD SHOWS.

Will be Produced at Dramatic Students at Casino Tonight.

A dramatic performance of great merit will be given at the Casino tonight by the students of the American Academy of Dramatic Arts and Empire School of Acting, who will present two original plays in which the several members of the organization achieved marked success at Frohman's Empire Theatre, New York city, last month.

The opening play will be a farce entitled "A Duet in Two Flats," to be followed by Pinero's latest comedy, "The Money Spinner." The highest praise has been awarded the cast of the two plays, and it is confidently expected that the opinion of the New York public will receive hearty endorsement and recognition here. The performance, owing to the length of the bill, will commence at o'clock promptly.

LINE IS COMPLETE.

Peck's Wonderful Display of Handkerchiefs and Laces.

ATTEMPT TO BREAK MOORE WILL FAILED

Judge Vail Rendered a Final Decision in Orphan's Court Yesterday Morning.

WILL WAS SUSTAINED.

WAS A VICTORY FOR COUNSELLOR GEORGE BALL.

Contested on Ground That Testator Was Not Endowed With Full Mental Ability—Many Witnesses Examined.

After hearing the final argument by counsel on both sides in the Orphan's court at Elizabeth, yesterday morning, Judge B. A. Vail rendered his decision in the attempt to break the will of the late George W. Moore. By its terms the will was sustained and the attempt of the appellant to show that the testator was not endowed with full mental ability was disproved. The decision was a complete victory for Counsellor George Ball who conducted the case from the start. His opponent was Counsellor W. S. Angleman.

By the terms of the will, the income of almost the entire estate comprising $2,000 in real and $5,000 in personal property was left to the widow, Mrs. Alletta S. Moore. At her death the estate was to be divided between his heirs, Caroline Bangs, of Florida, and Edward H. Moore, of Newark. Therre were small bequests of a gold watch to Charles W. Dodd, Jr., of Elizabeth, and a frame of badges to John Hand Camp, Sons of Veterans.

The will was drawn by Counsellor Ball and executed on December 29, 1900. Mr. Moore died January 8 of the present year. The will was regularly brought before Surrogate Parrot on January 19 but an appeal was taken to the Orphan's court in March by Mrs. Moore. It was her intention to overthrow the will in hopes of gaining the personal property. She contended that Mr. Moore was not mentally capable of making a valid will.

An order of reference was made by Judge Vail in April to Surrogate Parrot to take testimony in the case. Four days were consumed in the proceeding.

The following witnesses were sworn on the part of the appellant, Mrs. Moore: Mrs. Mary Perrine, Mrs. Mamie Winckler, Mrs. Alletta A. Moore, Mrs. Ella Meaney, Mrs. Carrie Ammon, Mrs. Elizabeth Addis, Dr. J. H. Buchanan, Dr. William Mattison, Alpheus Irving, Abram Brown, Health Inspector William Addis and Andrew Love, Sr. Witnesses on the part of the proponents to sustain the will were F. L. Lancaster, George Ball, Dr. J. F. Berg, the attending physician, John S. Gibson, and Thomas Hanna.

The case was hard fought by both sides. By securing a decision in favor of his clients, John S. Gibson, secretary of the State Republican League, James M. Atwood, of Trenton, the executors, Mrs. Bangs, John Hand Camp and Charles Dodd, Jr., another decisive victory is added to Mr. Ball's list in the higher courts.

The January "National Magazine" of Boston will contain the first of a series of articles by Senator Mark Hanna, of Ohio, on the career of his friend, the late President William McKinley. No other man was so warmly devoted to McKinley or so closely in touch with him. These articles will embody the Senator's estimate of his friend's character and life work, and give many interesting incidents of his career. They will be the most widely read and authoritative contributions on this subject, which is of the profoundest interest to all patriotic Americans. "The National" is a first-class American News-Magazine, its stories are strong, its pictures of men and women of the day many and timely, its "Affairs at Washington" unique. Those who are not subscribers can obtain the January number by sending 10 cents in stamps to the W. W. Potter Co., Publishers, 41 West First street, Boston. Annual subscriptions, coverng the entire series, $1.

Tradition and the newspapers are so fond of referring to Kentucky as "the dark and bloody ground," that at the request of the editor of Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly, E. Carl Litsey, a painstaking and accurate observer of social conditions, made a leisurely journey through the most notorious districts of the State, carefully noting what he saw and heard, and relying solely upon first hand information. The story of this journey, together with a very accurate and dramatic account of Kentucky feuds and their causes, is the opening article in Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly for January. This January number is unusually fortunate in its fiction. Ian Maclaren breaks his long silence by contributing one of his exquisite little sketches, "The Vision of the Soul," while Hamlin Garland tells an Indian tale in his best vein, a story which has been elaborately illustrated in colors. Among the more serious articles in this number is a striking character sketch of Chief Arthur, of the Locomotive Engineers, the single permanent leader of labor in this country, and Senator Tillman's successful defence of his plan for the solution of the liquor problem.

THEATRICAL.

Nixon & Zimmerman's production of the extraordinarily successful London Gaiety musical comedy, "The Messenger Boy," will remain at Daly's Theatre but two more weeks, beginning next Monday night. The run of this attraction cannot be prolonged, notwithstanding it is drawing as large audiences today as it did in the first week of its run. It is one of the most attractive comic and lyrical entertainments presented in New York this year.

Sadie Martinet and her splendid company in Clyde Fitch's play of absorbing interest "The Marrige Game," has caused nothing short of a sensation at the Victoria Theatre, New York, which from the opening night has been crowded to the doors with enthusiastic audiences. Of all the plays which the author has contributed, none possess the intensity of feeling which he exploits in this one. It is enacted by a magnificent organization, and staged as elaborately as any production of the season. The engagement will continue throughout Christmas week including a special matinee upon the holiday, (Wednesday).

READY FOR DISPUTES

Arbiters of Labor Troubles Organize Permanently.

SENATOR HANNA IS AT THE HEAD.

Headquarters of the Executive Committee of National Civic Federation to Be In New York—Statement of Scope and Plans.

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—Having formed a permanent organization and having decided to establish a headquarters in this city, the industrial department of the National Civic federation, as the executive committee appointed at the great capital and labor conference is known, adjourned its executive session until such time as its services shall be required in settling labor disputes.

The meeting was held in the rooms of the board of trade and transportation, at 203 Broadway. Officers were elected and committees appointed as follows: Chairman, Senator Mark Hanna; vice chairmen, Samuel Gompers and Oscar S. Straus; treasurer, Charles A. Moore; secretary, Ralph M. Easley.

Hereafter the headquarters of the committee, which consists of thirty-six members, will be at 281 Fourth avenue, where Ralph M. Easley will be in charge as secretary.

The following statement was given out at the close of the executive session:

This committee shall be known as the industrial department of the National Civic federation.

"The scope and province of this department shall be to do what seems best to promote industrial peace; to be helpful in establishing rightful relations between employers and workers; by its good offices to endeavor to obviate and prevent strikes and lockouts; to aid in renewing industrial relations where a rupture has occurred.

"That at all times representatives of employers and workers, organized or unorganized, should confer for the adjustment of differences or disputes before an acute stage is reached and thus avoid or minimize the number of strikes or lockouts.

"That mutual agreements as to conditions under which labor shall be performed should be encouraged and that when agreements are made the terms thereof should be faithfully adhered to both in letter and spirit by both parties.

"This department, either as a whole or a subcommittee by it appointed, shall when requested act as a forum to adjust and decide upon questions at issue between workers or their employers, provided, in its opinion, the subject is one of sufficient importance.

"This department will not consider abstract industrial problems.

"This department assumes no powers of arbitration unless such powers be conferred by both parties to a dispute."

McBride stopped the bout and awarded the decision to Walcott.

LINCOLN, Neb., Dec. 19.—Four inches of snow fell in Nebraska yesterday. There was an absence of wind, and with the snow evenly distributed winter wheat will be greatly benefited. BILL OF EXCEPTIONS.

Schley's Counsel Begins Fight Against Majority Report.

SECRETARY LONG IS RETICENT.

Will Make No Statement Regarding His Action In the Matter—Sampson's Objections to the Minority Report Not Yet In.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—Late yesterday afternoon Admiral Schley, through his counsel, filed with the secretary of the navy his bill of exceptions to the majority findings of the court of inquiry and also a letter asking to be allowed to be heard in connection with the objections to be filed by attorneys for Admiral Sampson to the individual opinion of Admiral Dewey. This action was taken after Mr. Rayner, Mr. Teague and Captain Parker of counsel had held a consultation throughout the day with their client.

Secretary Long almost immediately after the receipt of the communications called Judge Advocate Lemly and the solicitor for the department, Mr. Hanna, into conference. At its conclusion the secretary said that he had no statement to make regarding any action that he might take in the premises. He, however, indicated to Mr. Teague through the judge advocate that he would not hear an oral argument by Mr. Rayner regarding Admiral Sampson's protest, but that he would receive a written statement.

It was expected that counsel for Admiral Sampson would file their objections to the findings of Admiral Dewey in the case yesterday, but it is now stated that such objections may not be offered before Friday.

Commenting on the action, Mr. Rayner said:

"The objections that we have filed rest upon the ground that Admiral Schley has been deprived of his rights as guaranteed to him by the law of the land and the constitution of his country. We claim that the whole of the evidence in favor of the admiral, including his own and the testimony of all of his witnesses, has been rejected by the majority of the court and not even considered or passed upon. Such a method of procedure would not be permitted to stand for a moment before any tribunal governed by any principle of common law or common justice. The admiral was on the stand for about four days, and not a word that he uttered and not a solemn assertion that he made under the sanction of his oath has been adverted to by the majority of the court. Such a method of disposing of a case is unparalleled in the annals of civil or of criminal laws. The greatest malefactor in the land under the constitution is entitled to have his evidence considered and passed upon.

"We shall therefore avail ourselves of every remedy that we have to impeach this appalling verdict."

Redmond Welcomed to Dublin.

DUBLIN, Ireland, Dec. 19.—Mr. Redmond and his party were warmly welcomed here last night by the lord mayor and the civil authorities. He addressed an enormous crowd from the steps of the mansion house. His speech was largely a reiteration of his utterances at Cork. Mr. Redmond assured the crowd that if they made their crusade strong, menacing and dangerous enough to England they might count upon the united support of the Irish Americans as well as that of the people of the United States.

LONDON, Dec. 19.—Dr. Krause, the former governor of Johannesburg, who is charged with high treason and inciting Cornelius Broeksma, the ex-public prosecutor of Johannesburg, who was executed Sept. 30, to murder John Douglas Foster, an English lawyer attached to Lord Roberts' staff, was formally committed for trial yesterday at the Bow street police court.

A WORLD'S UNION.

Incorporation of Christian Endeavor Societies—Organization Growing.

BOSTON, Dec. 19.—The incorporation of the World's Union of Christian Endeavor under the laws of Massachusetts was announced at the quarterly meeting of the board of trustees of the United society. Under the incorporation Rev. Francis E. Clark, D. D., was chosen president; J. Willis Baer, secretary, and William Shaw, treasurer. Secretary Baer of the United society at the meeting reported a total of 61,920 societies, with a total membership of 3,820,000. In his report the president, Rev. Francis E. Clark, D. D., said:

"The tide of Christian Endeavor has never run so deep and strong as it is today. There are now 480 societies in the Madras presidency of India alone. Japan shows more interest in the work than ever before. China is eagerly awaiting her new secretary, Germany has attained self support, the work has begun in Portugal, and some of the smaller countries of Europe have just awakened to the importance of it."

After the meeting President Clark said that on Jan. 4 he would sail for Europe in the interests of Christian Endeavor. Secretary Baer will start on Jan. 6 for a campaign to the Pacific coast, and Field Secretary Eberman will visit every southern state.

INDICTED FOR MURDER.

United Mine Workers' Officials to Be Tried In Kentucky.

MADISONVILLE, Ky., Dec. 19.—The Webster county grand jury, in session at Dixon, has returned indictments against James D. Wood, president of the United Mine Workers of America of the Twenty-third district; Kittrege Barnaby, vice president, and W. B. Kissinger, a member of the official board, charging them as accessories before the fact for willful murder.

The indictments are a result of an investigation of the facts connected with the attack made at the Providence mines by union men five weeks ago. One of the union men named Givens, who was killed in the battle, had papers on his person which were introduced as evidence against the union leaders.

A list of the guns, their numbers and the names of the men to whom the guns had been given was found, together with other evidence. Wood, Barnaby and Kissinger, the indicted men, will be refused bond. Barnaby was in Madisonville yesterday, and Wood is said to be in Central City.

A Riotous Scene In Birmingham.

LONDON, Dec. 19.—David Lloyd-George, M. P., speaking in Birmingham town hall last night, precipitated a scene unprecedented in that city since the Aston park riots. Those present were hostile to the speaker and were enraged by his pro-Boer and anti-Chamberlain utterances. They rushed the police cordon guarding the platform. In the meanwhile the building was besieged from the outside by a mob of several thousand people, who smashed windows and tried to force the doors which had been barricaded. They fusilladed the audience with stones through the windows. The police reserves were turned out and succeeded in dispersing the mob after repeated charges. A number of persons were injured, and the town hall was completely wrecked. Not a single window was left whole.

Fire in a Factory.

SOUTH NORWALK, Conn., Dec. 19.—There were many narrow escapes from death last night in a fire which totally destroyed the building occupied by the Snap Hook and Eye company in this place. A number of young women were working on the second floor, and the flames cut off their escape by way of the stairs. They ran to the windows, and a pole was found leaning up to one of windows from the ground. One after another the girls grasped the pole and slid down to the ground in safety. A few minutes later the room from which they had just escaped was enveloped in flames.

Chicago Gets Polk Manuscripts.

CHICAGO, Dec. 19.—The diaries, letters and manuscripts of James K. Polk, comprising all his known writings, have been purchased by the Chicago Historical society. The price paid Mrs. J. H. Fall of Nashville, Tenn., stepdaughter of President Polk, was $3,500. When put into book form, as they soon will be, the manuscripts will fill twenty-six large volumes. The diary covers the period of his presidency, as does much of the miscellaneous matter, while the letters are the collections of a lifelong work and were penned by the famous men of the period.

Mr. Carnegie In Washington.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—Mr. Andrew Carnegie was in the city yesterday and, with Secretary Root, lunched with the president at the White House. It is understood that the proposed gift of $10,000,000 by Mr. Carnegie to the government for the establishment of a university of higher learning in this city was discussed, but the statement is made that the matter is still undeveloped, and there is nothing to be said on the subject for publication.

PAN-AMERICAN CONGRESS.

Extra Sessions Ordered—Exchange of Photographs.

CITY OF MEXICO, Dec. 19.—The pan-American conference has resolved to hold extra sessions in the afternoon and at other times demanded by the work in hand. Senor Matte of Chile withdrew his proposal that interested governments give aid to the projected pan-American bank.

In a speech Lorenzo Anadon, the Argentine delegate, reiterated the statement of Joaquin de Cassasus of Mexico referring to the proposed pan-American bank—viz, that the banks follow commerce—therefore, continued Senor Anadon, what the American republics must first do is to increase their international trade. In this connection Senor Anadon referred to the difficulties of South American countries in trading with the United States. In the United States, he said, it is impossible for our merchants to buy on time, whereas European firms grant liberal terms of credit. Senor Anadon went on to say that it would be impossible for Spanish America to have large commercial dealings with the United States until those "Chinese walls known as the McKinley and Dingley tariff" were swept away. The world, concluded Senor Anadon, is ruled by self interest and not by sentiment.

President Diaz received John Barrett, delegate of the United States to the pan-American conference, in special private audience prior to Mr. Barrett's return to Washington on Friday. Mr. Barrett delivered to the president an autograph photograph of President Roosevelt. In appreciation of this personal remembrance on the part of the American executive the Mexican president gave Mr. Barrett an autograph photograph of himself to deliver to President Roosevelt. In the course of the interview President Diaz took occasion to commend in particular terms the most cordial relations existing between Mexico and the United States.

Shipbuilders' Strike Ended.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—The navy department has been informed by the Union Iron Works Shipbuilding company of San Francisco that the strike which has prevailed at their yard for half a year past has been declared off in a number of classes of workmen. This information is very gratifying to the government inasmuch as the warships let to that company have been practically untouched since last May. It is expected that the classes who still hold out will soon return to work and that operations on the warships at San Francisco will be resumed with alacrity. Among the big vessels building at this yard are the battleship Ohio, the armored cruisers California and South Dakota, on which work has not yet been begun; the protected cruisers Tacoma and Milwaukee and the monitor Wyoming.

Flood Damages Partially Repaired.

HAZLETON, Pa., Dec. 19.—By tonight it is expected that traffic on the main line of the Lehigh Valley between New York and Buffalo via Penn Haven Junction will be partially resumed. Only the westbound track, which was not so badly damaged by the flood as the others, will be used, and the trains of both the Lehigh Valley and Jersey Central will be run over it. It will require at least two weeks to replace the Jersey Central bridge at this point.

The Manager Skipped.

PHENIX, Ariz., Dec. 19.—It was announced here that Lee D. Mills, local manager of the Southern Mutual Investment company, has fled to Canada, taking a large sum of money and leaving behind local creditors to the amount of several thousand dollars. Lumber Yard Burned.

CAMDEN, N. J., Dec. 19.—The lumber yard owned by former Sheriff David Baird in this city has been entirely destroyed by fire, entailing a loss of $40,000, on which there is an insurance of from $10,000 to $12,000. The fire is believed to have originated from an overheated journal in the sawmill of the concern.

High School Burned.

PHILIPPINE REPORT.

The Commission Provides For Government of Islands.

FIVE PROVINCES ARE UNSETTLED.

People Generally Friendly and Desirous For Peace—Filipinos Are to Be Taught Self Rule Under American Management.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—Provision for a permanent civil government and for much important legislation regarding the industrial development of the Philippines is embodied in the annual report of the Philippine commission.

It is declared that the Federal party spread like wildfire throughout the archipelago and that there are few towns in any of the provinces which have not their Federal committees. The members of the party were most active and effective in inducing insurgent leaders to surrender.

The commission says that outside of Batangas, Cebu, Bohol, Samar and Mindoro there is peace in the remainder of the archipelago. All insurrectionists have surrendered, and in most of the provinces, except among the Lake Moros, it is entirely safe during the day for travelers unattended to go from one town to another. In other provinces recent war conditions and suffering and hardship from cattle pest and locusts have developed ladronism. The people are friendly to the civil government and manifest no desire whatever for a continuance of the war, but only a desire for peace and protection.

Taking up the question of the political future of the Filipinos, it is declared that the theory upon which the commission is proceeding is that the only possible method of instructing the Filipino people in methods of free institutions and self government is to make a government partly of Americans and partly of Filipinos, with absolute control in American hands for some time to come. Less than 10 per cent of the people speak Spanish, and the educated people, under the influence of Spanish teaching, have but a faint conception of real civil liberty and the mutual self restraint required for its maintenance. The commission has already, however, established municipal suffrage in the pacified parts of the islands and has limited the suffrage to those who can read and write English or Spanish or who own property of the value of $250, pay an annual tax of $15 or have been municipal officers. Thus far only 49,523 electors have qualified under these provisions out of a population of 2,695,801 in 390 municipalities, showing only 18.37 electors per 1,000 inhabitants. This is only about 10 per cent of the number which would qualify with similar population under American law. The commission declare that in fixing these qualifications they followed the recommendations of all the Filipinos who were consulted, except that there were many who advocated a higher qualification.

A full account is given by the commission of the organization of the system of education which has been going on so vigorously under Dr. F. W. Atkinson, the general superintendent. The English language is the basis of all public instruction, and nearly 1,000 trained teachers from the United States already have been put to work in the towns and cities of the pacified provinces. Applications for teachers have been received from many towns where it has not yet been possible to send them. The greatest eagerness is shown among the natives to obtain a knowledge of English and a general primary education. In Manila secondary schools have been established, a normal school is engaged in the instruction of Filipino teachers, and night schools are holding regular sessions with 1,800 pupils. Manual training schools and agricultural colleges are a part of the project which is being carried out for educating the people to better methods of labor and production. Recently instruction in telegraphy has been begun with the aid of the signal department of the army, and it is proposed to gradually transfer the telegraphic service from the army to the civil government by provinces as young Filipinos become sufficiently competent to act as operators. On the opening day of the normal school the number enrolled was 450, the number eventually enrolled being over 600.

Minneapolis Mills Closing.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Dec. 19.—Four flour mills of the Consolidated Milling company were shut down yesterday. There is every probability that nearly all mills will be closed before the end of the week. The closing of the mills results, in part, from temporary depression in the demand for flour from abroad. A. C. Loring, president of the Consolidated Milling company, said that a very serious element in the conditions which had compelled a shutdown at this time was the shortage of cars in the northwest.

Ohio Monument Not Unveiled.

MACON, Ga., Dec. 19.—The Ohio monument over Federal dead prisoners was not unveiled at Andersonville yesterday, but the programme of exercises that had been arranged was executed. The shaft was not completed. Governor Nash and party returned to their homes at night. The weather was disagreeably cold, the thermometer showing around 20 degrees. The Massachusetts monument will be unveiled today.

M'KINLEY MEMORIAL.

A statement has been issued by the officers and trustees of the McKinley National Memorial Association explaining the objects of that organization and outlining the plans for securing subscriptions to erect a monument at the grave of the matyred President.

The funds thus secured are to be used exclusively for the memorial at Canton, as the plan for building an arch at Washington by popular subscription has been abandoned. It is proposed, however, to memorialize Congress to erect a national memorial at the capital to commemorate President McKinley's services to the nation. For the raising of the popular subscription, authorized committees have been named to solicit and receive funds, all banks have been designated as depositories for subscriptions, and all postmasters will receive and forward moneys.

The association has no connection with or relation to any other association of a commercial nature, and the public is especially cautioned against any enterprise attempting to make capital out of the sentiments of affection which inspired the desire to rear at the grave of the late President a memorial which shall fittingly honor his memory.

The news of the departure of Rev. Father Smythe, rector of St. Mary's church, to a larger field, will be heard with much regret, not only by the people of his parish but by his many Plainfield friends. Rev. Father Smythe's ability and broadmindedness has won for him the respect and honor of all, irrespective of religious belief and every one is sorry to see Plainfield lose a man of his calibre. In his parish, his loss will be felt particularly as all had learned to love and honor him.

After the Plainfield public had settled down to the belief that the Ingersoll-Sergeant Drill Company was surely going to remain in Easton, the news comes that the recent floods have caused the officials of that company to suddenly halt in their steps to secure a new site. At present, the situation appears to be the same as existed two months ago and a decision is just as far off as ever.

After several unsuccessful attempts on the part of both political parties in Elizabeth to change the ward lines so that they might control the city's affairs, the Democrats have finally succeeded in dividing the county seat so that there can be no question of political supremacy for some time to come.

An Evangelist's Story.

"I suffered for years with a bronchial or lung trouble and tried various remedies but did not obtain permanent relief until I commenced using One Minute Cough Cure," writes Rev. James Kirkman, evangelist, of Belle River, Ill. "I have no hesitation in recommending it to all sufferers from maladies of this kind." One Minute Cough Cure afford immediate relief for coughs, colds and all kind of throat and lung troubles. For croup it is unequalled. Absolutely safe. Very pleasant to take, never fails and is really a favorite with the children. They like it. L. W. Randolph.

REMAIN IN LINE.

Such Were City Judge Runyon's Orders to Hackmen in City Court This Morning.

The question as to what rights hackmen are entitled to under the city ordinances, was argued pro and con in the city court, this morning, when John E. Keely and John Lynch were arraigned on a technical charge of violating the hack ordinance.

The men were notified to appear in city court by Patrolman Saffron at the solicitation of the other hackmen at the depot, who claimed the two were being granted extra privileges in being allowed to tie their horses to poles near the entrances to the old depot.

City Judge Runyon ordered both men to desist from this and remain in line. Keely consented under protest and said if the rule was adhered to, five minutes before every train he would line his five cabs along the curb as he solicits no trade but has regular customers. If this is done the police say it will make no end of trouble.

Currie; inside guard, Amos Andrews; outside guard, Frank Rathbun; representative to Grand Lodge, Robert Rushton; alternate, Frank Rathbun; trustee, three years, N. W. Currie.

ISRAEL JONES DEAD.

Faithful Steward of the Park Club Succumbed to Fatal Illness.

Word has been received in this city of the death of Israel Jones, which occurred Tuesday in the south. Mr. Jones, who has been the faithful steward of the Park Club since its organization, had been ill for over a year.

He met with an accident while riding his bicycle and he never recovered from the effects of it. This together with consumption was the cause of death. Recently, members of the Park Club sent Mr. Jones south for his health, hoping that he would eventually recover from his illness.

The body will probably be brought to Plainfield, where the deceased leaves a family.

John McMann visited in New York yesterday.

NEW MARKET.

Some time ago Frazee Suydam, of Oak Tree, bought two cows from a farmer near Lincoln. He took them home, put them in his barn and thought his trouble was over. At the first opportunity the cows broke out and headed for their old home. Suydam pursued and caught them near New Market. When he attempted to take the cows home to his barn they objected seriously. After an exciting experience, Suydam managed to get the animals under control and took them home.

H. S. Garretson and Adam Dealaman, of Dunellen, spent yesterday hunting on the Lant farm. They report game scarce and brought back only six bunnies.

A number of chickens and turkeys and one rifle will be raffled off at the Hotel Dent on Christmas eve.

Friendship Social Circle, of this place, met yesterday with Mrs. H. S. Garretson, of Dunellen.

The pond is in fine shape for skating and a number enjoyed the sport yesterday.

Edward Coriell, of Bound Brook, visited his grandfather, H. S. Coriell, yesterday.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Funeral services of the late Mrs. Caroline Ross, who died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. John H. Coles, Wednesday morning, will be held from the latter's home on Saturday morning. The service which will be private will be in charge of Rev. Charles E. Herring, of Plainfield.

The vacancy in the corps of teachers, caused by the resignation of Miss Louise Robison, who leaves to accept a position in one of the Greater New York schools, has been filled by the Board of Education. Miss Pond, of North Plainfield, will be the new member of the corps.

The cold weather of the past few days gives promise of excellent skating if it continues. The several ponds in the vicinity are already covered with a fair thickness of fine smooth ice and the skaters are only waiting for a little more cold weather before enjoying the sport.

Twilight Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., will meet in its rooms this evening. A large attendance of the membership is desired as the semi-annual nomination of officers will be held.

Miss Fanny Haskard gave an interesting talk upon Egypt during Bible times at the meeting of the Young Peoples Literary Society in the Methodist church, last night.

The Junior Epworth League held one of its interesting weekly meetings in the Methodist church yesterday afternoon.

John E. Flannery, of Plainfield, visited at the home of his daughter, Mrs. George H. Johnston, last night.

Frederick Schmidt, of Front street, is detained at home suffering from a severe cold.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The "seven" social, given by the women of the Baptist church, for the benefit of the Sunday-school, in the church lecture rooms, last evening, was a decided success. One of the conditions imposed upon the visitor was the presentation of a package worth seven cents to the door-tender. The contents of some of these packages, received at the door and afterward exposed for sale, was surprising. One contained a clay pipe, a box of matches and a package of "Green Turtle" smoking and chewing tobacco The principal feature of the evening was the entertainment rendered by the young folks. Those who recited were Miss Gladys Thorn, Miss Marjorie Cubberley, Miss Mildred Johnson, and Miss Florence Johnson. Readings were given by Mrs. David Bigley and Miss Nellie Manning. John Linabery and Miss Mabel Smith sang a duet which was well received. A quartette, composed of Mrs. W. H. Manning, Miss Emma Faulks, and Harry J. Manning, rendered a number of selections.

The funeral services of the late John H. Teeple will be held Saturday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock at his late residence and 2 o'clock at the Baptist church. The services will be entirely in charge of Washington Camp, No. 41, Patriotic Order Sons of America, of which the deceased was a member. The bearers will be Thomas Brantingham, Frank Randolph, Edward Campbell, and Isaac Winans. The funeral sermon will be preached by Rev. J. A. Cubberley who is also chaplain of Camp No. 41.

Jesse A. Dayton, who went to Muhlenburg hospital to receive treatment for a eye which was injured by an accident, was dismissed today. Mr. Dayton considers himself extremely fortunate to have saved the sight of the eye which was badly injured.

Camp No. 41, P. O. S. of A. held a special meeting last evening, to complete arrangements for the funeral services of the late John H. Teeple.

The charge of disorderly conduct, against Thomas Hurley will be heard in Justice Weaver's court, this evening.

Health and Beauty.

A poor complexion is usually the result of a torpid liver or irregular action of the bowels. Unless nature's refuse is carried off it will surely cause impure blood. Pimples, boils and other eruptions follow. This is nature's method of throwing off the poisons which the bowels failed to remove. DeWitt's Little Early Risers are world famous for remedying this condition They stimulates the liver and promote regular and healthy action of the bowels but never cause griping, cramps or distress. REVENUE BILL PASSED.

Temporary Tariff For Philippines Provided by the House.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—The bill to provide revenue temporarily for the Philippine Islands passed the house yesterday by a vote of 163 to 128. Five Republicans—Messrs. McCall (Mass.), Littlefield (Me.), Henzwole, Eddy and Stevens (Minn.)—voted with the Democrats against the bill, and three Democrats—Messrs. Robertson, Davey and Broussard (La.)—voted with the Republicans for it. Mr. Meyer (Dem., La.), was paired in favor of the bill with Mr. Foster, an Illinois Democrat. Mr. Warner (Ill.), who voted against the Porto Rican bill last congress, voted for the Philippine measure. Mr. Crumpacker (Ind.), who also voted against the Porto Rican bill, was absent.

In the course of the debate the Democrats were several times taunted with their failure to present an alternative proposition for the pending measure, but just before the vote was taken on the passage of the bill the attitude of the minority was defined in a motion to recommit offered by Mr. Richardson, the minority leader. It instructed the ways and means committee to report the bill back amended so as to reduce the customs and internal revenue laws of the United States to a revenue basis and to extend them to the Philippines until the latter, with the aid of the United States, should be able to set up a stable, independent government. This proposition did not command a Republican vote, and the three Louisiana Democrats above mentioned voted against it. Mr. Meyer (La.) was paired against it. The speakers were Messrs. Hepburn (Ia.) and Dalzell (Pa.), for the bill, and Messrs. Henry (Tex.), Williams (Miss.), McCall (Rep., Mass.), Greene (Pa.) and McClellan (N. Y.) against.

The bill passed imposes the Dingley rates on goods entering the Philippines from the United States. It also provides for the collection of tonnage taxes on vessels plying between the United States and the Philippines and that foreign vessels may ply between these ports until Jan. 1, 1905. The duties and taxes collected under the provisions of the bill shall go into the Philippine treasury to be expended for the use and benefit of the islands.

A Town Without Light.

MALONE, N. Y., Dec. 19.—The most serious result following the flood of Sunday last in Malone was the complete crippling of the Malone electric light plant. The power house and dam are located in a deep gorge below the town, and during the great rush of water the company's pond was completely filled with logs, trees and all kinds of debris which came down from the woods a few miles above. Sand and mud in immense quantities, with anchor ice and rubbish, have so filled the flume and pond that it will be impossible to clear it away before spring. This leaves the town in total darkness, and dealers were only partially able to supply lamps and fittings. The company owns a partially dismantled plant in town, which it is now fitting up as rapidly as possible, but which is likely to take a month or six weeks.

After Bogus Jewelry Dealers.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 19.—An interesting development in the so called bogus jewelry prosecutions, which are said to be instituted under the auspices of the National Jewelers' association, took place when warrants were served on Elbridge L. Howe, senior member of the firm of Howe & Stetson, and Milton H. Weil, a salesman for the Edward Malley company. Both these firms run large department stores. The evidence on which the warrants were drawn was secured by Newton Dexter, editor of a jewelry trade journal, and it is said that these and other cases in New Haven are only the beginning of a series of prosecutions to be instituted against dealers in various cities of Connecticut to protect the marks "sterling" and "14 carat" on silver and gold articles offered for sale.

Griffiths Can Fight No More.

CHICAGO, Dec. 19.—Albert Griffiths, well known throughout sporting circles as "Young Griffo," a lightweight pugilist, has been forced to quit the ring because of a valvular affection of the heart which may bring death to him in the ring at any time. Late yesterday Dr. McGregor, physician for the Olympic Athletic club, examined Griffiths and because of this weakness refused to allow him to enter a match for which he was scheduled.

ONE WAY OUT.

A Resident of Plainfield Shows the Way.

Only one way to cure a bad back.
Liniment and plasters may relieve it,
They won't cure it.
Bachache mean sick kidneys.
Doan's Kidney Pills cure all kidney ills.
Plainfield people prove this.
Read a case of it:

Mr. S. J. Conklin, traveling salesman for a New York confectionery house, 134 West Front street, says: "I was subject to pain in the back and hips which at times I felt in my side. I tried different kinds of kidney cures but received little or no relief. I read a great deal about Doan's Kidney Pills and I went to L. W. Randolph's drug store and got a box.

I took three boxes altogether and was wonderfully improved. Doan's Kidney Pills are a good remedy and accomplish all that is claimed for them."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no substitute.

KEEP OFF THE EARTH

During the cold and wet weather as much as possible—that is, keep as much shoe leather between the soles of your feet and Mother Earth as you can conveniently carry. It's wisest in the beginning and cheaper in the end to provide yourself with shoes having good solid soles—cold-proof and water-proof, if possible.

We are selling exceptionally good shoes of just this sort for men and women; children, too.

Well built, with broad, heavy soles and with stout uppers.

They're a very paradise of rest for weary feet, and a paradise of economy for weary purses.

BOICE, RUNYON & CO.,
Park Avenue and Railroad.

A truth-loving and conscientious gentleman, well known to theatrical managers and others in New York City, relates his experience with Ripans Tabules as follows: "Having been troubled with rheumatism for the past ten years I was advised by one of my associates to try Ripans Tabules. Not at first fully appreciating his great faith in the article I paid no attention to what was said, but after a couple of months I decided to try this medicine, just to see if anything would come of it. The first month I had no marked relief, but after that the rheumatic pains gradually left me until now I am relieved of every one of those disagreeable sensations that come from rheumatism, and I earnestly assert my belief that any one who is troubled with that fearful and distressing scourge, which may have cost them thousands of dollars in doctors' fees and prescriptions, may have relief and cure at an expense so moderate as not to be worth counting. To those who were troubled as I was I say try Ripans for a month and you will be benefited; try them for three months and you will be cured." This man had suffered from rheumatism for ten years. His age is twenty-eight.

WANTED:—A case of bad health that R·I·P·A·N·S will not benefit. They banish pain and prolong life. One gives relief. Note the word R·I·P·A·N·S on the package and accept no substitute. R·I·P·A·N·S, 10 for 5 cents, may be had at any drug store. Ten samples and one thousand testimonials will be mailed to any address for 5 cents, forwarded to the Ripans Chemical Co., No. 10 Spruce St., New York.

Dear Sirs—Two years ago I had very bad corns and callouses on my feet, I went to a chiropodist and paid him $5.75 for taking them off. In less than a month they were back again. I then tried your CORN CURE and used only three bottles, costing 45c. and am happy to say it has taken them off completely. They have not troubled me now for over a year. I consider your HEPBURN'S CORN CURE the best I have ever used.—

...THE... MIRROR ...OF... FASHION

By Henriette Rousseau

WE have evidence every day of just how strong a hold separate waists have taken on the feminine taste, and it would almost seem that they would, like the brook, go on forever. There is some reason for this in the infinite variety of the designs. Among several hundreds of new waists I find several which are so pretty that I shall tell just what they look like. One is of dark blue velvet with black silk braid set on the front diagonally from top to bottom. The edge in front is bound with gold braid, and there are gilt buttons on collar, cuffs and down the front. There are fewer waists buttoned in the back than formerly. They proved too troublesome, and as one girl expressed herself, "One never felt quite sure that there was not some place unbuttoned." So they are not so popular. It is possible to make a waist with all the appearance of being buttoned in the back and yet be fastened in front, and that solves the question. The velvet waist aforesaid has the back almost plain, with nothing but two small plaits to break the smoothness. There are also fewer very pointed waists—that is to say, such as are produced by the extension in front. The bottom now is rounded more than sharp and is much prettier. Draped sash belts are more graceful and generally preferred. Pretty bows and ends of ribbon begin to make their appearance in place of the pointed belts with the metal buckles.

For very dressy home wear or for visiting there was a very beautiful waist made of iridescent taffeta in pearl colors, and this was overlaid with Irish point set on fishnet mesh. The lace, left open in front a trifle, showed the silk in tucks as a vest. There was a sash belt of pearl moire ribbon fastened with a strass buckle. The lace was arranged in the back to represent a yoke. Worn with a velvet or black silk skirt this waist is most elegant.

NEW AND STYLISH WAISTS.

Aside from the waists to be worn with belts of some kind or other, there are many garments which I think we shall have to call basquines, as they are not exactly basques, nor are they postilions, but a sort of compromise between the two. They are much like a waist in front, with often a vest and quite as often only a bloused effect, while the back has tabs of some kind. Some of these are rather in the embryo form, while others have quite long tails. They look something like a man's dress coat. In whatever form they come, they are certainly a change from the too plain skirt. Some of these basques, added to a trained skirt, give a decided Marie Antoinette character to the whole. One, for instance, had a demitrained skirt of rich black velvet with a cream colored panel in the front twenty inches wide at the bottom and only eight at the top. Over this the velvet train fell loosely. At the bottom of the panel was a row of black guipure laid on flat and about six inches deep. At the waist line was a soft sash of cream colored crepe de chine, with a big rosette at the side and a knotted fringe at both ends. The velvet train was bordered with fur. The bodice portion was in form of a vest, with full lace ruff at the neck, just fastened to the stock collar. The waist itself was of the velvet, with bolero points, and, in fact, the whole of this reminded one of a bolero, as the back was cut off short, and that, as well as the wide collar and revers, was bordered with the fur. The deep collar and revers were of the cream satin. The sleeves were little below the elbows, with deep upturned cuffs and cream satin undersleeves with white lace ruffs. This elegant dress was intended for a ceremonious visiting gown, and with it went a hat of rough felt with black velvet trimming and a little silver braid set along under the brim, which was in tricorne effect. This tricorne shape is very stylish just now and in the different shades and colors of felt it gains new attractiveness from the velvet ribbon with which it is frequently interlaced. It looks deliciously quaint and reminds one of the old days of history. A bright face gains piquancy under one of these hats.

The Trouble on the Torolito.

BY FRANCIS LYNDE.

(Copyright 1899, by Francis Lynde.)

"Pardon me; you must do nothing of the kind. She would not believe you, and—she knows already."

There was bewilderment in her faltered rejoinder.

"I—I don't understand. How can she know? Surely, he could not be base enough to—to boast—"

I cut in swiftly. "You very well know he is base enough for anything. He gave her his own version a long time ago, and knowing that he had done so, I gave her the facts. It was a blunder on my part, Miss Winifred; well-meant, but a blunder, nevertheless. She did not believe me; and when she was finally convinced, she used the information against you?"

"Against me? How could she do that?"

It was not altogether the weakness of illness that set the perspiration thick on my forehead.

"May I speak as freely as your brother might, Winifred?"

"I have given you the right," she said; and her voice was low and tear-shaken.

"Then let me tell you what you haven't suspected. You have come between Nancy Selter and the man whom she really loves. It was to him that she went with the miserable story of what an unjust world calls your shame."

It crushed her as I feared it would. For a long time she sat with her face hidden in her hands, and her sobs were so many dagger-thrusts for me. When she lifted her eyes to mine there was the light of a new purpose in them.

"I must go away from here—at once," she said. "I should have gone at first. I would have gone, if I had not been afraid—"

"I know. But you may trust Angus. And it is for him that I must plead, Winifred. He knows the worst, now, and since he loves you the verdict of an uncharitable world is nothing to him. Won't you give him leave to speak to you, Winifred?"

She started back with a little cry of anguish.

"You speak of shame, and it is you who tempt me!" she said, in sorrowful reproach. "That would be shame, indeed—shame and sin. You say you know the facts. Are you quite sure you know all of them?"

"Let me tell you what I know, and you shall say if it be the truth. Two years ago the nameless one had a business engagement which domiciled him in a village in New Hampshire. While there he met a young girl, an orphan, whose father had left her a modest competence. I know not if it were for the sake of the money that he wooed and won her, and was willing to dare the consequences of a crime punishable by law. But the thing was done, and the crime was scarcely committed before another woman came with a child in her arms to claim him as her lawful husband. He fled, like the coward that he was, and the young girl's people connived at his escape to bury the shame of it. And since, the girl-wife who was no wife has paid the penalty of a sin that was not hers. That is what I learned through a friend of mine in Massachusetts who has known the man and the evil heart of him from his youth up. Was my informant correct, Winifred?"

She had heard me through without flinching, and her eyes met mine steadily.

"Not entirely correct," she said, with a hardness in her voice which I had never heard before. "Bitter as it would be, I could almost wish he were. 'Wooed and won', you said, but that is hardly fair to—to the young woman. There were constraining circumstances; her guardian was urgent—strangely urgent, it seemed to her at the time."

"Why should he have been?" I queried. "Surely, the most ordinary inquiry would have shown the young man up in his true character."

"There were reasons why the inquiry was not made; why any past of his, however despicable, would not have weighed an ounce in the scale. You said that the young woman's father had left her a competence. That is true; and it is also true that her guardian had—had—"

I began dimly to see the drift of it and supplied the reluctant word.

—"Had stolen it. Go on."

"There was a chance for him to retrieve, through a speculation to which the other man, as the chief engineer of the Improvement company, held the key. He was willing to sell the key—at a price and the price was paid."

"I understand; the price was the young woman, herself. Is that the only inaccuracy in my friend's story?"

"No; there is another. You say there was a mock marriage, and so there was; but it was the first one. The poor girl with the child in her arms has that shame to bear."

"What!—then you are—"

"So far as a scarcely completed marriage ceremony can make me so, I am Herbert Wykamp's lawful wife."

She left me at that, and it was a full week, and many things had happened, before I could bring myself to tell Macpherson. I did it at last, and he heard me through patiently.

"That settles it," he said, soberly; "and I'm too glad for her sake to be sorry for my own. The thing is bitter enough without the shame; and, somehow, Jack, I have a feeling that my love could never have made that go to her. They can drive me out now, as soon as they get ready. I'll go without a kick."

"She is going," I ventured.

"Is she?—but, of course, she would. Then I must stay. There must be no chance for the evil tongue to wag."

"I thought you would say that. Is that Selter coming up?"

There was a heavy step on the stair, and Macpherson listened.

"No, that isn't Jake," he said. "I wonder who it is at this time of night?"

We were not left long in doubt. The door opened presently to admit a man whom Angus knew and I did not. He got up, greeted the incomer with a hearty handshake, and introduced him.

"Shake hands with Dick Burt, Halcott. Dick's the man I was legging for for sheriff when I wrote you to come up to the Torolito. How are things with you, Dick? Who are you after up here?"

The big man with the bushman beard seemed singularly embarrassed.

"I'd rather be shot, Mac," he blurted out; "d—d if I wouldn't. But I've got a warrant for you."

"For me? What have I been doing?" Macpherson sat down to laugh the easier.

"Not a thing on God's green earth to be ashamed of, I know, Mac; but this cussed engineer for the Glenlivat people comes to the front and swears out a warrant against you for blowing up his coffer-dam. I've got to take you, and I'd rather be shot, as I say."

"I'VE GOT A WARRANT FOR YOU, MAC."

Macpherson got upon his feet rather unsteadily. "That's the thanks I get for saving his miserable life," he said. Then he thrust out his hand: "Good-by, Jack. I'll be out on bond in a day or two, and when I get back you'll hear something drop. Come on, Burt; duty's duty. You don't need to pack a gun when you come after me."

Stealing a Pesthouse.

Tramps recently stole the municipal pesthouse of Crawford, N. J., and carried it into the woods for a winter home for themselves. The thieves did not know the building was infected, and at last reports were occupying their new quarters, in blissful ignorance of the danger of disease they were tempting. The people of Crawford do not tarry near the woods, and opinion is divided on the question as to whether the joke is on the tramps or the town.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

A Different Matter.

"I want to get a muzzle," said the crabbed man, entering the hardware store.

"Like this one, sir?" said the clerk, exhibiting a certain pattern.

"Oh, my, no! that would hold the mouth too tightly shut."

"I just sold one of them to a woman sir."

"Well, it would be all right for a woman, young man; but I want mine for a dog."—Yonkers Statesman.

Great Preparations.

Mrs. Hauskeep—Bridget, what do you mean by all that disturbance down in the kitchen?

Bridget—Shure, it ain't me, ma'am. It's Miss Ethel.

"Oh! Has she got back from the cooking school?

"Yis, ma'am, and she's gettin' ready to thry an' bile an egg, ma'am."—Philadelphia Press.

Luster of Rough Diamonds.

There is a popular notion to the effect that rough diamonds are not bright, but this is a mistake. Even in that condition they are very bright, with a peculiar "adamantine luster," as it is called, which no other substance possesses. However, the crude diamond crystal is not transparent; one cannot see through it.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

For His Good.

"Charley, dear," said young Mrs. Torkins, "there is one favor I want to ask you. I hope you will realize it is for your own good and not get angry."

"What is it?"

"I want you to solemnly promise me that you will never bet on a horse that isn't going to win."—Washington Star.

A Difficulty Obviated.

Mr. T. Toatler—My dear, I do not think it is very appropriate for you to wear that wine-colored silk to the W. C. T. U. convention.

Mrs. T. Toatler—Oh, but it is watered silk, you know.—Baltimore American.

Cold Analysis.

"How do you know he loves you?" said Miss Cayenne.

"He writes me such beautiful letters."

"Humph! That isn't love. That's literature."—Washington Star.

SANG ENGLISH CAROLS.

Christmas Tide Service at Holy Cross Church Last Night.

The English carol service at the Church of the Holy Cross, last evening, proved itself a delightful sacred entertainment as well as seasonable to the approaching feast day. It was preceded by the service of even song, said by the rector, Rev. W. Bryce Morrow assisting. The church was well filled with an attentive congregation.

Rev. E. E. Maderia, with his charmingly sympathetic and well-cultivated voice, kept the audience in hushed attention to his brilliant rendition of Adam's Cantique de Noel, and he was a second time heard conjointly with Willard M. Miner and F. B. Moffett in the verse parts of "We Three Kings of Orient," set to the sterling composition of Sir John Stainer.

As an offertory, Mr. Moffett also sang a very brilliant setting to "Over the Hills of Bethlehem," the product of Harry Rowe Skelley's genius. The whole service moved through its numbers smoothly and yet quickly.

W. E. MacClymont's excellent work at the organ was a pleasant part of the service.

Photos of the Company.

The photo-frames of the company appearing tonight at the Casino are on exhibition at both the Park Avenue Hotel and Hepburn's pharmacy. Miss Dorothy Turner, leading actress of the company, appeared recently in a play called "Sybil" and was considered by the New York Dramatic News "the whole play." "Her work was more than good—it was a thoroughly artistic and finished bit of acting."

Funeral of Mrs. Kellegher.

The funeral services of Mrs. Catherine Kellegher were held this morning from St. Joseph's church, a large number of relatives and friends being in attendance. Rev. Father Miller officiated. Those who acted as pall bearers were James Bagley, Jules Stephany, F. E. Kesselring, W. B. Bennett, J. W. Bamberger and J. J. Stahl. Interment was made in St. Mary's cemetery.

Patrolman Recovered It.

Mrs. F. M. Letson, of 515 LaGrande avenue dropped her pocketbook on North avenue near the depot at 11 o'clock today and she promptly reported the matter to the police. Patrolman McCarthy arrested Mrs. Vici VanAnglen and she surrendered the money at headquarters. No complaint will be lodged against her.

Injured in a Fall.

W. W. Warnock, the West Front street baker, while in the basement of Smalley Bros. building on North avenue, yesterday evening, slipped and fell on his head. He became unconscious and was at once moved to his home, where a physician was summoned. It is believed that he will soon recover.

Trouble on North Avenue.

Earnest Leidich and Fritz Von-Essden were arrested for causing a disturbance on North avenue, last evening, by Patrolman Saffron. In the police court this morning the former was fined $5 and the latter $3.

Miss Lawson, of Salem, Mass., formerly of West Eighth street, has returned to her home after spending some weeks with friends in town.

NEW LINE OF WORK IN VIEW AT HOPE

Physical Director and a Night School Soon to be Provided at West End Chapel.

A BOOM IN ATHLETICS.

OFFICERS APPOINTED FOR BOWLING AND BASKET BALL TEAMS.

Classes in Mathematics, Bookkeeping, Penmanship and Grammar to be Started by First of the Year—Other Plans.

The officers and directors of the Young Men's Association, of Hope chapel, one of the West End's representative organizations, are preparing plans for new features to be added to the association's advantages which, when completed, will afford its members physical and educational advantages hitherto obtainable only at considerable cost.

The association has one of the best gymnasiums in the city, fitted up with bowling alleys and shower baths. These have been a source of pleasure and physical development for about 100 young men and boys residing in the West End. It is now proposed to provide for the mind as well as the body.

Arrangements will shortly be made for the opening of a night school in connection with the gymnasium to which all members will be eligible for membership. The curriculum will consist of lower mathematics, bookkeeping, penmanship and English grammar. In addition to the classes friends of the association will at stated intervals give lectures on travels and subjects in connection with the members' work.

The class studies will take up a great deal of the members' time and in order that they may derive as much benefit as possible during the hours spent in the gymnasium, a competent physical instructor will be engaged. It will be his duty to group the young men in classes according to their capabilities and assist them in athletics. This is a feature which has been under consideration since the completion of the new gymnasium and will be carried out very soon.

At a meeting of the association, held Tuesday evening, the members discussed these plans and also decided to enter the field of winter athletics in a more pronounced form. It was decided to at once organize representative bowling and basket ball teams. To facilitate the work, David B. Martin was elected captain of the proposed bowling team and Matthew Sweeney, secretary, and for the basket ball team, John Cose, captain and Walter Foster, secretary. Competition for membership of both teams will commence this evening and continue until the personel is completed.

The projected new classes and lectures will be considered in an advanced form next week when some of the friends interested in the association work will be present. It is hoped to have all in operation soon after the first of the year.

CHRISTMAS EXERCISES AT PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Approach of Holiday Season Observed in Both City and Borough.

HELD EXERCISES TODAY

SPECIAL PROGRAMMES AT BOTH THE HIGH SCHOOLS.

The Usual Programmes of Carols and Recitations Formed the Chief Parts of the Various Exercises—In Detail.

Appropriate exercises were held today in all the schools of the city and borough, before the Christmas recess. In the Plainfield High School the programme was quite elaborate, but not so much attention was paid to the matter in the North Plainfield High School though its exercises were commendable.

In the City High School a large number of graduates and friends of the pupils listened to the exercises, which commenced at 11 o'clock. The programme was as follows: Schenecker's Christmas Anthem, "Christians Awake, Salute the Happy Morn;" recitation, "The Three Kings," founded on an old French legend and written by Edith M. Thomas, Miss Florence Martin; Dudley Buck's Christmas Hymn, "Hark, What Mean Those Holy Voices;" recitation, Eugene Field's "Just 'Fore Christmas," Sydney Gilbert; recitation, "The Fool's Christmas," by Florence May Alt, Miss Hazel Grant; Cleveland Cox's "O, Little Town of Bethlehem," glee club; recitation, extract from "The End of the Play," by Thackery, Albert D. Beers; Gounod's chorus, "Nazareth."

At this juncture the senior and junior classes presented to the High School a relief and four large pictures; Hunt's Flight of Time, Wagner's Chariot Race, Hegger's photograph of the Matterhorn, and Alma Tadema's Reading from Homer. The final number on the programme was Dudley Buck's "There Were Shepherds."

Quite a lengthy programme was rendered at the Whittier School this morning. The first part was devoted to a tableau and some recitations while the second part consisted of a cantata. Prefacing the tableau was a recitation by Miss Gertrude Abbott and the characters in the affair, which was entitled "The Marriage of Santa Claus," were: Old Mother Goose, Miss Miriam Carman; Little Bo Peep, Miss Margaret Demarest; Little Red Riding Hood, Miss Mabelle Cubberly; Little Boy Blue, William Flanders; Little Jack Horner, William Douglas; Jack and Jill, Miss Ulrich and Master Foster; Old King Cole, Samuel Bogart; and the Fiddlers Three, M. St. John, J. Loizeaux, and J. Williams.

Miss Roxana Love played a piano solo, "Butterflies." Two recitations were given, the one entitled "The Three Wise Men," by Harold Millar, and the other "The Old, Old Story," by Miss Ada Westphal. S. H. Rhodes' cantata "The Hope of the World," was then given by the pupils. "Ring Forth, Ye Bells," was the introductory chorus and the two parts were "The Shepherds" and "The Wise Men." "Hail, Royal Babe" was the closing chorus. The entire programme was well rendered.

In the kindergarten departments of the North Plainfield schools the exercises were held at 9 o'clock this morning. Christmas trees well decorated were erected in the class rooms, and the little ones were given articles made by themselves to take home to their parents. Music was a feature of their exercises. In the primary department of the Somerset street school carols were sung by the pupils and recitations were given by Elsie Debele, Sarah Miller, Edna Debele, Helen George, Dora Downing, Emma Risberg, Helen Smalley, Carrie VanArsdale, Ida Wheeler, Marguerite Fisher, Susie Bennett, Iola Schenck, Bessie Schuyler, Bernice McClintock, Willie Giese, Fred Clark and Ralph Goldsmith.

On the High School programme were recitations by Harry Smith, Clarence Smalley and Grover Kimpsey, and the Misses Marian Overton, and Mabel Farley, and readings by the Misses Jennie Everitt, Sadie Fountain, and Mildred Fountain. Misses Winifred Carroll and Clyde Slater sang the duet part in "O, Wondrous Star," and Miss Carroll also rendered the solo in "There Were Shepherds."

SCHOOL CHILDREN IN A SUCCESSFUL CANTATA

Assembly Hall at the Irving School Packed With an Appreciative Audience.

MANY CHILDREN IN IT.

Little Brownies Made a Decided Hit—Whole Affair Was Eminently Satisfactory—The Principal Parts.

Through the painstaking efforts of Principal Miss Genevieve Petrie, an audience which filled the assembly hall of the Irving School to the doors, witnessed last evening, one of the prettiest cantatas ever given in this city. Over 150 children attired in handsome costumes were the participants.

The cantata was in two parts and represented King Winter in his Winterland home. Children, fairies and Brownies appeared before him and with merry songs and dances sought to entertain him. While all the costumes were exceptionally fine, the pupils of the first year grade representing Brownies were clearly the favorites.

Those who assumed the speaking parts were Gudion Fountain, Preston Clay, Charles Leland, Sadies Brown, Ralph Taylor and Wallace Pierce. King Winter was represented by Guidon Fountain.

The entire affair was arranged and superintended by Miss Petrie, assisted by Miss Hattie Filmer, Miss Mary Griswold and the remaining teachers of the school. Miss L. W. Stillman presided at the piano and the choruses were taught by Charles L. Lewis.

In addition to the cantata, Miss Evalina DuB. Benton recited "Solomon Crow's Christmas Pockets." The cantata will be repeated this afternoon.

MINISTERS' INSTITUTE.

The regular monthly meeting of the Baptist Minister's Institute of New Jersey, was held yesterday afternoon and evening in Mount Olive Baptist church. In the afternoon, the most important feature was the adoption of a constitution.

Bid for Rewiring School.

At a special meeting of the Board of Education held last evening, Allen B. Laing submitted a bid of $882 for the re-wiring of the Irving School. It was referred to the committee on buildings and repairs, but it was the opinion of the board that this amount is more than could be spared for the work

Numbered among the social events of the season none have been more charming than that of yesterday afternoon, when Mrs. Frank Sprague Martin, of Hillside avenue, gave a reception at which she introduced to society her daughter, Miss Helen Sprague Martin.

Not unmindful of the Christmas-tide season, the decorations were in harmony with it. The colors, red and green, were presented with striking beauty.

The cordial manner in which society received Miss Martin was most flattering, attesting her popularity in social circles of the city.

Including among the guests, aside from those mentioned in the receiving party, were Mrs. Thomas Preston, of New York; Mrs. Isaiah Mirkil, Mrs. William Schaffer and Miss Helen Denis, of Chester, Pa.

IS FULL OF INTEREST.

TELLS OF DELIGHTFUL FOUR-IN-HAND JOURNEYS.

A Cleverly Written Book Full of Interest and Value to the General Reader—Published by Honeyman & Co.

One of the handsomest volumes ever published in Plainfield is the new work, "Bright Days in Merrie England," written by A. V. D. Honeyman, of the borough, and just published by Honeyman & Company, book publishers, of this city. The full title is "Bright Days in Merrie England: Four-in-hand Journeys." It contains 440 pages, is bound in a charming red cloth, with gilt top and uncut edges.

Even a casual glance at this book shows that it is beautiful throughout. It ought to be full of interest and value to general readers, but especially to those who have traveled in England, or who contemplate doing so.

To the intelligent and loyal American the most interesting of all foreign countries is England. No one can properly study American institutions, history or language, who does not trace them back to their roots in the mother-country. England has also the unspeakable interest which attaches to rare and matchless beauty. She lacks the sublimity which is found only amid great mountains, but for quiet, unique and varied beauty she is the first among lands. The author of this book brings to his work peculiar qualifications. He has the eye of an artist, the temperament of a poet, the patriotism of an American, the heart of a Christian, the discrimination of an independent thinker. For a number of years he has spent a part of nearly every summer in England, and has wisely emphasized coaching by conveyances controlled by himself as the ideal method of travel. The pedestrian and the bicyclist miss much of the best scenery because of the high walls which enclose the most beautiful estates. The traveler by the public coach fails to see the quaint beauty which avoids the thoroughfares and hides itself in byways. The railway traveler does not see much in any country—except Holland.

In twenty-six luminous chapters the author narrates his experiences on various coaching trips, amounting to nearly eight hundred miles, in the English Lake District and in Middle, Southern and Western England. These trips were so planned as to conjoin the usual things which every tourist must see with the many queer and interesting out-of-the-way places, which the ordinary traveler fails to see, because of the time and difficulty involved in doing so.

The book is neither a guidebook nor a history. It includes much valuable information which the guidebook cannot, or does not, contain, and strings together on a golden thread of narration much that is thrilling in history and biography. Men long since dead seem to live and move and speak in their old haunts; fair women in the attire of the earlier centuries seem to peep out of the small diamond-paned windows, while armies march and fight as in bygone ages. These pages are also bright, too, with quotations from England's masters of prose and verse. Traditions, superstitions and legends are made to yield their tribute at the versatile author's command.

The book should be read by every one who contemplates a trip to England and then placed in the satchel for daily use on the tour. A comprehensive index makes reference easy. Many of the illustrations are from original photographs taken by Mr. Honeyman's fellow-travelers, some of them by Mr. Estil, of this city, and hence have value as presenting views never before given in books.

The work is for sale at the publishers', 181 North avenue, and at Estil's, and Woodhull & Martin's book stores.

Permit for Dwelling.

John Staats has received a permit from Building Inspector T. O. Doane for the erection of a frame dwelling on Columbus avenue, near North avenue. The estimated cost is $1,400. Titus & Pope are the contractors. William Thompson will do the mason work.

LIFE AT THE REFORMATORY

FIFTY-SIX PRISONERS ARE NOW CONFINED THERE.

Military Drill and Instruction in Elementary Branches Part of Routine.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Rahway, Dec. 20—There are now fifty-six prisoners in the Rahway Reformatory. The officers now employed at the place number twenty. As a rule all the culprits are orderly and so far no trouble has been caused by them.

Every afternoon a drill is held and all must take part in it unless excused by the superintendent on account of sickness. State Military Instructor Col. Quincey O'M. Gilmore arrived Wednesday and held the first drill. For two hours in the evening Professors Glover and William J. Shearer, of Elizabeth, teach them in the elementary branches.

The average age of the inmates is nineteen, the youngest being sixteen and the oldest twenty-six. Twenty are Roman Catholics, one is a Hebrew and thirty-five are Protestants. Of the latter only one is an Episcopalian. There are fifty-two white and four colored inmates. Ten counties in the State have not sent any offenders to the Rahway institution so far.

COLUMN FOR THE SHOPPERS

SOME OF ATTRACTIONS TO BE FOUND AT LOCAL STORES.

A Few Interesting Items Concerning Greater Plainfield's Merchants.

John L. Brower, of 127 East Fifth street, will take local orders for flowers for William H. Brower's Sons, of 946 Broadway, N. Y.

The City Steam and Hand Laundry, 19 Somerset street, and you will be convinced that they are up to date. They do special hand work on open-front shirts.

Alex. Lusardi, 211 West Front street, has just received a large stock of fresh fruit for the holidays. He also has a full line of nuts and confectionery. Prices reasonable.

J. C. Blimm, the East Third street grocer, has a word to say to the holiday buying public. Briefly stated referring to groceries, "he has the best of staples and the prettiest of fancies."

It is often remarked that men are careless with their clothes. This is no doubt due to the fact that the clothes do not fit well. When once you become a patron of M. J. Cashin, the Park avenue clothier, your clothes will fit and always look well.

The life of a baby in a Plainfield home recently depended upon the absolute purity of milk given to him. That was the physician's statement to the family. A postal to William Lindsay & Company, of Mounain avenue, brought the kind of milk wanted. Thus the baby's life was spared.

The little folks as well as the older ones are delighted over the display at Campbell's confectionery on West Front street. A little house made entirely of candy and illuminated with electric lights is to be seen in the window and is attracting much attention. Pure candies only are made by Campbell.

Special inducements are made by C. E. Hepburn & Co., the druggists, to purchasers on Friday and Saturday of this week. Their line of perfumes has attracted favorable comment and proves to be a drawing card. All kinds of fancy toilet and useful articles suitable for Christmas gifts adorn their counter.

Some of the things that are suitable for the holidays and can be purchased at R. W. Barnes' on Park avenue, near North avenue: Sweet oranges, Baldwin apples, hickory nuts, Heinz's mince meat, table raisins, plum pudding, maple syrup, baked beans in pans, crullers, celery, lettuce, and Flemington sausage.

Orders for over 550 pounds of Huyler's candies have been taken by John P. Powers, the North Plainfield druggist. He has been compelled to send in for an extra lot on account of the unexpected demand. Mr. Powers claims to have the largest and finest assortment of perfumes to be found anywhere in Greater Plainfield. Place your orders now.

"Buy now"—is the advice that Lederer is giving to those who want the choicest and most desirable gift goods. "Don't know what to give"—Nothing will help you to decide quicker than seeing the thousand and one things at Lederer's. They have a line of fancy celluloid novelties in exclusive designs, any one of which would send a feminine heart in a flutter.

Although the scarcity of flowers, this year, has sent the prices soaring, Miss A. E. Lincoln, the Park avenue florist, has prepared her hoilday display which will be disposed of at the former rates. Cut flowers are always gladly welcomed and appreciated in the sick room, at the table or for a bouquet, and they are here in plenty. Then, of course, there is a fine line of the potted plants, palms and ferns which make a pretty and lasting gift.

THEATRICAL.

At the Bijou Theatre, New York, Christmas week, Miss May Irwin will commence her annual engagement, presenting John J. McNally's comedy-farce, "The Widow Jones." This is considered by many critics as being the best play that Miss Irwin has ever had, giving her great scope for the display of her original methods. Miss Irwin will be heard in a number of the old song hits and will also have some new ones. The songs she will sing are, "I want You Mah Honey," "Mamie Come Kiss Your Honey Boy," "The New Bully," "Ain't dat Scand'lous," (new), "Good Bye Boose," (new), Frog Song, and "Live Humble." The male portion of the company will include among its numbers H. F. Robert, Jacques Kruger, Chris Bruo, Roland Carter, Charles Church, Lewis Foley and Frank Johnson. The women are Florence Reed, who is a daughter of the late Roland Reed, Genevieve Reynolds, Mabel Florence, Melene Dunlap, Edythe Blair and Grace Vaughan.

—Franklin, Benevolent and Somerset Councils, Jr. O. U. A. M., will elect officers, Thursday evening, December 26.

LITERARY.

The January "Success" has just arrived, brimming with inspiration and practical information that seems calculated to interest anyone who really wants to "turn over a new leaf" with the New Year. Aside from this, the issue contains a number of up-to-date, timely subjects indicating the world's achievement. One of the most noticeable is the opening article, a graphic and hopeful prophecy by the famous explorer, Evelyn B. Baldwin, whose subject, "Why I am Certain of Reaching the North Pole," is instructive and entertaining. "It Transforms Forests into Newspapers," by Frank Hix Fayant, is an important paper on the newest of American industries, that of using wood pulp for making paper. "Buffalo Bill" is the author of an article that should attract the attention of everyone. It is entitled "In the West Theodore Roosevelt Won His Health and Strenuousness." A series of articles, entitled "Business and the Larger Life," by Edwin Markham, the author of "The Man with the Hoe," "Lincoln and Other Poems," etc., begins with this number. The illustrations throughout the magazine are as inspiring and attractive as the text. Joseph Blethen is the author of a clever fiction story, entitled "A Comedy of Options," and there is also a new poem by Richard Lee Gallienne, "Stand with New Will," a song for the New Year.

HOW WEDDING CAME NEAR BEING STOPPED

Absence of Groom Nearly Prevented Granting of the Marriage License.

CEREMONY TOMORROW.

MISS BUTLER WEDS HENRY C. BREEDEN, OF CALIFORNIA.

Bride Went After License at the County Clerk's Office—Prosecutor English and W. A. Coddington Came to Rescue.

Miss Emma Butler and Henry C. Breeden, of California, are to be married tomorrow at the home of Miss Butler's sister, Mrs. E. W. Hedges, on Watchung avenue. For a few minutes last Monday, while Miss Butler and Dr. B. VanD. Hedges, were in the County Clerk's office at Elizabeth, it looked as though the wedding would have to be postponed. All of this anxiety was occasioned by trouble in securing a marriage license.

As the contracting parties are from out of the State it was necessary that a license for the marriage be secured. It was for this purpose that the trip to Elizabeth was made. To the great astonishment of Miss Butler and Dr. Hedges, they were informed by Mr. Howard that it was necessary that the contracting parties be present else he could not give the license. This it was impossible to do, as Mr. Breeden was on his way from California to Plainfield and would not arrive until the last of the week. According to the State law it is necessary that the license shall be secured five days before the marriage.

Just as Miss Butler was about to give up hope of accomplishing her purpose, Prosecutor English and Former Judge W. A. Coddington, of this city, came to the rescue. Their opinion regarding the construction of the law was pitted against Clerk Howard and his legal adviser, Z. K. Norman. The argument on both sides was well presented and finally Miss Butler won her point. Mr. Howard consented to issue the license, with the understanding that the prosecutor and Mr. Coddington should help him out if any trouble resulted. This was agreed to and Miss Butler with much satisfaction received her license.

Mr. Howard's point was no doubt well taken, for the Attorney-General had sent him a notice that it was necessary that both parties be present. The argument set forth by Mr Coddington as well as the prosecutor was that the intent of the law was complied with, and that was all that was necessary. It was exceedingly fortunate that Mr. Coddington was at the Court House that day, otherwise there might have been a postponement of the wedding. Mr. Coddington was very glad to render such services as were necessary, and no doubt feels a personal pride in knowing that he was of some assistance.

This is the first case of the kind ever reported in the county and one that is not likely to occur again in a long time. However, a precedent has been established and until the law is more clearly settled other persons who may become interested will no doubt take advantage of the construction put upon it in this case.

SPECIAL MUSIC.

Will be a Feature of Christmas Service at Congregational Church.

Arrangement has been made for an elaborate programme of special music at the Congregational church at Sunday morning's services. There will be an augmented choir of mixed voices and a special quartette consisting of Miss Guild, of New York, soprano; Miss Grace Carroll, of this city, alto; William Brown, tenor, and Alfred E. Holmes, basso.

Poor Connections.

People who have occasion to use the trolley between this city and Bound Brook complain a great deal about the connections between the Plainfield and Bound Brook trolleys at Dunellen. The cars do not make any pretense at meeting each other, it being only by chance that the cars meet at that point.

Supper for Endeavorers.

At the close of the regular meeting of the Christian Endeavor Society, of Hope chapel, Wednesday evening, the members were entertained with a supper given by Miss Mabel Firstbrook and Miss Mary Duvier and was spent afterward in social chat.

—Plainfield Council, No. 711, Royal Arcanum, will hold an important meeting Monday evening, when all the members are urged to be present.

—Grand Foreman V. W. Nash has returned from Red Bank, where he paid a fraternal visit to Shrewsbury Lodge, Ancient Order United Workmen. This evening he will visit a lodge at Newark.

MARCONI IS HONORED

The Guest of New Foundland's Governor.

WIRELESS TELEGRAPHY A CERTAINTY

Its Inventor Says He Has Not the Slightest Doubt of Success—New Methods Will Cheapen Rates 25 Per Cent.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Dec. 20.—Governor Boyle of Newfoundland gave a large luncheon in honor of Mr. Marconi yesterday. Among the guests present were Premier Bond, the cabinet ministers, the heads of departments and representatives of the press. The affair was practically a state function.

Governor Boyle in proposing Mr. Marconi's health spoke exhaustively on the inventor's work since his arrival in the colony.

Replying, Mr. Marconi thanked Governor Boyle for the many kindnesses shown him and for his flattering remarks. After referring to the important factor in the progress of civilization which lies in a facility of communication between different countries Mr. Marconi said:

"If my system of wireless telegraphy can be commercially established between different parts of the earth, the possibility of which, I may state, I have not the slightest doubt, it would bring about an enormous cheapening in the methods of communication at present existing. The system of submarine cables of today fulfills the demands of communication to a great extent, but the great cost of the cables themselves and their heavy working expenses cause the existing method to be beyond the reach of a majority of the people inhabiting the various countries of the world. But could this new method be applied I believe the cost of what we now call cabling to England might be reduced at least twentyfold. The present rates are 25 cents a word. I do not see why eventually, with the wireless system, this cost should not be reduced to a cent a word or less."

Miss Holman Ready For Wedding.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Dec. 20.—Miss Josephine Holman, fiancee of Signor Marconi, admits that she is about to join Signor Marconi in New York, although she refuses to state the time of her departure. Miss Holman declined to say whether she would be married to Signor Marconi in the east or not. It is known among her intimate friends that her wedding outfit, even to the wedding dress, has been completed. It is believed by some of her friends that the marriage may take place next week in New York.

Oil In Egypt.

LONDON, Dec. 20.—The Daily Graphic publishes a dispatch from its Cairo correspondent to the effect that operators employed by the petroleum syndicate, after working for two years at Geb-el-Zeit, near Suez, have encountered petroleum in the sand at a depth of 2,115 feet. A terrific gas flow followed the discovery and caused an explosion which wrecked the boring plants and blocked up the well. This discovery is considered important, continues the correspondent, as pointing to the existence of oilfields in Egypt.

Indications point to wife murder and suicide.

HOLIDAY RECESS.

The House and Senate Adjourn to Jan. 6.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—Before the house adjourned yesterday over the holiday recess a special order was made for the consideration of the Nicaraguan canal bill, beginning on Tuesday, Jan. 7, and to continue until the bill is disposed of, the order not, however, to interfere with revenue or appropriation bills. The session of the house was brief, the major portion of the time being occupied by Mr. De Armond (Mo.) in making a personal explanation regarding reports circulated in his district concerning his course in the matter of the extension of the rural free delivery.

In the absence of Mr. Frye of Maine, president pro tem., Mr. Perkins of California presided over the session of the senate.

The bill temporarily to provide revenue for the Philippine Islands, which was passed by the house of representatives Wednesday, was referred to the committee on the Philippines.

A bill to increase the official bond of the United States marshal of Alaska in certain cases to $75,000 was introduced by Mr. Hoar and passed without reference to the committee.

Senator Hanna introduced a bill granting a pension of $5,000 a year to Mrs. McKinley, widow of the late president.

A bill was introduced by Mr. Penrose reviving the grade of vice admiral of the navy and promoting Admirals Sampson and Schley and Captain Clark to that rank.

At 12:40 p. m. the senate went into executive session and at 1 p. m. adjourned until Jan. 6, 1902.

Car Jumped the Track.

SHARON, Pa., Dec. 20.—An accident occurred on the Pittsburg, Bessemer and Lake Erie railroad yesterday by which a dozen passengers were more or less injured, not, however, fatally. There were many persons painfully cut by flying glass and bruised by being thrown against the seats in the car. The accident occurred at Houston Junction, a short distance from Mercer. The train was being shifted from a switch to the main line. All the coaches on the train passed safely over the switch except one, a day coach. It jumped the rails, jolted over the ties a short distance and then turned completely over.

Porto Rico Asks Reciprocity.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Dec. 20.—The chamber of commerce of San Juan has urged the governor of the island of Porto Rico to transmit a cablegram to the authorities at Washington requesting that congress, when dealing with the question of Cuban reciprocity, will consider Porto Rico. The chamber of commerce asks that Porto Rican sugar be protected against the introduction of Cuban sugar into the United States and that a bounty be paid for Porto Rican coffee as an American product under the protection of the American flag.

Germany May Lose Watch Collection

BERLIN, Dec. 20.—The removal to the United States of the Manfel collection of antique watches, which has now been loaned to the New York Metropolitan Museum of Art at the request of Mr. Di Cesnola, director of the museum, is a subject of comment in several of the newspapers that are campaigning for the establishment of a law similar to the one now in force in Italy prohibiting the removal of works of art from the country. It is reported here that J. P. Morgan has or is about to buy this collection of watches.

Plans For a Costly Bank Structure.

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—The National City bank is considering plans for the erection of a bank building on the site of the old custom house, which it now owns, to cost more than $4,000,000 and to be the finest structure of the kind in the world. It is said that the one under discussion is to be a tall structure and that it will make an imposing appearance. The total cost of building and land if this idea is carried out will be in the neighborhood of $8,000,000.

American Steamer Wrecked.

COLON, Colombia, Dec. 20.—The American steamer San Blas, Captain Catarinich, from San Francisco Nov. 29 for Panama, which has run ashore on the coast of Salvador and which will probably be a total loss, was wrecked at the same spot where the Pacific Mail steamer Nicaragua was lost Dec. 30, 1891. A German steamer belonging to the Cosmos line was later wrecked at this same point.

State Manufactory Destroyed.

EASTON, Pa., Dec. 20.—The Hyatt School Slate Manufacturing company's plant, located at Bangor, was destroyed by fire last evening; loss, $60,000, partly insured. The origin of the fire is unknown. The factory was the largest of its kind in the United States and employed 125 hands. This is the third time the company has been burned out in fourteen years.

Indians Starving.

GUTHRIE, Okla., Dec. 20.—Cherokee Indians are reported starving in the hills near Tahlequah, in the Going Snake district, as a result of the loss of their crops and the blizzard. They are members of the Netoowah tribe.

ROASTED IN FURNACE

Ten Men Killed by an Explosion at Pittsburg.

UNDER SHOWER OF MOLTEN METAL.

Workmen at the Top of the Blast Were Warned of Their Danger, but They Failed to Heed.

PITTSBURG, Dec. 20.—Ten men were burned to death and four injured by an explosion of gas at the Soho furnace of Jones & Laughlin, limited, in Second avenue, near Brady street. The explosion was caused by a slip in the furnace, the gas and flames belching upward through the bell. The men were on the furnace platform, eighty-five feet above the ground.

There were nineteen men on the furnace platform when the explosion occurred. Fifteen of them were caught in the flames, two of whom escaped with slight injuries. The other four were the regular men employed as top fillers, who escaped without injury.

The explosion was caused by the gas becoming incased in a crust of cinder forming at the bottom of the furnace. A wheelbarrow containing ore had been sent up to the men, and when they went to dump it into the bell of the furnace they pushed it over too far, and it rolled into the hopper. The barrow weighed 900 pounds and was too heavy for the four men to raise. The fifteen laborers, all Hungarians, were then sent up to assist them. Had it not been for the barrow accident no one would have been hurt, as the regular men knew how to protect themselves at such times, as similar explosions are of frequent occurrence.

The most distressing feature of the disaster was the death of one of the men. He was seen by the thousands of people who were on their way to work to run to the platform railing and leap into the air. He was a mass of flames as he whirled through the air. He fell on the stockyard shed and literally burned to death before the eyes of the crowd, fifty feet below, who had no way to reach him.

The residents of Second avenue who saw the accident say it was too horrible to describe.

When the explosion occurred, burning heaps of cinders settled around the men almost knee deep. Their shrieks were terrible, and their frantic efforts to save themselves were pitiful in the extreme.

General Manager J. B. Laughlin said that the accident was one of the most disastrous that had ever occurred in the history of the company.

"The top fillers heard the explosion and told the men to come away. I suppose they had taken hold of the ore barrow and did not hear them. The blast of flame shot up, and they were killed, and the others became so confused by their burning clothes and the smoke that they did not realize how to save themselves. These men were never on the platform before.

"Some persons thought that a mass of molten metal caught the men. This was not so."

Senator Berry Injured.

LEBANON, Mo., Dec. 20.—United States Senator J. H. Berry of Arkansas while on his way to his home at Bentonville was badly injured at Newburg by a fall on the ice. Senator Berry took dinner at Newburg, and as he got entered the Pullman coach his crutch slipped on the icy platform, causing him to fall forward into the coach. He struck the stump of his leg on an iron weather strip, injuring his hip joint. His son telegraphed here for medical attendance, and the senator was taken to a hotel here upon the arrival of the train. The surgeons think the hip joint is not dislocated, but there may be a fracture which may prove serious at his age.

Sampson Very Ill.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—"Rear Admiral Sampson is a very sick man, but he is no worse than he has been for the past week," said Dr. Rixey, his attending physician, yesterday. Dr. Rixey declined to go into a detailed explanation of Admiral Sampson's illness further than to say his nervous system is greatly depleted and that his physical strength is consequently impaired. Mrs. Sampson and the friends of the family are naturally alarmed by his feeble condition, and they are fearful that he cannot recover.

A Frigid Week In Kansas.

TOPEKA, Kan., Dec. 20.—Three degrees below zero is the lowest temperature recorded by the official thermometers in Kansas. The indications are for colder weather still. The cold weather has lasted a week. At present the cold is unaccompanied by wind, and no suffering to stock is resulting. If it were not for the scarcity of water, stockmen could get along without any trouble from the cold weather. The water supply, however, is the most serious problem of the winter.

Cadets Vote to Abolish Hazing.

DETROIT, Mich., Dec. 20.—The cadets of the Michigan Military academy at Orchard Lake have voluntarily and unanimously adopted resolutions abolishing hazing and fagging in all forms. Every cadet in the school signed the resolutions, which are similar to those adopted some time ago by the cadets at West Point.

SEWAGE DISPOSAL.

The committee which was appointed by the Borough Council some time ago to consider the question of sewer disposal for the borough held its first meeting last evening. Two of the members were unable to be present so nothing was done save to discuss the situation. As in every well-governed municipality, it is only a question of time when the borough will have to provide a sewage disposal plant of its own.

The existing sanitary conditions are perfectly satisfactory for the present but the continued growth of the place will require a system of sewers in time. It was well to begin the consideration of the question before complications should arise which would require an immediate and hurried relief. Now the boroughtes have time to carefully consider the subject and find out the best way whereby the desired ends may be accomplished.

Although last evening's meeting did not succeed in even starting the work, it has brought the subject up and will turn attention in that direction. It is to be hoped that the committee will not wait long before another meeting is called and that an organization can then be effected.

A Grand Rapids (Michigan) furniture man began advertising his office furniture six years ago, spending $10 a month for newspaper "ads," relates the Philadelphia Record. Gradually his advertising brought such results that he now spends more than $5,000 a month for space in the leading newspapers. He has succeeded in winning a trade which other manufacturers could have had by advertising in their home newspapers. In this day men have to advertise not only to secure more business, but to save what trade they may have.

The Christmas season in Plainfield promises to be one of unusual activity. Hosts of young people are home from college and school for the holidays. Other visitors are in town for the week. Society circles have planned a week of continued activity with a number of dances and other attractions. Churches and fraternal organizations have planned Christmas celebrations on unusally elaborate lines. Everything points to a Christmas holiday time which will excell in enjoyment any of previous years.

The action taken by Superintendent H. M. Maxson, of the city public schools, is directly in line with that taken by the borough school authorities. A letter has been sent to every parent asking that all children not vaccinated within the last five years, submit to the operation without delay. Mr. Maxson hopes that all will be vaccinated during the holiday recess so that the children may return to school next month without fear of the dread disease even if it should make its appearance in this city.

An official request on the part of the Common Council that the new contract with the Plainfield Water Supply Company contain a provision which will allow those consumers, who desire them, to have water meters, would undoubtedly be granted. Let the committee which is now negotiating with the Water Company remember that fact.

If the present ordinance regulating the hackmen at the North Avenue station does not definitely fix the rights and privileges of the hackmen, then it is time that the Common Council so amended it that there can be no question as to the meaning of the law.

It is rumored that several boroughties are preparing to publish a book on "What the Committee on Municipal Ownership Has Not Done." It will require two large volumes to contain all the subject matter.

Among the good things which have fallen by the wayside this year is the weights and measures ordinance which Councilman Lee introduced early in the year.

Owing to the pressure of advertising local news will be found on page three today.

There is still need for a coat of new paint on the fence at the North Avenue station.

WHAT OTHERS SAY.

Clippings From Other Newspapers Which May be of Interest to Plainfield and Its Citizens.

The Board of Freeholders is about to start a new link to the stone road system of the county. This will benefit the lower end of Hillsborongh and Montgomery townships, which have as yet had little benefit from the expenditure of public money in this way. It will complete the system to the Mercer county line on the south, as it has been completed to the Morris line on the north. Not until these direct lines of travel have beeh macadamized, should the board allow its attention to be diverted to other directions.—Somerville Unionist-Gazette.

New Jersey vital statistics show that marriage and business thrive in about the same relative proportion. If business is good marriages are numerous; if business is dull weddings are postponed until a more convenient season. According to the Bureau of Vital Statistics, there were 15,857 marriages and 31,048 deaths in this State for the year ending June 30 last. The increase in the number of marriages during the past three years is stated to be proportionate to the growth in population and coincident with the prosperous condition of business throughout New Jersey. The birth rate is reported to be 17,549 for each thousand of the estimated population, which is slightly in excess of a death rate of 16.12.—Morristown Chronicle.

TEA TABLE TALK.

Short Sketches That Are Not Always News, But Just as Interesting.

A unique arrangement has been made at the offices of Reed & Coddington in the Smalley Building on North avenue. There is a desk telephone in each office of the firm, while a third desk 'phone is on the desk in the office of the typewriter and stenographer. Anyone calling for either Mr. Reed or Mr. Coddington will get the typewriter, from whom they will learn whether either one of the firm is in. She then by a clever device can call the member wanted without leaving her desk and the person called is not obliged to leave his desk.

An Envangelist's Story.

"I suffered for years with a bronchial or lung trouble and tried various remedies but did not obtain permanent relief until I commenced using One Minute Cough Cure," writes Rev. James Kirkman, evangelist, of Belle River, Ill. "I have no hesitation in recommending it to all sufferers from maladies of this kind." One Minute Cough Cure afford immediate relief for coughs, colds and all kind of throat and lung troubles. For croup it is unequalled. Absolutely safe. Very pleasant to take, never fails and is really a favorite with the children. They like it. L. W. Randolph.

DOWIE ON THE STAND.

The Head of Zion Tells His Side of the Case.

CHICAGO, Dec. 20.—"Dr." John Alexander Dowie broke down when he went on the witness stand yesterday in his own behalf and between choking sobs he told how his confidence in his brother-in-law and legal opponent, Samuel Stevenson, had been shaken. The portly figure of the aged witness shook spasmodically and the tears streamed down his face as he related memories of Stevenson's espousal of Dowie's sister, now deceased. Later as he was cross examined his meek and lowly demeanor changed, and he denounced Stevenson, calling him an "abominable traveling companion," and said that he was of no use in Zion and was always blundering.

Judge Tuley's court was packed to overflowing with followers of "Elijah II." who followed minutely the "doctor's" testimony and who at the end of the day's session gathered around him to act as his bodyguard back to Zion.

Captain H. A. Worthington Judd, secretary of Zion lace industries and Zion Land and Investment association, was called to the stand. Attorney Reeves asked him whether he believed implicitly that Dowie was Elijah. Attorney Packard, for the defense, strongly objected to the question, but Judge Tuley ruled it pertinent to the case, and Judd affirmed his belief that the preacher was the prophet of olden times.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Topic For the Week Beginning Dec. 22, "Our Gifts to Our King." Text, Matt. ii, 1-12.

The story of the Babe of Bethlehem never loses its fascination. Poets and artists shall ever find it an unfailing source of inspiration and all their efforts shall not exhaust its boundless resources of beauty and hope. The virgin born Son is more than innocence and purity. He is the promise to us of pardon and peace and paradise. He is the gift of the Eternal Father to mankind, the image of that Father's inmost personality and power, the fullness of all goodness and love. His life shall be the simple unfolding of all that inner nature, so that in word and deed we see clearly displayed all inner thought and feeling and choice of the perfect life, such as we should be if we were wholly right and good. Such a one on earth is the assurance of help for us. He can save us by imparting of His life and love to us until we love and live as He does.

His gift to us of priceless worth calls for our gifts to Him, in token of gratitude and loyalty.

Gold.—These magi from the far east brought presents of princely value. They honored Him in their giving and were honorable in their gifts. And He had need. The flight into Egypt and living there in a foreign land would perhaps have been impossible, at least most difficult, but for these presents. So now the cause of Christ needs our largest benefactions. Misery goes unrelieved, sin unchecked, because the gold needed for the service has not been presented. The world has waited long ages for many institutions of Christian philanthropy, and the possibilities of human betterment have scarcely yet been touched because the wealth of the world has not yet been presented to Christ. What glorious investments the future holds for our young men who bring all to Jesus! Getting wealth has its fascinations; accumulation brings deep satisfaction, but he alone knows the real value of riches who learns how to use them wisely, liberally, gladly, for the Lord. Begin with what you have now—not one-tenth, but use all for Christ, as He used all His resources for you.

Frankincense.—This is incense used *in worship. Bring all your inner pow*ers of adoration and learn to worship. It is to be feared that our intense life in seeking gain in business and recreation of mind and body, after the strain of that strife, dulls the sentiments of worship and reverence until we lose the mystic sacredness from life and al becomes common and frivolous. You cannot afford to lose the sanctuary from your soul. Have some hidden spot of spirit where you and God retire alone to make covenant and commune together. Kneel before the Christ life until its sacred sweetness fills you with joy and praise that you are living and capable of its brightness and beauty; then present all your best hopes, ideals and strong desires to Him as incense of frankincense. That is worship, though no church incloses and no human ear hears you.

Myrrh.—That's for sorrow, symbol of suffering—not pain for Him alone, but for us. If we are to be like Him, we shall learn the ministry of pain and the lessons which anguish alone teach. There is no escape from suffering in this world. The question of importance is how it shall be borne. If unwilling and rebelliously, it must still be borne and shall yield only bitterness; but if our troubles and trials are borne as crosses on which we suffer with Him in humble submission we shall share His consolations and the victory promised those who overcome. Bring your gifts to Jesus!

Loving the Lord.

It is evident that we love all beings who possess those principles or qualities of mind and heart which are congenial to us. Similarity of affection where it is not selfish is always a ground of conjunction between those who possess it. In the various relations of life we frequently meet with those who love the same things or the same principles that we do, and we are immediately drawn toward them, though we have never seen them before. There are also many whom we have never seen, but of whom we have heard, whose character we know from their writings or from the records of history, for whom we feel a strong degree of affection. In the same way we can love the Lord.—Rev. Chauncey Giles in Helper.

Superstition and Religion.

Superstitions have indeed been associated with religion; so they have with law, medicine, nature, the family, the state. But we do not reject what is true in them with the false. Religion is just now eliminating itself from many superstitions, and there is every day more religion in the world and less ignorance, doubt and fear.—Rev. C. W. Biddle, D. D.

Near to the Saviour.

Nearness of life to the Saviour will necessarily involve greatness of love to Him. As nearness to the sun increases the temperature of the various planets, so near and intimate communion with Jesus raises the heat of the soul's affections for Him.—Spurgeon.

Glory.

When human weakness wrestles in the breast,
Though naught is seen of every anguished throe,
'Tis then the snow white banner is the best,
'Tis then that mankind meets his deadliest foe.

But on, brave heart, wear a majestic face
Devoid of evil; thou the fray hast seen.
Go seek the way by which some godly grace
May come to mortals, with no veil between.

Go, fainting sot, though hope grows chill and wan
And nightfall seems a wraith of dim despair;
'Twill be an hour of rapture when the dawn
Of wisdom rises—from thy night of care.

KEEP OFF THE EARTH

During the cold and wet weather as much as possible—that is, keep as much shoe leather between the soles of your feet and Mother Earth as you can conveniently carry. It's wisest in the beginning and cheaper in the end to provide yourself with shoes having good solid soles—cold-proof and water-proof, if possible.

We are selling exceptionally good shoes of just this sort for men and women; children, too.

Well built, with broad, heavy soles and with stout uppers.

They're a very paradise of rest for weary feet, and a paradise of economy for weary purses.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Dec. 22—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

Topic.—Our gifts to our King.—Matt. ii, 1-12.

The story of the birth of Jesus is always an interesting one and particularly that part which tells of the coming of the wise men from the east and of their worship and gifts. Who these wise men were, whence they came or how God led them to come we do not know. Ingenious imaginary descriptions have been given of them and of their meeting together and their journey to Bethlehem, guided by the star, but all these descriptions are speculative. No definite information has been given on the subject, nor is it specially needed.

The fact that wise men did come from the east to seek and to worship Christ at His birth is the certain revealed fact. We know also what they gave to Christ, and it is this that concerns us now. In their gifts they should instruct and inspire us.

The wise men gave themselves to Christ. They gave themselves to Christ at a great sacrifice. It took time and money, the endurance of hardship and the sacrifice of comfort to make their long journey to Bethlehem that they might prostrate themselves before Christ and practically offer first of all themselves to Christ. If we have not done so, we should give ourselves to Christ. Christ is our King, and the King wants first of all His subject—the love of his heart and the consecration of his life. All other giving to Christ is in vain unless we first give ourselves to Him.

2. The wise men gave reverence to Christ. They fell down and worshiped Him in reverence. We should also worship Christ and in every way manifest our reverence for Him. There is much irreverence in the world today, and this spirit of our age has invaded the realms of our religious life. Sacred things are lightly spoken of and lightly esteemed. May it never be so of our attitude toward our King, but may reverence and respect always characterize our attitude toward Him and all that is His.

3. The wise men gave the best gifts to Christ. They gave "gold, frankincense and myrrh." These were their best gifts—gifts such as were usually given to kings. Christ wants the best we have to give—our best time, our best talents, our best love, our best service. It is best or nothing with Christ.

4. The wise men gave natural gifts to Christ. They gave evidently the products of their own lands, for gold, frankincense and myrrh were eastern products. In other words, they gave what they had. This is all Christ would expect of them and all He expects of us. If we have much to give, we should give much, but if we have but little and give it in sincerity and love it is just as acceptable Him.

BIBLE READINGS.

Gen. xxviii, 20-22; Ps. lxxii, 10; Isa. lx, 1-7; Luke ii, 1-20; John iii, 16; Rom. vi, 12-14; xii, 1, 2; I Cor. vi, 19, 20; xvi, 1, 2; II Cor. viii, 1-7; Rev. ii, 10; xxi, 24-26.

To Do Right.

To do right simply because it is right; to obey without considering the cost; to serve with no thought of guerdon other than service—how few attain this!

We have still some distance to climb up the mount of self abnegation; in our hearts inquire constantly of the future, either here or hereafter. Love does not question; love has no fear. Picture to yourself the most perfect union of hearts possible on earth, and does not each rest in a sweet calm of confidence? The greater the love, the greater the trust always.

A lady, speculating concerning the future life, received the reply from a Christian friend, "I am not curious concerning that," and seemed incapable of comprehending such a mental attitude in one sincerely religious. Yet it was the right attitude. Oh, what joy to know Christ so intimately, to serve Him so unselfishly, to love Him so entirely, as to be able to say, with the sweet poet Whittier,

I know not where his islands lift
Their fronded palms in air;
I only know I cannot drift
Beyond His love and care!
—Philadelphia Ledger.

Used to the Best Advantage.

Use your present supply of grace to the best advantage. It is given for each pressing need. God loves to bestow it upon those who make the fullest and wisest use of it. He promises it will not only answer the purpose for which it was conferred, but will enable you to receive a large increase with it according to our day, but deals it out more liberally as He sees it utilized and prized to the utmost.—Presbyterian.

A Difference.

There is as much difference between reading the Bible and reading about it as there is between eating dinner and reading a bill of fare.—Philadelphia Methodist.

God's Help and Will.

The man who does God's will will soon find out that he has God's help.—Ram's Horn.

"Nothing to Live For?"

Nothing to live for? Soul that cannot be,
Though aches hearts break the world seems emptiness;
But unto thee I bring in thy distress
A message born of love and sympathy,
And may it prove, O soul, the golden key
To all things beautiful and good and bless
Thy life which looks to thee so comfortless!
This is the word, "Some one hath need of thee."

Some one, or who or where I do not know;
Knowest thou not? Then seek; make no delay,
And thou shalt find, in land of sun or snow,
Who waits thee, little child or pilgrim gray;
For, since God keeps thee in His world below,
Some one hath need of thee, somewhere, today.

CHAPTER XIII.

THE FOUNTAINS OF THE DEEP.

Macpherson's trial was set for the October term of court, and I was not without the hope of being able to go to the fort in term time to appear for him. The case was not as simple as it seemed. Wykamp's evidence would be difficult to set aside; and only those who knew Macpherson would be able to escape the suspicion which pointed naturally to the man whom the land company's scheme would dispossess. There were two or three ways to clear Angus, but just how to do it without implicating Selter was a problem. As a last resort, I determined to bring the Tennesseean to book; and this determination was clinched when Selter refused to come to the rescue of his own motion. I put it to him conditionally, asking him if he would make a deposition and take his chances of escape if it should become necessary to save Mac from paying the penalty in his stead.

"I reckon ye wouldn't hardly expect a man to do that ther', would ye, Mr. Halcott?" he said, when I had laid the matter before him. "Ez you say, Mac's been a powerful good friend to me, an' all that, but ther's limits, ain't ther'?"

I said yes, and did not urge him, but I made out my case for Angus with a ruthless alternative in reserve. If I couldn't clear him without involving Selter, the Tennesseean should pay the price.

In the meantime, matters went on the even tenor of their way in the valley. For a purpose of my own, a purpose which detailed itself at some length in a technical correspondence with my legal partners in Denver, I dissuaded Winifred from leaving the valley; nay, more; I even succeeded in convincing her that it was her duty to take the Valley Head school for the fall term. She did it; did it under protest, I fancy; but that mattered not so long as my end was subserved. Not to make a mystery of it here, I was determined to set her free, legally, and it was a strong point in her case to have her resident within rifleshot of her husband's camp and ignored by him. There was but one plea which could be set up and sustained against Wykamp, but the evidence of that was not lacking. Nan no longer went about her work with a laugh and a gibe for all comers. She hid herself, as is the wont of such stricken creatures.

Now that it is all over, I willingly confess that I had serious doubts as to my ability to persuade Winifred to appear in court in her own behalf; doubts which would have been convictions had I known her half so well as I thought I did. For her the incomplete marriage was a bond not to be set aside by any decree of court, and I ought to have known it from the beginning. Bad as he was Wykamp was still her husband, and I did her an injustice by daring to hope that his added sin would make her forget it.

It was in the latter part of September that the Glenlivat dam was completed, and the great canal with its laterals was ready to receive the water. The "turning on" was set for the first day of October, and there was to be some fitting celebration of the event. A rude barrack for the accommodation of the invited guests had been built on the slope below the engineer's camp, and there was to be a stockholders' special train from Denver, and a barbecue, and afterward a brass band auction sale of some of the choicest tracts of the company's land.

The morning of the last Sunday in September dawned bright and clear. A hunting party coming from North Park had stopped over night at the settlement, and one of its members, a young clergyman from the east, held a religious service in the schoolhouse. As I learned afterward, the young man had no lack of hearers. Anything in the way of a religious meeting was a novelty in the sequestered valley, and the settlement turned out almost to a man. Winifred went with Mrs. Selter; Angus was there with his cowboys, and there was even a goodly sprinkling of the workmen from the engineer's camp.

For reasons of my own which were not grounded in any cynical prejudice, I did not go. To tell the truth, I was growing anxious about Selter. There was a mystery connected with his movements reaching back to a certain evening when I chanced to see him coming down from the northern gulch beyond the hog-back with a burden which he carried as one carries a sick child. The following morning I had found a new-made grave—or at least a place where something had been freshly buried—in the embankment of the great canal; and when my morning stroll up the gorge beyond the hog-back ended at the door of Wykamp's powder magazine. I had warned Angus to be prepared to prove an alibi at any hour of the day or night. As a corollary to all this I watched Selter beagle-wise.

On the Sunday morning, therefore, a small thing kept me from going to the schoolhouse with Winifred and Mrs. Selter. It was a fact brought out by my field glass. On the higher slopes of the hog-back I had chanced to descry a moving speck making its way westward toward the upper canyon; in the object glass of the binocular it defined itself as a man zigzagging across the ridge with a heavy burden of some kind on his back. It was Selter, and the mystery might then have pointed to its own solution if I had not been so deeply engrossed in Macpherson's affair. The time for the trial was drawing near, and if I watched Selter like a paid shadower of men, it was chiefly because I feared he might disappear before the critical moment. This going afield with a backload had the look of it. Doubtless he was preparing a hiding place somewhere in the mountains to which he could retreat at need.

The schoolhouse meeting had begun when I lost sight of the moving speck and lighted my pipe to weigh the promisings of an attempt to follow Selter. From my chair on the porch I could hear the singing quite distinctly above the murmur of the river in its bed across the road. The autumn storms were delayed, and the weather for a fortnight had been cool. In consequence the water was low and its thunder was softened until the cataract pouring over the waste weir of the completed dam was clearly audible. Up among the western peaks the clouds were gathering; and I remember thinking that Wykamp must be relieved to know that the season for cloudbursts was fairly over for the year.

The thought had scarcely taken shape when the man himself came riding by. As once before, anxiety was in his face, but this time his gaze was not upon the river. It was fixed upon the cloud wraiths hanging over the western peaks, and he rode as one who lets his horse find out the way. The hither shoulder of the hog-back had scarcely hidden him before I heard a stir in the house and the gentle closing of a door. A moment later I saw Nan making her way across the upper field, and thought I divined her purpose. She had seen the engineer pass the house; had guessed that he was on his way to the dam, and had taken this chance, her last chance it might be, of finding him alone to plead once again for justice.

It seemed a pity that the girl should have to fight such a hopeless battle alone. I know not, nor shall ever know, if she believed that he was free to marry her. But such poor amends as money may make should at least be hers; and at the apex of this thought I determined to follow her, and to do what a man and a lawyer might do to help her.

FATAL RAILWAY COLLISION.

Three Train Hands Killed on the Southern Pacific.

SAN ARDO, Cal., Dec. 20.—Southern Pacific trains No. 9, bound for San Francisco, and No. 10, southbound, collided between this place and Uplands early yesterday. The trains were to meet at Uplands, but it is claimed the air brake on No. 10 would not hold, and it crashed into No. 9 before the latter train could be stopped, smashing both engines, two baggage cars and one mail car into kindling wood. The cars took fire immediately and were entirely destroyed. Some mail and express packages were burned.

A fireman, baggageman and express messenger were killed. Several passengers were slightly injured in the chair and smoking cars.

Considerable cash was shipped on the Wells-Fargo car. A safe containing bullion is still in the flames. The loss to the railroad company is said to be about $40,000.

Bank Robbed at Noonday.

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Dec. 20.—At noon yesterday the bank at Springdale, a town ten miles north of here in this county, was robbed by one man. No one was in the bank except the assistant cashier. The robber drove up to the bank door in a buggy. He walked to the cashier's desk before he was noticed. He compelled the assistant cashier to go to the vault and give him all the money in sight, about $7,000. While this was taking place a citizen walked into the bank. He was at once covered by the robber's revolver and made to throw up his hands. The robber then hurriedly left the bank, dropping $1,000 upon the walk. He jumped into his buggy and drove rapidly north. Officers were soon in pursuit and two miles from town came in sight of him. He jumped from the buggy and made his way to a thickly wooded mountain.

Alleged Murderer Caught.

TRENTON, N. J., Dec. 20.—Chief of Police Hiner has been notified by telegraph from Syracuse, N. Y., of the arrest at that place of Franklin Williams, who is wanted here to answer the charge of killing John Kraus on Thanksgiving day. Detective Pilger left this morning for Syracuse with a requisition for the surrender of Williams to the New Jersey authorities. Williams' wife, who gave the story of the killing of Kraus by her husband, is still in jail. She has been detained as a witness. The police here are satisfied that Williams is a bigamist. His real identity has been established, and his correct name is George Hettrick of Buffalo. His story that he had studied for the priesthood, the police are satisfied, is untrue.

Notable Paris Wedding.

PARIS, Dec. 20.—There was a large gathering of people, including the Turkish and Austrian embassadors, at the Roumanian church here to witness the marriage of Miss Hazel Singer, daughter of Charles Singer of Chicago, to Prince John Ghika, son of the Roumanian minister to France, Gregoire J. Ghika. General Horace Porter, the United States embassador, and General Winslow were the witnesses for the bride. Miss Leishman, daughter of John G. A. Leishman, United States minister to Turkey, and Miss Edith Clarke of New York were the bridesmaids. The sultan of Turkey has bestowed a decoration on the bride in honor of the occasion.

Salt Lake Death Mystery Unsolved.

SALT LAKE CITY, Dec. 20.—The mystery of the death of James R. Hay, secretary of the Pacific Lumber company, whose body was found Wednesday buried in a shallow trench in a field on the outskirts of the city, remains unsolved. No trace of the $3,800 which he is said to have collected from Peter Mortensen, a contractor, on Monday night has been found. Mortensen, who was arrested on suspicion of complicity in the evident murder of young Hay, still stoutly denies his guilt or any knowledge whatever of the way in which Hay met his death.

General Alger In Critical Condition.

DETROIT, Mich., Dec. 20.—General R. A. Alger, former secretary of war, is suffering from a severe attack of gallstones. A consultation of physicians was held at his residence, and it was decided that unless General Alger showed considerable improvement very soon an operation would be performed on him then to relieve the trouble. Dr. H. W. Longyear, one of the consulting physicians, when asked whether General Alger was in a dangerous condition, replied, "He is in a critical condition, but I do not think it should be called dangerous at present."

IRISHMEN ORGANIZE

United Irish League of America Adopts a Constitution.

AN ADDRESS TO THE PEOPLE ISSUED

Object of the Order Is to Aid Ireland to Win Back From England the National Independence Now Denied.

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—The provisional executive committee of the United Irish League of America, formed by the Irish envoys, Redmond, McHugh and O'Donnell, before leaving for Ireland, held its first meeting yesterday afternoon at the Hoffman House. John F. Finerty of Chicago, president of the newly organized league, presided, and most of the twenty-one original members of the executive committee were in attendance.

A constitution and bylaws based on the lines of the old Land league organization were adopted and arrangements made to organize the country in support of the Irish leaders and the United Irish league in Ireland, which is now arousing the vigorous hostility of the English government.

The executive committee was engaged until a late hour in drafting an address to the people of this country on which they base their claim to active support of the Irish cause at the present time. The address starts out with this declaration:

"Ireland, by her chosen and accredited envoys, who recently visited the United States and Canada, has called upon us, her kith and kin on this continent, and on all lovers of liberty to aid her in winning back from England the national independence of which she has been so unjustly deprived and also the fertile lands, the natural heritage of her people, of which successive crown confiscations—the result of violated treaties—robbed their ancestors.

"The grievances under which Ireland, after the lapse of generations, still labors would justify an appeal to arms were her military resources and opportunities equal to her wrongs and her resentment. Were she in a position to draw the sword or use the rifle with even a reasonable chance of success we would pr

MUSICAL PROGRAMMES AT LOCAL CHURCHES

Elaborate Plans Made for Special Christmas Services Tomorrow.

MUSIC AND PREACHING.

SPECIAL MUSIC TO BE GIVEN BY AUGMENTED CHOIRS.

Most of the Local Churches are Preparing to Give Special Christmas Services Tomorrow.

With a few exceptions the Christmas services will be held in the various churches tomorrow. Some especially elaborate music will be rendered in most of the denominations.

For several weeks past the choirmasters in Greater Plainfield's churches have been busily engaged training the choirs of this feast commemorating Christ's birth. The sermons will not be lost sight of in the make up of the sacred programmes, for the city and borough possess a large proportion of able pastors, who may be depended upon to deliver helpful and scholarly discourses.

As a general rule large congregations are present on the occasion of the Christmas services and from the interest that has been taken in the preparation of the musical features this year there promises to be goodly attendances tomorrow.

The Cristmas service at the Congregational church tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock will include the following programme of music "The Guiding Star," by Frederic F. Bullard; "There Were Shepherds;" a solo by Mr. Brown; an offertory, "Holy, Holy," from "Sanctus," by Gounod; and "Heavens are Telling," by Hayden.

The music will be given under the direction of Alfred E. Holmes, and the chorus will be composed as follows: Sopranos, Miss Maude Lord, Miss Kathryn Glen, Miss Daisy Elsberg, and Miss Gould, of New York: contraltos, Miss Julia Belknap, Miss Grace Carroll and Mrs. Nichols, of Fitchburg, Mass.; tenor, Morris C. VanArsdale and Messrs. Baily and Brown, of New York; basso, Dr. Frank Hallock and Wyatt Barnes and Alfred E. Holmes, of New York.

The Christmas music at the First Presbyterian church tomorrow will be unusually attractive. There will be a male chorus composed of the following: Tenors, Elmer D. Cutting, E. Maxwell Honeyman, Harry Yaeger, Charles M. Hummer; bassos, Ralph R. Miner, Joseph O'Keefe, Sydney R. Titsworth and R. Wilson Derby. Clifford A. Braider is the organist and director.

In the morning there will be an elaborate programme, including a solo by E. Maxwell Honeyman, and the evening programme will also be elaborate with a solo by R. Wilson Derby. Mr. Braider will be assisted by Martin A. Korff, violinist; Dr. J. F. Berg, 'cello; and Miss Charlotte M. Conger, pianist.

The Christmas service at the First M. E. church tomorrow morning by the choir will include "O Little Town of Bethlehem," by Nevin; "The Annunciation and "Cradle Song of the Blessed Virgin," by Barnby, and "Christmas Awake! Salute the Happy Morn," by Schnicker. In the evening there will be a choral cantata "The Hope of the World," and "Star of Bethlehem." Charles L. Lewis will have charge of the musical services.

The choir of the First Baptist church will render the following selections at the Christmas service tomorrow morning: "In the Beginning," by Mac Pherson; "Arise, Shine," by Foote; "Glory to God in the Highest," by Burdett; "The Babe of Bethlehem," by Bartlett and "The People that Walked in the Darkness," by Rogers. Howard Case, organist, will be in charge of the musical service and there will be solos on the 'cello. Tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock the Sunday-schools will unite in a service.

Luncheon to Debutante.

Through an oversight the name of Miss Elizabeth T. Bowen was omitted in giving the names of those who assisted at the reception given in honor of Miss Helen Sprague Martin Thursday evening. Today Miss Bowen gave a luncheon at her home on Watchung avenue in honor of Miss Martin.

—A consignment of 300 pounds of Huyler's confectionery, chocolate and bon bons, in one, two and five-pound boxes, just received by Druggist John P. Powers, Somerset street.

SPECIAL PREPARATIONS.

Harry Werner Has Many Attractions for Holiday Buyers.

In addition to his unusually fine stock of clothing this season, Harry Werner has a splendid line of men's neckwear and furnishings. He is offering values in this line which is filling his store with eager buyers. Then he has also a fine line of umbrellas, initial handkerchiefs and and fancy braces in boxes all selected with a view to their efficiency as holiday gifts.

ANSWER PURPOSE WELL.

Lots of Appropriate Christmas Gifts at Armstrong's Pharmacy.

Thomas Armstrong, the druggist, corner North and Park avenues, has a lot of things that would answer the purpose for Christmas gifts, and answer it well. Military hairbrushes he is booming especially and the sales have passed his expectations.

Hudnut's, Nubin's and Lazell's perfumes have been arranged in a large showcase, so that the entire assortment can be seen at a glance. The line of fancifully-shaped atomizers are also grouped and no one will have any difficulty in making a choice in a very few moments. The stock of sterling silver toilet articles attracts special attention.

POWERS' DISPLAY.

He Has Many Things of Interest to Christmas Purchasers.

A very attractive window display is made at John P. Powers', the North Plainfield druggist. Tastefully arranged are all sorts of goods, suitable for Christmas presents, and the decorations in varied colored paper set these off admirably.

The largest line of perfumes in Greater Plainfield are carried by this progressive druggist. Each bottle is neatly arranged in an ornamental box or case of an unique design. Many orders have been taken for this line of goods and in all probability it will be necessary to replenish the stock.

AFTER HOLIDAY TRADE.

A. Willet & Son Offer Many Things of Interest These Days.

A. Willett & Son, the Park avenue shoe firm, is wide-awake and hustling after Christmas trade. A peep in their store "around the corner" will convince anyone that here is the place to buy the latest styles in shoes and slippers. A more complete line of goods is not to be found this side of New York and persons desirous of making Christmas presents will find just the kind that will please at this store. A special line of slippers are offered for the holidays.

HOLIDAY DISPLAY.

Particularly Catchy is the One at E. S. F. Randolph's Pharmacy.

A special effort has been made by Druggist E. S. F. Randolph, of Watchung and North avenues, to surpass all others in making a catchy display for the holidays. His windows are handsomely adorned with artificial roses and attractive designs in colored tissue paper.

Among the many things acceptable as Christmas presents are toilet and other articles in cocobolu wood, solid ebony and sterling silver, which sell at astonishingly low prices. A full line of Lazell's, Colgate's and Roger and Gallet's perfumes are placed on exhibition in the Perfume Booth, which graces the interior of the well stocked establishment.

SPECIAL SALE.

Marks the Days Left Before Christmas at New York Clothing Store.

The New York Clothing Company, M. Weinberger, manager, will conduct a special sale of clothing during the next four days, which will include matchless values. Mr. Weinberger has fully prepared himself for the holiday trade with a special line of suitings, overcoats, boys' reefers, men's ulsters, gloves, neckwear and a full line of smoking jackets and mackintoshes, as well as men's furnishings. The store presents an attractive appearance in every department.

Away for the Holidays.

Miss Mertie Montague, Miss Southworth, Miss Mabel Hare and Miss Anderson, all teachers in the North Plainfield Public School, have left town for the holiday season. Miss Montague goes to her home at Watertown, N. Y. Miss Southworth and Miss Anderson have gone to their homes at Binghamton, N. Y., while Miss Hare, whose home is in Syracuse, will spend a few days at Binghamton before going home.

SOMETHING TO SAY ABOUT WATER METERS

A. J. Leader Writes in Plain Words His Opinion of the Water Company.

UNFAIRNESS OF RATES.

GIVES A FEW INSTANCES OF PRESENT METHOD OF CHARGING.

How it is Unfair to Company and to Patrons—Concerning the Cost and Profit of the Present Plant.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—Keep the ball rolling in reference to water meters. "What is everybody's business is nobody's business." Some one must take the iniative, and that devolves upon The Press. Many people think it no sin to "beat" railroad, trolley and water companies. It is "nip-and-tuck," and the water company thinks it smart in not giving patrons water meters. Honest men demand them; dishonest men will beat the company anyhow. See the injustice, and yet, it is said, "consistency is a jewel."

Here are some of the jewels: A man and wife have five faucets and pay $24 a year (fifty cents a week for God's free water.) This is about an average for milk for the same time. A firm uses a tap twenty-four hours a day for cooling purposes, and pays about $5 per year, using more water in one day than a private family would use in a month. It is unnecessary to state that said tap is connected with a sewer.

Another party, with eight in the family, has one faucet in kitchen only, and pays $5. Another has a faucet in his yard, and gets his daily supply for a large family for $5 a year. A boarding house, with probably twenty inmates, has water in kitchen and bathroom, and uses one hundred times more water for baths than a small private family, and it costs about $10 a year. Another, on the outskirts of town, pays for one faucet in the kitchen; has a tank in his attic; gets a New York plumber to come out and connect pipe with tank, and gets water all over the house for $5.

Many use lawn sprinklers, and let them run till midnight. In some cases the company is imposed upon, but why doesn't it employ inspectors to look after its interests, the same as a gas company does? What difference does it make to a water company if a person uses twenty gallons a day from five faucets, or whether he uses the same amount from one faucet? The time was once when discretion and common sense were used in the water company's office—there's none there now.

Put in meters, and if a man wants to waste water or gas, let him pay for it. Another mean joke the water company has played on commuters is that of changing the hour from 8 to 7 in the evening for sprinklers. When a man doing business in New York has had dinner it is about 7 o'clock—too late to use it. I am not speaking of the wealthy, who have gardeners and coachmen to do it for them, but the middle classes.

In Rutherford and other towns and boroughs in this State, where meters are used, householders are allowed 118 gallons of water per day at a cost of $10 per year, payable quarterly, and all are more than satisfied.

When there was a great howl some time ago about rates, I read a statement from Mr. Bergen about the amount of money invested, etc., and that no dividends were paid. It was the weakest thing I ever read. One part was true, where he said they had an inexhaustible supply of pure water which cost them nothing. Surely the company doesn't expect to sink up thousands of dollars in the ground for piping and machinery and get dividends the same year, but no gold mine will ever pay the dividends of the Plainfield Water Supply Company when it sees fit. I heard it was about to declare a dividend of 30 per cent. but, on account of adjusting rates, withheld it. Talk about expenses, (not including the directors), what are they? Office rent, two clerks, an engineer and fireman.

Any one street in this city, take Front street, for instance, will pay all the expenses and 20 per cent. dividend, after the cost of the plant is settled for. All the rest of Plainfield and other towns is clear profit. Sum it up for yourself.

I am anxious, like many others, to have meters, and have offered to loan the company money to put mine in, as I was told it had no money to do it with.

Let us have a water company in North Plainfield, and let every householder become a stockholder to the extent of $10 on his meter, and as much more as he wants, or the company is willing to dispose of. Inside of three years, if directed by honest men, and it is not made a political matter, it will pay handsome dividends.

My experience with companies has been when they were not paying dividends you could not give the stock away, as stockholders were afraid of being assessed. May be Mr. Bergen is in the same fix, and would be glad to unload the whole of the Plainfield Water Supply Company on the City of Plainfield for its actual cost. Not much! Watch the stockholders; they have a good thing and are going to keep it. Talk about municipal waterworks, you can't buy the Plainfield Water Supply Company, even if it has not paid a dividend. Wait till it squeezes out small stockholders, and then it will pay good dividends—on the quiet. Many business men in this city indorse the above, but object to signing a letter of complaint; fear it might in an indirect way hurt their business. I am not afraid of that, neither will I sign "X Y Z," or "Taypayer," but simply

Yours truly,
A. J. Leader.

DISPOSAL BEDS NOT READY

CONTRACTORS HAVE FAILED TO KEEP THEIR PROMISE.

City May Take the Work Away and Complete it at Contractors' Expense.

Although it was given out sometime ago by Gleason and Kiely that the alterations at the city disposal beds would be completed by December 15, the promise has not been fulfilled. Two more beds yet remain to be filled and at the pesent rate of procedure it would be hard to tell when they will be finished.

Street Commissioner Gavett declared yesterday that the tardiness in the work has been due to the dilatory and incompetent management on the part of the contractors. The latter have suffered the most as it means a money loss to them and it is not at all impossible that they will not make a dollar on the contract.

Abraham VanFleet, of Somerville, who secured the sub-contract for filling the beds with cinders, has been hindered in his work through not being afforded proper facilities. If the cement work had not been delayed his part of the work could have been completed in the alloted time.

Much of the delay has also been attributed to the time lost last summer when the weather was propitious, through bargaining for material. The employes were compelled to remain idle for many days through a lack of proper supplies.

It is not at all improbable that providing the beds are not turned over to the city for final tests within a reasonable time, the contract will be taken from Gleason & Kiely and completed at their expense.

CLASS PRESENTS.

Both High Schools Held Presentation Exercises Yesterday.

During the exercises at the city and borough High Schools, yesterday, presents were given, in the former school by the seniors to the juniors and in the latter by the entire school to the teachers and senior class members. This feature provoked much amusement.

In addition to this the Plainfield seniors served refreshments to the juniors at the conclusion of the exercises and the juniors gave the upper class pupils an entertainment in the Franklin School in the evening. This affair consisted of a charade and a dance. In the charade Harold Nomer and Miss Edna Moore were the leaders of the respective sides.

The committee consisted of Albert Beers, chairman, the Misses Helen Lane, Lucy Coriell, Grace TenEyck and May Murray, and Archibald Brakeley, Ralph Lane and Hervey K. Doane.

First Recital.

The first recital of the Musical Club was given yesterday afternoon at the home of Miss Anna O. Marsh, 915 Madison avenue. There was a paper on early music, a discussion of the subject and rendition of several selection by members.

High School Teacher Engaged.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Alice M. Whitney, of Watchung avenue, to Francis Hyde, of Boston. Miss Whitney is a teacher in the City High School.

B. FRANK CORIELL FOR PRESIDENT OF COUNCIL

Members of New Council Held Caucus to Select Officers Last Evening.

AT J. F. BUCKLE'S HOME.

COUNCILMAN LEE WILL BE MADE HEAD OF FIRE COMMITTEE.

No Other Changes in Heads of Committees—Mr. Coriell Will Select Rest of Committees Later On.

The members of the Common Council for 1902 met last evening at the home of Councilman J. F. Buckle, on Westervelt avenue, and discussed the question of organization for the coming year. The only members absent were Leslie M. Daniel and Jan. van Herwerden. The caucus was in every sense a harmonious one.

As a result of the caucus, and as predicted by The Daily Press, B. Frank Coriell will be the new president of the Council. His place as chairman of the fire committee will be taken by Robert L. Lee, of the Fourth ward. As for the chairmanship of the other committees there will probably be no changes. The committees will be filled later by the new president.

While there has been no official action in the matter, the chances are that the new Council will change its rooms from the Coward building to the Smalley building on North avenue, while the officers of the collector, street commissioner and city clerk will probably be placed on the ground floor of the Smalley building.

ATTRACTIVE DISPLAY.

Great Show to be Seen at L. W. Randolph's Pharmacy.

One of the most attractive holiday displays to be found in the city is at L. W. Randolph's pharmacy on West Front street. Mr. Randolph's clerks have decorated the store elaborately with Christmas greens, while "A Merry Christmas" awaits all who enter. Greens are prettily arranged about the store and handsome fountain.

The windows present a beautiful sight filled with hundreds of articles, all suitable for presents. There is an endless variety of toilet articles, perfumes, etc., while Huyler's confections have a prominent place. Popular prices prevail and these are within the reach of all.

SETTLEMENT MADE.

After Much Litigation the Famous Schimer Case is Over.

The arrangement to amicably settle the case brought by the Jersey Central Land Improvement Company, against Mrs. Schimer, as noted in Monday's Daily Press, has been carried out. The plaintiff has released all claim for rent and she has vacated the premises. The litigation has been going on for over a year. Codington & Swackhamer represented the defendant, while the plaintiff's interests were attended to by W. S. Angleman.

SEASONABLE GOODS.

Now to be Found at Tailoring Establishment of M. J. Cashin.

Christmas is being appropriately observed at M. J. Cashin's custom tailoring store on Park avenue, where the proprietor has a full and complete stock of goods suitable to the season. Mr. Cashin is prepared to give his patrons the best goods at right prices and now is the time to order a suit that you may start the new year right. He invites an inspection of his goods.

Branches Out for Himself.

R. B. VanArsdale, for several years with the Curtis Mantle Combany, of Park avenue, and more recently with L. Cronk & Son, of North avenue, has branched out for himself. Any person desiring the services of a first-class workman will do well to engage Mr. VanArsdale. His card will be seen among the advertisements in today's Press.

Miss Prescott's Engagement.

The engagement of Miss Anna H. Prescott, of Watchung avenue, to Mr. Porter, formerly of Brooklyn, now of London, England, is announced. Miss Prescott is a teacher in the Plainfield High School.

Sunday-School Festival.

The Sunday-school festival of Grace M. E. church will be held Friday evening, Dec. 27.

TITLE IS CLEAR.

Trouble Was Over a Restrictive Clause Concerning Manufactories.

In the article in The Daily Press of Tuesday regarding the change of location for the silk mill plant from Washington avenue to Chatham street, it was said that the change was made owing to some irregularities in the deal. It should have been said that there was a restrictive clause against manufactories in the title, hence it was impossible for the company to take the land on Washington avenue.

CANDIDATES FOR CHIEFS.

Chosen at Meeting of Wetumpkah Tribe of Red Men.

Wetumpkah Tribe, No. 229, I. O. R. M., Thursday evening, made the following nominations for officers: Prophet, Nathan Titsworth; sachem, Harry H. Coddington; senior sagamore, Dr. Arthur H. Dundon; junior sagamore, Fred Firstbrook and Elwood Sebring; chief of records, E. F. Dorman; collector of wampum, Nathan Samuels; keeper of wampum, Meyer Leichtentritt; and trustee, William A. Westphal.

Robert Humphreys, Fred Huff and Frank Blatz were named as delegates to the Great Council of the order. These nominations will be acted upon next week.

CHRIST'S KINGDOM.

Theme of Christmas Service at Seventh-Day Baptist Church.

The congregation of the Seventh-Day Baptist church held a special Christmas service this morning at 10:30 o'clock. The theme for the service was "Christ's Kingdom; From the Cradle to the Crown." Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis and the choir arranged the sacred programme.

The chief feature was Adam's "The Holy Child," a cantata rendered by the choir. Brief addresses on "Christ's Kingdom" were made by Rev. Dr. Lewis, on various phases of "Christ's Kingdom." In the musical parts the regular choir was assisted by Miss Grace Carroll and William Holmes.

HOLIDAY SHOW.

John H. Doane is Right in Line With the Rest.

If you need a pair of comfortable shoes or slippers you'll find just that kind at John H. Doane's, on West Front street, an excellent place to select Christmas presents in the shoe line. His goods are the best and there is a complete line to select from. You are sure to find just the kind, style and size, and Mr. Doane prides himself on the fact that never before has he had such an assortment of goods for the holidays. His windows will give one an idea of the wide variety and prices.

KEEPS THE BEST.

Hodge's Pharmacy Has Attractions for the Crowd of Shoppers.

If perfumery is "her" failing, Hodge's Y. M. C. A. pharmacy is the place to visit. He has a line of the best grades, a selection from which cannot fail to be satisfactory. Mr. Hodge also has the exclusive sale of "Belle Mead" sweets which are becoming very popular.

Clothing Company Formed.

The Schepflin Clothing Company, Christian Schepflin, Charles Brown and Wallace M. Brown, all of Brooklyn, have filed articles of incorporation in the office of the county clerk at Elizabeth. The authorized capital stock is $50,000 divided into 500 shares. The company's office will be located on West Front street, and the company is authorized to manufacture, purchase, sell or deal otherwise in clothing.

Invited Them All.

Redwood Camp, No. 10262, Modern Woodmen of America, has decided to extend invitations to the Mayors, Councils and chiefs of the fire departments of both the city and borough to attend the entertainment to be given by the organization on the evening of January 13.

Gift From Pupils.

Miss Edith Gilbert, one of the popular teachers at the Randolph-Cooley Collegiate School, received as a Christmas gift yesterday a beautiful little watch from her pupils. Such recognition certainly attests the high esteem in which the teacher is held.

Spoke Against Cider Joints.

At the regular meeting of the Reform Club, Thursday evening, President W. C. Smith and John Goodwin spoke on the local cider joint evil. By way of entertainment, W. R. Mattox recited and Oscar Moore sang several solos.

—Neuman Brothers wish to call attention to the excellent quality of the oranges they are selling by the box and also the special reduction in price.

Y. M. C. A. BEAT LEAL'S, HIGH SCHOOL WINNER

Double Basket Ball Game Played in Y.M.C.A. Gymnasium Last Night.

PLAY WAS INTERESTING.

CITY HIGH SCHOOL DEFEATED SECOND Y. M. C. A. TEAM.

First Team Beat Leal's by Score o 43 to 8—Hot Defence Made by School Boys—Team Work Did It.

Two interesting games of basket ball were played in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium, last evening. The first team of the Y. M. C. A. defeated the Leal's School boys by a score of 43 to 8. The second team of the Y. M. C. A. met defeat at the hands of the Plainfield High School boys by a score of 9 to 4. Two of the strongest High School players were with the First association team.

The contest between the Y. M. C. A. boys and the Leal's School team was a brisk one. The winning team's superior team play determined the result but the defense was hot and, at times, the play was very exciting. Leal's boys had a little hard luck on goal throwing.

The other game was a very even thing. Accuracy is goal throwing gave the High School boys the advantage. Neither side developed anything remarkable at team play but the game was a close one and interesting to the spectators.

The lineup in the two games was as follows:

Y. M. C. A.		Leal's School.
Cranston (Neal)	rf	R. Schoonmaker
Denton	lf	Howard
Cahoone	c	Hall
Giles	rg	W. Schoonmaker
Heineke, (Hand),	lg	D. McGee, (Abbott)

Score—Y. M. C. A., 43; Leal's School, 8. Goals from the field—Cranston (2), Deeton (2), Cahoone (5), Giles (3), Heineke, Hand, R. Schoonmaker, Hall. Goals on fouls—Cranston, Denton (2); Cahoone, Hall (2). Fouls—Y. M. C. A., 4; Leal's School, 7. Referee—Charles B. Morse. Umpires—C. E. A. Heywood and Eric Moraller. Scorer—P. S. Whitall.

2d Y. M. C. A.		High School
Raynolds (Smith).	rf	Thompson
Sherwin (Pruden),	lf	Meeker
Luckey (George)	c	Scull
Pruden (Luckey)	rg	Hallock
Smith (Raynolds)	lg	Conant

Score—2d Y. M. C. A., 4; High School, 9. Goals from the field—Sherwin, Meeker, Scull, Hallock. Goals on fouls—Smith. Fouls—2d Y. M. C. A., 3; High School, 3. Referee, Charles B. Morse. Umpire—C. E. A. Heywood. Scorer—P. S. Whitall.

TO SUIT ALL.

R. J. Shaw is Catering to All Tastes of Christmas Shoppers.

The choice of suitable Christmas is decidedly unhampered at R. J. Shaw's pharmacy, for the range is wide enough to suit every taste. It includes fancy jewel cases, shaving mugs and lather brushes, mirrors, perfumes, Florida water and toilet soaps and all the other suitable gifts to be found in a first-class pharmacy. Everything is bright and new and the prices would induce you to buy for yourself while buying for others.

UP TO THE TIMES.

M. C. VanArsdale is Ready to Meet the Holiday Trade.

M. C. VanArsdale, the East Front street shoeman, is with the throng of merchants who believe in having a fine line of goods at Christmas time. His shoes are made for wear as well as looks and this year's styles are acmes of ease and service. They combine the height of fashion with absolute comfort.

For Special Duty.

Chief Stahl, of the North Plainfield fire department, has arranged to have two firemen detailed to attend each public entertainment given in the borough. This is done to prevent the spread of any fire, should occasion arise. The idea was put in practice for the first time at the lecture given in the Somerset street school Wednesday evening.

Struck by Express.

A large yellow dog, belonging to a colored family living on West Second street, was struck by an express, Thursday evening, near the Liberty street bridge. It was badly injured and was despatched later by Patrolman Higgins.

Max O'Rell Quite Ill.

Max O'Rell, who appeared in Plainfield recently, is now ill in New York with appendicitis. An operation will be performed next week

LITERARY.

The Outlook is a weekly newspaper and monthly magazine in one and under one subscription price. Its magazine number for January has eight illustrated articles, two stories (one by Sarah Orne Jewett) a carefully written history of the week's doings and many book reviews. There are full-page portraits of new political figures of prominence, articles of anecdotal biography, a most entertaining instalment of Edward Everett Hale's "Memories of a Hundred Years," and much else of permanent value.

A splendid New Year's number is the January McClure's, making good, right at the start, the promises of the editors for the coming year. To a dog story is given the post of honor, and "Army Jack," by W. J. Carney and Chauncey Thomas, goes straight to the spot by virtue of its soldierly frankness and sincerity. Along with "Army Jack" goes "The Demon in the Canon," a bear story by Henry Wallace Phillips, author of the "Red Headed Cupid." A very notable paper, the first of a series, is George Washburn Smalley's personal recollections of "English Statesmen and Rulers." "The Forest Runners," Stewart Edward White's vigorous novelette of the Michigan forests, is continued in this number. "Telegraph Talks and Talkers," by L. C. Hall, is a fascinating revelation of some of the mysteries of the Morse language of dots and dashes, by an old telegrapher. Cyrus Townsend Brady writes a splendid account of David Crockett and the immortal defence of the Alamo; Cleveland Moffett tells of his explorations "In and Around the Great Pyramid;" Robert Barr recounts another adventure of his captivating hero, James V. of Scotland, and James Barnes has a rattling story of the Boer War. Two short poems, "Individualism," by William H. Hayne, and "Magic of the Past," by Paul Ketser, complete the number.

Write This Down

in the book or memory: there is no such thing as a harmless cough. Every cough is a warning of a confidence that goes from bad to worse unless it is remedied right away. Opium-laden medicine is a delusion. Allen's Lung Balsam cures the worst of colds. It clears the bronchial passage, so that the lungs get plenty of air. Why not get a bottle today?

THEATRICAL.

The holidays are ushered in with a display of enterprise usual with Manager Proctor on special occasions. At two of his theatres in New York the Proctor Stock Co. has the lead with presentations of worthy plays, vaudeville bills of uncommon excellence are offered at two other theatres in his local chain and before the New Year arrives his new theatre in Newark will swing into his circuit with a stupenduous vaudeville and comedy bill.

The Christmas bill of vaudeville at the Twenty-third Street is the biggest not alone in quantity but in quality that Manager Proctor has presented this season. "The Cycle-Whirl," with its sensational bicycling, continues to be the topping feature and the engagement of King and Samuelson, the "Hobo" team of the Madison Square Garden six-day racing contingent, has proven to be a master stroke of managerial enterprise.

The Fifth Avenue will have Manager Proctor's sumptuous production of "The Still Alarm" as its attraction and the splendid manner on its presentation and the large attendance it attracted at the Fifty-eight Street last week should give ample cause for expectations of a great week.

Augustin Daly's old comedy-drama, "The Last Word," is given by the Proctor Stock Co. as the feature of the One Hundred and Twenty-fifth Street's programme. Peter F. Dailey, assisted by a special company of twenty clever actors, is announced as the topping feature of the vaudeville carnival billed at the Fifty-eight Street. Early openings are announced for Christmas Day at all Proctor theatres. The Twenty-third Street will open at 11 a. m., and will give three complete performances before midnight. The other theatres under the Proctor management will open at 1 p. m., and will give special continuous performances Christmas Day.

Of Benefit to You.

D. S. Mitchell, Fulford, Md.: "During a long illness I was troubled with bed sores, was advised to try DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve and did so with wonderful results. I was perfectly cured. It is the best salve on the market." Sure cure for piles, sores, burns. Beware of counterfeits. L. W. Randolph.

By Special Dispensation.

The officers-elect of Anchor Lodge, No. 149, F. and A. M., were installed last evening by special dispensation. This was done because the time for the next communication will be on Christmas Eve.

J. Whitney Baker, F. O. Reinhart, Mellick Tweedy and Lawrence L. Tweedy, of Princeton University, have returned to their homes in this city for the holidays.

COLUMN FOR THE SHOPPERS

SOME OF ATTRACTIONS TO BE FOUND AT LOCAL STORES.

A Few Interesting Items Concerning Greater Plainfield's Merchants.

Some of Artist Vroom's best work is to be seen in the water colors on M. C. VanArsdale's windows. They represent landscape effects and are greatly admired by the throngs of holiday shoppers.

The Christmas dinner table is not complete unless it is graced by a crisp-baked turkey savoring of dressing. Fred Endress makes a specialty of Jersey birds. Fine ones and of course the price is just right. Other delicacies in the meat line.

Beauties, everyone of them. That's the verdict of all who have seen the line of Christmas novelties at Hodge's Y. M. C. A. pharmacy. Mr. Hodge has had years of experience in the selection of holiday goods and his patrons this year will receive the benefit of it.

It has been said that there are more well-dressed men in Plainfield than any other city or town in Union county. This is largely due to the fact that M. Weinberger, the West Front street clothier, only handles stylish garments and at prices that are sure to sell the goods.

There is a good deal in appearances. The well-dressed man has a certain advantage over the one who pays little attention to his attire. John G. Bantle, the Watchung avenue tailor, understands the cutting of men's garments and his big custom is due to the fact that he can make the clothes fit.

Harper's Bazaar, 411 Park avenue, is a magazine of toys, ornamental and useful articles and books. The stock has been largely increased to meet the demands of the Christmas trade. This store is in general favor with the little ones and if you can't find the place readily ask the small boy or girl.

To the many young couples who are contemplating marriage this winter, it is well to say that it does not require a whole lot of money to furnish a home, especially if you go to H. E. Gayle's hardware store. Here you will find many things needed in the house at prices that are within the reach of all.

A telephone message has been received from Santa Claus, who is now loading his sleighs near the North Pole, stating that he may not have time to visit all the little boys and girls in Plainfield. In order that they may not be disappointed he has sent a load of his best toys to I. H. Boehm's, on West Front street, where a selection may be made.

Money invested in diamonds and jewelry is money well spent. A great many people seek this method of investment. If you contemplate such a move you can do no better than visit J. Hervey Doane's store in Park avenue. His stock is complete. The gold lace pins and scarf pins are moving fast. The designs are up-to-date and the prices right.

Mr. and Mrs. S. A Cruikshank and daughters, of Belvidere avenue, left today for Lakewood, where they will spend two weeks. They will drive the entire distance.

Chinese Officials Conduct Funeral For Slain Christians.

REMARKABLE PAGEANT AT TUNGCHOW

Chinamen Eulogize the Natives Who Died For Their Faith—Seventy Coffins Interred—Other Funerals to Be Held.

PEKING, Dec. 21.—The officials of Tungchow have given a remarkable funeral to a number of native Christians who were massacred last year. This action was taken in accordance with an agreement between the missionaries and the officials by which the missionaries were to refrain from demanding the punishment of those guilty of murdering the Christians if the officials would make public atonement for the crimes and impress the people with respect for missionaries and converts.

The funeral procession traversed the principal streets of the walled city of Tungchow. There were seventy coffins to be interred, and these were followed by hundreds of relatives of the victims. The procession was composed of a company of Chinese cavalry, a company of infantry, several bands and hundreds of men carrying gaudy funeral emblems. The procession took two hours to pass the reviewing stand, where were gathered the city officials, General Ma, commander of the Chinese troops who besieged Tientsin; Mr. Conger, American minister to China, and many American and English missionaries.

An immense crowd witnessed the funeral services at the cemetery. The Chinese troops, the police and the funeral attendants formed in a square, with the officials, the missionaries and the white clad mourners in the center near the graves. Chinese officials from fifty villages where the Christian converts had been massacred attended the interment and bowed before the banners as they eulogized the Christians for having died in defense of their faith. These officials subsequently signed documents guaranteeing protection to the Chinese Christians if they would return to their homes.

The missionaries and the Chinese Christians traveled in a special train from Peking to Tungchow. After the funeral services in the temple the Chinese officials tendered a banquet to the missionaries and the converts.

Similar funerals will be held in other towns.

William N. Pethick, an American, who had been private secretary and diplomatic adviser to Li Hung Chang for thirty years, died here yesterday. Mr. Pethick inspired most of Li Hung Chang's progressive schemes and was the author of his famous antiopium manifesto. He leaves an unfinished book on Li Hung Chang and his times upon which he had worked for several years past. Mr. Pethick's book contains valuable revelations concerning recent Chinese diplomacy.

Yuan Shi Kai, the new viceroy of Chili, has engaged Japanese officers to train the Chinese army. As a result of General Fukushima's visit to the southern viceroys last summer a party of Japanese officers joined Yuan Shi Kai at Paotingfu yesterday. These officers wore Chinese clothes.

The government of Japan has offered to detail a Japanese general to reorganize the Chinese army. Yuan Shi Kai is using his influence with Chinese officials in favor of accepting Japanese tutelage.

Sale of Islands Opposed.

COPENHAGEN, Dec. 21.—Fresh agitation against the sale of the Danish West Indies to the United States without first submitting the matter to a plebiscite seems to be increasing here. A large and secret meeting of members was held, the sentiment of which was in favor of a plebiscite. The ministerial organs are advocating prompt action in the matter and a disregard of the popular clamor to submit it to a vote of the people.

Feeding Unemployed In Berlin.

BERLIN, Dec. 21.—The rigorous winter is increasing the number of unemployed persons and has compelled the authorities to institute relief works not unsimilar to those in operation in the Indian famine districts. At Sixdorf, a suburb of Berlin, work on a canal has been inaugurated. This will employ 2,362 destitute artisans of that district. A heavy snowfall here has enabled the government to employ 3,400 persons.

A Connecticut Town Damaged.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Dec. 21.—One of the worst fires that has occurred in this city for years broke out in Raub's gun store on Bank street, and before it was subdued damage was done estimated at $100,000, covered by insurance. Five buildings on State and Bank streets were gutted, and a large number of stores were burned and damaged by water.

A Place For Captain Tilley.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—Captain Benjamin G. Tilley, who recently was relieved as naval governor of the island of Tutuila, Samoa, and has been on waiting orders since his acquittal of the charges lodged against him, has been ordered to duty at the Mare Island navy yard. Captain E. S. Houston has been ordered to League Island as captain of the yard.

BARRETT SAYS FAREWELL.

Some Good Advice and Suggestions to Pan-American Delegates.

CITY OF MEXICO, Dec. 21.—John Barrett of the United States delegation to the pan-American conference, who is leaving for Washington, made a farewell speech yesterday morning. He begged his South American colleagues to remember that the decision of the conference as far as the United States was concerned was dependent for approval of the action of the United States senate, which had to consider the varying interests and feeling of forty-five independent states, whereas all the Latin American delegates to the conference put together only represented eighteen independent states. Mr. Barrett went on to correct the statement made by Senor Amadon of Argentina that the United States was surrounded by a Chinese wall in the shape of its tariff. The tariff, explained Mr. Barrett, was the outcome of the outcome of the necessities of the American people and the expression of the result and interests of forty-five different states. At present nearly 30 per cent of the United States imports come in free of duty. "And we hope," said Mr. Barrett, "to be still more liberal in the future."

Mr. Barrett alluded to the rumors that had been current of the withdrawal of certain nations from the conference in case this or that thing were left undone. He exhorted all the delegates to remain until their labors were concluded.

Cold Wave In the South.

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 21.—The cold wave which for the last week has covered the south has equaled all previous records for the first twenty days of the month of December since the year 1884 and lowered in some localities all former minimum temperature readings. As far south as the Louisiana and gulf border intense cold prevails, though no serious damage to vegetation has been reported. Some snow fell in Nashville, the mercury dropping to 2 degrees below zero, the thermometer registering the same in Chattanooga. No serious interruption has occurred to traffic further than that boats plying from Memphis are tied up by heavy floating river ice.

A Fuel Famine In Chicago.

CHICAGO, Dec. 21.—A crisis will be reached tomorrow because of Chicago's coal famine if the cold weather continues. Frantic appeals were made for fuel by the largest merchants and manufacturers yesterday of the biggest dealers in the commodity. Elevators were actually closed in some of the skyscrapers, while tenants of some of the office buildings worked in their overcoats on account of lack of heat. Apartment building occupants suffered because of a shortage of steam, while many factories and industrial institutions perfected arrangements for closing their plants Monday, begging coal enough to keep the buildings warm until the famine period passed.

Settlers Flock to Oklahoma.

GUTHRIE, Okla., Dec. 21.—Every road leading into the new country is still lined with prospective settlers. Generally these men are in poor circumstances financially, who are moving their families into this region to improve their condition. This is a class of people who have suffered greatly as the result of the recent cold wave. Without food and generally without money and in a country sparsely settled, they have starved and frozen, in many cases death resulting among the children. Men who have seen these people report the conditions the most pitiable they ever witnessed.

Marconi's Plans.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Dec. 21.—Marconi announces that according to his plans he will sail for England next Monday on the Allan line steamer Sardinian. His company in London wants him to assist in the negotiations there with the Anglo-American Telegraph company. The inventor has packed his entire wireless apparatus and will take with him that portion which cannot be used here. The remainder he will leave here in readiness for his return in a month or two.

SAMPSON'S OBJECTIONS.

The Admiral's Counsel Files Bill With Secretary Long.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—The objection of Admiral W. T. Sampson to that portion of Admiral Dewey's report of the Schley court of inquiry in which he says Admiral Schley was in command at the battle of Santiago and entitled to the credit for the victory has been filed with Secretary Long. The document was brought to the navy department by Mr. E. S. Theall of counsel for Admiral Sampson and handed to the secretary.

The counsel for Rear Admiral Sampson requests that the department strike out or specifically disapprove that portion of Admiral Dewey's opinion filed in connection with the proceedings of the Schley court of inquiry in which he states his view to be that Commodore Schley was in absolute command at the naval battle of Santiago for the following reasons:

First.—Commodore Schley was not in command at that battle.

Second.—The president of the United States and the navy department had decided that Admiral Sampson was in command at that battle and Commodore Schley second in command.

Third.—The question as to who commanded at Santiago was not referred to the court for consideration, and evidence bearing on the point was excluded.

Lemly Replies to Objections.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—Judge Advocate Lemly and Solicitor Hanna have submitted to Secretary Long their report upon the bill of objections filed by Admiral Schley through his counsel to the findings of the Schley court of inquiry. In substance this report is an argument supplementary to the argument made by the writers before the court of inquiry. The principal points are an insistence upon their contention that the first report is the unanimous report of the court of inquiry, that the court was justified in rejecting Admiral Schley's evidence by the number of witnesses who took issue with him and that there is no sufficient reason for a reopening of the case as requested by Admiral Schley. Secretary Long has not yet acted upon the report, but is expected to do so at once. If adopted, the report will be forwarded to Admiral Schley.

TRADE CONDITIONS.

Extremely Heavy Holiday Business. Transportation Congested.

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

Holiday trade reached its maximum this week, nearly all sections of the country reporting exceptional distribution. While the class of goods especially stimulated by Christmas demand occupied the position of greatest prominence, general merchandise was not far behind in activity.

Transporting interests were just beginning to overcome congested conditions when severe storms made the situation more complicated than before. In many industries it is not a question of finding buyers, but securing the privilege of postponing deliveries beyond the date originally specified.

Retarded shipments caused higher prices for prompt delivery of pig iron and steel products at western cities, but conservatism still marks the course of producers regarding contracts for the future. Efforts to advance rails to $30 were defeated, and, while other finished shapes were held firmly, inflation was wisely resisted.

Failures for the week numbered 265 in the United States against 293 last year and 27 in Canada against 18 last year.

Copper Trading Demoralized.

BOSTON, Dec. 21.—Owing to the unsettled state of the copper situation the shares of that metal in the Boston stock market yesterday bordered on a state of demoralization, although the business transacted was not heavy. Calumet and Hecla slumped violently from 580 to 535, rallying to 550 later. At the low point the company's stock had a valuation of $53,000,000, a drop of $36,000,000 from the highest. The stock has sold as high as $895 a share.

FAREWELL TO TAFT.

First Governor of Philippines Sails From Manila.

WORK OF FEDERAL PARTY PRAISED.

Departing Official, Speaking From His Couch, Says He Likes the Filipinos and Hopes to Return In May.

MANILA, Dec. 21.—Over 4,000 members of the Federal party called on Governor Taft yesterady to bid him farewell and a safe return. The governor, reclining on a lounge, addressed 150 of the most prominent of his visitors, saying he was touched and honored by their presence. The organization, he added, had done so much toward bringing about peace and giving the country a stable party that it argued more for the success of American labors than anything else during the recent critical times.

The reports circulated in the United States founded on incidents connected with the war in Batangas province and the island of Samar, the governor said, tend to convey a wrong impression of the situation, which is really hopeful. Through its officers, the constabulary and provincial governments, besides 850 teachers, the commission had excellent means of acquiring information in the organized provinces, and it considers that there never was a time when there has been so much real ground for hopefulness and encouragement in regard to the attitude of the Filipino people toward the civil government. The military disaster in Samar had created an unfounded feeling of uneasiness concerning the condition of the people of the rest of the archipelago. The war in Batangas and Samar, kept up by misguided men, furnished the only obstacle to obtaining liberal legislation on the part of congress.

Continuing, the governor said he would return here. He liked the Filipinos and regretted leaving at this particular time, but it was a comfort to know that the duties of his office were in the hands of Vice Governor Wright, an able lawyer, who sympathized deeply with the best hopes of the people.

In conclusion the governor said he expected to be back before May, and he hoped to have the pleasure of presenting to the president the Federal party's memorial.

Civil government will be restored in the island of Cebu on Jan. 1 of the coming year.

POOR SERVICE.

Every day brings new complaints against the service which is now being given by the New Jersey Central Railroad. From being noted for furnishing the best suburban service in the country, the Jersey Central is past developing a reputation for generally poor passenger service. The people of Plainfield have, during the last few months, been gradually awaking to that fact and now they are blinding groping about to find some way of remedying it if possible.

There has been a decided change in poilcy, that is evident, but just where to look for immediate relief, it is hard to say. It would seem that General Passenger Agent C. M. Burt and General Superintendent W. W. Wentz, Jr., who are both residents of this city, would do something to prevent the troubles which now appear to coming the way of the Plainfield commuters and other passengers on the Central. Surely they cannot help but see the conditon of affairs.

A great variety of suggestions have been made as to how the present condition can be changed. The trouble seems to be to secure satisfactory action on the part of the railroad company. The Board of Trade has already taken official notice of the present unsatisfactory service. It has been suggested that this be followed up by personal letters from private individuals.

Several citizens have thought of going to the officials of the Lehigh Valley and Pennsylvania and see if it is not possible to secure a branch to this city so that Plainfield may have respectable railroad service once more. Meanwhile the situation appears to be growing worse as the days go by. If "kicks" will do any good, then certainly the people of Plainfield ought to rise up and give one mighty one.

The last few days have again brought to the public eye the need of a suitable skating pond. At present, Tier's pond is crowded with people, old and young, all enjoying that most delightful of winter sports. The owner of most of the bordering property has tried with indifferent success to keep the crowd away. There really ought to be some place of proper size, convenient to town, where the skaters will be welcome and where everything will be done for their convenience.

There is no doubt about the usefulness of Hope chapel. It proved that long ago. Its present development in providing physical advantages for the men and boys of the West End is a healthy growth and along very helpful lines. It now promises to look out for the mind as well as the body and soul. There is plenty of use for a night school which will not conflict with any of the evening classes of the Y. M. C. A.

Don't forget that The Daily Press calendars will make thier appearance Wednesday morning. Christmas Day, the carrier boys who have served the paper so carefully during the last twelve-month will make the rounds of the subscribers and leave the calendars. They are of pretty design and are as attractive as ever. Do not forget the lads who carry The Daily Press to you every afternoon in the year.

In another column will be found a very interesting communication from one of the residents of the borough on a subject in which we are all interested. He says a great many things that are very true. His example may encourage others to take a similar stand.

The public schools of city and borough closed yesterday until Thursday, January 2. Now the young people will have ten days to devote to skating and other winter pleasures.

DUNELLEN.

The masquerade ball and birthday party given last evening in Apgar's Hall by Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Wade in honor of the sixteenth birthday of their daughter, Nora, was a very pleasant affair and was enjoyed by a large number of guests both from out of town and in town. The ball was in costume and some characters were excellently portrayed. The evening was spent in dancing, music for which was furnished by Prof. O'Reilly, of Plainfield. Refreshments were served at 11o'clock and at 12 o'clock the dancers unmasked.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Miss Louise Robison, who presented a handsome etching to her class in the public school Thursday, was herself agreeably surprised at the morning exercises in the assembly room, yesterday, by being presented with a handsome pair of opera glasses from her class and the members of the corps of teachers. The presentation was made by the principal, Mr. White. Miss Robison responded in a very nice way and the parting, although regretted by all, had a tinge of pleasure in it. Miss Robison begins her duties as teacher in one of the New York schools Monday morning.

Funeral services of the late Mrs. Caroline Ross, who died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. John H. Coles, of Park avenue, Wednesday morning, were held from the latter's home this morning at 10 o'clock. The services, which were private, were conducted by Rev. Charles E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church, Plainfield. Several handsome set pieces of flowers were evidence of the love and esteem of friends. Interment was made in the family plot in the Methodist cemetery, Plainfield.

Louis Marley and John Callahan, both of Plainfield, were brought before Judge Clark yesterday charged with being drunk and disorderly at the dance held in the Fanwood Clubhouse, Thursday night. Both men had spent the night in the lockup and were thoroughly repentant when brought before the court. Marley was fined cost of court and Callahan's amusement cost him $5. Both fines were paid during the day and the prisoners released.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The funeral services of John H. Teeple, who died Thursday at the age of 43 years, were held this afternoon, at 1:30 o'clock, at his late residence on Park avenue, and 2 o'clock at the South Plainfield Baptist church. Rev. J. A. Cubberley preached at both services. The ceremonies were in charge of Camp No. 41, Patriotic Order Sons of Ameriea, of which the deceased was a member. A large number of friends and relatives were present at both the house and church. A large silk flag, emblematic of the order, enshrouded the coffin. A profusion of white roses and smilax testified to the regard in which John Teeple was held. The bearers were Thomas Brantingham, William Randolph, Isaac Winans and Edward Campbell. Interment was made at Hillside cemetery, Samptown.

Fire destroyed the house of John Orton, yesterday morning. The fire started, it is supposed, from a defective chimney. Mr. and Mrs. Orton and family were in the house when the conflagration started, but succeeded in getting out safely. The building, which was formerly owned and occupied by John M. Dayton, of New Market, was partially covered by insurance.

Rev. J. A. Cubberley, at the Baptist church, tomorrow, will preach in the morning upon "A Christmas Meditation." The evening topic will be "In The Foreglow of Christmas."

CRITICS OF ORIENTAL RUGS.

A Difficult and Well-Paid Vocation Aided by the Fad of Millionaires.

"To be a critic of oriental rugs," said a dealer, "is as difficult as to be a critic of painting or of music or of wine. I know men who can tell infallibly the province in which a rug was made; it is the knotting of the threads that they go by. These men earn a good deal of money, for their services are in frequent demand and the fees they get for their expert opinions are high.

"We have a number of millionaires in this city—and in New York and Chicago there are others—who are assiduous rug collectors. They hang their walls with rugs, and certainly those draperies are no less beautiful than costly. The most valuable rug in the world is in the South Kensington museum. I think that it is worth $30,000. Age improves these beautiful things, softening their colors and giving a kind of blur, a kind of atmosphere to their design. Many of the notable ones are hundreds of years old. They did not wear out in the palaces and the mosques where they were laid because no one walked upon them with shoes on; they were prayer rugs and were stepped on reverently with shoeless feet, the devotee then kneeling. Of course with such gentle usage any sort of rug would last a long time. These, made of the purest wools and dyed with the finest and costliest dyes, became more charming as the years passed.

"I don't know why it is," continued the dealer, according to the Philadelphia Record, "but moths will not attack a good old Persian rug."

Tadpoles at Wholesale.

A resident of this city is the owner of a fine aquarium, and recently commissioned a street urchin to procure for him some tadpoles from suburban ponds, promising to pay ten cents for a canful of the wrigglers. The boy was not of a selfish nature; on the contrary, he told all his acquaintances for blocks around of this new source of revenue, and there was a veritable exodus to the tadpole regions. When the gentleman reached hom in the evening, he was met by his wife with a reproachful countenance. Almost immediately he detected the sound of shrill juvenile voices pitched high in dispute. Lined up at the back door he found the original "contractor," reenforced by a score or more of his comrades, each bearing in his hand an old tomato can filled with tadpoles. The aquarium owner, being possessed of a sense of humor, took in the situation at a glance, and good-naturedly decided to receive the entire catch, giving to each boy a dime. When all had obtained their stipend, the boys gave one mighty cheer and scattered in all directions.—Baltimore Sun.

He Protested.

"The doctor would like to see you inside," said the physician's maid to the man who was waiting on the porch.

"Not much," said the bucolic patient; "he don't try none of them X-rays on me!"—Yonkers Statesman.

APPRAISER WAKEMAN OUT.

George W. Whitehead Named by the President.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—Appraiser Wakeman of New York has been removed, and G. W. Whitehead has been appointed to succeed him.

Pending the qualifying of Mr. Whitehead as appraiser the general appraiser at Boston, A. W. Brown, will have temporary supervision of the New York appraiser's office.

This summary action in Mr. Wakeman's case is the result of a consultation between the president and Secretary Gage which took place before the cabinet meeting. It is said that the president felt that Mr. Wakeman had overreached himself in his letter declining to send in his resignation and by his extreme statements in a measure justified some of the charges made in urging his removal.

When the cabinet adjourned, the president requested Secretary Gage to return to the treasury department and prepare the papers necessary to accomplish the immediate removal of Mr. Wakeman and the appointment of Mr. George W. Whitehead. The secretary was not tardy in complying with the suggestion, and in less than half an hour Mr. Wakeman was removed and his successor named.

Wakeman's Reasons.

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—W. F. Wakeman, appraiser of merchandise of the port of New York, who has been removed from office by order of President Roosevelt, has made public the contents of a letter written by him to Secretary Gage. This letter was the immediate cause of the removal. Wakeman was requested to resign Dec. 6. On Dec. 18 he wrote to Secretary Gage declining to tender his resignation and giving his reasons for this refusal. Mr. Wakeman sets forth his reasons under seventeen heads. In the first place he says that his resignation would be an admission that his "official administration has not in every respect been honest and efficient." He points out that in 1899 his continuance in office was recommended and that he had received the high commendation of the secretary himself for results accomplished. Discourtesy to those who asked for his retention in office and the acknowledgment that he (Wakeman) was wrong in various recommendations made by him from time to time are given as reasons for refusal to resign.

STEEL MILLS BLOWN UP.

Bursting Boilers Kill Three and Injure Twelve at Pittsburg.

PITTSBURG, Dec. 21.—Three dead, one missing and twelve injured is the result of a terrific boiler explosion at the Black Diamond Steel works of Park Bros., on Thirtieth street. The injured at the hospitals are all doing well with one exception.

Reuben Miller, Jr., superintendent of the plant, states that the boilers were examined last week and pronounced in excellent condition. No known cause can be given for the explosion, but a thorough investigation is now in progress.

Nearly every resident of the district was awakened by the concussion, which jarred buildings in the vicinity, and the scene of the disaster was soon filled with an excited throng, many of the workmen in the plant living close by. Before the extent of the accident became known there was much confusion, many women fearing that their husbands and brothers were victims of the boilers' deadly power.

From what can be learned the four boilers exploded at one time, reducing the mill to a heap of burned and charred timbers and twisted iron. There is not a straight piece of iron or steel left in the entire building. Even the bolts in the beams and stringers are twisted like screw nails.

The mill had sixty men on each turn, and it is thought that almost 120 men were in the plant at the time of the explosion.

Another Fatal Explosion.

PITTSBURG, Dec. 21.—By the explosion of a boiler at the plant of the American Steel and Wire company, on Neville island, one man, whose name is as yet unknown, was killed, but so far as known none of the other workmen was hurt. The plant was damaged considerably, but not enough to cripple it to any extent.

A Fuel Famine.

SPRINGFIELD, O., Dec. 21.—Springfield is facing a serious fuel famine, the worst in its history. There is not a carload of coal in town, and but few cars are moving in this direction. The Dayton, Springfield and Urbana Traction company burned wood yesterday and at night had to stop its cars between this city and Dayton and Urbana. The Superior drill shops have shut down, throwing out of work 600 employees, and other industries are on the eve of closing down owing to the lack of fuel. The waterworks pumphouse has only enough coal to last until tomorrow.

Arrested For Bank Robbery.

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Dec. 21.—N. B. Carlisle, a former merchant and later a livery stable man of this city, has been arrested here, charged with the robbery of the Springdale bank of $7,000. He is held in $3,000 bond until an investigation can be had. All the money but $4,000 has been recovered. An overcoat supposed to belong to Carlisle was found, and in the pockets were a pistol and a package containing $1,000 in bills. His examination trial will be held Monday.

Many Killed In Railway Wreck.

PADERBORN, Prussia, Dec. 21.—There has been a railroad collision in the fog near Neuenbeken between the Berlin express and a freight train, in which the former was derailed. Twenty persons were injured. The bodies of six dead have been recovered. Others are buried in the wreckage.

KEEP OFF THE EARTH

During the cold and wet weather as much as possible—that is, keep as much shoe leather between the soles of your feet and Mother Earth as you can conveniently carry. It's wisest in the beginning and cheaper in the end to provide yourself with shoes having good solid soles—cold-proof and water-proof, if possible.

We are selling exceptionally good shoes of just this sort for men and women; children, too.

Well built, with broad, heavy soles and with stout uppers.

They're a very paradise of rest for weary feet, and a paradise of economy for weary purses.

ON CHRISTMAS DAY.

How to Give a Party For the Little Ones.

A CHILDREN'S party needs to be carefully thought out beforehand. After the little ones' hats and coats have been removed they should be entertained for a few minutes by an older sister or some enterprising member of the family who can put them at their ease and make the first awkward moments pass agreeably. At this stage a story is especially nice. By the time it is finished tea will be ready, and the children will be made glad by the sight of a table sparkling with pink candles and ornamented with holly and mistletoe. The menu should be simple. Creamed oysters, little chicken patties and such delicacies should be cooked without the high seasoning which is so hurtful to small stomachs. Many jellies of different shades should enliven the table. The ices are charming frozen in little Santa Claus molds with the colorings pink, white and green. A large Christmas plum cake handsomely frosted and decorated should occupy the center of the table. Crystallized fruits and nuts in silver dishes are dainty additions.

After tea is over all may adjourn to a large room which has been emptied of its furniture to permit the dances and games which are to follow. At one end of it is placed a tree with lighted candles and glittering ornaments. This should hold a small present for each child. A lottery is a picturesque way of disposing of these presents. A number of pink and pale blue slips are inscribed with numbers and are dropped into an urn. Duplicate slips are then handed out to the children. The pink slips are for the girls, the blue for the boys. On the tree the presents are also wrapped in pink and blue tissue paper and bear numbers corresponding to the slips. Now Santa Claus appears, and, drawing a slip from the urn, he reads it aloud. The child who has a duplicate paper advances and receives his or her present from the giver of the feast, who stands by the tree, or the one who hands out the gifts can be dressed up comically as a dwarf or a gnome to represent Santa Claus' attendant. This will cause no end of fun. After the presents have been distributed the games begin. They should be under the charge of some older person who can see that the quiet games alternate with the noisy ones and that each child has a chance to take her turn. Old fashioned games like blind man's buff, musical chairs, charades or word games will be greatly enjoyed. The party can be brought to an appropriate close by dancing the Virginia reel. A hollow papier mache Santa Claus filled with nuts and candies can be handed to each child as a souvenir of the party.

How to Make Oyster Toast.

Carefully pick over and then drain a quantity of small oysters. Prepare in a saucepan a pint of thin sauce, using one large tablespoonful each of butter and flour, one pint of milk, one-half teaspoonful of salt and one-third of a teaspoonful of pepper. Scald the oyster liquid separately, skim carefully and add to it one teaspoonful of butter. Have ready eight or ten slices of thin crisp toast, dip each into the hot oyster liquor and lay on a heated platter. Drop into the sauce the drained oysters and stir over the fire until they are plump and well ruffled. Pour at once over the oysters and send to the table.

The Trouble on the Torolito.

BY FRANCIS LYNDE.

(Copyright 1898, by Francis Lynde.)

When I came in sight of the high wall of masonry cutting the upper canyon across, the thunder was a-roll in the upper air. I could hear the mutter and growl of it, and the vivid sun brightness of the day, and the clear arch of the sky, with no other hint of a storm abroad, gave it a weird effect. The water of the diminishing torrent was pouring over the waste weir; and, as on that night when I had crept trembling across the flume bridge, the engineer was perched upon his barrier, gazing down at the flood.

Nan was on the trail below, just where Macpherson had drawn rein on the night of the explosion, and when I came in sight she was calling to Wykamp. I was too far away to hear what she was saying, and the thunder of the waste weir must have made her words inaudible to the engineer; but her impassioned gestures were eloquent. She was pleading with him or warning him, I know not which, and while I looked Wykamp signed assent and turned to retrace his steps to the nearest abutment.

I thought it might be as well to hold aloof until the time for interference should be fully ripe, and climbed to a perch on the steep slope where I should be out of their sight when they met. None the less, I watched the engineer narrowly, and when he stopped midway of the dam in the attitude of one listening intently, I listened, too. Above the thunder of the waste a hoarser roar filled the air, coming suddenly but persisting like the sustained jar of a distant explosion. Like the lion's roar, the sound once heard is unmistakable. It was a cloudburst, and the test of the great wall of masonry was fairly upon it.

Wykamp hesitated but an instant, and in that instant a man darted out of the mouth of the outlet tunnel on the opposite side of the canyon and began to climb the mountain side as one who flies danger. It was Jacob Selter, and I took it he had been trying to ambush the engineer. He, too, had heard the ominous roar of the oncoming flood, and whatever his object had been he had apparently abandoned it to seek safety. It is doubtful if Wykamp saw him. The man in the engineer—there is a man hidden in whatsoever outward husk of depravity poor humanity walks abroad—was alive at last, and he was racing down in great leaps and bounds toward the girl standing in the very shadow of the towering wall. While I looked, he reached her, gathered her in his arms and carried her swiftly aside and up the hither slope, and when he finally stumbled and fell with her there was a margin of safety behind them.

I held my breath and my heart skipped a beat when I beheld the dark wall of water, brown and debris-laden, rushing down the upper canyon upon the great stone barrier. It seemed incredible that any work of man could withstand the impact of such a terrible battering ram; and I climbed still higher, though my perch was well above the level of the reservoir. The engineer had more courage, or a better confidence in his own work. He had risen and lifted Nan to her feet, and together they stood and watched the huge brown wall of water leap high in air to fling itself over the stone coping of the dam. The masonry stood the shock like a wall of living rock. The brown cataract choked the waste weir and poured many feet deep over the top of the dam, filling the channel below until at its maximum the foaming torrent was lapping at the feet of the man and the woman standing on the half-buried bowlder on the hither slope, but they did not move.

It was while the flood was roaring its loudest that I chanced to lift my eyes to the opposite cliff where Selter had disappeared. To my horror I saw him plunging recklessly down the declivity toward the submerged dam, and his frenzied yells came to me above the clamor of the waters. Not until that great day when the books shall be opened will his motive be revealed, but the pointing of it was clear enough. He was making frantic haste to reach the couple in the ravine below, and striving to anticipate by shriek and wild gestures the warning he was bringing.

When he reached the stream's brink there was but one way to cross, and he took it without an instant's pause. The yellow-red arch of the flood springing clear from the edge of the dam was subsiding, but it was at least two feet deep over the masonry when he plunged in and began to wade across. For a dozen palpitant heart-beats I thought he would make it; and then the end came. A huge column of mud and water shot up behind the dam like a mighty geyser-jet; there was a deep growl of imprisoned thunder; a nauseating shock that seemed to kill the very air; and the great wall of masonry toppled outward and downward, crumbling like sand in the forefront of the flood that gathered itself for the onrush to the doomed valley below. I closed my eyes in the sickening horror of it, and when I opened them I was alone with the clamorous waters. The bowlder where Wykamp and Nan had been standing was gone, and in its bed the angry flood was cutting a wider and still wider channel in the loose shale of the canyon slope.

CHAPTER XIV.

"BETTER THE END OF A THING—"

The flood subsided quickly, almost as quickly as it had risen, and I made my way down the canyon in the track of it, nerveless and horror-shaken. The sun was shining as brightly as before, and the Sabbath stillness was in the air. It seemed inconceivable that, but a few moments before, the great ravine had been the scene of a tragedy in which three lives had gone out like match-flares in a tornado. In the basin between the mountain and the hog back, flumes, ditches and trail had disappeared, and the very face of nature was changed. Where Macpherson's placer bar had been there was now a gullying eddy; and a new bar had formed farther down the stream.

I was obliged to head the northern gulch to reach the gap in the hog back, and when the strath of the settlement came in view I scarcely recognized it. The tidal wave released by the crumbling dam had been checked for an instant by the narrow gap in the ridge, and its charge upon the tilled lands beyond had been like the bursting of a second barrier. I can compare the devastation to nothing but the track of a crevasse on the lower Mississippi. Selter's holding, and the two farms adjoining, were swept clean, not only of buildings and fences, but of the very soil in the fields. Ditches were gone, boundaries obliterated, the great barrack below the engineer's camp was demolished, and as far as the eye could reach down the valley the main canal was filled and leveled until its course could scarcely be traced. But for the gathering at the schoolhouse on the knoll, the loss of life must have been terrible; and as it was, I could scarcely hope that the tragedy of which I had been an awe-stricken witness was the only one.

When I topped the shoulder of the hog-back the schoolhouse knoll and the bit of road beyond the flood level were black with hurrying figures. Macpherson was the first to meet me as I picked my way across what, a few minutes earlier, had been the Selter infield. His greeting was an incoherent upbubbling of thankfulness, since he had taken it for granted that I had been swept away with the Selter house. There was no time for explanations, and I made none. Angus told me where to find his team and buckboard, and, asking me to look after the women at the schoolhouse, hurried away to organize a rescue party. I found the team, did what there was to be done, and when the excitement had a little subsided took Winifred in the buckboard and set out to find shelter for her and for myself. We found accommodation at the Byres ranch, whose house was farthest removed from the scene of devastation, and there contented ourselves as best we might while the details of the disaster trickled in by littles. It was soon discovered that only Selter and his daughter and the engineer were missing, but it was not until the evening of the following day that Angus came to make his report. I saw him coming and went a few rods down the road to meet him.

"Two, sure, and a possible third," he said, anticipating my query. "They're all accounted for except three, and two of the three were found on the bar below the engineer's camp this afternoon."

"Wykamp?" I asked.

"Yes; Wykamp and Nan Selter. They must have been overtaken together somewhere."

"They were," I said; and I told him the story of the tragedy in the canyon so far as it touched these two.

"You say he tried to save her? There was a bit of the man in him, after all, wasn't there?"

Angus had shown no disposition to go up to the farmhouse, where Winifred was sitting on the porch, and we had drawn aside to sit on the embankment of the dry Byres ditch.

"He did save her," I rejoined; "she would have gone down in the first rush of the wave over the top of the dam if he hadn't reached her just in the nick of time and carried her beyond the sweep of it."

"And after that, they stopped to look at it, you say. That was the engineer in him; betting on his own game to the very last."

"They were safe enough, so far as the cloudburst was concerned," I amended; and then: "Have you found Selter?"

"No; and that's a bit curious. His wife says he went hunting on the north mountain early in the morning."

"You'll never find him—alive."

"What! How do you know?"

"Answer me one question, and then I'll tell you. Does anyone suspect that it was more than a cloudburst?"

"Why, of course not. It was a cloudburst. Kilgore and the Barnes boys have been up the canyon beyond the dam, and the track of it can be traced for two miles."

Corn Oil in Europe.

The corn grain has, in addition to its starch element, a tiny germ in which lies its life principle. This germ was formerly separated and thrown aside as waste. Lately it has been found that this germ is rich in oil which can be utilized. The germ is now separated from the starch and crushed. The oil gathered from it finds a ready market, and within the last few years millions of dollars' worth of this oil has been exported to Europe.—N. Y. Sun.

Speed of the Dolphin.

The dolphin, a near relative of the whale, is credited with a speed of considerably over 20 miles an hour. For short distance, the salmon can outstrip every other fish, accomplishing its 25 miles an hour with ease. The Spanish mackerel is one of the fastest of food fishes, and cuts the water like a yacht. Predatory fish are generally the fastest swimmers.—Nature.

Lordly Indeed.

Among the lucky youngsters who will inherit great wealth is the three-year-old marquis of Blandford. Some day this little fellow will be twice a prince, a duke, a marquis, twice an earl and twice a baron. He will rule over 23,000 acres of land, be lord of Blenheim palace and inherit a good share of the Vanderbilt millions.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Rural Theaters in Roumania.

The king and queen of Roumania are about to establish little theaters in all the rural communes of their kingdom. In these small playhouses the villagers will give, once or twice a week, moral plays, having as their object the inculcation of religious and social precepts.—Albany Argus.

THE GROUND BROKEN

Work Begun on Louisiana Purchase Exposition.

INTERESTING CEREMONY AT ST. LOUIS

Three Historic Shovels Are Used In Turning the Sod For Beginning the Great Undertaking — Four Governors In Attendance.

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 21.—The governors of four Louisiana purchase states—Minnesota, Nebraska, Arkansas and Missouri—several members of congress and world's fair national commissioners and other invited guests, among them General John C. Bates, commanding the department of Missouri, and Colonel John D. Oglesby, representing Governor Yates of Illinois, were present and participated in the ceremonies attending the breaking of ground on the site of the world's fair in Forest park.

The exercises at the site, where the thermometer registered around zero, consisted of an invocation by Rev. Dr. S. J. Niccolls, addresses by the chairman of the committee on ceremonies, Corwin H. Spencer, and President David R. Francis.

Three historic shovels were used in the ground breaking. The first was one of iron and oak loaned by the Massachusetts state arsenal, Boston, where it had been placed in 1805 as a relic of early American workmanship. An exact reproduction of this shovel, a manufacture of the Louisiana Purchase exposition, made of ebony and steel, silver plated, was next put into use. A veritable relic, an old wooden shovel thought to have been one of the tools employed by the 200 white miners from France and the 600 African slaves from Santo Domingo, brought over by Francis Renault in 1718 to work in the St. Genevieve (Mo.) mines, was the third used.

Speaking by President Francis, Congressman James A. Tawney of Minnesota and Governor Jefferson Davis of Arkansas and music by Seymour's famous sixty was the programme at the Coliseum, where several thousand persons were present. A banquet at the Southern hotel in the evening completed the day's programme.

Three Negroes Shot by a Boy.

WELCH, W. Va., Dec. 21.—Wayne Demon, an eighteen-year-old boy, shot three negroes to death in a saloon at the mining town of Davy, this county, last evening. This was pay day at the Davy mines, and the negroes had begun their holiday celebration. Drunkenness was visible on every hand, and when about a dozen of the big blacks entered Eugene Dye's saloon on the leading street, revolvers in hand, and demanded that all the whites within retire trouble began. The bartender stepped into an adjoining room for his pistol, and all the other whites save Demon made a run to get away. Demon, although being almost a total stranger in the town, was nervy and refused to obey the command to depart. Instead he pulled his revolver, and in a twinkling he had shot three of the negroes to death and the others were falling over themselves to get away.

Our German Meat Trade In Danger.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—Secretary Wilson states that discontinuance of the microscopic inspection of meats sent abroad would mean the entire suspension of exports and lose us the $20,000,000 worth of meats annually sold to Germany. The lack of funds, he explained, was due to the increased work of the past year and the two weeks' leave of absence granted each employee of the bureau outside of this city, which necessitated the employment of additional men. Secretary Wilson said he has asked congress to make part of the appropriation for the coming year immediately available and that he has no doubt congress will grant this authority, as it has done so frequently in previous years.

New York City Robbed.

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—Startling disclosures have been made in the office of Comptroller Coler as a result of the investigation of Charles P. Chipp's defalcation. Five trusted employees have for years been systematically robbing the city, and their combined defalcations may reach, if they do not exceed, $100,000. All of the members of the "band of five" are Tammany men, one being very close to one of the big Tammany five and another being a brother-in-law of a well known district leader. Sufficient evidence of their guilt has been found to cause their arrest, and warrants will be obtained immediately.

Snow Blockade In Wyoming.

CHEYENNE, Wy., Dec. 21.—The snow blockade on the Cheyenne and Northern road, which has been on since Tuesday, has not yet been raised, and no trains are moving on that line. Two engines and a snowplow were derailed near Horse Creek and are still stuck in the drifts. The weather has moderated, but a coal famine is threatened here unless shipments of coal shall reach the city at once.

HOW THE CHURCHES OBSERVED THE SAVIOUR'S NATAL DAY

Elaborate Exercises Were Held In Most Of Plainfield's Churches Yesterday.

SERVICES WERE WELL ATTENDED.

SPECIAL MUSIC AND RECITATIONS FORMED THE CHIEF FEATURES OF THEM.

Then There Were Appropriate Addresses by the Pastors at the Churches—Decorations More or Less Elaborate Were Seen in Every Sanctuary—Details of the Various Exercises Held in the Morning, Afternoon and in the Evening.

As is the custom in Plainfield, the Sunday preceeding Christmas was observed by most of the local churches with appropriate Christmas exercises. In several cases, the musical programmes were very elaborate. Pleasant weather was partially responsible for the exceptionally large attendance at most of the churches. Following will be found the services in detail:

CRESCENT AVENUE CHURCH.

No afternoon services were held at either Hope Warren or Bethel chapels, the members of these, according to the annual custom, uniting with the Crescent Avenue church. The attendance was the largest of any yet that has gathered in the parent church.

The exercises as rendered consisted of carols, responsive readings, and singing by the primary class of the Crescent Avenue church. Mrs. Mac Bride, of the church choir, sang a solo, "He Shall Feed His Flock," and Rev. Dr. Richards delivered an address. Rev. L. R. Howard, of Hope chapel. Rev. J. O. McKelvey, of Warren chapel, and Rev. F. D. Tildon, of Bethel chapel, assisted in the services.

The decorations about the pulpit were very elaborate. The regular church choir rendered special Christmas anthems at morning and evening services.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.

At the services at the Congregational church, yesterday morning, the music was unusually fine. An appropriate sermon was given by the pastor, Rev. C. L. Goodrich. Mrs. B. T. Barnes presided at the organ. The choir was composed of the following: Sopranos, Miss Maude Lord, Miss Kathryn Glen, Miss Daisy Elsberg, Miss Guild; contraltos, Miss Julia Belknap, Mrs. Nichols, Miss Grace Carroll; tenors, Mr. Bailey, Mr. Brown, M. C. VanArsdale; bassos, Dr. Frank Hallock, Wyatt Barnes and Alfred E. Holmes. There were several pleasing solo parts.

In the afternoon the Sunday-school joined in an attractive service. There were carols by the school, assisted by the Sunday-school choir composed of Miss Agnes LaBoyteaux, Miss Minnie G. Morse, sopranos; Miss Julia M. Belknap, alto; Morris C. VanArsdale, tenor; Stacy Raynolds, basso. Walter Raynolds presided at the piano. There was a duet by Miss Belknap and Miss LaBoyteaux, a violin solo by Miss Hyatt, and a Christmas story, "Santa Claus in the Pulpit," read by Rev. C. L. Goodrich. A song by the primary department, accompanied by Miss Belknap, concluded the services for the day.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

The services at the First Presbyterian church, morning and evening, were elaborate. The musical part of the services was under the direction of Clifford A. Braider, organist. The male chorus was composed of the following: Tenors, Elmer D. Cutting, E. Maxwell Honeyman, Harry Yaeger, Charles M. Hummer; bassos, Ralph K. Miner, Joseph O'Keefe, Sydney R. Titsworth and R. Wilson Derby. The choir was assisted by Martin A. Korff, violin; Dr. J. F. Berg, 'cello, and Miss Charlotte Conger, piano.

The morning service consisted of anthems, with solos by E. Maxwell Honeyman and Elmer D. Cutting. In the evening there were solos by R. Wilson Derby and Elmer D. Cutting, and instrumental selections. The pastor, Rec. C. E. Herring, gave appropriate short sermons at both services. In the afternoon the Sunday-school joined in a short service of Christmas carols.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH.

The Christmas services at the First Baptist church yesterday morning and afternoon were in perfect keeping with the season. The church was prettily decorated with greens, while a large illuminated star was placed above the organ.

At the morning service the choir rendered several anthems, with solo parts by Miss Louella Harris, soprano; Mrs. F. M. Ward, contralto; George Smith, tenor, and William Holmes, baritone. There was an appropriate sermon by Rev. Dr. Yerkes.

In the afternoon the Sunday-schools of the church and chapels united in a service. There were instrumental selections by William Paulding DeNike 'cello; Howard Case, organ; and Miss Charlotte Conger, piano. Superintendent Geo. H. Batchelor was in charge.

The programme included the singing of carols by the schools, a recitation by Miss Beulah VanWinkle, address by Rev. Dr. Yerkes, and a contralto solo by Mrs. F. M. Ward.

TRINITY REFORMED CHURCH.

The special Christmas services at Trinity Reformed church yeserday were enjoyed by large congregations. The decorations were simple but pleasing. In the centre over the pulpit was a brilliantly lighted star, encircled with green, with a background of white and studded with twenty-one incandescent lights. Across the front were the words "Glory to God in the Highest," in large white letters. Miss Lillian Remsen was in charge of the decorations, assisted by an able committee. The lighted star was the work of William Pope.

At the morning service Pastor Schenck preached the second of a series of three special sermons, his subject being, "The Messiah's Advent in the Fulness of Time." There were several anthems by the quartette choir, Miss Derby, soprano; Miss Williams, alto; H. J. Martin, Jr., tenor; and Joseph C. Martin, basso, under the direction of Arthur L. Titsworth, organist.

In the evening the Sunday-school united in a special service entitled, "The Spirit of Christmas." Superintendent E. E. Anthony was in charge, while H. J. Martin led the singing. Assisting in the musical part of the services were Miss Lillian A. Force, pianist; Mrs. George W. Saums, violin; and Elmer Wheeler, flute. The trio, together with Mr. Titsworth at the organ, rendered a prelude. The choir also assisted.

Included in the programme were recitations and exercises given under the direction of Mrs. J. H. Tier, superintendent of the primary department. Those taking these parts included Edson Day, Harold Storr, Ralph Martin, Clifford Cole, Russell Abbott, Miss Marion Norris, Miss Epna Cole, Miss Hattie Nitschwitz, Miss Helen Smith, Miss Jessie Smith, Miss Lillian Smith, Miss Ethel Vail, Miss Bessie Randall, Miss Gertrude Enander, Miss Gertrude Schleif, Miss Edith Richards, Miss Minnie Nitschwitz, Miss Anna Randall, Miss Lizzie Coriell, Miss Hazel Martin, Miss Alice Pugh, Miss Katy Bodine, Miss Elizabeth Davenport, Miss Mamie Davenport, Miss Helen Wooley, Miss Edna Oliver, Miss Adelaide Fritz, Miss Evelyn Fritz, Miss Jennie Thompson and Miss Mildred Briemer.

At the close of the services Rev. W. T. Griffin, U. S. Consel to Lamoges, France, gave a short and interesting talk on the subject "There were Giants in Those Days."

PARK AVENUE BAPTIST CHURCH.

While there was special music at the morning and evening services at the Park Avenue Baptist church, yesterday, the chief feature was the Christmas exercises of the Sunday-school, held in the afternoon. The attendance was the largest ever known. Superintendent George E. Hall presided while Miss Florence G. Hawkins, assistant superintendent, had charge of its arrangements. An orchestra of six pieces and a large chorus choir assisted in the music.

Pleasing exercises by the primary department, consisting of speaking and singing, were in charge of the superintendent, Miss Elmira Runyon.

The order of exercises included recitations by the Misses Arline Brown, Marjorie Brown, Marguerite Ostrom, an exercise by five little boys, "The Titles of Christ," an exercise by four young women, "The Four Stars," exercise by nineteen girls, "Who Would Go to Bethlehem."

The programme was brought to a fitting climax when Miss Aimee Emmons recited "The First Christmas." The instant Miss Emmons was announced the room was darkened, the sliding doors connecting the church and Sunday-school rooms were raised and Organist D. E. Davis played a soft accompaniment. When she reached the line "But look a new, a brilliant orb now flashes," the electric current was turned on and the large star of Bethlehem, over the pulpit, flashed forth. When Miss Emmons came to the words, "The sweetest song of ages fell on their astonished ears" a quartette sang softly the Christmas anthem, "Glory to God on High." It was very effective.

FIRST M. E. CHURCH.

The services yesterday morning and evening at the First M. E. church attracted large congregations. Charles L. Lewis was in charge of the musical part of the services. The church was attractively decorated. In the morning the choir rendered several anthems. The evening service consisted of a choral cantata "The Hope of the World," and "Star of Bethlehem," by the choir. The pastor, Rev. Dr. W. C. Snodgrass, preached an interesting sermon, morning and evening.

In the afternoon the Sunday-school united in a special service in Vincent chapel. Those taking part included Miss Amelia Geier, Miss Mary Bingaman, Miss Minnie Conover, Miss Helen Joy, Charles Lister, Burnette Doane, Benson Hartney, Ellis Ruckman, Roy Love, Miss Margaret Robley, Miss May Belle Cook, Miss Madeline Geier, Miss Beatrice Buckle, Miss Dorothy Lynn, Miss Helen Carson, Miss Cecil Rockfellow, Mulford Darling, Miss Marion Lynn, Miss Katherine Bingaman, Walter Kennedy, Raymond Mosher, Miss Katherine Sminck, Miss Hazel Mills, Miss Gussie LaTourette, Miss Irene Doane.

Nelson A. Miller led the singing, assisted by an orchestra composed of R. Wilson Derby, Clarence Mills, Alvah Davis, Robert Davis and Archibald Derby. During the services, Rev. Dr. Hoyt, of Cleveland, O., offered prayer and Rev. Dr. G. W. Smith made a short address. Miss Elizabeth Stackhouse and Miss Edith Dyer were in charge of the little folks.

GRACE M. E. CHURCH.

The congregation of Grace M. E. church held two Christmas services yesterday, one in the morning and the other in the evening. Both were well attended. The church was tastefully adorned with greens and Christmas emblems.

In the musical part of the services Miss Mary Steiner acted as choir leader. The solo parts were taken by Mrs. G. W. Gardner, soprano; Miss Agnes Tingley, alto; John E. Low, tenor; and John Steiner, bass. Miss May Conroy and Mrs. C. H. Greer, altos, and Miss Margaret Schuck, Mrs. Annie Most, and Mrs. Elmer Winckler, sopranos, were also in the choir. Miss Alice Carroll sang a contralto solo.

In the morning special anthems were rendered by the choir and Mrs. W. L. Brown gave a solo. It was the first time the new organ was used in connection with special exercises and the effect was very pleasing. The decorations consisted of laurel and ivy.

PARK CLUB BACHELORS ROLLED WINNING GAME

Unmarried Men Won the First of a Series With Benedicts' Team.

TEAM WON BY 172 PINS.

THE CAPTAINS HEADED THEIR TEAMS WITH HIGH SCORES.

Good-Sized Crowd Attended the Game at the Park Club Alleys and Watched the Sport With Interest.

Teams representing the bachelors and benedicts of the Park Club contested on the alleys of that social organization, Saturday evening, for supremacy in bowling. The unmarried men seemed to have the better of the game as a rule and they won by a margin of 172 points in the ten frames. It was the first of a series.

More or less interest had been taken in the proposed game and when the bowling took place there was a goodly sized crowd of enthusiastic members present to enliven the event.

F. O. Ball, who captained the benedicts, was in good form and he headed the list of his aggregation by scoring 167. The other married men, who were spurred on by supporters to do the work, were Hibbard, VanDeventer, Nichols and Rogers.

The highest score of the game was registered by W. Faber, captain of the bachelors, who scored 185. Laing, Howard, Stockton, VanBuren, Marsh and Willis, of the same team, also did creditable work.

The score:

The library has a large number of recent books on the subjects, and most of them are fully illustrated with descriptive plates and diagrams.

Every branch and detail of the industries is explained concisely and if studied carefully can be of great assistance to workers in these lines. CHANGES IN TICKETS ON JERSEY CENTRAL Flat Rate Established for Commutation Tickets Beginning New Year.

NO MORE TRIP TICKETS.

TEN AND FIFTY TRIP FAMILY TICKETS TAKE THEIR PLACE.

Circular Just Issued to Ticket Agents By General Passenger Agent Burt Gives Facts Concerning the Changes.

Everybody in Plainfield will be interested to know of the changes regarding tickets which are to go into effect on the New Jersey Central Railroad the first of the year. General Passenger Agent C. M. Burt issued circular No. 670, to ticket agents Saturday, which gives facts concerning the changes.

The flat rate for commutation tickets is stated in the circular. The fifty-trip family tickets, mentioned in the circular, will be sold for $18, which is 72 cents a round trip. The ten trip family tickets, mentioned in the circular, will sell for $4.50, or 90 cents a round trip.

The circular is as follows:

To Ticket Agents:

Effective January 1, 1902, the following changes in the method of handling commutation business will be made operative:

1st. Between New York and points on the New Jersey Central Division, Main Line, Newark Branch, South Branch and High Bridge Branch a uniform flat monthly commutation rate will be adopted instead of the graduated system heretofore in vogue.

Note.—If any commuter who has been traveling under the serial system prefers to continue the sequence until the twelfth month ticket is used, the privilege will be allowed, but after the twelfth month is exhausted the graduated basis will not be renewed. For example: If a commuter between New York and Plainfield who commenced a new series with No. 1, June 1, 1901, desires to finish the sequence, a card ticket will be supplied for January, 1902 (the eighth month), to be sold at $7.40, and at the close of January a ticket for February, 1902, will be furnished to be sold at $7.20, and so on until May, 1902, when the 12th month ticket will be issued, to be sold at $6.75. The series having thus expired, the graduated basis will not be renewed, but only the flat monthly rate of $7.60 will be available. A supply of serial card tickets covering 2d to 12th months will be furnished for the month of January in addition to the flat rate coupon tickets.

In future, flat rate monthly tickets of coupon form will be sent you without the names of purchasers inserted, and in selling these tickets you should be careful to fill in the correct name of the purchaser in ink, prefixing "Mr.," "Mrs." or "Miss," as the case may be.

2d. The 50-trip "Bearer" ticket heretofore in use will be discontinued, and in its place a family 50-trip ticket will be adopted, good for purchaser, a member of his or her family, a visitor thereto or a servant therein. This ticket will be limited to one year from date.

3d. At Main Line stations, El Mora to Hampton Junction inclusive, and at stations on the South Branch and High Bridge Branch a 10-trip ticket to New York will be placed on sale, good for original purchaser, an immediate member of his or her family, a visitor thereto or a servant therein. These tickets will be limited to one year and will be sold only at line stations and not at New York or Jersey City.

Revised commutation tariff covering further detail information will be mailed you within a day or two. Please familiarize yourself with the revised conditions immediately and see that passengers understand the changes at time of sale of affected tickets.

TEAM WORK AMONG SQUIRRELS

What One Is Unable to Carry Others Aid in Getting Away With.

A party of young people who were tenting in a grove near a glen at a Northfield conference witnessed an incident which seems to show a friendly understanding among squirrels. The Deerfield Valley Endeavorer tells the pleasing story.

An out-of-doors dinner had just been finished and the party was still sitting at the table, when a red squirrel, with glistening, eager eyes, came creeping down a tree which stood near the table. He crept nearer and nearer, and finally leaped upon the table.

The lady who was presiding said: "Yes, help yourself to anything you want!"

Upon this invitation the little fellow made bold to creep up to a loaf of bread from which only a slice or two had been cut. He seized it and dragged it to the side of the table and somehow managed to scramble down the side with it to the ground. He then fixed his teeth in the crust and dragged it away and down the steep sides of the glen.

But when he reached the bottom and confronted the steep rise on the other side it was too much for him. Then he gave a sort of call, which seemed to be understood, for soon squirrels were seen coming from several directions. They crowded round him, and after a little conference all took hold, and with tug and strain they managed to bring the loaf to the top of the hill and disappeared with it in the woods beyond.

A Mutual Friend.

Once upon a time a diplomat was walking with his close friend Deceit, who was dressed in his usual attractive manner, when he met a lady acquaintance.

"Allow me to introduce to you my friend Diplomacy," he said.

"It is not necessary," she answered. "He is a close friend of mine, whom I know by the name of Tact."

Moral.—A nettle by any other name would sting the same.—N. Y. Herald.

Riches of Mind.

A rich mind will cast over the humblest home a radiance of beauty and wholesomeness which an upholsterer or a decorator can never equal. Emerson says: "There is no beautifier of complexion, form or behavior like the wish to scatter joy, and not pain, around us."—Success.

—The officers-elect of Stone Square Lodge, No. 38, F. and A. M., will be installed this evening.

COLUMN FOR THE SHOPPERS

SOME OF ATTRACTIONS TO BE FOUND AT LOCAL STORES.

A Few Interesting Items Concerning Greater Plainfield's Merchants.

If you expect to celebrate Christmas in the right way you need a pair of easy well-fitting shoes. These you can get at A. Willett & Son's store "around the corner."

Many women with many notions. Before completing your Christmas shopping look into Putnam & De Graw's dry goods store and you will surely find something from the large stock to make some one happy.

A good deal depends on the dinner as to whether Christmas Day will be joyful. Make no mistake and place your order early for turkeys, geese, ducks or other fowl with W. W. Wilson, the West Third street butcher and grocer.

There is something dainty and pleasant about the perfumes used by fashionable people. If you would be in style call at L. W. Randolph's pharmacy and make your selection from his extensive line. He also sells Huyler's confections.

There is no idling about at the grocery store of Callahan & Son, on Richmond street, these days. All the clerks are taxed to their utmost in getting orders to customers but it is always done. A good delivery service to deliver the best of goods has always been the aim of the firm.

Some New Yorkers were commenting on the fact the other day that the commuters from this city are the best dressed men that cross the ferry. There's no secret why Plainfielders make such good appearance. They depend upon J. R. Blair, of Park avenue, for the correct thing in the line of men's furnishings.

There's always a lot of little things which go to make the Christmas dinner enjoyable. Vegetables, fruit and nuts are to be reckoned upon in this respect. Why not get the best and in the shortest time as well as at the lowest price. A 'phone message to W. W. Dunn, the Park grocer, corner Lincoln place and Duer street, will serve the purpose.

A thousand pieces of the daintiest, prettiest little pieces of bric-a-brac you ever saw are shown on the counters at Gavett's. An hour could be spent in looking at the display of china and cut glass designs and yet the eye would find something new to take delight in. Gavett's is the only store in the city devoted exclusively to china, glass and crockery ware.

One of the prettiest dressed windows in the city is that of the store of W. W. Warnock, the West Front street confectioner and baker. It is replete with Christmas candies, confectionery and pretty trifles that please and delight. The display doesn't begin to compare with that shown on his well stocked counters and Mr. Warnock invites inspection of his goods.

A travelling salesman struck town the other day and the first thing that caught his eye was the boarded up part of the old station on North avenue. He made up his mind that Plainfield was "dead," but he chanced to notice the busy butchers in Smalley Brothers' model shop, and now he's telling his friends about Plainfield's great retail meat market, where the choicest cuts can be had at ridiculously low prices.

Saved His Life.

"I wish to say that I feel I owe my life to Kodol Dyspepsia Cure," writes H. C. Chrestenson, of Hayfield, Minn. "For three years I was troubled with dyspepsia so that I could hold nothing on my stomach. Many times I would be unable to retain a morsal of food. Finally I was confined to my bed Doctors said I could not live. I read one of your advertisements on Kodol Dyspepsia Cure and thought it fit my case and commenced its use. I began to improve from the first bottle. Now I am cured and recommend it to all." Digests your food. Cures all stomach troubles. L. W. Randolph.

CITY JOTTINGS!

—Plainfield Council, No. 711, Royal Arcanum, will meet this evening and every member is requested to be present.

—An adjourned meeting of the West End Hose Company will be held this evening. At that time the fair committee will present its report.

Of Benefit to You.

D. S. Mitchell, Fulford, Md.: "During a long illness I was troubled with bed sores, was advised to try DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve and did so with wonderful results. I was perfectly cured. It is the best salve on the market." Sure cure for piles, sores, burns. Beware of counterfeits. L. W. Randolph.

A STATUE TO BAUDIN.

President Loubet Attends Unveiling. A Socialist Demonstration.

PARIS, Dec. 23.—President Loubet inaugurated yesterday in the Faubourg St. Antoine a statue to the memory of Deputy Charles Baudin, a representative of the people who was killed on the barricade of the Faubourg St. Antoine Dec. 3, 1851, the day following the coup d'etat of Louis Napoleon.

Baudin was memorable for the reply he gave to the workman who refused to defend the barricade. To this man Baudin said, "You will see how a representative of the people can die for 25 francs a day." He then mounted the barricade. The soldiers fired a volley, and Baudin fell dead.

There was considerable apprehension of disturbances at the inauguration, owing to the insistence of the Nationalist president of the municipal council of Paris, M. Dausset, that he be permitted to deliver a speech at the inauguration, although he was not included in the official list of speakers. The ceremony had already been once postponed on account of the attitude of M. Dausset.

The Socialists planned a counter demonstration to the unveiling. They gathered in the Faubourg, wearing red flowers in their buttonholes as a party emblem. Owing to the strong precautions taken by the police, however, no serious disturbance occurred, although M. Dausset and some of his colleagues of the municipal council had a narrow escape from rough handling. There were several slight conflicts between Nationalists and Socialists.

Father Shoots His Children.

KELLOGG, W. Va., Dec. 23.—William Lafferty, living two miles south of here, while in a frenzy mortally wounded his son Burt, aged eighteen years, and so shattered the arm of his sixteen-year-old daughter Rebecca that it will have to be amputated. Lafferty returned home after two months' absence and quarreled with his wife. When the quarrel was at its height, the children came in from church. Burt, thinking his mother was in danger, opened fire on his father, wounding him slightly in the arm. The enraged father returned the fire until his revolver was empty and his son had fallen mortally wounded. Rebecca came to the rescue of her brother, when the father caught up a shotgun standing in the corner and completely riddled the girl's arm with buckshot. The arm will have to be amputated above the elbow. Lafferty was landed in jail.

To Keep Vanderbilt Name Good.

TACOMA, Wash., Dec. 23.—It is reported here that George Vanderbilt William K. Vanderbilt and Frederick W. Vanderbilt have deposited $500,000 in a New York bank subject to the order of Charles McNamee, their legal adviser and representative, who is now here. This money, it is said, will be used to pay in full depositors of the Metropolitan bank, which suspended on Nov. 19 after a two days' run. This action is the result of a desire to keep the family name spotless in the business world, as it is said the Vanderbilts were neither legally nor morally responsible for the Metropolitan bank failure. It was managed by Philip Vanderbilt, Cæsar and Jacob Vanderbilt, third and second cousins of the men who are reported to have advanced money to pay the depositors.

Ice Harvest In Danger.

BANGOR, Me., Dec. 23.—The anchor ice that began filling the river on Saturday night continued all day yesterday. At midnight on Saturday night it was necessary to shut the city's water pumping station, and not a gallon of water was pumped for twelve hours. Now the supply is only about two-thirds the normal daily consumption in the city. Unless there comes a change that will clear the anchor ice from the river there is no hope of an ice harvest here this winter.

C., Dec. 23.—Near Varnville, Hampton county, a Mrs. Phillips killed her husband, John Phillips, who, it is said, in a drunken condition had attempted to take the life of herself and her son. CAUGHT IN A GALE.

Car Ferry Wrecked on the Michigan Shore.

THE CREW SCALDED BY STEAM.

Accident Followed by Nine Hours In Bitter Night Without Heat or Light — Good Work by Life Saving Crew.

LUDINGTON, Mich., Dec. 23.—While entering Ludington harbor at midnight during a heavy southerly gale the Pere Marquette car ferry No. 16 struck a bar, disabling her machinery and breaking the main feed steam pipe. Great volumes of steam instantly escaped. Mike Taft, a coal passer, whose home is in Chicago, was scalded to death, and two other coal passers, whose names are unknown, were also terribly scalded. They now lie in the marine hospital here, hovering between life and death. Many others who were in the hold of the car ferry received bad burns from the steam and suffered great hardship during the nine hours which followed the accident.

The accident happened at midnight, and during the remainder of the night there was neither light nor heat. The night was bitterly cold. Great seas rolled across the deck and ice formed wherever the water fell. The boat arrived off the harbor from Milwaukee after a tempestuous voyage. In spite of the heavy sea and strong wind from an unfavorable quarter Captain Charles Thompson decided to hazard an entrance to the harbor. He would have succeeded had not his boat at an unfavorable moment sunk low in the hollow of a big wave and struck the bar with tremendous force.

The shock completely disordered the machinery of the boat. Left without power, the car ferry drifted against the North pier, where she pounded heavily, staving several huge holes in her forward quarter. Thereupon Captain Thompson ordered the sea cocks opened, and the boat was scuttled in sixteen feet of water.

When day broke, the life saving crew by means of their cannon threw a line to the wrecked craft and began rescuing the crew with their breeches buoy apparatus. The entire crew of thirty-three men and the body of Taft were taken off the wreck in this manner. One by one the men were hauled over the churning ice on the suspended cable. The operation occupied four hours and was witnessed with breathless interest by an immense crowd of people.

It is believed that the No. 16 will prove a total loss. Boat and cargo are valued at $200,000 and are fully insured.

Boys Attacked by a Highwayman.

EAU CLAIRE, Wis., Dec. 23.—Two boys named Seyberth and Bonnell, aged thirteen and fifteen years respectively, who had been out in the country to cut Christmas trees, reached home almost exhausted from the effects of an assault by a highwayman The boys state that they were attacked by a man, who strapped them together and put gags in their mouths. He then took from them what money they had and finally dragged them to an abandoned summer house. He fastened the door and set the house on fire. The boys managed to free themselves after a desperate struggle and escaped from the burning building.

Lawyer Sullivan Found Guilty.

CHICAGO, Dec. 23.—The jury in the case of Lawyer Alexander Sullivan, on trial before Judge Abner Smith for conspiracy to abet a fugitive from justice, came into court with a verdict of guilty. As punishment the jury imposed a fine of $2,000. This carries with it no prison sentence. Assistant State Attorney Barnes demanded that Sullivan be taken to jail, but the court declined to enforce this demand, and Sullivan was permitted to leave the courtroom with his attorneys. The charges against Sullivan were an outgrowth of jury bribing scandals involving the Chicago courts.

THE PRESIDENT ACTS

General Miles Censured by His Orders.

MACLAY'S RESIGNATION DEMANDED.

Commander of Army Told He Had No Business to Express Himself on Schley Verdict—Secretary Long Approves Majority Report.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—The latest sensation in the Schley case following the action of Secretary of the Navy Long in approving the findings of the court of inquiry is the appearance of President Roosevelt on the scene and exercising his prerogatives as commander in chief of the army and navy in doing which he ordered the reprimand of Lieutenant General Miles by Secretary Root and a demand for the resignation of Edgar Stanton Maclay from his berth as special laborer in the Brooklyn navy yard.

General Miles is the general commanding the army, and the censure imposed by the president's direction is called forth by an interview on the Schley court and its findings. Mr. Maclay is the historian of the navy, whose accusations of "caitiff" conduct against Rear Admiral Schley caused the rumpus which resulted in the court of inquiry, and who also talked in violation of the regulations.

General Miles was reprimanded for saying:

I am willing to take the judgment of Admiral Dewey in the matter. He has been a commander of a fleet and as such has known of the anxieties and responsibilities which rest on a man under those circumstances. He was instrumental in the destruction of one Spanish fleet and knows and realizes the feelings that encompass an officer under such conditions.

I think Dewey has summed up the matter in a clear and concise manner, and I believe his conclusions will be indorsed by the patriotic people of the United States. I have no sympathy with the efforts which have been made to destroy the honor of an officer under such circumstances.

Mr. Maclay also gave an interview on the findings of the court, in which he declared that all the statements he had made had been substantiated by the testimony presented to the court of inquiry.

General Miles was reprimanded in accordance with the wishes of the president in a letter sent by Secretary Root, and this was really his second reproof. President Roosevelt sent for the general and saw him in the crowded audience room. He asked about the interview, and General Miles said he had given it and was exercising the prerogatives of an American citizen—a private citizen.

President Roosevelt, in a voice loud enough to be heard all over the room, told General Miles he could not act in the capacity of a private citizen, since he was commander of the army, and that he had committed a breach of military discipline. He spoke with great sharpness, and General Miles left the room in confusion.

When the interview with General Miles was published, Secretary Root, by instruction of the president, called upon the general for an explanation which was made in writing.

The formal reprimand is contained in a letter from Secretary Root to General Miles, in which the secretary says:

Your explanation of the public statement made by you is not satisfactory. You are in error if you suppose that you have the same right as any other citizen to express publicly an opinion regarding official questions pending in the course of military discipline. The established and invariable rules of official propriety necessary to the effective discipline of the service impose limitations upon the public expressions of military officers, with which your long experience should have made you familiar.

Your duty is to express your opinion on official matters when called upon by your official superiors or in the due course of your official reports and recommendations and not otherwise. The first article of the regulations governing the army of the United States provides:

"Deliberations or discussions among military men conveying praise or censure or any mark of approbation toward others in the military service * * * are prohibited."

This provision has been a part of the army regulations for at least half a century, and the highest obligation to observe it rests upon the officers whose high rank should make them examples to their subordinates. Any other rule of action in the military service would be subversive of discipline. It would not be tolerated in a subaltern, and it will not be tolerated in any officer of whatever rank.

The present facts are that for several years there had been an unfortunate and bitter controversy in the navy department—a controversy generally deplored even by the participants, as tending to bring the service into disesteem at home and abroad and to destroy those relations of mutual influence and friendship between naval officers which the interests of effective service require.

In this controversy the army had not been involved, and no bar had been raised to that good feeling and friendly relation between all the officers of the navy and all the officers of the army which is essential to the successful and harmonious cooperation of the two services in preparation and in action. A court of inquiry had been held on the matters in controversy, and a report had been made in which one member of the court had dissented in some particulars from the majority, and the report was pending before the reviewing authority.

At this point you, the lieutenant general of the army, saw fit to make a public expression of your opinion as between the majority and the minority of the court, accompanied by a criticism of the most severe character, which could not fail to be applied by the generality of readers to the naval officers against whose view your opinion was expressed. It is of no consequence on whose side your opinion was or what it was.

Secretary Root concluded his letter with this sharp reproof:

You had no business in the controversy and no right, holding the office which you do, to express any opinion.

Your conduct was in violation of the regulation above cited and of the rules of official propriety, and you are justly liable to censure, which I now express.

SECRETARY LONG'S APPROVAL.

So far as the Schley controversy goes, President Roosevelt is in favor of stopping it at once in all branches of the government.

Before he made public his indorsement on the findings of the court of inquiry Secretary Long showed it to the president, who heartily approved it.

This is Secretary Long's approval of the majority report:

The department has read the testimony in this case, the arguments of counsel at the trial, the court's findings of fact, opinion and recommendation, the individual memorandum of the presiding member, the statement of exceptions to the said findings and opinion by the applicant, the reply to said statement by the judge advocate of the court and his assistant and the brief this day submitted by counsel for Rear Admiral Sampson traversing the presiding member's view as to who was in command at the battle of Santiago.

And, after careful consideration, the findings of fact and the opinion of the full court are approved.

As to the points on which the presiding member differs from the opinion of the majority of the court, the opinion of the majority is approved.

As to the further expression of his views by the same member with regard to the questions of command on the morning of July 3, 1898, and of the title to credit for the ensuing victory, the conduct of the court in making no finding and rendering no opinion on those questions is approved. Indeed it could with propriety take no other course, evidence on these questions during the inquiry having been excluded by the court.

The department approves the recommendation of the court that no further proceedings be had in the premises.

The department records its appreciation of the arduous labors of the whole court.

THE MANCHURIAN TREATY.

Discussion Begun at Peking—Chinese Demand Changes.

PEKING, Dec. 23.—The first discussion of the Manchurian treaty between Paul Lessar, the Russian minister here, and the Chinese plenipotentiaries, Prince Ching and Wang Wen Shao, has occurred here. Prince Ching and Wang Wen Shao displayed much less compliance with the Russian policy than had the late Li Hung Chang. They urged the following substantial modifications:

First.—The stipulation of an early date for the withdrawal of all Russian troops from Manchuria, except the railway guard, the number of which should be limited.

Second.—They opposed the paragraph restraining China from increasing the number of her troops in Manchuria without consulting Russia, contending that China must be at liberty to maintain whatever force was necessary in Manchuria to preserve order there.

Third.—They request that an early date be fixed for returning the Newchwang-Shanhaikwan railway and a considerable reduction of the indemnity claimed by the Russians for repairing and maintaining the railway.

Fourth.—The Chinese plenipotentiaries opposed giving Russia a monopoly of future mining concessions in Manchuria.

Prince Ching has received a long telegram from Chang Chi Tung, viceroy of Hankow, exhorting him to maintain the sovereignty of China and Manchuria.

New York Labor Figures.

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 23.—The conditions of employment among the members of labor organizations in New York state during the quarter ending Sept. 30 last, says the state labor commissioner, John McMackin, in his quarterly bulletin, were unusually good. In fact, only once in the past five years have they been surpassed in the same season. During the third quarter of 1899 only 2.3 per cent of the trades unionists were continuously idle, last year 5.4 per cent and this year 3.1 per cent. Similarly the proportion of unionists idle at the end of September was 4.7 per cent in 1899, 13.3 per cent in 1900 and 6.9 per cent in 1901. This slight difference in favor of the fall of 1899, which, it may be remarked, was a phenomenally prosperous season, is in the main due to some loss of employment in the building trades of New York city.

Offered a Cabinet Place.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—President Roosevelt has offered a cabinet position to Governor W. Murray Crane of Massachusetts, and it is understood the place is secretary of the treasury, to succeed Lyman J. Gage. It is said, with some reservation, however, that Governor Crane will accept and that this will insure the retirement of John D. Long as secretary of the navy on the ground that Massachusetts is not great enough to have two cabinet offices.

A Railroad Defrauded.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 23.—A gang of forgers of railroad tickets has been operating in Kansas City successfully during the last few weeks, according to H. C. Townsend of St. Louis, general passenger agent of the Missouri Pacific, who has been investigating the fraud, with the aid of other railroad men. The losses of the western railroads will amount to thousands of dollars.

Glennon Found Guilty.

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—Edward J. Glennon, precinct detective by title, but recognized as the power behind the throne on the police force, has been found guilty of a misdemeanor before Recorder Goff in the court of general sessions. He is liable to a penalty of not more than one year's imprisonment or a fine of not more than $500 or both.

Admiral Sampson Better.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—The condition of Rear Admiral Sampson is better than it has been for several days past, and if the cold weather moderates he hopes to be able to resume outdoor exercise. Captain Francis A. Cook, formerly commanding officer of the Brooklyn at Santiago, is also better.

His temperature was but little above normal, and his pulse was strong. The following official statement was issued by the surgeons in regard to the operation:

"A condition of infected gall bladder was present as the result of gallstones. There were many adhesions about the gall bladder, which was opened and drained. General Alger's condition is serious, but he stood the operation well."

The operation was performed by Drs C. G. Jennings, H. W. Longyear, H. C Walker and E. L. Shurley of this city Dr. William Osler of Baltimore and Dr. J. B. Murphy of Chicago.

Dr. Longyear spent the night with General Alger. "General Alger is in no immediate danger," said he, "although his condition is serious. His chances of recovery are very fair."

LOOKS LIKE WAR.

Argentine Citizens Are Learning to Shoot—Minister to Chile Recalled.

BUENOS AYRES, Argentine Republic, Dec. 23.—General Mitre, president of the boundary commission and former president of Argentina, will approve the resolution of the Argentine government to withdraw Senor Portela, the Argentine minister to Chile.

The people are flocking to the public rifle ranges. Each citizen is allowed to shoot thirty-five cartridges from a Mauser rifle gratis. "Foreign legions" of soldiers are being organized.

The Buenos Ayres Herald expresses its approval of the recall of the Argentine minister to Chile. The paper does not believe this step necessarily means war. It says, however, that the Argentine government could not have followed a more dignified course of action. The Herald speaks glowingly of the power and present state of organization of the Argentine navy.

GUILTY OF TREASON

Officials of a Mindanao Province Gave Aid to Rebels.

RETURN TO MILITARY RULE URGED.

General Davis Thinks the Ends of Justice and Peace Require the Change—Fighting Reported In Several Localities.

MANILA, Dec. 23.—General George W. Davis, commanding at Zamboanga, island of Mindanao, has requested that the province of Misamis, Mindanao, again be placed under military control General Davis has proof that the recently elected presidente and vice councilors and the leading men of Cagayan de Misamis are guilty of treason in furnishing ammunition to the insurgents within the past month.

The fiscal of the province of Misamis is also implicated. The evidence shows that all these men were members of the secret Katipunan society. General James F. Wade, commanding the American forces on Cebu island, concurs in and indorses the request of General Davis and, reviewing the situation in Mindanao, says he is satisfied that the ends of justice, peace and good government will soonest be obtained by the restoration of military control to the province of Misamis and the overcoming of all resistance to that authority.

General Ball, who is in command of the American forces in Batangas province, Luzon, has praised Lieutenant James D. Tilford, who, while scouting with Troop D of the First cavalry, routed an insurgent force in that province. Lieutenant Tilford located a rebel stronghold on top of a hill near the town of Batangas. He surrounded the enemy under cover of night and attacked them at daylight. Their surprise was complete. Nineteen insurgents were killed while attempting to escape. Lieutenant Tilford captured sixteen rifles and 500 rounds of ammunition.

A detachment of scouts of the Second infantry also had a small engagement with the insurgents in which they killed nine men and captured four.

Lieutenant John D. Hartman of the First cavalry during an expedition which lasted several days encountered the enemy six separate times without losing one of his men. He destroyed several barracks.

The United States army transport Meade has arrived here. She reports having met a terrific typhoon Dec. 13 and 15 which did some damage to her boats and flooded the cabins and the hospital quarters, causing great alarm to those on board.

General Chaffee, speaking on the situation in the islands, said he considered conditions in the Philippines to be hopeful and that by the end of February all the turbulent provinces will have been pacified. General Chaffee excepts the island of Samar, however, which will probably require some months longer. There the situation demands a policy of rigid starvation and the giving of food only to those who surrender or who stay in the towns.

The closing of the ports in Laguna and Batangas provinces in Luzon has had a most salutary effect, as the measure has resulted in touching the pockets of the Manila Filipinos who have been aiding the insurgents. The former are now anxious for peace and are working to that end.

Must Turn Turk or Get Out.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Dec. 23.—The authorities of Beyrout, Syria, have notified naturalized American citizens that they must renounce their naturalization within fifteen days, otherwise they will be expelled from Turkey. Spencer Eddy, first secretary of legation at Constantinople, has made an energetic protest in the matter. He has written the Turkish authorities demanding the withdrawal of the measure. The incident may become serious owing to the absence of a naturalization treaty.

Entertaining the Fleet.

HAVANA, Dec. 23.—The officers and sailors of the visiting American fleet now in the harbor are being royally entertained by the Cubans. Last night the Americans attended a Spanish opera at the Payret theater. General Wood will tender them a reception at the palace today. Senor Gener, the mayor of Havana, has presented each ship with 1,000 cigars.

Attempted Suicide In Jail.

NEWPORT, N. H., Dec. 23.—George H. Briggs, who is in jail here awaiting trial on Jan. 14 for the alleged murder of Mrs. Florence Jones in Langdon last October, attempted suicide by hanging. When found in his cell, he was black in the face and had bitten his tongue severely, but after a physician had worked over him for some time he was revived.

Long Denies the Report.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—Secretary Long's attention having been called again to reports that he contemplated resigning from the cabinet, he again authorized an emphatic denial that such was the case. He said there was not a word of truth in the report and that he had not the slightest intention of resigning.

Germany to Attack Venezuela.

BERLIN, Dec. 23.—It is stated upon good authority that the German government is preparing for military action against Venezuela in order to compel a settlement of German claims against that country.

The Indiana Goes to Venezuela.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Dec. 23.—The United States battleship Indiana left here for La Guayra, Venezuela. The German training ship Moltke is now here.

THE COUNCILMANIC CAUCUS.

There will be no minority caucus of the Common Council for 1902, any more than there was one for the Common Council of 1901. The very simple reason for this is that there happens to be no minority in the Council. It is entirely made up of Republicans. The caucus, held Friday evening, was therefore practically a meeting of the Council itself and the decisions informally reached there are assured of being carried out in the open Council.

The announcement that B. Frank Coriell would be the next president of the Common Council was not a surprise to those who make any pretense at being informed as to the local situation. He was the local candidate for the place. At no time has he sought it but has said that he would accept if the position was offered to him. He will be the unanimous choice of the councilmen and will undoubtedly fill the chair in a satisfactory manner.

It has been currently reported that Councilman Lee was very anxious to be chairman of the street committee. While Mr. Lee has made no public assertion of that fact, it is pretty generally understood that the position would have been very acceptable. It so happens, however, that Mr. Tolles has been chairman of the committee for two years and is still in the Common Council. His work has been well done and there is not the slightest reason for making a change.

It is generally understood that the Fourth ward must be recognized properly in the makeup of the committees. The opinion of the councilmen was, however, that it would be manifestly unfair to retire a man like Mr. Tolles, who has been giving such general satisfaction and has the advantage of two years' experience, to give place to a representative of that ward. So the chairmanship of the fire committee, held last year by Mr. Coriell, has been given as the Fourth ward's share.

From reliable sources comes the information that the new contract between the city of Plainfield and the Plainfield Water Supply Company will be practically the same as now in force. No decision has yet been made regarding the insertion of a provision allowing the use of water meters where desired. This contract will probably be made for a year with the privilege of renewing it at that time for a period of ten years.

The street committee of the Common Council is preparing to get after the contracting firm of Gleason & Kiely with a sharp stick. The time for the completion of the alterations at the city disposal beds was up some time ago but the work is still incompleted. The only satisfaction is that the contractors are very likely to lose money by the job.

There is more money in hauling freight than there is in carrying passengers. The officers of the New Jersey Central appear to have recognized the fact. The Plainfield patrons of the company are wondering if the railroad intends to stop carrying passengers altogether.

Some unusually beautiful Christmas music was heard in the churches of Greater Plainfield yesterday when the exercises marking that day were generally held throughout both city and borough.

The retiring Common Council will hold two more meetings this month in order to complete its work and leave the boards clear for its successor.

MANY GOOD THINGS.

Billed to Appear at the Casino Christmas Day.

Spectacular comedy and stirring melo-drama are well enough in their way, but there's nothing more enjoyable, pleasing and entertaining than high class and refined vaudeville, such as will be seen at the Casino, Wednesday afternoon and evening. A great bill of novelty and specialties is promised.

A better adapted place than the Casino for the presentation of specialties and features of the vaudeville stage, is seldom found. It is very accessible and convenient, the trolley, connecting with every point passing the door, very cheery and comfortable within doors.

The programme will include many new acts and creations which will surely please all classes of amusement seekers, and the matinee performance will be made particularly inviting for women, children and parents. By special request, DeBieve, the clever magician who was seen to such good advantage Thanksgiving Day, has been engaged and will perform some new and remarkable feats and illusions. Attention is called to the special prices made for this engagement, and that reserved seats can be secured for both performances at Rowley's and Armstrong's pharmacies.

An Envangelist's Story.

"I suffered for years with a bronchial or lung trouble and tried various remedies but did not obtain permanent relief until I commenced using One Minute Cough Cure," writes Rev. James Kirkman, evangelist, of Belle River, Ill. "I have no hesitation in recommending it to all sufferers from maladies of this kind." One Minute Cough Cure afford immediate relief for coughs, colds and all kind of throat and lung troubles. For croup it is unequalled. Absolutely safe. Very pleasant to take, never fails and is really a favorite with the children. They like it. L. W. Randolph.

DUNELLEN.

The Dunellen Literary Circle held its first meeting in 1901 Saturday evening at the home of Mrs. Lewis T. Titsworth, of Prospect avenue. In addition to being the last meeting of the year it was the time of the annual Christmas celebration and almost the full membership was present. A number of short Christmas stories were read by the circle and Mrs. Titsworth read selections from Dickens "Christmas Carol." In addition Mrs. W. J. Hamilton read a paper on Christmas written by herself that was received with great applause. After the reading the members listened to instrumental music by different ones. Then refreshments, of which the principal feature was a regular old England plum pudding, were served and a social time enjoyed. Each of the members was presented with some small comical gift in remembrance of the time.

The Willing Workers, of Holy Innocents church, held a successful cake and bread sale in the new guild room, Saturday afternoon and evening, and realized a considerable sum of money. The sale was in charge of all the members of the society and was an evidence of the work which they are doing to benefit the church.

One of the cars on the Bound Brook line was stalled on Front street for nearly two hours Saturday evening and great discomfort was caused to all patrons of the road. The delay was caused by the burning out of a wire near Bound Brook. Traffic was resumed about 9 o'clock.

The members of the Methodist church and Sunday-school will hold their Christmaa exercises in the church tomorrow night. The church has been prettily trimmed with evergreens and holly and an interesting programme has been arranged. During the evening fesiivities Santa Claus is expected, loaded down with gifts for the children in the school. A cordial invitation is extended to the friends of the church and Sunday-school to attend and enjoy the evening with the children.

Rev. Mr. Shott, of the Baptist church, announced from his pulpit Sunday morning that he was authorized to offer a free scholarship in a well known business college of Newark to some deserving young man or woman in the village. Anyone desiring to speak to Mr. Shott on the subject will find him at home any day during the week and he will be glad to explain the offer more fully.

the Sunday-school and vocal selections by a double quartette composed of the following: Miss Beeching, Miss Florence Acker, the Misses Kelms, John Osborn, Ephraim Ackor. B. W. Hand addressed the school. In the evening the double quartette rendered special music and there was an address by Rev. Dr. W. C. Nelson.

Two Thousand Years in Prison.

To be sentenced to imprisonment for the term of one's natural life is hard enough, but to be consigned to a dungeon cell for a couple of thousand years is indeed harrowing. Not long ago an Italian adventurer was convicted of 13 distinct forgeries. He was sentenced in each case, with the result that he will be free in the year 2089. A couple of years ago a young man was arrested in Vienna, who, upon his own showing, should have been sentenced to 2,500 years' imprisonment. A total of 400 charges was brought against him, and he was convicted and sentenced on all of them. But the judge was a merciful man, and in passing sentence he threw off 1,000 years in consideration of the man's youth.—Stray Stories.

The Runaway Star.

Recent determinations of the motion of the celebrated runaway star, 1830 Groombridge, by Prof. Campbell of the Lick observatory, show that that singular object is approaching the earth at the rate of 59 miles per second, or more than three times the velocity of the earth in its orbit about the sun. Unless it changes its course, however, it will never get near the solar system, because its velocity of motion across our line of sight amounts to no less than 150 miles per second. Its velocity in a straight line is sufficient to carry it across the distance separating the sun from the nearest fixed star, Alpha Centauri, in about 5,000 years.

He Knew Better.

At a school at Kent an inspector was examining a class of children in arithmetic, when the instructor asked the following question:

"Now, John, suppose I gave you two rabbits and another kind friend gave you one more, how many would you have?"

John—Four, sir.

Inspector—No, my boy, two and one don't make four.

John (quickly)—Please, sir, I've got one old lop-eared 'en at home.—London Spare Moments.

The Real Throne.

The English king may be said to have three thrones, of which the finest and most splendid is perhaps that at Windsor castle; the most frequently used one is that at Buckingham palace, and the true English throne (so designated because, seated on it, the sovereign receives the ambassadors in state), is the one at St. James' palace, London.—Lady's Magazine.

Meeting Competition.

Sam Black—Uncle Ned tole me yistiddy he wuz a hundred an' two yeahs old.

Pete Johnson—A hundred an' two? He tole me las' July he wuz ninety-fo'!

"Yes; but since then he heerd of an ole cullud man in Jawgia what wuz a hundred an' one."—Puck.

His Fresh Heir Fund.

"This is my 'fresh heir fund,'" observed Mr. Richdadd, as he wrote another check for his son's college expenses.

Truly, the fresh heir was blowing the fund right along. — Baltimore American.

Couldn't Use Him.

Cholly—So you think I am too slow for any use?

She—Yes. You don't even make the other young men jealous.—Smart Set.

Insure Against Love.

So many people are dying as a result of love affairs that we wonder some clever man doesn't invent a sort of love insurance.—Atchison Globe.

WAITERS WHO SPECULATE.

Dabble in Stocks and Become Unfit for the Performance of Their Duties.

Stories of the successful speculation of waiters in popular resorts on "tips" received from the patrons are often true; but there is the other side—that of losses, says a New York exchange. Said Philippe, at Delmonico's:

"If one of our waiters constantly speculates on 'tips' loss and failure are certain to come sooner or later. As in the case of Beau Brummel's neckties, one never hears of the unsuccessful, and their losses. It generally happens that a waiter is successful at first. If he puts the money he makes into real estate he prospers; but let him continue to speculate and he generally loses his all. I have had some good winnings, but prefer investment in real estate. Stock speculation really distracts a waiter and he cannot properly attend to business. As soon as we find a waiter getting too engrossed in speculation we discharge him, as he cannot keep away from the 'ticker,' and confuses his orders. One poor fellow nearly went crazy here last winter in consequence of his stock speculations. He would forget his orders and call for 'one Western Union,' when he should have said 'one steak underdone,' and so on, until we had to discharge him. I do not know what has become of him, but expect to hear he has landed in the insane asylum on the island."

PIGEONS THE PEST OF VIENNA

Have Multiplied from a Few Pairs in One Hundred Years Beyond All Control.

The few pairs of pigeons brought 100 years ago from Venice to Vienna have multiplied to such an amazing extent as to have become a public pest. There is great difficulty in exterminating these pretty creatures, as, besides the danger involved to the public in shooting them, many of the birds would perhaps only be wounded. The town council has, therefore, resolved that as many as possible shall be caught alive, killed and given to poor families, and that for some years fresh eggs in equal numbers shall be abstracted from the nests.

The birds, which are great favorites with the cabmen and porters, are fed as regularly as the horses, clouds of pigeons descending at the first throw of corn. Hundreds of birds await an eccentric woman who appears every day in the town park in summer and winter with food for them. In the winter she brings warm linseed meal and other food, and they descend at her call. She is closely veiled and her name is unknown. The habitues of the park have dubbed her the "Baroness." She wept upon being told by a park keeper that the pigeons were to be caught and killed, says the New York Mail and Express, and great dissatisfaction is also expressed by the cabmen.

FRUIT IS A GOOD MEDICINE.

Authorities Say That Disease Is Both Prevented and Cured by Free Indulgence.

It has not been a secret of the medical profession that the eating of fresh fruits is one of the most healthful of habits. As a cure it is both simple and agreeable.

Fruits are divided into five classes—the astringent, the mealy, the oily, the acid and sweet. Each has an especial value.

The grape is the king cure of all fruits, and is recommended particularly to the consumptive, the anaemic and the dyspeptic; also for gout and all liver complaints.

The prescription in each case is very simple, varying of course according to the complaint. To begin with, the patient consumes from a half to a pound and a half of grapes daily, increasing gradually to nine or ten pounds. This diet is to be continued until the patient's health shows a general improvement.

To the sweet fruits a special hygienic virtue is ascribed, particularly to the plum, as a remedy in articular rheumatism or preventive to gout.

The acid class, which includes raspberries, strawberries, peaches, apples, gooseberries, cherries, lemons and oranges, stands at the head of the list. All these fruits are prescribed for stomach troubles.

A PAIR OF WEDDED LOVERS.

Czar and Czarina Are Said to Be Without Eyes But for Each Other.

It is amusing to hear the remarks of those who saw the czar and czarina at the camp lunches they attended while in France. They behaved like a newly-married couple at a table d'hote, with neither eyes nor ears except for one another, says London Truth. She spoke so much to the czar at the Betheny lunch that M. Loubet, who was at her left hand, imagined an old graybeard like himself was de trop, and chatted continuously with his other next neighbor, Mme. Casimir-Perier.

Nicholas was full of anxiety. He filled himself the empress' glasses when champagne or other wines were handed round. Mme. Loubet sat next to him, but she showed, by conversing with her other neighbor, that she did not wish to bore him. When he and the empress chatted, the latter looked animated and as if she enjoyed herself. As soon as he spoke to Mme. Loubet the expression of the imperial lady changed, and she gazed without the slightest animation, as if absent-minded.

KEEP OFF THE EARTH

During the cold and wet weather as much as possible—that is, keep as much shoe leather between the soles of your feet and Mother Earth as you can conveniently carry. It's wisest in the beginning and cheaper in the end to provide yourself with shoes having good solid soles—cold-proof and water-proof, if possible.

We are selling exceptionally good shoes of just this sort for men and women; children, too.

Well built, with broad, heavy soles and with stout uppers.

They're a very paradise of rest for weary feet, and a paradise of economy for weary purses.

BOICE, RUNYON & CO.,
Park Avenue and Railroad.

There is at present living in the northern part of the State of New Hampshire a well-preserved man who was a soldier of the War of the Rebellion. He is sixty-one years of age, and likes to take life easy now; but has ailments, perhaps inseparable from the decline of life, and has found much relief from the use of Ripans Tabules. He was long troubled with frequent headaches; there was an enlargement of the liver; he was annoyed more or less now and then with piles, and occasionally there was a rheumatic affection in his shoulder; another difficulty was a shortness of breath, or what seemed to be an inability to fill his lungs; this he attributed to a stomach trouble, although he was told it was dropsy of the heart. He found that Ripans Tabules, if taken at the time of the approach of any of these troubles, would always stave it off, and bring almost instant relief. He noticed also that they brought about a condition of things that, were he a married man, would be a source of infinite pleasure, but, being single, has at times made him, as he expresses it, "very uneasy."

WANTED—A case of bad health that R·I·P·A·N·S will not benefit. They banish pain and prolong life. One gives relief. Note the word R·I·P·A·N·S on the package and accept no substitute. R·I·P·A·N·S, 10 for 5 cents, may be had at any drug store. Ten samples and one thousand testimonials will be mailed to any address for 5 cents, forwarded to the Ripans Chemical Co., No. 10 Spruce St., New York.

I then tried your CORN CURE and used only three bottles, costing 45c. and am happy to say it has taken them off completely. They have not troubled me now for over a year. The New Woman's Gossip

BY... ELIZA ARCHARD CONNER

A SUCCESSFUL young business woman is Miss Amy Campbell of Cincinnati. Her success seems almost phenomenal, yet beyond a doubt she has earned it all. Miss Campbell began life as a stenographer and typewriter. She had the advantage of a good education and familiarity with social usages. She also had that which when it is backed by genuine merit goes further than anything else in determining the success of a business career, a serene, unfaltering confidence in herself and her own power to accomplish her aims. After feeling her way awhile, Miss Campbell established a school of stenography on her own account. It prospered. Her next move was to place stenographers in the hotels of the city, where they could be had when travelers needed them. These hotel stenographers are women, and Miss Campbell pays them regular wages. The money for the shorthand and typewriting she herself collects, so as to be sure of it. Other women have established schools of stenography many a time before, but Miss Campbell has somehow the business talent and shrewdness that can make everything she undertakes pay. She owns a handsome home in a beautiful hill suburb of Cincinnati and keeps a number of horses, a carriage and a tandem. She is strong, athletic and healthy and a lover of outdoor sports, owning dogs as well as horses. One is glad to note, too, that her forceful, independent character is no drawback, rather an aid, to the enviable social standing she has won for herself.

It is no use talking or beating about the bush or denying the fact—the woman of average means who is the mother of a great gang of children is worn out and bowed and old twenty years before her time.

A late newspaper dispatch relates one of the strangest, most tragic incidents on record. A boy who had been out gunning was bringing in his gamebag to show it exultingly to his young lady sister, his loaded gun still in his hands. In running forward he caught his foot in a long rip in the carpet, pitched forward and fell. As he struck the floor the gun was discharged, killing his beloved sister. There is a tremendous moral in this sad story—in truth, there are two of them. One is concerning the leaving of holes in a carpet, the other concerning handling loaded guns in houses.

In the range region of western Nebraska lives Annie Pantenburg. She is manager of a ranch of 3,000 acres, having upon it 800 cattle. Annie is only sixteen, yet it is told of her that she knows every live stock brand in western Nebraska and southern Wyoming. She makes all the live stock sales on the ranch. Her father is dead, and this splendid, strong, wholesome girl continues his business.

Mrs. M. A. S. Monagon of Lincoln, Neb., is a manager of political campaigns and lecture tours. She had entire control of the orators and speeches during the campaign of Hon. L. O. Jones for governor of Nebraska. She also manages and lays off the routes of travel for Mr. John G. Woolley and other lecturers. To get Mrs. Monagon for a manager means success for the speaker who has anything in himself.

Miss Charlotte Cipriani, an American girl of Italian descent and a graduate from Chicago university, has received the degree of doctor of letters from the University of Paris.

The true position in regard to long skirts seems to be this: In the house, where no walking is required, they are graceful and artistic; on the street they are a filthy abomination.

One trial of a city resident's life is staying all night at a farmhouse in winter. Farm people's hearts are as large as their well filled barns, but their houses, alas, are as cold! Ladies on farms, why, oh, why, do you not have furnaces, with a register for every room, put under your houses and bathrooms, with abundant hot and cold water supply put into them? Have the work done carefully, so it will be just right. It will not cost a very great sum, and the shivers will no longer run down the spine of your city cousin when he receives your invitation to Christmas dinner. You, yourselves, are just the salt of the earth, and you deserve comfortable houses for your own sakes.

Miss E. Ransom has been for sixteen years the highly valued and respected station agent of a railroad at Canandaigua, N. Y.

The socialists of Belgium in national convention have declared in favor of suffrage for woman, but say she must wait until manhood suffrage has first been secured. "After me is manners for you."

Ask the intelligent men you know what they think of the street sweeping skirt.

The Trouble on the Torolito.

BY FRANCIS LYNDE.

(Copyright 1898, by Francis Lynde.)

"True; but if that were all the dam would be standing at this moment, Angus. It did stand the cloudburst, and the pressure on was decreasing rapidly when it went out."

"The mischief, you say! How do you know all this, Jack?"

"As I have told you, I was within 50 yards of the dam when it went out. And Jacob Selter was trying to cross it!"

"Good Lord! But what wrecked it?"

"Selter, I think. There was an explosion as if a 12-inch shell had struck just above the masonry. He had fired his infernal machine from the mouth of the outlet tunnel, and was scrambling up to be out of harm's way when he saw Nan and Wykamp below the dam. When the shell exploded he was trying to reach them—for Nan's sake, I suppose."

Macpherson smoked his pipe quite to extinction before he spoke again. Then he said: "Jack, I'm a little tangled on the ethics of this thing. Could it do any possible harm to anybody if we keep this thing to ourselves?"

"I don't see that it can. Jake has paid the penalty. He's well out of reach of any court of ours."

"That's what I was thinking. And if we publish it, it'll likely make it harder for a poor, miserable, destitute widow woman."

"I'm with you," I agreed. "And now for your plans. I don't think the Glenlivat people will trouble you for a year or two, and the suit against you will fall to the ground without Wykamp's evidence. Will you go quietly back to your cow-punching and make hay while the sun shines?"

His smile was inscrutable. "If it's all the same to you, I think I'll go on with the dirt-washing on my placer claim."

"But you can't; your bar's gone."

The mysterious smile held its own. "It's a pretty spiteful wind that blows nobody good, Jack. As you say, the bar's gone, but there is another one formed just below. I went up there and washed out a few panfuls to-day, and this is what I found."

He showed me a handful of dull, yellow nuggets from the size of a mustard seed to that of a pea.

"Then you've struck it rich at last! I congratulate you, my dear boy."

"Thanks; though it may not be a bonanza—probably isn't. But maybe there'll be enough to stand us all on our feet again. If there is anything in it, I'm going into the stock business."

"You're in that now, aren't you?"

"No; the other kind of stock. The Glenlivat people will be mighty tired when they hear of this, and they'll sell out cheap, most of them. I want to buy and own 51 per cent. of the stock. If there is ever another syndicate in the Torolito it'll be Angus Macpherson & Co."

"Good; and the company?"

"You know who the company will be; and that's where you come in. You've got to think up some scheme to take care of her while I'm making the turn."

"It is already thought up, proposed and accepted. She goes with me to my sister in Denver, poco tiempo."

"Jack, old man, you're a god in the car!"—he wrung my hand till I winced. "If you go off and die before you see me through on this, I'll never forgive you."

"If I die, I'll leave it as a bequest to Letitia, and she will see you through. She is a born matchmaker,

"SHE GOES WITH ME TO MY SISTER'S."

as you have occasion to know, if my memory serves me."

"Oh, you be d—d!" said Mac, his eyes filling. He had not sworn at me for many days, and it was heartening. "When will you go?"

"To-morrow, if you'll lend us the team and the buckboard. Neither of us have more than the clothes we stand in, you know."

He was silent for a good while, and then he said:

"May I go up to the house and see her?—just for a minute? You can do the chaperon act."

"No."

"For a half-minute, then?"

"No. We both know the circumstances, and that she can't really mourn him. But we mustn't forget that he was her husband."

"That's so. Good-by, and God bless you, old man." He wrung my hand again, and was gone; and I did not return to the farm house until I had fairly lost sight of his broad back at the turn of the road.

And on the morrow we left the scarred valley, Winifred and I, and caught the train at the Fort, and were welcomed with open arms by Letitia, who was so grateful for the added odd pounds of flesh that I brought back in my proper person that she was lovingly gracious to Winifred. And later, when she had come to hope more for me, and to love the schoolmistress for her own sake, my part was still harder to play; for, as I have hinted, my sister is a born maker of matches. Indeed, I may as well confess that I should have made a sorry failure of it if I had not warned Letitia off by telling her the truth, and so made her Macpherson's advocate instead of mine.

Long before the snows came to stop the work on the placer bar, Angus fulfilled his own prophecy. I acted as his broker in Denver, and went gunning from time to time for Glenlivat stock. It was pot-hunting, for the greater part. The stockholders were only too willing to be out of it at any price, and the last block of stock cost us little more than the transfer fee. Angus was jubilant, as he had a right to be; and when he was once more the king of the Torolito, he wrote me at length, detailing his plans. There was to be a new house, and a great stock farm with ancestored beasts, and a few more settlers picked and chosen from among our friends, for all of which the placer bar promised to be responsible—and, kept its promise.

QUICK LUNCH TIPPING.

An Illustration of Its Efficacy in Securing the Favor of the Waiter.

Two men sat side by side on the high stools of one of those quick lunch places, lined with pale tiles like a bathroom, that abound in this city, says the Philadelphia Record. One of them said to the other: "In a cafe like this few persons tip the waiter behind the counter. They think it would be a waste of money, because the waiter calls their orders down a tube into a kitchen somewhere underground, and they hold that he has no jurisdiction over the portions, and that they are served just the same whether they tip him or not. Well, they are altogether mistaken. I know, for I have made a study of this matter. The waiter here has two tones with which to speak through the tube. One tone is for the patron who tips, the other for him who doesn't. Now, watch a minute." The waiter, in an ordinary voice, now called three orders, and then, in a strange falsetto, called that of the man who had been speaking. "You see?" said he to his companion. "I tip, and those other fellows don't." A moment later he added, triumphantly: "Look at the difference between my order of roast beef and our friend's over there. I've got a big cut out of the heart of the roast, and he's got two or three little chunks of 'end.' Oh, yes, it pays to tip in these places as well as it does anywhere."

NEW VOGUE IN POSTAL CARDS.

Now Used for Personal Messages Bearing Picture of Sender's Residence.

Postal cards are coming to be considered good form. Whereas, they were formerly admissible only as a means for dispatching an order to a tradesman, they may now be used for the transmission of personal messages. The stipulation, however, is that they must bear a reproduction of one's house, says the New York World.

This promises to make the fashion an exclusive one. Anybody can consult a heraldic expert and have his family insignia discovered and transferred to his note paper. But not everybody lives in a mansion that would form a desirable decoration for a postal card. In any case the suburban resident will, it is plain, have the advantage.

Now that the use of the camera has become universal, nothing is easier than to secure a pretty country view, and any stationer can have such a view reproduced at a trifling cost on cards of a size suitable to be sent by post.

It will be no uncommon thing for Jones, who has taken a house in New Jersey, to acquaint his friends with its charms, not by lengthy descriptions, but by sending them post cards adorned with its picture.

The size of the picture need only be restricted by that of the card. Postal authorities now allow cards of very fair proportions to pass as post cards.

A Singular Discovery.

An Ottawa correspondent writes that intelligence has been received from the Yukon of a strange discovery that the language of the Nulato Indians who live within the arctic circle and that of the Apaches of New Mexico and Arizona are the same. The facts have come to light through the return to Dawson City of Father John Rene, prefect apostolic of the Roman Catholic church in Alaska, from a journey to the fathers working among the aboriginal tribes of the Lower Yukon.

New Kind of Tipple.

Farmers about Cortland, N. Y., a prohibition district, were puzzled to find that their hands got drunk without any visible liquor supply. They finally discovered that the employes had tapped the silo for the juice of the green cornstalks, which, fermented, makes a liquor that is pleasant, but most terrible.

Present Cabinet Not to Remain Intact for Long.

Four Members of President Roosevelt's Official Family Are Weary of Bearing the Burden of Office.

[Special Washington Letter.]

THE readers of daily newspapers are being regaled with a mass of speculation, in lieu of fact, concerning the continuance of the McKinley cabinet as the constitutional advisers of President Roosevelt. As a matter of fact, it is impossible at the present time for any writer or newsgatherer to make any positive statements on that subject. It is the presumption of all men of mature years and ripe experience in national affairs, however, that changes will occur.

From the time of the Fillmore administration there has not been a president who has been able to maintain his cabinet intact during four years of continuous service. Buchanan's cabinet was completely changed. Lincoln began with Simon Cameron as secretary of war, and changed to Edwin M. Stanton. His secretary of the treasury, Salmon P. Chase was succeeded by Hugh McCulloch; and there were other changes in contemplation when his life was cut short by the assassin's bullet. The cabinets of Grant, Hayes, Arthur and Harrison were all subjected to changes necessitated by then existing circumstances. Garfield did not live long enough to develop the possibilities of a complete administration.

Senator Burton, of Kansas, who was recently here, said: "It is very apparent to me that President Roosevelt intends to do as he has stated, continue McKinley's best known policies; but I am sure that he will find it difficult to use the same instruments that McKinley used. Just as all artisans use different kinds of tools for accomplishing similar purposes, so different men in positions of power and influence must have the services of different men as their assistants."

That changes must occur, even in carrying out McKinley's policies, is apparent from the course pursued by McKinley himself. He had three secretaries of state, John Sherman, William R. Day and John Hay. He had two postmaster generals, Gary and Smith. He had two secretaries of the interior, Bliss and Hitchcock. He had two secretaries of War, Alger and Root. Of the original McKinley cabinet, only three secretaries remain: Long, of the navy department; Gage, of the treasury department, and Wilson, of the department of agriculture.

Of the present cabinet it is well known that four members are anxious to retire to private life, and the others are willing to do so. The secretary of state, John Hay, is still suffering acutely because of the sudden death of his son less than a year ago. His bereavement is shared by his entire family. They want his time and attention, and he wants to turn his back upon public affairs and be with his loved ones during his few remaining months or years. Secretary Long was an invalid when he entered the cabinet, and he has never recovered his health.

To one of his personal friends the postmaster general recently said: "It was only because of our most lovely and agreeable personal relations that I consented to remain with President McKinley during a portion of his second term. His charming manner and personal magnetism made it almost impossible for anyone to say him nay on any proposition. His friends not only admired the man, but loved him.

BELKNAP'S RESIGNATION.

President Roosevelt knows of my desires on this subject, and he will do what is right." It is inferred by his intimate friends that the postmaster general will retire from the cabinet and resume chief editorial direction of his newspaper. He also prefers living among his lifetime friends.

Senator Mason, of Illinois, has said to the writer: "I have very good reason for believing that Secretary Gage will not remain in the position as secretary of the treasury. He has been deeply bereaved, as has the secretary of state. He has strong personal and also strong political reasons for desiring to retire to private life; and I know that President Roosevelt has reluctantly concluded that Mr. Gage may retire inside of a few months, but there will be no undue haste in the matter."

Secretary Hitchcock, of the interior department, recently wrote a letter to a personal friend in St. Louis (which the writer has seen) in which he says: "President Roosevelt is a grand good fellow, as well as a great man; but, in spite of my high regard for him, he is not McKinley. It does not seem like home in the cabinet room since McKinley's gone." This statement is not conclusive, but it shows that another member of the cabinet, with warm regard for President Roosevelt, does not desire to remain with the administration; or at least that he does not feel so much at home in the official harness as he used to feel.

The secretary of war feels at home in the cabinet with Roosevelt at the head of the table, for the gentlemen have been personal and political friends for several years. Secretary Root had but slight personal acquaintance with President McKinley when he was asked to accept the position of secretary of war. He did so as a matter of public duty rather than to gratify ambition. Therefore it is assumed, without a shadow of doubt, by his most intimate friends that he will remain in that position because of the strong desire of President Roosevelt.

"THAT CAN BE SETTLED QUICKLY."

The fact that the secretary of war is the only member of the cabinet who it is believed will positively continue in that relationship recalls the fact that all of the members of Garfield's cabinet retired upon the accession of President Arthur except the secretary of war, Robert T. Lincoln. Upon the death of President Garfield and the accession of Vice President Arthur all of the members of the Garfield cabinet were requested to remain, and they did so; but only for a time, Mr. Lincoln alone continuing in office throughout the Arthur administration.

Because of his exceptional abilities as an agriculturist, and his demonstrated executive abilities, the Iowa friends of Secretary Wilson, of the department of agriculture, believe that he will be urged and almost required to continue at the head of the department which he has been so ably developing for the farmers during the past four years.

Attorney General Knox has occupied the position but a few months, but most acceptably to President McKinley and the country. He was reluctant to accept office, but did so at the earnest solicitation of President McKinley, when Attorney General Griggs announced that it was practically impossible for him to continue in that place. The attorney general and the postmaster general are both from the state of Pennsylvania, and it is anomalous that two members of the cabinet should hail from the same commonwealth, although it is not without precedent. Mr. Knox has said without hesitation that he sincerely desires that President Roosevelt will select another attorney general within a reasonable time, and it seems quite likely that he will do so by the time the congress convenes on the first Monday in December, as it is constitutionally required to convene. At that time it is generally understood that President Roosevelt will send to the senate the nominations of several members of the cabinet; and, of course, they will be confirmed without delay.

There will be no dramatic resignations. There have been very few dramatic resignations in the history of the republic. President Grant accepted the resignation of Secretary Belknap, when it was dramatically presented. Belknap was Grant's friend and Grant was his friend. Belknap was suspected of maladministration. Grant did not believe the charges; but he accepted the resignation in order that Belknap might be better circumstanced to defend himself. The resignation and acceptance were in all friendship and kindness on the part of the president and the secretary.

The dramatic resignation of Blaine, in 1892, and its prompt acceptance by President Harrison, was the culmination of bitter animosities and strained political relations. From the then secretary of agriculture, Secretary Rusk, the writer learned of that incident. The cabinet was in session when Mr. Blaine appeared. He informed the president that commissioners from Canada were awaiting him at the department of state, and begged to be excused from the cabinet meeting. President Harrison took Blaine by the arm and walked to a window with him. Not more than two or three sentences passed between them, when Mr. Blaine was heard to say: "That can be settled very quickly." Blaine bowed to all the members of the cabinet, went forth from the white house, and inside of ten minutes his resignation was in Harrison's hands. What Harrison said, nobody ever knew. It was enough to anger Blaine, and he immediately resigned. President Harrison was as prompt in action, for he immediately wrote his acceptance of Blaine's resignation and sent it by special messenger.

There will be no dramatic withdrawals from Roosevelt's cabinet. All will be done decently and in order and without haste. Public business will not be disturbed, and public affairs will continue serene as the inevitable changes occur.

Sleepless Trees.

Report has it that some of the trees on the embankment cannot thrive because they are deprived of rest at night. Powerful electric lights take up the work when the sun sets, and the trees, it is said, languish from abnormal insomnia. It is the light, not the kind of it, that does the mischief, for electricity stimulates growth. The victims cannot, like the tired night workers, draw down a dark blind and make an artificial night, nor imitate the lyric maiden who "closed her eyes when she went to sleep." The tree is nearly all eye—its leaf is eye, lungs and skin. A pretty experiment which Prof. Dewar showed the other day illustrates all this. The end of a plant covered with leaves is immersed in a small tube containing water, and a picture is thrown on the screen. Instantly the water can be seen flowing into the plant. Then the leaves are stripped off, and at once the transportation of fluid ceases. If too long continued light be the true cause of the trees languishing, then it would seem that they also need rest for reparation.—London Telegraph.

Some Kind of Bird.

When Rev. Charles Wing, now in Brooklyn, was a young man he was called to a church in a small country village. Mrs. Wing kept no servant in those days, and so, when she found that the parsonage needed cleaning, just after their arrival, she asked Mr Wing to find a woman to help her in the work. As he was walking along the main street of the village he met an old Irish woman who seemed to be a likely subject, and he asked her if she cared to do the job.

"I do, sor. Where's the house?"

"Right next door to the church," he answered. "Ask for Mr. Wing."

The old woman found the house, but her memory for names was not accurate. She came as near to it as she could when, Mrs. Wing having come to the door in answer to her ring, she asked:

"Does Mrs. Fly live here?"

"No," answered the clergyman's wife. "Mrs. Wing lives here."

"That's right," said the old woman. "Sure, I knew it was some kind of a bird."—N Y. Times.

There are thousands of suitable Christmas presents at J. W. Gavett's china store on West Front street. The very latest in china and glassware, lamps, novelties are to be found within the reach of all.

L. Moraller & Son, of Park avenue, are offering the Christmas trade remarkable bargains in jewelry. Gold tie pins, stick pins, brooches, fobs, rings, bracelets, watches and diamonds are being sold at low figures.

Asa Collier, the Park avenue jeweler, has for many years past catered to the best people as well as those in moderate circumstances. The general verdict is that his goods give entire satisfaction and there is one price.

Audsley's art store on East Front street, is an emporium for fine pictures, framed and unframed. There is a choice collection of prints, etchings and paintings in oil and water, from which to make a selection for a suitable Christmas gift.

At the Plainfield Art Store the people of this city can find a collection of pictures, in all types and varieties, such as seldom placed on sale outside of the metropolis. There is nothing in this up-to-date shop that is not suitable for a Christmas gift.

The Union Furniture Company has never had such a prosperous Yuletide trade and the fact is attributable to the wonderful bargains in Morris chairs, rockers, couches, white enamel combination dressers and other articles of furniture suitable for Christmas gifts.

Christmas candies, pure and toothsome, can be purchased at Campbell's on West Front street, all at a variety of prices. There's a large variety of boxes in unique shapes from which you can select when you purchase Christmas chocolates or mixed candy for Christmas gifts.

Fowler's, on East Front street, is filled with customers who are anxious to obtain the finest make in candies and bon-bons at the most reasonable prices. The orders for Christmas candy placed by Sunday-schools and and private parties surpass those of any previous year.

If a model Morris chair, elaborate or plain library table, desk, rocker, music cabinet or woman's dressing table is desired as a Christmas present there is no more reliable place for a Plainfielder to make a purchase than at Powlison & Jones, on East Front street, where good values are offered.

A great demand for neat neckwear is reported by J. R. Blair, at the Park avenue gentlemen's furnishing establishment. He is handling an extra fine assortment and has been quite successful in the sales of this line of goods. His stock of high-grade umbrellas, selling at low prices, is also being depleted by the Christmas trade.

Accounting for Dreams.

An interesting lecture on dreams was recently given by Prof. Bergson in Paris. The professor says that dreams are only visual phenomena, that the circulation of blood in the retina and the pressure of the eyelid on the optic nerve has something to do with it, and produces color sensations. Our senses are not deadened in our slumbers; on the contrary they run riot; but the professor is convinced that we never invent anything in our dreams, and that the stories of musicians and poets composing wonderful things in their dreams are entirely unfounded. During sleep "all that we have ever seen, or heard or read is there to be evoked by the slightest sensation. To dream, consequently, is the natural state of the mind, which drifts into indifference to its surroundings."—Science.

Pet Mice That Waltz.

Speaking of bugs and such things, the mouse fad has hit New York. All the stylish young women in town are leaving their French poodle dogs to look after themselves while they get all kinds of amusement out of a pet rodent. Just what the latter thinks of the innovation cannot be related. On Fifth avenue one afternoon two young women were noticed carrying common, everyday mice around with them. One had a gold chain about his neck, while the other had a piece of baby ribbon. The latest thing is to train the mice to waltz. Some of them can do a turn that would make a Bowery girl look like an amateur. Of course, those able to waltz are in great demand.—N. Y. Letter.

HOW PLAINFIELD IS TO SPEND HOLIDAY

Many Church Services and But Few Popular Amusements are Scheduled.

WHAT IS TO HAPPEN.

PROGRAMMES OF SERVICES AT SOME OF THE CHURCHES.

Otherwise the Day Promises to be a Very Quiet One—Vaudeville at Casino—Football at Hope Common.

From all indications Christmas Day will be observed as generally as ever in Greater Plainfield. In a number of the churches there will be the regular Christmas services and a few of them will have their annual Christmas entertainments. In the line of popular amusement it appears that there will be less than the usual number of attractions.

The Roman Catholic, the Episcopal, the German Lutheran, Swedish Lutheran, and the German Reformed churches will celebrate the festal occasion in their customary way.

Four masses will be said at St. Mary's R. C. church. The announcement for the day is as follows: High mass at 6 o'clock; low mass at 7:30, 8:30 and 9:30 o'clock, and high mass at 10:30 o'clock. The 9:30 o'clock mass is intended for the children of the parish. For some months past the choir of the church has been practicing the special Christmas music and the high mass at 10:30 o'clock promises to be brilliant in musical features.

In St. Joseph's R. C. church, Father Miller, the rector, will act as celebrant at high mass, at 5:30 o'clock, children's mass at 8:30 o'clock and high mass at 10:30 o'clock. The full choir will sing Giorzia's mass at the last celebration. With the pipe organ there will be an orchestral accompaniment. The Adeste Fideles, as arranged by Vincent Novello, will also be sung. The interior of both edifices has been elaborately adorned and the representation of the manger is to be seen at both St. Mary's and St. Joseph's.

In the Episcopal churches there will be some especially fine music on this great feast day. The edifices have been profusely decorated. At Grace church the early celebration of the Holy Communion has been set for 7 o'clock, which will be followed by a second celebration at 8 o'clock. The principal service will be at 10:30 o'clock when the full vested choir will render the Christmas music.

The hours for service at the Church of the Holy Cross, in Washington Park, are as follows: Holy Communion, 7:30 o'clock, and Morning Prayer, sermon, and Holy Communion at 10:30 o'clock. At the last celebration the special Christmas music will be rendered by the vested choir, which has been carefully trained by Choirmaster William E. MacClymont. Rev. Wm. Montgomery Downey, the rector, will be assisted by Rev. Mr. Neilson, formerly of St. Michael's, Trenton.

Rev. Edward Everett Johnson, of Trenton, will officiate at St. Stephen's, Netherwood. The early celebration will be held at 7:30 o'clock. Morning Prayer is set for 10:30 and it will be followed by another celebration of the Holy Communion at 11 o'clock. The vested choir will present some fine music. At the Church of the Heavenly Rest, William Winans Moore, the lay reader, will conduct the service at 10:30 o'clock and here also will the vested choir render elaborate music.

The service at the German Reformed church will be held at 10:30 o'clock in the morning and Rev. George Hauser, the pastor, will preach a Christmas service. In the evening at 8 o'clock the Sunday-school children's festival will be held. Two trees have been placed in the church edifice and all the little ones will be remembered.

Rev. Theodore Duensing, the recently chosen pastor of the St. Peter's German Lutheran church, will conduct service in that church at 10:30 o'clock in the morning. At 7:30 o'clock in the evening the Sunday-school exercises will be held. A tree will be placed in the chancel. The pastor and his nephew, John Kornes, will speak and the children will recite and sing.

In the parish building of Grace church the congregation of the Swedish Lutheran Gethsemane church will hold an early service at 6:30 o'clock in the morning. A service will also be held at the Fillmore Baptist church at 10:30 o'clock in the morning.

A service will be held by the Swedish Pilgrim church congregation in the Congregational church parlors at 6:30 o'clock in the morning. In Sweden this service is known as the Julotta.

As for amusements and sports there are few to record. A vaudeville performance will be given at the Casino. The matinee will be at 2:30 o'clock and popular prices wll prevail. The evening performance commences at 8:15. The bill is said to be a good one. At 3 o'clock in the afternoon the Hope Chapel Y. M. A. team and the Kearney A. C. team will play association football on Hope Common.

The Independent Gun Club will hold an all day shoot, commencing at 11 o'clock in the morning, on its grounds near Harrison street. The second in the series of the prize shooting contests will take place.

In Saengerbund Hall the Gesang and Turn Verein will hold a Christmas entertainment in the afternoon. Two Christmas trees have been decorated and the children of the members will receive presents and candy. There will also be some bowling contests among the members of the club.

At the hospital there will be a Christmas tree at 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

AT THE CASINO.

About the Attractions to be Given There Christmas Day.

Entertaining, refined and high class vaudeville performances will be the attraction at the Casino, tomorrow afternoon and evening. Nothing better in this line has ever been offered or presented under Manager Maze Edward's management.

The Weber & Fields booking agents, Vion & Homans, who have established for themselves enviable reputation for judgment in selection of artists and who furnish the company that appears here tomorrow, claim superior excellence in the bills to be witnessed tomorrow. Young and old will be particularly delighted with the work and feats of DeBiers the wonderful magician, who has been engaged by special request, and at the matinee in the afternoon, will introduce some startling novelties.

Other performers include Flatow and Dunn, comedians, singers and dancers; Carroll, the California bird warbler; Fred Clarenze, vocalist; John Harty, comedy juggler; the Hawley duo, club experts; John Healy, comedian; Edwards and Kernell, sketch artists; and others. See advertisement about special prices. Reserved seat tickets for both afternoon and evening performance, at Rowley's and Armstrong's stores.

An enjoyable time was spent, and the pastor received not only a shower of wishes for a merry Christmas, but congratulations for his valuable services as the head of the denomination in the borough.

Santa Claus' Defenders.

The Christmas entertainment at the Park Avenue Baptist church will be held Monday evening, and will be in the nature of a cantata, entitled "Santa Claus' Defenders," in which thirty of the teachers and pupils of the school will participate. A delightful evening is anticipated, and all are cordially invited to be present.

BRISK BUSINESS IN TREES

THE VENDERS OF CHRISTMAS TREES FIND PRICES GOOD.

There Are Many Buyers While There is No Dearth in the Supply.

Christmas trees, in all sizes and prices, are placed along the sidewalks throughout the business section of the city, and from appearances many sales are being made. Naturally the prices depend upon the size as well as the beauty of the trees, but there is little change in the rates asked last year.

From the majority of the vendors the prices asked vary from twenty-five cents to $5, only a few, however, bringing the last named sum. As a rule the florists do not make a specialty of the trees, paying more attention to holly, mistletoe, and greens in the form of wreaths and crosses. For a quarter of a dollar a little tree, such as would please the baby, can be purchased and for from $2 to $3 the average sized tree can be had.

Many of the trees come from down east, principally from Maine, although the greater number of them are from this vicinity. Those from this neighborhood are brought to the city by the farmers, who sell them in lots to enterprising individuals by whom neat sums are made in this way annually. There is no dearth in the supply this year, and those offered for sale are up to the standard in every respect.

TO ELIMINATE ODORS.

Smalley Brothers Will Provide a Special Place for Preparing Lard and Other Cooking.

At present Smalley Brothers, of North avenue, have been using the basement of their building as a place to render lard and do other kinds of cooking. This has been objectionable to the tenants in the building. The owners of the building, fully realizing this, have decided to erect a building outside in the rear, where this work will be done.

There are two dead walls in the rear. Two more will be erected and a roof placed over the top. Extending above the top of the large building will be a smokestack that will completely carry off all odors. This will remove all objections and be a decided improvement.

It is the desire and purpose of the firm to keep the building in a perfect sanitary condition, and free from all objectionable odors.

NOTABLE WEDDING.

Miss Florence Huntington, of This City, Will be a Bridemaid.

Miss Florence Huntington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Huntington, of Franklin place, will be one of six bridemaids at the wedding of her cousin, Miss Elisa von Breton di Zarega, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Antoine di Zarega, of New York, to Stuart Pullman West.

The ceremony will take place in the Church of the Heavenly Rest, Fifth avenue and Forty-fifth street, Friday, January 3, the date being the ninety-second birthday of Mrs. John di Zarega, of Island Hall, Westchester, the grandmother of the bride and three of the bridemaids. A reception at the Buckingham hotel will follow the ceremony.

Permit for New Dwelling.

John Rafferty, of Sandford avenne, has received a permit from Building Inspector T. O. Doane for the erection of a frame dwelling on Grant avenue, near West Fourth street. The structure will be two stories in height. According to the estimate it will cost $5,000. The plans were drawn by W. A. Clum and John McNally will erect the building.

Results of School Cantata.

The total receipts received from the sale of tickets for the cantata given Thursday evening and Friday afternoon by the pupils of the Irving school, amounted to $96.18, of which $83 was cleared above expenses. This speaks well for the enterprise of the school.

Will Repeat Christmas Music.

The Christmas music rendered last Sunday morning at the First Baptist church by the choir will be repeated Sunday evening. There will be additional music of a special character.

CARRIED AWAY PIPE.

Frank Meyers Arrested on Charge of Robbing Vacant House of the Lead Pipe.

While on a visit to this city, yesterday afternoon, Mrs. F. A. Miller, of Scotch Plains, thought she would examine a vacant house owned by her on Watchung avenue. She looked over the rooms and was surprised to find in one of them about forty pounds of lead pipe, cut from the plumbing, ready for removal. The police were informed.

Roundsman Flynn was detailed to watch for the return of the thieves. He had been watching but a short time when Frank Meyers, a fifteen-year-old boy living on East Fourth street, entered and carried away the pipe. The Roundsman followed him a short distance and then placed him under arrest.

He will be arraigned before Justice Nash this afternoon.

A BIG RUSH AT POSTOFFICE

HEAVY MAILS OF HOLIDAY TIME MAKES THINGS LIVELY.

The Carriers Ladened Down With Packages and Letters—Clerks in Office Busy.

The Christmas rush at the postoffice is now on in earnest and Uncle Sam's letter-carriers are ladened down every day with parcels and letters for Plainfielders. Postmaster E. H. Bird has made ample provisions for the rush and there has been no delay in the delivery of the mail.

The latter part of last week gave the carriers all that they could well handle, and it is expected that the heavy business will continue the biggest part of this week.

The carriers are not grumbling, however, for this kind of business only comes once a year and lasts but a short time, hence their willingness to work a little harder. Included in the mail received, much of which comprises Christmas presents, there is a great deal from foreign shores. There is quite a foreign element in this vicinity and nearly everyone receives something, great or small, as a present.

The carriers are not the only ones kept busy, as the clerks in the office, as well as Mr. Bird are kept on the jump looking after matters inside so that mail will get out on schedule time. A special effort will be made to have everything received tomorrow morning delivered.

MAKING PLANS FOR RECEPTION TO RECTOR

A Testimonial Reception to Rev. Father Smyth by St. Mary's Parish.

WILL PRESENT A PURSE.

COMMITTEES APPOINTED FROM THE VARIOUS CHURCH ORGANIZATIONS.

They Will Have Charge of the Affair Which Will be Given Before Rev. Father Smyth Leaves for Jersey City.

Arrangements are being perfected by the various church organizations attached to St. Mary's parish to tender a testimonial reception to Rev. Father Smyth, before he leaves for Jersey City. In connection with the reception a token of esteem in the shape of a handsome purse will be presented to the popular priest.

The parishoners have been encouraged in the matter by the expressions of good will towards the rector of St. Mary's by his fellow townsmen. Father Smyth has had charge of his present cure for nineteen years and in this time has formed warm friendships with a large number of prominent Protestants in this city and in the borough, and these are the people largely responsible for the action taken by the parishoners who desire to make the reception as general as possible, irrespective of creed. He will celebrate the mass for the last time as rector probably on Sunday and it is believed that he will make his departure on the first of the new year.

It is impossible to arrange all details before Sunday and consequently the public demonstration will take place at a later date. A number of priests in this vicinity will be present as will also some of the prominent laity from out of town.

The executive committee for the affair is as follows: Chairman, Arthur Boone; treasurer, J. Henry Hillman; secretary, Matthew J. Cashin; general committee — George Tobin, Andrew McArdle, John O'Keefe, John Kenney, John Conroy, Charles Ward, Dr. W. C. Boone, P. J. Kiely, Mrs. Slevin, Miss A. Slevin and Miss J. Butscher.

From the various organizations affiliated in the church the following committees have been chosen to assist: St. Mary's T. A. B. Society, Michael O'Keefe, B. J. Birmingham, Charles McCarthy and Clarence Waldron; Catholic Benevolent Legion, Willam Harding, John Kenney, Hugh McDonnell and Cornelius Regan; Ancient Order Hibernians, Patrick Casey, Michael Nugent, James Fosbre, John Driscoll and James Walsh; St. Patrick's Alliance, Patrick Harrington, John F. Casey and John Ennis; Knights of Columbus, John Owens, Jeremiah Callahan, John Traynor and John McNally; Children of Mary, the Misses Margaret Carney, B. Colbert, L. Gannon, Margaret Harding, M. Currin, Jeanette Summers and Loretta Flanagan; Sodality of the Immaculate Conception, the Misses Emma Sullivan, Catherine Harding and Margaret Casey; Ladies Auxiliary of the A. O. H., Mrs. Linke, Eilzabeth Fitzgerald, Delia Flatley, Margaret Corrigan and Catherine Galbraith.

Voluntary contributions will be received by any member of the various committees named or by the treasurer, J. H. Hillman.

Saved His Life.

"I wish to say that I feel I owe my life to Kodol Dyspepsia Cure," writes H. C. Chrestenson, of Hayfield, Minn. "For three years I was troubled with dyspepsia so that I could hold nothing on my stomach. Many times I would be unable to retain a morsal of food. Finally I was confined to my bed Doctors said I could not live. I read one of your advertisements on Kodol Dyspepsia Cure and thought it fit my case and commenced its use. I began to improve from the first bottle. Now I am cured and recommend it to all." Digests your food. Cures all stomach troubles. L. W. Randolph.

SOME OF ATTRACTIONS TO BE FOUND AT LOCAL STORES.

A Few Interesting Items Concerning Greater Plainfield's Merchants.

A good stock of Malaga grapes, figs, dates, oranges, lemons, nuts and all kind of foreign and domestic fruit is to be had at Alex. Lusardi's, 211 West Front street.

Always fresh, but not too fresh are the goods sold by S. Scheuer & Sons, of West Front street. By reason of the fact that they handle goods in large quantities they are able to sell much cheaper.

After reading Peter Stirling one is apt to realize the risks run in buying milk indiscriminately and this accounts for the large trade of the Plainfield Milk and Cream Co. Purity is the keynote of their success in business.

It has been demonstrated that one cannot fully enjoy himself during the holiday season, or at other times during the year, without a first-class piano. G. H. Kenyon, of West Front street, sells the best at reasonable prices.

No home at this season of the year is complete without seasonable decorations, and there is no better place to get them than at Mrs. L. J. Denton's on West Front street. Her stock of greens and holly is ample and the price is right.

It's no wonder that Plainfielders would rather walk than ride when they buy their shoes at Flynn Brothers, on West Front street. The foot feels easy and comfortable in the styles of shoes sold by these progressive dealers in up-to-date footwear.

Speaking of holiday presents, Dr. R. J. Shaw stated recently that more of the small cut glass trifles and perfumery in fancy cases had been bought this year than ever before. He based his opinion on the sales made by himself as he keeps a fine line of these articles.

A commuter tells the story of missing an important engagement because his watch was a few minutes slow. It got to be as bad as the Central railroad system, so far as time is concerned, until he took it to L. Moraller & Son, of Park avenue. Now it's always on time.

John Wirth, the West Front street baker and confectioner, says the holiday rush of orders this season is unprecedented. His employes have been kept hustling the past few days but they have proved equal to the emergency and Mr. Wirth is prepared to fill all orders for Christmas cakes, New Years cake and confectionery.

People are beginning to realize more than ever the value of a handsome picture as a Christmas present. It serves as a lasting remembrance of the occasion and makes an adornment for any home. The Plainfield Art Gallery has a better line than ever this year and they have been enjoying large sales in consequence of the above facts.

Recovered Speech and Hearing.

Messrs. Ely Bros.:—I commenced your Cream Balm about two years ago for catarrh. My voice was somewhat thick and my hearing was dull. My hearing has been fully restored and my speech has become quite clear. I am a teacher in our town.

LITERARY.

A typical American Queen enjoying our most delightful midwinter sport—a picture of health and happiness, conceived cleverly by the young artist, Malcolm Strauss—comes to us on the cover of the January or midwinter issue of the American Queen magazine.

The winter holidays over, the Queen is already beginning to show the way to spring. Fashion hints are offered which it will be well for the economical and practical housewife to follow. In fiction complete stories by Maarten Maartens and others equally celebrated are presented. The fancy-work page is equal to anything The American Queen has yet shown in this line, and the various departments are up their usual high standard. The price of the magazine is 50 cents per year, and entitles each subscriber in addition to the twelve consecutive issues of The American Queen, to 50 cents' worth of patterns, free. Address The American Queen, Union Square, New York city.

Of Benefit to You.

D. S. Mitchell, Fulford, Md.:"During a long illness I was troubled with bed sores, was advised to try DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve and did so with wonderful results. I was perfectly cured. It is the best salve on the market." Sure cure for piles, sores, burns. Beware of counterfeits. L. W. Randolph.

THEATRICAL.

Negotiations for the continuation of the engagement of Grace George in "Under Southern Skies" have come to nothing. William A. Brady announces that the actress will remain only a little over three weeks longer at the Theatre Republic. Mr. Brady's production has been in New York for a sufficient time, however, to have proved the charm and capability of its star, Miss George. "Under Southern Skies," without being a rural drama, is marked by many of the salient points of its predecessor from under the pen of Lottie Blair Parker. Its characters have been drawn with equal distinction, its trifling incidents are as memorable for their freshness and originality, and its atmosphere is as excellent as was the atmosphere of "Way Down East." Both are equally wholesome and equally human. Mr. Brady has lavished money and thought on his production, the four settings of which are as beautiful and as suggestive of the real thing as paint and canvas can ever be. The interpreting company still includes Ralph Stuart, Cuyler Hastings, Donald MacLaren and other notables. There will be three matinees this week—on Christmas Day, Friday and Saturday. Seats are selling for the remainder of the run.

In Case of Accident.

Accidents will happen. Mother strains her back lifting a sofa. Father is hurt in the shop. Children are forever falling and bruising themselves. There is no preventing these things, but their worst consequences are averted with Perry Davis' Painkiller. No other remedy approaches it for the relief of sore-strained muscles. There is but one Painkiller, Perry Davis'.

AMERICAN CONCERN LOOTED.

Colombian Liberals Commit Depredations at Nombre de Dios.

COLON, Colombia, Dec. 24.—During the absence of the government soldiers the Liberals returned to Nombre de Dios and looted the commissariat of the Manganese Mining company, an American concern. They also threatened the life of the custodian of the stores, who was forced to surrender his keys. The company is presenting a claim to the government for the loss sustaiped. On the arrival at Nombre de Dios of the United States gunboat Marietta and subsequently when the Colombian gunboat Pinzon, with fifty soldiers on board, reached the same place the Liberals again disappeared. The Pinzon after landing the troops at Nombre de Dios proceeded to Savanilla. Captain Foliaco, who was commander of the Pinzon, and several of his officers returned to Colon on board the Marietta and have since sailed for San Juan, Porto Rico.

General Alban has received a cable dispatch announcing the evacuation of Tumaco. Some of the revolutionists left Tumaco on board the Salvadorian steamer Ibis, and others left by land, intending to attack Buenaventura. A strong government force has left Buenaventura to meet the revolutionists.

General Alban says that if the Monroe doctrine could be made to provide compulsory arbitration in order to settle all disputes between South American republics and European nations it would be accepted with enthusiasm by all those republics.

General Alban also says that President Regalado of Salvador has not answered his cable message regarding the steamer Ibis having assisted the enemies of the Colombian government.

A fire broke out at Panama in the house of Manager Arias of the American Trading company, next door to whose residence 3,000 cases of kerosene were stored. At the time the fire started a band of music was playing in the park, and a number of people were celebrating a religious holiday in the Church of La Mercedes, opposite Arias' house. A terrible panic followed the discovery of the flames, but luckily they were extinguished after doing little damage.

Some Railroad Figures.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24.—The preliminary report of the interstate commerce commission on the income account of railways in the United States for the year ended June 30, 1901, shows returns of railway companies operating 192,193 miles of line. The passenger earnings of these railways were $426,909,210 and the freight earnings $1,114,740,770. The total gross earnings were $1,578,164,205, or $8,211 per mile of line, against $1,487,044,814 in 1900. Operating expenses amounted to $1,023,156,281, or $5,323 per mile of line, making net earnings $555,007,924, or $35,577,218 in excess of the fiscal year 1900. The amount of dividends declared during the year was $121,108,637, or $13,000,000 more than for the same roads in 1900. The surplus from operations was $77,544,735. The complete report for the preceding year showed a surplus of $87,657,933.

No Agreement With the Brigands.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Dec. 24.—A correspondent here is informed at the American legation that no agreement has yet been arrived at with the brigands holding Miss Stone captive concerning the missionary's release and that it is not likely that anything would be settled in this connection for another ten days. Advices received here from Sofia are to the effect that M. Tsilka has heard that Mme. Tsilka, his wife, is doing well, but cannot be moved for another week. The same advices say that Miss Stone is also well.

A Gift to Yale.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 24.—Yale university has received a gift of $30,000 from Herbert K. Smith, Melissa E. Smith and Ernest W. Smith of New York to carry out the intention of the late Rev. Edward A. Smith, Yale, '56, formerly a member of the corporation of the university, to establish a fund in memory of his father, the late Isaac E. Smith of New York. The income of the fund is to be applied to the current expenses of the academical department.

Sad End of a Sleigh Ride.

MIDDLESBORO, Ky., Dec. 24.—Charles Preston, aged about thirty years, took little Jessie Marion sleigh riding on Powell river, across the Cumberland mountains. The ice gave way, and the girl was drowned. Preston tried manfully to save the girl, and, becoming crazed over the matter, he went to the child's mother and committed suicide in her presence.

The Lehigh's Heavy Damage.

EASTON, Pa., Dec. 24.—It is estimated that the flood of little more than a week ago damaged property of the Lehigh Valley Railroad company to the amount of $260,000; on the Lehigh division, $10,000; Mahanoy and Hazleton division, $50,000; Pennsylvania and New York and Auburn divisions, $50,000, and Wyoming division, $150,000.

Turkey Bars Sealed Letters.

LONDON, Dec. 24.—A dispatch from Constantinople states that the Turkish postoffice there has issued a notice that henceforth no closed letters will be accepted for distribution and that all correspondence within the precincts of the city must be conducted by means of post cards.

A Mother at Sixty-five.

TRENTON, N. J., Dec. 24.—Mrs. Peter Klein of 229 Rusling street, who is sixty-five years of age, has given birth to a child. Her husband, who is a farmer, is seventy years of age. The couple have been married for forty years, and this is their first child.

A PROTOCOL SIGNED

Argentina and Chile Agree to Submit to England.

OTHER POWERS HAVE OFFERED.

British Government Watching Progress of the Dispute Between the Two Countries, but Has Received No Official Notification.

VALPARAISO, Dec. 24.—It is reported here that the governments of Argentina and Chile have signed a protocol by which they agree to submit the questions pending between them to the arbitration of Great Britain.

The newspapers published here assure their readers that several powers stand ready to offer their good offices to mediate the difficulty, but that Argentina does not consider the moment has yet arrived either to accept or to refuse such offers.

According to the Tribuna, Senor Concha Subercaseaux, the Chilean minister, will leave here for Chile Jan. 1, and the secretary of the Chilean legation, Senor Errazuriz, will remain in charge of Chile's interests.

Senor Subercaseaux conferred for two hours yesterday morning with Dr. Norberto Quirno Costa, vice president of Argentina, and Dr. Amancio Alcorta, the minister of foreign affairs. After this conference Senores Costa and Alcorta went to see President Roca.

The Tiempo says a casus belli would survene to existing conditions if Chile, desiring to render effective her jurisdiction over the territory known as Ultima Esperanza, attempted to drive the Argentine police from this territory, as Argentina would resist such an attempt.

The Patriotic league will demand that the exportation of horses and mules be prohibited by President Roca.

The chamber of commerce of Buenos Ayres has publicly expressed its appreciation of the patriotic attitude maintained by Senor Alcorta, the foreign minister.

England Has Heard Nothing.

LONDON, Dec. 24.—The British government is watching with considerable anxiety the progress of the dispute between the Chilean and Argentine republics. It is said that neither side has yet approached the British foreign office. If both Chile and Argentina request Great Britain to arbitrate the matters in dispute between them, Lord Lansdowne, the foreign secretary, will promptly acquiesce. The statement, however, of Dr. Alcorta, the Argentine minister of foreign affairs, that Argentina has referred the matter to the arbitration of the British government under the agreement of 1898 appears to be inaccurate, for the foreign office says the present contention is quite beyond the powers of that treaty.

No Reply From Maclay.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24.—Secretary Long said last night that he had not received the reply of Mr. Maclay to the request for his resignation. Pending its receipt the secretary said he did not wish to enter into a discussion of the matter for publication. In his informal discussion of the matter Secretary Long made it perfectly plain that the president's intentions in regard to Maclay would be carried out regardless of the latter's declaration that he is protected by civil service rules. It is expected that if he does not resign he will be removed summarily.

Death of William Ellery Channing.

CONCORD, Mass., Dec. 24.—William Ellery Channing, the last of the brotherhood, including also Thoreau, Hawthorne and Emerson, which made Concord famous, is dead. He was born in Boston Nov. 29, 1818. He was an author of marked originality and poetic power, though less disciplined than his three contemporaries. His published volumes number nine, and he left copious manuscript from which selections will be made for publication later. Mr. Channing married in 1842 Miss Ellen Fuller, sister of Margaret, and leaves five children.

Prisoners Held by Sheriff's Wife.

WALLA WALLA, Wash., Dec. 24.—Eight prisoners in the county jail overpowered Jailer Malone as he was locking up the cells for the night and were about to make their escape when Mrs. Susan Kees, wife of the sheriff, stepped up with a revolver and drove the prisoners back to their cells. Sheriff Kees and his family live in the jail building, and when Mrs. Kees heard the commotion she rushed to the rescue of the jailer and released him from the prisoners, who were beating him into insensibility.

Suspected Thief Arrested.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 24.—A man carrying a dress suit case partly filled with postage stamps, who was arrested here, is believed by the police to be an important capture. He is suspected of connection with the recent robbery of the Chicago postoffice. The prisoner said his name was Henry Bantall and that he was a resident of Providence, R. I., aged thirty-five. Postage stamps worth about $115 and a number of gold watch cases were found in his pockets and dress suit case.

Six Killed In Trolley Accident.

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Dec. 24.—A Philadelphia and Lehigh Valley Traction company car which left Allentown at 6:30 o'clock last evening for Coopersburg, carrying twenty passengers, jumped the track on a sharp curve at the foot of the Lehigh mountain, due to wet rails and snow. The car toppled over the embankment, and it is reported that six persons were killed and that all the others were injured. Among the dead is Rev. Tobias Kessler of Lenark.

A NEW WORLD POWER

Eloquent Speech by Justice Brewer at Philadelphia.

NEW ENGLAND SOCIETY BANQUETS.

The United States Declared to Be In Its New Position Because of Truth and Justice In National Life.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 24.—The twenty-first annual banquet of the New England Society of Pennsylvania was held last night in Horticultural hall, covers being laid for nearly 400 members and guests. Guests were present from New York, Baltimore, Washington, Boston and other cities. Assistant United States Attorney General James M. Beck, president of the society, opened the speechmaking with a brief address.

In coming down the line of the illustrious New Englanders President Beck mentioned the name of George Dewey. This was the signal for an outburst of applause such as was not repeated during the remainder of the evening. The chairman then introduced as the first speaker Associate Justice David J. Brewer of the United States supreme court, who responded to the toast, "The United States; a World Power." Justice Brewer's address was frequently punctuated by applause. Among other things he said:

"The last few years have written much of history. The twentieth century brings us face to face with new conditions, and we are conscious that the United States of America have become a more important factor in the world's thought. Some fancy that the Spanish war wrought the great change. This is hardly so. It may have cleared the air and brought us face to face with the consciousness of the change, but silent forces of commerce and religion have been at work for years bringing about that result. The merchant and the missionary have lifted the republic from her isolation and given her the queenly seat at the head of the council of nations.

"Again and again it is stated that the United States has now become a world power. So they have, but what is meant by the term a world power, and how are we to justify our right to that title? Not by the manifestation of military or naval strength. While wars will be, as wars have been, and while there is within the resources of our country an undisplayed military and naval strength that makes her the most dangerous enemy on land and sea, yet the dawn of the twentieth century unveils a greater national glory than can be won on any field of battle. While the events of the last two or three years have compelled an increase in our military and naval forces, while the amount of money which is called for by the secretaries of war and navy seem to many too large and while the roll of the drum and the blare of the bugle are more often heard, yet the sons of the pilgrims will never turn our country over to the man on horseback nor will our dearest laurels be crimsoned with the blood of the dying soldier.

"We shall deserve to be called a world power because our relations with all nations will be carried upon the highest principles of truth and justice. We stand in the council of nations strong enough to fear no attempt to wrong us, so strong that we cannot afford to wrong any, even the weakest nation; strong enough to be firmly just to the most powerful of nations and so strong that we must be kindly just with the weakest. We must be frank as well as honest. Henceforth diplomatic language must be something to reveal and not something to conceal thought and purpose. The honesty we must practice is not the honesty of Shylock, measured only by that which is enumerated in the bond, but that of the Golden Rule, an honesty which compels us to see the other party to the transaction."

Justice Brewer briefly reviewed the rapid growth of the exports of the United States and, continuing, said: "Especially must we remember the Golden Rule in our dealings with inferior races and ignorant peoples. We cannot afford to grow rich by wrecking them."

Governor Van Sant's Fight.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Dec. 24.—Governor Van Sant has already received replies from the governors of Montana and North Dakota to his suggestion that a conference of governors of states interested in fighting the Northwestern railway merger be held at Helena, Mon., Dec. 30. Governor Toole approves and will welcome the governors to Montana. Governor White of North Dakota promises to attend with Attorney General Pyle of that state. Governor Van Sant sent invitations to the governors of North Dakota, Montana, Idaho, South Dakota, Washington and Oregon and suggested that in addition to the governor the attorney general of each state attend. Governor Van Sant is desirous of securing the moral support of all these states in Minnesota's fight against the merger.

Car Ferry a Total Wreck.

LUDINGTON, Mich., Dec. 24.—The wrecked car ferry Muskegon is slowly sinking into the sand, and the probability of saving the steamer and cargo grows less every hour. Government Inspector of Hulls Honor of Grand Haven made a survey and says she is broken in two, will go to pieces and be a total loss.

Wants Damages For a Fall.

ALBANY, Dec. 24.—Ester Sleight has filed with the state court of claims a claim of $5,000 for injuries received by falling into the Erie canal at Brighton, Monroe county, on Dec. 4 last.

PAN-AMERICAN WORK.

Chicago Added to List For Branch of Proposed Bank.

CITY OF MEXICO, Dec. 24.—At yesterday's session of the pan-American conference Volney W. Foster, United States delegate, proposed that Chicago be added to the list of cities having a claim to a branch of the proposed pan-American bank. His motion was accepted by twelve votes. Bolivia and Ecuador voted in the negative, and Chile abstained from voting, but Walker Martinez, one of the Chilean delegates, explained that this was because his country's delegation had abstained from voting on the main project and not from any lack of good will toward Chicago, to which city he paid a noteworthy tribute.

The project of a treaty for protection against anarchy was read.

With slight modifications articles 10 and 11 of Senator Davis' pan-American railway project were approved. These completed the entire railway report, which is therefore the second subject definitely disposed of by the conference, the first having been the pan-American bank.

Russia Likes Our Machines.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24.—The sale of American agricultural machines and implements in Russia during 1901 was the largest on record, according to the annual report of United States Consul Heenan, at Odessa. Mr. Heenan says that the increased tariff exacted by Russia on certain American products in retaliation for the American tax on Russian sugar up to the date of his report, Nov. 9, had not made much impression on the imports of those articles, but he adds that it probably is too early to determine the effect of the Russian increased tariff. He says that such machines as harvesters, binders, mowers, reapers and horse rakes of American make are so well and so favorably known as to defy serious competition in Russia, but that there are a number of other agricultural implements, such as plows, drills, seeding machines, etc., of American make which are not to be found in the empire.

Germany and Venezuela.

BERLIN, Dec. 24.—The foreign office, while reticent as to Germany's specific plans with regard to Venezuela and the time of their execution, gives the impression that something will soon be done. The foreign office is watching the uprising in Venezuela under the leadership of General Luciano Mendoza. If anything serious comes of this revolutionary movement, Germany will suspend action in the matter until it is seen with which party the de facto government rests. The Berlin newspapers continue to publish everything available on this subject. The Berliner Tageblatt sums up Germany's position in the Venezuelan matter in the following words: "This new rebellion is of the utmost consequence to our relations with that country. Our position toward the government of Venezuela would naturally be influenced if everything there goes topsy turvy."

Negotiations Move Slowly.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24.—The negotiations between the governments of the United States and Denmark looking to the cession of the Danish West Indies are dragging. No substantial progress has been made since last week. The latest suggestion from the Danish side is that the people of the islands shall determine by a plebiscite whether or not they shall be ceded to the United States. The outcome of such a test cannot be foretold, for the strong feeling of attachment for the mother country on the one hand might be offset by the great trade advantages expected to follow the cession of the islands to the United States.

Shaw Offered Treasury Portfolio.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24.—A tender of the office of secretary of the treasury to succeed Secretary Gage has been made to Governor Leslie M. Shaw of Iowa, but it is understood that no response has been received from Governor Shaw to the inquiries sent him. At the White House no information on the subject is obtainable pending a definite authorization of the fact that a successor to Secretary Gage has been obtained.

THREE SHARP FIGHTS

Engagements With De Wet and Botha Reported.

BRITISH CASUALTIES WERE HEAVY.

The Battles Occurred on Three Successive Days at Widely Divergent Points In Orange River and Transvaal Colonies.

LONDON, Dec. 24.—Lord Kitchener in a dispatch from Johannesburg sends reports of sharp fighting in the Orange River and Transvaal colonies. The engagements occurred Dec. 18, 19 and 20 at points widely apart. The casualties, so far as known, aggregate 150, equally divided, but heavy British losses, the totals of which have not yet been reported, have occurred in the Transvaal.

Lord Kitchener reports that during General De Wet's attack on the British force commanded by Generals Dartnell and Campbell at Langberg Dec. 18 the Boers charged bravely and fought desperately for several hours. De Wet was driven off with the loss of twenty men. There were twelve casualties on the side of the British.

On Dec. 20 Botha, with 800 Boers, surprised Colonel Damant's advance guard at Tafelkop, Orange River Colony. The Boers rushed a kopje commanding the main body and the guns, but Damant rallied his men and drove the Boers from the kopje.

The British casualties were heavy. Damant was dangerously wounded, two officers and twenty men were killed, and three officers and seventeen men were wounded. The Boers left six dead on the field and dispersed.

The British pursued the enemy and captured a number of prisoners, including Commandant Keyter. Later the Boers, under a flag of truce, asked permission to remove their dead. They admitted having buried twenty-seven men.

In the fight at Tafelkop the Boers, dressed as British yeomen, engaged in a splendid race with the British in the attempt to be first in gaining the crest of the kopje. The Boers gained the summit first and opened a heavy fire on the single troop of Damant's horse which took part in the race for the kopje.

These troopers took advantage of all the small amount of cover available immediately below the Boers and fought until all but four of them were killed or wounded. By that time reenforcements of Damant's horse came up and charged and captured the kopje.

In the eastern part of the Transvaal Colony Colonel Mackenzie attacked Commandant Smit's force of Boers at Lake Banagher Dec. 20 and killed six and captured sixteen of the enemy. Commandant Smit escaped.

A force of Boers during the night of Dec. 19 attacked the British post at Elandspruit, but the burghers were driven off, leaving eight men killed, including Commandant Krieze. Field Cornet Mahon, who was wounded, and three other men were also left on the field. Other wounded Boers were carried off in blankets. The British casualties were seven men killed and six officers and eighteen men wounded.

Back From Manila.

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—The United States transport McClellan, with thirty-eight cabin passengers and 242 soldiers aboard, has arrived from Manila via Suez and Bermuda. One passenger, William B. Tabb, a civilian clerk to the United States naval engineer at Guam, died on the voyage. The body was brought to port, together with that of Captain Herbert Draper of the marine corps, who died at Hongkong. Of the soldiers 235 are of the First battalion of engineers. The others are discharged troops.

General Alger Doing Well.

DETROIT, Mich., Dec. 24.—Dr. Longyear, attending General R. A. Alger, states that the general's condition is good. "His pulse is 76, and his temperature is less than 100, and he is very cheerful," said the doctor. "The general says he feels better than he has for some time," continued Dr. Longyear, "and I have no apprehension at present of a change for the worse."

A Hunting Accident.

UTICA, N. Y., Dec. 24.—John Beecher of West Turin, Lewis county, while out hunting rested his gun on a log and held the muzzle in his hand. The gun slipped and was discharged. Beecher received the full charge in his stomach and died almost immediately.

NYACK, N. Y., Dec. 24.—Andrew Carnegie has offered to give Nyack $15,000 for a public library building if the village guarantees $1,500 a year to maintain it. The Nyack library has a fine site at present, and the village pays $1,200 a year toward its support.

CHANGE IN TICKETS.

It was with much interest that the people of Plainfield scanned the circular just issued by General Passenger Agent Burt, of the New Jersey Central Railroad, which was published in yesterday's Daily Press. It gave the details of the changes in the passenger tariff which will be inaugurated January 1. Of special importance were the changes concerning the commutation tickets and the new "family" tickets.

Late last summer, the Board of Trade brought several subjects to the attention of the officials of the railroad company. The members of the board asked that a flat rate be established for commutation tickets for the benefit of those who came here for only a few months in the year. They also asked for ten trip tickets for the benefit of those who were unable to buy the fifty trip tickets on account of the large outlay involved.

These two requests of the Board of Trade have been granted but, in granting them, the company has not made the accompanying requirements those desired. The flat commutation rate of $7.60 is going to increase the amount paid yearly by the commuters. The only ones who it will benefit by the change are those who come here for a few months in the year. The others will be compelled to pay out more money.

While the ten trip "family" tickets were much desired, it was hoped that they would be placed at a lower price than that fixed by the company, $4.50 a ticket, or 90 cents a round trip. The old fifty-trip tickets were rented out at the cost of 80 cents a round trip. It was supposed that the price of the smaller tickets would be the same. The result is that a secret trade in the larger "family" tickets is going to be carried on and the only way the railroad company can stop it is to reduce the cost of the ten trip tickets to $4, the price at which they should have originally been placed.

The third of the series of industrial exhibits was held at the Public Library Saturday and Sunday. These exhibits have proved eminently satisfactory. Their object, to display the uses of the Babcock Scientific Library, is a very commendable one and it has worked very satisfactorily. The books are there for the use of the Plainfield public. There is much of interest there for the workingman and the sooner he realizes that fact and takes advantage of it, the better it will be for him and for the community as well. It was for this benefit that Mr. Babcock planned such an institution and his ideas have been well carried out.

A merry Christmas to you, readers of The Daily Press. For the time being, you will put aside the cares of the world, no matter how weighty, and join heartily in the festivities of the day. For the young there will be the wonderful Christmas tree and all the gifts. The older folks will have their presents too. For all it will be a time for pleasure and rejoicing. When the little carriers, who have served you faithfully with The Daily Press for the last twelve-month, come around with our pretty calendar for 1902, tomorrow morning, don't forget them. In all the abundance of good things, don't let these bright little fellows be left out.

Chief Kiely, of the police department, calls the attention of all shoppers to the need of keeping a sharp lookout for pickpockets when in a crowd. So far Plainfield has been very fortunate in this respect and the holiday crowds in this city have not yet been the scene of any quiet little operations of that nature. Such occurences have, however, been reported in all the surrounding cities and it can never be told when Plainfield's turn will come. It is therefore good advice to look out for light fingered acquaintances.

Water meters have been very successful at Hartford, Conn., where they have been recently introduced. The Board of Water Commissioners, of that city, reports that since the meters have been placed in the houses there has been a decrease of 35 per cent. in the consumption of water.

Beginning in Thursday's issue, The Daily Press will publish the serial story, "My Strangest Case," by that clever writer, Guy Boothby. It is the first time this story has been published in serial form and it will undoubtedly furnish interesting reading to the patrons of this newspaper.

Despite the fact that the alterations at the city sewage disposal works have not been completed, enough beds are finished so that the city is enabled to utilize the new ones and abandon the old method of filtration.

As tomorrow will be Christmas Day, a legal holiday, The Daily Press will not be issued.

A merry Christmas to you all.

TEA TABLE TALK.

Short Sketches That Are Not Always News, But Just as Interesting.

The death of Mrs. Mulford, of Netherwood avenue, which occurred yesterday, recalls some interesting facts. She was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edward Campbell, both of whom died at the age of eighty-four years. She was one of eleven children, six of whom are now living. The oldest is Jeremiah Campbell, aged ninety-two years, who lives in Pennsylvania, and the youngest is Miss Letitia Campbell, aged seventy-five years, who lives in the west. The average age of all the children, computing the age of those dead at the time of death and the age of the living at the present time, is eighty years. Mrs. Mulford was eighty-seven years of age. She was an aunt of William Campbell, of Rockview avenue.

An Envangelist's Story.

"I suffered for years with a bronchial or lung trouble and tried various remedies but did not obtain permanent relief until I commenced using One Minute Cough Cure," writes Rev. James Kirkman, evangelist, of Belle River, Ill. "I have no hesitation in recommending it to all sufferers from maladies of this kind." One Minute Cough Cure afford immediate relief for coughs, colds and all kind of throat and lung troubles. For croup it is unequalled. Absolutely safe. Very pleasant to take, never fails and is really a favorite with the children. They like it. L. W. Randolph.

After Witnesses.

Subpoenaes were issued yesterday commanding members of the family of Guin Dantz, of Watchung avenue, to appear before the Grand Jury at Somerville today. Dantz was concerned in a stabbing affray which occurred on Watchung avenue Friday, Dec. 6, and after answering charges in the borough court was held on the charge of atrocious assault.

A Little Loss

of flesh and strength, little barking, obstinate cough and a little pain in the chest may not, mean galloping consumption, but they are signs that prudence will not neglect. A few doses of Allen's Lung Balsam cause a free discharge of mucus and so loosens the cough. It heals the inflamed air passages and all its beneficent work is accomplished without a grain of opium.

Was Frequent Visitor Here.

Henry Lee Scribner, the nine-year-old son of Henry L. and Mary Lee Scribner, of Ben Avon, Pa., died at the home of his parents yesterday. Mr. and Mrs. Scribner are well known to many Plainfielders, being frequent visitors here.

Earth as Food.

In Africa the custom of eating earth is very prevalent all along the west coast as far as the isand of Cereall. At Babni there is a deposit of yellow clay containing about 50 per cent. of iron, a considerable quantity of mica and some quartz particles, but there is evidently a considerable quantity of organic matter in it. The clay is prepared for consumption by making it up into balls about five inches in diameter, and is then baked over a slow fire. When quite dry and ready for use a small portion is broken off and placed in the hollow of a smooth leaf, and then reduced to a powder between the finger and thumb. The leaf is then genty shaken to make the harder and more gritty particles fall aside. These are carefully removed, and the residue is then transferred to the mouth, masticated and swallowed.—Cincinnati Enquirer

The Future of the Holy Land.

Palestine is not destined to be simply a pastoral country. The suburbs of Jerusalem and Jaffa are increasing at such a rate that one almost foresees the time when Jerry building will be traced to Jericho. The bulk of the Jews live in towns in Jerusalem, in Tiberius, in Safed, and for these Jews urban industries must be created—olive wood carving, embroidery, ready-made clothes, straw plaiting, basket making, soap and glass manufacture, jam making—all were suggested at a recent conference of the Colonization societies, now at last awake to the actualities of the problem. The Ica has set up a weaving room in Jerusalem, the wool and silk of which are placed in Palestine and Egypt. A dyeing factory and a lace factory are in preparation.—I. Zanswill, in Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly.

Audiences Teach Actors.

Every actor can tell dozens of stories showing how valuable a teacher his audience has been to him. Mr. Vezin tells an instructive story of Hendrichs. The great German Hamlet came off the stage one day and said to his fellow actor: "I have learned the effect at last which I have been attempting for years." "Well," said his friend, "but they laughed at you." "Yes," replied Hendrichs, "but that laugh has taught me how I will tomorrow make them weep." Nearly all of us have been cured of some trick or taught some truth in a similar way, and the silent education is always being carried on by the bond which connects us in some mysterious way with the awe-inspiring aggregate of human souls that make up an audience.—Nineteenth Century.

Made a Dull Boy Smart.

Once upon a time a stern father called his son to him and severely addressed him: "Child," he said, "you are walking in the way of stupidity instead of pursuing the path of intelligence. You are neglecting your books and allowing your mind to sink into dullness. I must do something to awaken in you a realization of your error. Go to the orchard and bring me a switch as long as your arm and no smaller than your little finger."

The boy went as directed and after he had returned he and his father were alone in the attic for several minutes.

Moral.—There is more than one way to make a boy smart.—N. Y. Herald.

China's Enormous Wealth in Coal.

Among the great undeveloped resources of China are its coal beds. In the province of Shansi the coal fields cover an area of 14,000 square miles and contain, it is estimated, more than 600,000,000,000 tons of anthracite—enough to suffice for the wants of the world at the present rate of consumption for over 2,000 years. With this great coal formation is associated a rich deposit of iron ore. Large coal-fields exist also in Hunan and other provinces, none of which have been worked by the Chinese in a scientific manner. In short, coal is said to be, as far as yet ascertained, the most plentiful mineral in China; but iron is also abundant.—Engineer.

Bird Was the Miscreant.

A Parisian actress who had for some time been suffering losses of jewelry determined to set a trap for the thief. So she left a diamond bracelet on her bureau, retired into an adjoining room and began to watch through the keyhole. Presently a starling hopped through the window, seized the bracelet and deposited it in the chimney, where all the missing jewelry was subsequently found.—N. Y. Sun.

MORE INDICTMENTS.

Three New York Policemen to Be Tried For Neglect of Duty.

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—Developments in police cases come thick and fast, and, what with indictments and transfers of the most important character, the rank and file of the department as well as some of the heads hardly know which way to look for the next cyclone.

The grand jury yesterday afternoon returned indictments for neglect of duty against Policeman C[illegible] and Detectives Darcy and Schoenich of the West Thirtieth street station in connection with the disorderly house at 148 West Thirty-third street, for failure to close which Wardman Glennon was convicted. All three testified at Glennon's trial that they saw no evidences of an improper character about the house. The two detectives were made detective sergeants while Glennon's trial was in progress.

Policeman Cox at District Attorney Philbin's request was earlier in the day suspended without pay.

CHINESE COURT'S PROGRESS.

Welcomed by Officials at Tzuchow. The Manchurian Treaty.

PEKING, Dec. 24.—The Chinese court has arrived at Tzuchow, within the boundary of Chili province, where it was welcomed by numerous officials.

Paul Lessar, the Russian minister to China, has requested the Chinese plenipotentiaries, Prince Ching and Wang Wen Shao, to present their objections to the Manchurian treaty which was discussed here between M. Lessar and the Chinese representatives last Saturday in writing for transmittal to his government. The ministers of the foreign powers here who oppose this treaty consider this request a sign that Russia is willing to modify her demands.

Brown Takes Wakeman's Place.

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—Alfred W. Brown, appraiser of the port of Boston, took charge of the office of appraiser of the port of New York yesterday under orders issued from Washington last week. Mr. Brown is said to be the youngest appraiser in the service, having been appointed only last June, but he had before that served as an assistant appraiser. He reached the appraiser's office at 9 o'clock. Mr. Wilbur F. Wakeman, the former appraiser, was not present, but arrived shortly after, and the two men exchanged courtesies. In conversation with the newspaper men Mr. Brown said that he had simply been detailed to take charge of the New York office temporarily. No time was specified, and he did not know how long he would be here. Mr. Wakeman said that his plans would be somewhat uncertain for the present.

French Murderer to Be Guillotined.

CHARTRES, Dec. 24. — After a week's trial, which has attracted the attention of the whole of France, Briere, the farmer of this vicinity who on April 21 murdered four of his daughters, aged respectively fourteen, eleven, five and four, and his son, seven years of age, stabbing and beating them to death while they were in bed, has been found guilty and was condemned to be decapitated by the guillotine. Briere persisted in declaring himself innocent and defended himself with the habitual cunning of the French peasant, but the circumstantial evidence was overwhelming.

Washington Sees the President.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24.—Booker T. Washington, president of the Tuskegee Normal institute at Tuskegee, Ala., was with the president for a considerable time yesterday. He was received in the cabinet room. While he was talking to the president, Secretary Hitchcock arrived, and Mr. Washington left in company with the secretary of the interior. Mr. Washington declined to make any statement as to his business with the president, but it is believed that they discussed southern appointments.

Queen Alexandra Ill.

LONDON, Dec. 24.—It is now announced that the condition of Queen Alexandra is more serious than has been stated and that it causes some anxiety. Doctors are in constant attendance upon her majesty. A bulletin says the queen is progressing favorably, but that the arrangements made for Christmas festivities at Sandringham, including large shooting parties, have all been upset and that their majesties will spend Christmas at Marlborough House.

Fatal Oil Tank Explosion.

RICHMOND, Va., Dec. 24.—A tank of oil on a car in the lower part of the city took fire and exploded yesterday afternoon, killing "Buck" Wakefield, a machinist, and slightly injuring several others. The flaming oil set fire to a trestle on which the car was standing and several shanties in the neighborhood. Both trestle and shanties were destroyed. The total money loss is estimated at from $15,000 to $20,000.

Schley's Prize Money.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24.—The treasury department yesterday drew a warrant in favor of Rear Admiral Schley for $3,334, his share of the prize money due him for the destruction of the Spanish fleet at Santiago July 3, 1898.

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

Senator Sewell of New Jersey was reported in improved condition.

Champion Coated Paper company's plant, Hamilton, O., was burned; loss, $750,000 to $1,000,000.

James Stiff died, the third victim of the attack on Herbert Marx in Westmoreland county, Va.

In New York city Comptroller Coler discovered that millions in taxes have been allowed to go uncollected.

KEEP OFF THE EARTH

During the cold and wet weather as much as possible—that is, keep as much shoe leather between the soles of your feet and Mother Earth as you can conveniently carry. It's wisest in the beginning and cheaper in the end to provide yourself with shoes having good solid soles—cold-proof and water-proof, if possible.

We are selling exceptionally good shoes of just this sort for men and women; children, too.

Well built, with broad, heavy soles and with stout uppers.

They're a very paradise of rest for weary feet, and a paradise of economy for weary purses.

BOICE, RUNYON & CO.,
Park Avenue and Railroad.

I am 28 years old and have been employed in the actuary department of a life insurance company for years. A little more than a year ago I began to have very severe headaches, from which I was not free night or day. My doctor told me that it was from my stomach and the want of exercise; so, besides taking his medicine, I purchased a bicycle to ride for exercise. I never knew then what it was to be in any other way than constipated, my bowels not moving sometimes in three days. My weight was reduced to 117 pounds, for I was slowly starving myself rather than eat a good meal, knowing what the after-effect would be. About five or six weeks ago two friends and myself were eating dinner when my troubles came up as a subject of conversation. One of my friends took a small packet out of his pocket and handed me two Tabules, saying: "Take one after you finish eating and one before you go to bed. Then buy a box to-morrow and you'll be surprised at the results." He was right: I was surprised at the results. I purchased a package of Ripans Tabules the next day. The first package seemed to relieve me so much that I purchased the second, and have been taking them ever since. They have surely made a man of me again, and I only wish that I had a "before and after taking" picture, for it does not seem possible that such a change could have taken place in such a short time. I never tire recommending them to my friends.

WANTED:—A case of bad health that R·I·P·A·N·S will not benefit. They banish pain and prolong life. One gives relief. Note the word R·I·P·A·N·S on the package and accept no substitute. R·I·P·A·N·S, 10 for 5 cents, may be had at any drug store. Ten samples and one thousand testimonials will be mailed to any address for 5 cents, forwarded to the Ripans Chemical Co., No. 10 Spruce St., New York.

Dear Sirs—Two years ago I had very bad corns and callouses on my feet, I went to a chiropodist and paid him $5.75 for taking them off. In less than a month they were back again. I then tried your CORN CURE and used only three bottles, costing 45c. and am happy to say it has taken them off completely. They have not troubled me now for over a year. I consider your HEPBURN'S CORN CURE the best I have ever used.—Yours truly, R. O. RUNYON, 629 LaGrande Ave.

ON HUMBLE LINES.

How Three Working Women Keep the Wolf From the Door.

SOMETIMES along the humblest lines of manual labor a member of the great sisterhood of wage earners achieves a result which opens the eyes of women to the opportunities that lie around them every day waiting to be grasped.

In one of the great cities of the Union a certain bakery company's wagons dart along the streets bearing upon their sides in large letters the trademark "Mrs. Blank's Homemade Pies." Everybody thereabout who is honest enough to own that he is fond of our delicious American fruit pies knows Mrs. Blank's pies. I saw those wagons so often and the horses attached thereto seemed so well taken care of, the piemen themselves looked so attractively clean and were so polite, that I was interested to know more of worthy Mrs. Blank.

She began in a very small way making pies for sale, but making them so good and so above suspicion that customers rapidly increased for the toothsome confections. She at length added other baker's stuffs, proportionally good, to the pumpkin, mince and apple products, and these became the fashion too. Mrs. Blank's family lived handsomely and had everything they wanted, and the bakery gradually became one of the largest bread, pastry and cake establishments in the city.

Mrs. Blank herself conducted the large business till she made a considerable fortune; then, wearying of so much care, the capable woman, who had worked her way to both competency and a business reputation on the strength of pie, sold the business to a stock company which is shrewd enough to still keep her name on its wagons.

The original Mrs. Blank retired to a pleasant seaside resort, a quiet place. There after a time, because idleness was unendurable and making pies was the pleasantest way of passing the time that she knew, she opened another bakeshop, a small one.

There, too, is Joe. She is gray haired now—grown gray in the service of the restaurant firm for whom she began working twenty years ago, but they called her Joe when she began with them as a young woman, and Joe she will be to the end of the chapter. The restaurant in which she works is a large one, furnishing meals certainly to a thousand people daily. It has the name of serving the best coffee in New York city.

One who is a judge of good coffee and had sampled repeatedly that made in this place was curious enough to inquire as to the brand used and the method of preparation. He found that every cup of coffee furnished there was made and for years had been made by one person, a little widow called Joe for short. She began first in the establishment as a laundress, then was promoted to coffee maker. She does nothing but brew the amber liquid which has become noted. Day in and day out the pleasant faced little woman stands at her coffee urn, a genuine artist in her line. She must be happy if she knows how well the customers of the establishment appreciate her skill.

Oddly enough, at the same restaurant there is a woman bartender. She is a young woman still, but she, too, has been in the service of the firm and given satisfaction wherever she was set to work ever since she was a girl in short dresses. When a diner calls for any vinous, malt or spirituous liquor with his food, it is swiftly prepared by this young woman, who stands behind a screen door.

I confess I have never sampled any of her drinks, but if they are as good as Mme. Joe's coffee they must be unsurpassed.

These three women took the task that lay nearest them, the work they knew how to do, and performed it so well that they raised it to an art.

Popular Velvet Disks.

Velvet disks are the latest trimmings. They are so arranged that they can be moistened and pasted on any fabric. Some white lace gowns have them put on in graduated sizes, and they are, while not a very durable trimming, at least effective. Generally they are put in waved lines, with the large ones at the bottom and the small ones at the top.

The Trouble on the Torolito.

BY FRANCIS LYNDE.

(Copyright 1899, by Francis Lynde.)

The spring was well afoot on the eastern plains when next we saw the sheltered valley nestling between its snow-crowned mountains, and traversed by the sparkling waters of the Torolito. But for the lower sweep of the snow-caps, it might have seemed but days instead of months since we left it together. Winifred and I. We had driven up from the fort, she to take her summer school again, so Letitia had assured me, and I to try if the dry upland air might give me yet another reprieve and a little longer lease of life.

It was high noon when we emerged from th cliff-shadowed portal of the Six-Mile and looked once more upon the scene which had grown dear to both of us. Winifed drew a long breath and her eyes were shining. I had thought her beautiful before, but the winter in Denver, with the crushing burden lifted forever, had made her more than beautiful.

"The dear old valley!" she said. "It is like coming home to get back to it. Is that Mr. Macpherson's new house?"

The old ranch house was no more. In its place on the knoll to the northward stood a modern low-roofed country house, many gabled, and built of the bright lava stone of the hog-back. As we looked, a man mounted at the door-stone and rode at a gallop toward us. I thrust the butt of the whip among the parcels on the buckboard and succeeded in dislodging one of them. It was Winifred's smaller handbag, and it was well to the rear in the dust of the road when Angus met us.

"Good boy!" I exclaimed. "You project your welcome into space, don't you? Will you lend me your horse and take my place? I've lost one of the valises, and if you'll drive Miss Sanborn I'll ride back for it."

I know not if my transparent subterfuge were suspected. And I doubt if either of them questioned or cared, so long as they could be together. We made the exchange quickly, and Angus pointed the team toward the house on the knoll.

"We'll wait dinner for you," he said. "I have Aunt Richmond here to do the honors, and you can own the ranch as long as you'll stay."

I looked into Winifred's eyes and found there my warrant for a retort in kind.

"We shall see about that, later. I'd like to have my invitation from the chatelaine of a house where I'm supposed to quarter myself indefinitely."

It was a liberal half-hour later when I rode up to the veranda of the country house with the lost valise at the saddle-horn. There was no one in sight save Connolly, the ex-trooper, who nodded affably and grinned and took the horse.

"You'll foind thim on the piazzy beyant," he said, with a wink and a leer, and the unfettered freedom of the great west large within him. "It's forgetting yez entirely by this toime, they'll be."

But they had not forgotten me; and when I mounted the steps it was Winifred who came to meet me, putting her hands in mine and blushing with sweet shyness, with Angus only a lame second.

"You said you wanted an invitation, Mr. Halcott," she said, archly. "You are very welcome to Torovista; to come and go and stay as our nearest and truest friend."

I looked from one to the other of them and gasped, and my heart sank a little in spite of me. Even when one has been working and praying for some certain end the seal of fruition and irrevocability may come with a trying shock. But my part was still to play, and I played it.

"Is—isn't—this rather sudden? True, I tried to give you as much time as I could—if I'd known you were coming to meet us, Angus, I should have knocked the valise off miles farther back."

Angus roared. "I wish I had half the nerve you give me credit for," he laughed. "We stole a march on you and did it by mail, long ago. There is to be a wedding in this shack to-night, and you're to give the bride away. Why don't you say something?"

There be times when the grave-diggers are busy, and the heart is too full for speech; and if at the moment I said no more than the hollow nothings that such occasions demand, it must be forgiven me. None the less, when the time came, I gave her to Angus, freely and without reserve.

That was five years ago; and since—I can look back upon it now with steadfast eyes, realizing that what is is always best—her happiness and his, and the love of little Joan, my name-child, have been my recompense for my undivided share in the trouble on the Torolito.

(THE END.)

All Mussulmans Secure Converts.

Europeans habitually forget that every Mussulman is more or less a missionary—that is, he intensely desires to secure converts from non-Mussulman people. Such converts not only increase his own chance of heaven, but they will swell his own faction, his own army, his own means of conquering, governing and taxing the remainder of mankind. All the emotions which impel a Christian to proselyte are in a Mussulman strengthened by all the motives which impel a political leader and all the motives which sway a recruiting sergeant, until proselytism has become a passion, which, wherever success seems practicable, and especially success on a large scale, develops in the quietest Mussulman a fury of ardor which induces him to break down every obstacle, his own strongest prejudices included, rather than stand for an instant in a neophyte's way. He welcomes him as a son, and whatever his own lineage, whether the convert be negro or Chinaman, or Indian, or even European, he will without hesitation or scruple give him his own child in marriage, and admit him fully, frankly and finally into the most exclusive society in the world.—From "The Brown Man," M. Townsend.

In Marie Antoinette's Pocket.

A historical relic of much interest has just been discovered among the archives of the department of the Seine. This relic is a list of the articles found in the pockets of the dress that the ill-fated Marie Antoinette wore at her execution. The articles were put to public auction for the benefit of Sanson, the public executioner. The first lot consisted of a small pocketbook in green morocco, containing a pair of pincers, a small corkscrew, a pair of scissors, a comb and a tiny pocket looking glass. The second lot was made up of three little portraits in green morocco cases, one of them being surrounded by a metal frame. The two lots fetched a total of 10f. 50c.—Irish Times.

BLOCKADED.

Some in Every Household in Plainfield, But They Are Growing Less.

The back aches because the kidneys are blockaded.

Help the kidneys with their work.

The back will ache no more.

Lots of proof that Doan's Kidney Pills do this.

It's the best proof, for it comes from Plainfield.

Mr. Richard Day, of 134 East Front street, says: "I had a miserable pain across my back and a sort of lame feeling over my kidneys. Standing any length of time, or walking any distance aggravated it greatly. I was never sick much in my life and consequently never took much medicine, so when I first began having these attacks I paid but little attention to them. They however grew worse instead of better so I had to look about for remedy. I read quite frequently in our papers about cures brought about by the use of Doan's Kidney pills so I got a box at L. W. Randolph's drug store and after taking them I felt greatly relieved. I have recommended them to my friends and those who have used them speak very highly in their praise."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name Doan's and take no substitute.

Proceedings of the Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders.

[OFFICIAL]

Regular meeting of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union, N. J., held on Thursday, December 5, 1901, at 2:30 p. m.

Roll call showed all members present except Freeholder Wahl, 1.

The minutes of the previous meeting (reading of bills being omitted,) were on motion approved as read.

COMMUNICATIONS, ETC.

From B. L. Farrell, clerk of the Township of Springfield, stating that on November 8, 1901, about 5 a. m., the Township Hall was destroyed by fire together with all of its contents; among the latter were the ballot box and booths used at the last election, and the ballots and papers contained in said box.

This Board was requested to give the matter attention in order that a ballot box and booths may be provided for next spring's election.

On motion of Freeholder King received and placed on file.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

County Attorney Codington reported in the matter of the Union County jail, etc., made by Sheriff Houston at the last meeting of the Board, that he had obtained a copy of the opinion rendered by the Court in the case of George Virtue, sheriff, etc., vs. the Essex County Board of Freeholders, which was very lengthy, and which he had not as yet had time to examine thoroughly. He had, however, conferred with the attorney for the Essex County Board, and had been informed that the said Board would appeal the case at once to the Court of Errors and Appeals.

Under the circumstances as they stood, he would advise this Board to take no further action at present, nor until the final decision is rendered by said Court of Errors and Appeals.

NEW BUSINESS

By Freeholder Krouse:

Resolved, That $800 be paid to James G. Moore on account of his contract for work, material, etc., on Wood Avenue bridge in Linden.

Freeholder Farrell moved the adoption of the resolution, and on roll-call it was unanimously adopted.

By Freeholder Swain:

Whereas, The Canton Bridge Company has failed to build the bridge over the Passaic River at the Union and Morris Counties line at New Providence within the time specified in their contracts, and

Whereas, The safety of said bridge for public travel in its present condition is questioned; therefore be it

Resolved, That the committee of this Board having said matter in charge, be, and are hereby authorized in conjunction with the similar committee of the Morris County Board, to temporarily repair said bridge, by planking the same in such manner as in their opinion will make the same safe for public travel, said expense thereof to be mutually paid by the respective counties, until final settlement with the Canton Bridge Company.

Freeholder Krouse moved the adoption of the foregoing preamble and resolution, and on roll-call they were unanimously adopted.

The matter of new ballot box and booths for Springfield Township to replace those recently destroyed by fire was taken up, and Freeholder Farrell moved that the same be referred to the Public Buildings Committee with power. It was so ordered on roll-call by an unanimous vote.

Fit for Any Home.

The New-York Tribune's plans and programme for 1902 contemplate improvements all along the line, so as to keep it in the front rank of the newspaper procession. What The Daily Tribune is and what it stands for pretty nearly everybody knows. That it keeps pace in enterprise with the spirit of the age, without sacrificing decency or accuracy, is needless to say.

But a word as to the other publications issued from The Tribune office may be timely. For instance, it may not be generally known that the famous old Weekly grew and grew until it became imperatively necessary to divide it in two—The Tribune Review and The Tribune Farmer. The Review is suited alike to persons of the highest culture, to those who are educating themselves and to all who wish the week's history summarized, explained and illuminated for them. Special attention is given to municipal affairs, domestic and foreign politics, and to books and literary news. It is published every Saturday. Price,

EXPRESS COMPANY RUSHED

HOLIDAY TRADE IS THE LARGEST ON RECORD.

United States Express Company Has Increased its Force to Meet Demands.

The rush of holiday packages at the local office of the U. S. Express Company, for transportation in and out of the city, has been unprecedented. Every train has been bringing in hundreds of bundles and the end is not anywhere in sight.

Manager Mills said yesterday that during the past week his men have delivered half as many packages again as during the same period last year.

This has all been done without any perceptible delay in the delivery service. The regular corps of nine drivers has been increased to fourteen, all of whom are working early and late. The various routes about the city are covered by eight wagons.

In order to get all Christmas goods to their destination in time the men will work all tonight and also tomorrow. The office of the company will also remain open this evening for the convenience of shippers.

Health and Beauty.

A poor complexion is usually the result of a torpid liver or irregular action of the bowels. Unless nature's refuse is carried off it will surely cause impure blood. Pimples, boils and other eruptions follow. This is nature's method of throwing off the poisons which the bowels failed to remove. DeWitt's Little Early Risers are world famous for remedying this condition They stimulates the liver and promote regular and healthy action of the bowels but never cause griping, cramps or distress. Grace at Meals.

During the last generation it was very rare to see any family begin a meal without grace, but the omission of this ceremony is becoming more common every day in some sections. It seems that there is a like decline of the custom in England. An English writer who has observed this tendency for several years past, and is much pained by it, declares that the abandonment of grace before meals is "the most notable change in private religious observance in London." The Springfield (Mass.) Republican makes the surprising declaration that "saying the blessing" is still observed on "many public occasions, but that it is comparatively seldom heard in New England families, even when they are descended from Puritan forbears and have inherited the whole body of Puritan traditions." The habit of saying grace may have fallen off to some extent in the south, but it has not declined to anything like the extent it has either in New England or old England. It is still the rule in the great majority of southern households, and will continue to be for a long time to come.—Atlanta Journal.

The Shops of Fez.

No census has ever been taken of the Fez, but the population is probably not far from 50,000. Centuries ago it is said to have had more than half a million citizens, 100,000 houses and 700 mosques. The shops are mere cells, elevated about four feet above the ground and so arranged that the merchant, sitting all day long with his legs curled under him, can reach anything in his stock without getting up. As may be imagined, he does not carry a heavy line of goods. Fine carpets, silken fabrics, woolen cloth, girdles, sashes, slippers, Moorish leather work, swords and daggers, wrought gold and jeweled ornaments are sold. All are made by skilled workmen, in cellars beneath the tiny shops, and brought up on demand. There are a great many of these shops, besides a multitude of bazars, and at least 200 caravanserai, or Arab hotels, wherein "accommodations for man and beast" are decidedly in favor of the latter.—Detroit Free Press.

In the Far East.

Nothing is more amusing than to watch two acquaintances saluting in the streets of a Japanese town. As they come in sight of each other they slacken their pace and approach with downcast eyes and averted faces, as if neither was worthy of beholding the other; then they bow low, so as to bring the face, still averted, on a level with the knees, on which palms of the hands are pressed. A succession of hissing sounds is next made, by drawing in the breath between the closed teeth, interspersed with a series of complimentary phrases, uttered with great volubility, in a sort of undertoned falsetto, each trying to outdo his friend in the rapidity and extravagance of his language, while the palms are diligently rubbed against each other.—Penny Magazine.

Dark Conditions in Turkey.

Briefly stated, the conditions in Turkey are these: The Mohammedan religion has degenerated into the practicing of dead rites—mere lip service, lacking any meaning to most of its followers. The eastern Christian church, corrupted by centuries of Moslem dominance, has lost its vitality, is down to par with Mohammedanism so far as concerns the teaching, or even the comprehension of the vital principles of living religion; the masses of the Turkish, the Armenian, the Greek and the Jewish elements of the population have actually lost their old and once mighty literatures.—Arthur McIlroy, in National Magazine.

CHRISTMAS AT THE CHURCHES

Beautiful Musical Services Marked the Day of the Saviour's Nativity.

PROGRAMMES SELECTED

Services Held in Episcopal, Roman Catholic, German Reformed and Lutheran Churches—Many Attended Despite the Unpropitious Weather.

The weather of Christmas day was not ideal, but still there were many people about the streets continually. The houses of worship, where services were held in the morning, were crowded by congregations which joined heartily in the services. In the afternoon the rain prevented much outdoor activity.

In the churches, the services were particularly elaborate, the music in all cases being a special feature. The Roman Catholics and Episcopalians held several services in their various edifices during the morning. Among the others which observed the day in this manner, were the German Lutherans, German Reformed, Swedish Lutherans and the Swedish Pilgrims.

It was a joyful Christmas at the Church of the Holy Cross. There were two services held, one the early celebration at 7:30 o'clock and the other morning prayer and late celebration at 10:30 o'clock. Both were largely attended, especially the latter, at which the church was thronged with members of the parish and their friends. The chancel and nave were profusely adorned with greens and many Christmas emblems.

Rev. W. Montgomery Downey, the rector, was assisted at the latter service by Rev. T. W. H. Neilson, formerly rector of St. Michael's church, Trenton. The music was very elaborate. The vested choir, which had been well trained by the choirmaster, Wm. E. MacClymont, sang splendidly. The order of service was: Organ prelude, Willis; processional, It Came Upon the Midnight Clear; responses, Tallis; Venite, Randall; TeDeum, in F, Adlam; Jubilate, Cooke; Introit—Behold I Bring You Good Tidings, Clare; Kyrie and Gloria Tibi, in F, Steane; hymn; sermon by the rector; Gloria Patri, Farrant; offertory—bass solo by F. B. Moffett, O'er the Hills to Bethlehem, Shelley; Sursum Corda and Sanctus, in F, Steane; communion hymn, Rockingham; Gloria in Excelsis, old chant, Nunc Dimittis, Gregorian, recessional—Mendelssohn; organ postlude.

The full vested choir was in the chancel, and in it were J. Malcolm Davis, Paul W. Blakely, Harrison Fahn, Walter M. Vail, Elmer Bohan, Herman Klinsman, Clarence Hand, Herbert F. Glaentzer, William Westphal, David Allen, William H. Burtis, Howard Perry, George Perry, Ira Vail, Russell Vail, F. M. Whiteley, George Rogers, Russell Conroy, William L. Heath, George M. Meade, Marshall Ward, R. S. Lane, Willard M. Miner, Wesley Messersmith, E. P. T. Smith, A. E. Smith, S. O. Sutton, Henry Williams, George Westervelt. Bass soloist, F. B. Moffett; organist, Miss Daisy M. Zerbe; choirmaster, Wm. E. MacClymont.

St. Mary's R. C. church was crowded at all the masses, yesterday morning. The interior of the sacred edifice was beautifully decorated. In front of St. Joseph's altar was a representation of the scene in the manger after the birth of the Saviour.

A solemn high mass at 6 o'clock, called the Shepherd's Mass, was celebrated by Rev. P. E. Smyth with Rev. J. A. Westman, as deacon, and Rev. Michael Glennon, as sub-deacon. Low masses were said at 7:30, 8:30 and 9:30 o'clock, the last being the children's mass.

The solemn high mass at 10:30 was the chief service of the day. Rev. J. A. Westman was the celebrant, Rev. M. J. Farley, the deacon and Rev. Michael Glennon, the sub-deacon. At the mass the music was superb.

In full the musical programme was: Processional, Mendlessohn; Hark, the Herald Angels Sing, by the chancel choir; Kyrie, Gloria and Credo, Groiza; offertory, Adeste Fideles, Novello; Sanctus, Benedictus and Agnus Dei, Groiza; recessional, O God, Our Help In Ages Past, Veronica, by the chancel choir. The Responsoria was chanted by the chancel choir under the direction of William O'Keefe.

Solos were rendered by Mrs. F. V. Brady, soprano; Mrs. M. Owens, alto; R. Clark, tenor, and Matthew Cashin, bass. The chorus consisted of twenty-four voices. Miss M. Smith was the organist.

At St. Joseph's R. C. church, a choir of sixty children sang Matfield's mass at the celebration at 5:30 o'clock. The Adeste Fideles was sung at the offertory and the Te Deum was sung by the choir and congregation at the close of the mass. The children's mass was said at 8:30 o'clock and the last solemn high mass was celebrated at 10:30 o'clock.

Groiza's mass was sung by a double quartette assisted by a chorus. One quartette was made up of members of the regular choir and those in it were: Miss Tina Smith, soprano; Mrs. Reilly, alto; Alfred LaPorte, tenor; and James Bailey, bass and musical director. Mrs. Alfred LaPorte was the organist. The Adeste Fideles, as arranged by V. Novello, was sung at the offertory.

In St. Peter's German Lutheran church a service was held at 10:30 o'clock in the morning, and the Christmas hymns used in the Fatherland were rendered with much fervor. Rev. Theodore Duensing, the pastor, preached in German.

The service at the German Reformed church commenced at 10:30 o'clock in the morning. As in the other German church the interior of the edifice was tastefully adorned with greens and Christmas emblems. Rev. G. Hauser, the pastor, preached on "The Birth of Christ."

Rev. O. G. Norseen, the pastor of the Swedish Pilgrim church, held a service in the Congregational church parlor at 6:30 o'clock in the morning. There was a fair attendance of the members. Swedish Christmas hymns were sung and the pastor preached in that language. The Swedish Lutheran Gethsemane church congregation held a service in Grace church parish building at 6:30 o'clock and Rev. H. Johnson officiated.

Rev. Erskine Rodman, the rector, and Rev. J. H. Wilson, the curate, conducted three services at Grace church, which was beautifully decorated for the festal occasion. An early celebration was held at 7 o'clock and another an hour later. The most attractive service was held at 10:30 o'clock and was followed by Holy Communion. At this service the curate preached a brief and eloquent Christmas sermon.

The order of the music was: Processional—Adeste Fideles; Venite and Gloria, Turner; Te Deum, Attwater; Benedictus, King Hall, in B flat; Introit—When All Things Were In Quiet Silence, Henry John King, the solo part being rendered by Miss Cornelia Miller; Kyrie Eleison and Gloria Tibi, King Hall; hymn—While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks by Night, Gabriel; offertory—The Heavens Are Telling, from Hayden's Creation, the two quartette parts being rendered by Miss Miller, Miss B. Miner, William Tallamy and Arthur F. Freeman; communion service—King Hall's, in B flat, the solos in the Agnus Dei being by Miss Miller and Mr. Tallamy; psalm 117, Messiter; recessional—Hark! What Mean Those Holy Voices? Geer.

The full vested choir composed of the following: Sopranos, Fred Kanen, Herbert Smith, Herman Scheller, John Yose, Jos. Miller, Herbert Grant, Fred Bach, Alfred Manly, Earl Vanderbilt, Stanfell Forbes, Sherman Haverle, Gurth Williams, Clarence Steiner, H. Smith and the Misses Jessie Little, Mildred Ulrich, Margaret Yeager, Bessie Martin, Jennie Smith, Ethel Forbes, Carrie Fuller and Cornelia Miller; contraltos, Albert Yeager, Beatrice Miner and Ada Clark; tenors, W. R. Cock, Wm. Tallamy, G. W. Johnson and Laurens H. VanBuren; bassos, Arthur F. Freeman, Fred J. Pope and Wm. Hepburn; crucifer, William Jeffrey; acolyte, Blanchard Fosgate; organist and choirmaster, Mrs. Wm. A. Freeman.

At the Church of the Heavenly Rest the day was observed in a fitting manner. William Winans Moore, the lay reader, conducted a service held at 10:30 o'clock in the morning. The interior of the church edifice was tastefully decorated and about the nave were placed the handsome banners of the Sunday-school. Carols and Christmas anthems were sung, although the formal Christmas service will not be held until Sunday.

The early celebration at St. Stephen's church was at 7:30 o'clock and at 10:30 there was matins followed by a second celebration at 11 o'clock, Rev. Mr. Johnson officiating. The musical features were very good, especially the anthem "Sing O Heavens."

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Manning, of LaGrande avenue, spent yesterday at Newark with friends.

STRENUOUS GATHERING UNTIL POLICE CAME

Battled Royally on the Boulevard Over Dispute in Shop the Day Before.

COLORED MEN VS. WHITE

WORDY ENCOUNTER WAS CLOSED WITH FISTS AND CLUBS.

All Haled to Police Court This Morning and Four Were Fined—Conflicting Stories Were Told.

Christmas morning was ushered in on the Boulevard in strenuous fashion. A body of white men numbering somewhere between four and eight, two colored men and one colored woman, armed with a club, engaged in a battle royal on West Third street, west of Plainfield avenue, yesterday morning. It lasted a full half hour. It was cut short by the arrival of Patrolman Hig- [illegible] who gathered in James Fitzpatrick, James Regan, Thomas Flynn and Thomas Lyons, white, and Olmstead Jackson and Christopher Maden, colored.

As near as could be learned from the testimony in the city court, this morning, the fight was the continuation of a little tiff which Regan and Jackson had in the foundry of Pond's shop, Tuesday morning. Regan and Fitzpatrick were going to church, yesterday morning, when they met Jackson. Words followed over the previous day's dispute and while it was in progress, the whites were joined by Lyons and Flynn, who also work at Pond's, and Maden sallied out from his yard to Jackson's relief. The dispute waxed warmer, and finally the first blow was struck, by whom no one knows. A score were exchanged in quick succession and recruits kept constantly coming up for the whites. Maden's wife saw the start and sallied out with a club to help matters along. Her intentions were good but her aim was poor and instead of annihilating the whites, she felled her husband with a stunning blow, which rendered him hors de combat.

Maden had been carrying five men around, according to his version. When he dropped, they made for Jackson who had been engaging Lyons and a few on the side. It was at this point that the bluecoat hove in sight and Jackson's finish was postponed.

Everybody had a different version of the affair in court, but City Judge Runyon formed one of his own and fined Regan, Lyons, Jackson and Maden $3 each. Sentence was suspended on the others.

FUNERAL OF J. S. POWLISON.

Held From the Late Residence on Grandview Avenue, Tuesday.

The funeral of Joseph S. Powlison, of Grandview avenue, was held from his late residence, Tuesday morning. There was a large number of friends present to pay their last respects.

Many floral tributes bore testimony of the esteem in which he was held by his fellow citizens.

Rev. C. L. Goodrich, pastor of the Congregational church, conducted the service. Miss Katheryn Glen and M. C. VanArsdale sang "Abide With Me" and "Safe in The Arms of Jesus." The interment was made in Bedminster. Phillip and Peter Vroom, nephews of Mr. Powlison, and George S. VanArsdale and John Dolliver were the pallbearers.

An Evidence of Harmony.

All the twenty-one employes of The Daily Press assembled in the editorial rooms, Tuesday afternoon, and presented Albert L. Force, editor and proprietor, with a handsome mahogany easy-chair, inlaid with pearl. The presentation speech was made by City Judge Wm. N. Runyon. It was an excellent evidence of the harmony which prevails these days in The Daily Press office between employer and employes.

Turkeys for His Employes.

As an evidence of the high esteem in which Fred C. Lounsbury, of the Crescent Embossing Works, holds his employes, he very generously gave each one a turkey for Christmas.

Primary Department's Turn.

The primary department of Trinity Reformed church Sunday-school will enjoy the annual Christmas festival tomorrow afternoon.

Cantata Monday Evening.

The Sunday-school of the Park Avenue Baptist church will give an elaborate cantata Monday evening, December 30.

CHRISTMAS AT THE HOSPITAL

ANNUAL CELEBRATION TOOK PLACE THERE YESTERDAY AFTERNOON.

Grace Church Choir Assisted in Carols—Gifts Were Presented to All Present.

While hundreds of Plainfielders thoroughly enjoyed the festivities of Christmas-tide, there were none that appreciated the day more than those who were detained at Muhlenberg Hospital. The annual celebration took place yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock, when, as usual, the tree was lighted and there was the customary pleasant features to mark the happy event. Considering the inclemency of the weather there was a large attendance, including many graduate nurses and visitors in general.

As on all previous occasions of a like nature, the vested choir from Grace Episcopal church, under the direction of the organist, Mrs. W. A. Freeman, was present and rendered beautiful music. Among the selections were "Come All Ye Faithful," and "Sun of My Soul." Two other selections were Christmas carols.

A part of the festivities of an interesting character was the address by Rev. L. R. Howard, pastor of Hope chapel. His happy words, appropriate to the occasion, were listened to attentively.

After the exercises, there was the distribution of gifts under the direction of the Board of Governors and the Woman's Auxiliary. Every one of the sixteen patients, as well as every nurse and attache of the hospital received presents, including a box of candy and an orange. Many of the gifts were of a substantial nature.

GERMAN SOCIETY HAD TREE

CHRISTMAS ENTERTAINMENT OF THE GESANG AND TURN VEREIN.

The Ladies' Society Assisted and Presented the Other Organization With Valuable Gift.

Under the auspices of the Gesang and Turn Verein, a Christmas entertainment was given in Saengerbund Hall, yesterday afternoon. The affair was planned as a surprise to the children of the members and it proved a great success. The Ladies' Society of the Gesang and Turn Verein assisted in the affair.

Two Christmas trees elaborately decorated and lighted with many candles graced the stage. About the trees were banked toys and candy, intended as presents for the little ones. To add to the amusement a musical entertainment was provided which was followed by a dance. During the affair presents were given the heads of the two societies.

Albert Luthman and John Hoffman sang several duets and the Misses Johanna and Amelia Hoffman also rendered some vocal selections. The instrumental music consisted of violin, Anthony Gaub, and piano, Anthony Cregar.

Four dozen chairs were presented by the Ladies' Society to the Gesang and Turn Verein, Mrs. Henry Bergen making the presentation speech. Mrs. Bergen, herself, received from the Ladies' Society, of which she is the president, a large photograph holder of an unique design. DINNERS FOR POOR; TREE FOR CHILDREN

Such Were the Christmas Accomplishments of the Local Salvation Army.

TREE CHRISTMAS EVE.

SENT OUT 225 BASKET DINNERS TO PLAINFIELD'S NEEDY.

Ensign and Mrs. McCloud Worked Hard for the Success of Their Plans—Presents on the Tree For All.

Through the efforts of Ensign and Mrs. McCloud, in charge of the local corps of the Salvation Army, 225 Plainfield families were enabled, yesterday, to partake of an excellent Christmas dinner at their own homes. In addition, over 100 children were given a genuine treat, Tuesday evening, in the shape of an entertainment at the barracks, a Christmas-tree and the gift of a toy such as only children can appreciate. Briefly stated the Army was the means of its being a merry Christmas for many of Plainfield's worthy poor.

Mr. and Mrs. McCloud worked early and late for weeks in advance preparing for the event. They were amply repaid by the expressions of joy which lighted up the recipient's faces. The dinners were prepared and placed in baskets which were then delivered in time for yesterday's feast. The menu consisted of fowl, vegetables, fruit and bread. At some places enough was placed in the baskets to supply eleven people.

The children's share in the army's beneficence was extended them on Christmas eve. The hall was filled with a joyous expectant crowd of them of all ages. There was also a generous sprinkling of adults.

Ensign McCloud was in charge and under his direction the following programme was rendered: Recitation, Miss Grace Philmore; recitation, George Walsh; recitation, Raymond VanOrden; solo, Miss Ella Walsh; solo, Harris Martin; duet and motion song, Myrtle and Pearl McCloud, remarks by the ensign.

At the close of the exercises Santa Claus appeared in the person of Edward Brunn and proceeded to amuse the children after which each was presented with a doll or toy. Though the gifts were small, there was no doubt in the minds of the givers but what they were acceptable. Altogether the affair was a decided success and speaks well for the efforts of Mr. and Mrs. McCloud and the members of the army corps who assisted them.

A pleasant celebration Monday was that enjoyed by Mrs. Emily Connett, widow of the late Benjamin Connett, it being the ninety-fourth anniversary of her birthday. Many friends and neighbors called on Mrs. Connett and the afternoon was thoroughly enjoyed. Mrs. John Stevens, of 133 Watchung avenue, is a daughter of Mrs. Connett. The latter is enjoying fairly good health.

Miss Katherine Meier, daughter of Mrs. Anna Meier, of East Fourth street, and Franklin Nelson Diem, of Cedar street, were married at the residence of the bride's parent at 10 o'clock Christmas eve.

The nuptial event was somewhat of a quiet affair, only the relatives and intimate friends of the bride and bridegroom being present at the ceremony. Rev. George Hauser, pastor of the German Reformed church, officiated. Mise Caroline Meier, a sister of the bride, was the bridemaid, and John Taylor acted as best man. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, William Meier.

The parlor, where the nuptial ceremony was performed, was tastefully adorned with greens, holly and cut flowers. After the ceremony a wedding supper was served. The bride was gowned in white silk and carried a bouquet of bridal roses and the bridemaid wore a grey gown and carried pink carnations. Mr. and Mrs. Diem will reside on West Second street.

The third shoot in the series will take place on the afternoon of New Year's day.

GOOD AUDIENCES.

Attended Vaudeville Performances at the Casino Yesterday.

The unpropitious weather undoubtedly had effect on the attendance at the Casino yesterday, but good sized audiences were present at both the afternoon and evening performances to witness an exceedingly good bill of vaudeville presented by Vion & Homans, the Weber & Fields booking agents. The several artists taking part acquitted themselves well, especially Cole and Brown, colored vocalists and dancers; Flatow and Dunn, comedians; Edwards and Kernell, sketch artists; Miss Carroll, the whistler, and DeBiere, the magician, who certainly is very clever. Another strong bill of vaudeville will probably be presented Washington's birthday.

SHOT OFFICER BY MISTAKE

Isaac P. Brown, Jr., Mistook Him For Chicken Thief and Fired.

NOT SERIOUSLY HURT.

Patrolman Overbaugh Was Looking for Chicken Thieves When He Received Charge of Small Shot—Brown Held on Bail for Grand Jury.

Mistaking Patrolman Herbert Overbaugh for a chicken thief, Isaac P. Brown, Jr., of Watchung avenue, fired a load of small shot at the officer early yesterday morning, wounding him in several places. While the full contents of the shotgun lodged in the officer's body and clothing, his injuries were not serious. His uniform was ruined. Mr. Brown was subsequently arrested and held under bonds for his appearance before the Grand Jury.

A few weeks ago Mr. Brown, Sr., who is the owner of a fine lot of chickens and ducks, asked Chief Kiely to instruct his men to watch his yard as he feared thieves. This has been done since by Overbaugh who is on the beat passing Mr. Brown's home.

He was passing the property yesterday morning at 3:30, when he heard an unusual commotion among the fowls and entered the yard to investigate. He found nothing suspicious and was on his way to the street again when a report sounded from an upper window in the house and a hail of shot struck him. The officer says it was almost as bright as day at the time and that he stood full in the open.

Overbaugh immediately called out who he was and Mr. Brown, Jr., appeared. He was informed of his mistake after which Overbaugh hurried to Dr. Carman's offices where his injuries were dressed. Most of the shot lodged in his side while a dozen of the missles pierced his face, neck and shoulders. He was relieved of duty at once on reporting at headquarters and has been off since.

Last evening, the patrolman appeared before City Judge Runyon and preferred a charge of assault against Mr. Brown, the warrant being served at once. He waived examination and furnished bonds in the sum of $500 for his appearance before the Grand Jury. This is the first time City Judge Runyon has exercised his authority in a matter of this nature.

The patrolman has made a statement of the affair before Corporation Counsel Marsh and the latter will conduct his case. Overbaugh intimates that he will institute civil proceedings against Mr. Brown, on the ground of criminal carelessness.

Isaac P. Brown, Sr., of Watchung avenue, states that the gun fired upon Patrolman Overbaugh, contained No. 6 shot, considerably smaller than buck. It was fired, he states, for the purpose of frightening a thief rather than for injuring him.

It is a hardship for one to have to bear the middleman's profit and realizing this fact the manufacturers of the Waldorf shoe send their shoes direct from the factory to the wearer at one profit, at 132 North avenue.

The reason the Pennsylvania Railroad is the standard railroad is because its service is unexcelled. That's the case of Fred H. Firstbrook's grocery store, on Liberty street, is so much patronized. Quick delivery counts.

The pleasant things said among friends at various festivities yesterday were not one bit better than the nice things that have been said about clothing purchased at W. H. Sebring's store on West Front street. A perfect fit at fair price is the rule here.

Among those who had a large share in making the people of Plainfield happy yesterday, was Peck, of West Front street. His choice goods have been taken into a great many homes in the city, where they have served as pleasant reminders of Christmas-tide.

Collier, the Park avenue jeweller and optician, states that more silver and gold novelties were purchased for presents this season than ever before. Mr. Collier says that he enjoyed an excellent patronage in this line and other dealers speak in a similar tone.

The Rockfellow Grocery Company enjoyed an excellent holiday trade all last week and also Monday and Tuesday. The superiority of its goods brought it many new patrons and many remarks have been passed at the expeditious manner in which all Christmas orders were delivered.

While it may not be apparent to the ordinary observer, there are many wonderful sights to be seen about a first-class sea food store. This is especially true of the Rogers Sea Food Company's store where many curious specimens are to be seen in tanks provided especially for the purpose of display.

It was a great rush. That holiday rush at Woodhull & Martin's store. Almost equal to a rush in one of the recent great University football games. The firm is still in business, however, and as in the past they will in the future be prepared to serve their customers with the best goods at right prices.

Complying With Wish.

The circular letter issued jointly by the Borough Boards of Health and Education recommending vaccination has been transmitted to all parents having children in the North Plainfield public schools. There appears to be an inclination on the part of the parents to follow the wish of the boards, and already a number of children have submitted to the operation.

Another Meeting Soon.

A meeting of the sewer committee appointed by Mayor Smalley will be held before the first of the new year. There will be little of general interest to the public in the committee's transactions before the report is filed with the Borough Council. It is the intention of the members to proceed with all possible dispatch in the matter.

Home at Last.

GOOD CHEER TO MANY

Salvation Army Provides Generous Christmas Bounty.

NEW YORK'S POOR NOT FORGOTTEN.

Lively Scenes at Madison Square Garden and Elsewhere — Thousands of Baskets, Containing Dinner For Five, Given Out.

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—Christmas brought good cheer to the city's poor at Madison Square Garden, where the Salvation Army distributed 3,400 baskets, each containing a dinner for five persons. In Brooklyn, too, the army gave out 1,000 more such baskets.

Eyes dimmed at the very sight of the line that waited for the doors of the Garden to open. Every person who had a ticket good for a basket had been the subject of careful inquiry, so only the deserving received the dinners.

One poor woman, red ticket in hand, wheeled in front of her a baby carriage containing two infants. Anxious as were the others near the woman, they all gave plenty of room, urging her forward along the line.

Promptly at 10 o'clock the doors opened, and the line marched into the big building through an aisle between two tables. On these tables the officers of the army stood, handing down the baskets.

Many entered the Garden without the tickets. These were asked to stand aside until all tickets were presented and then were served in turn.

At night the doors of the Garden were again opened, and everybody who came was fed.

All day the kitchens of the Garden looked like busy factories. There scores and scores of cooks moved like gnomes through the steam and about the fires. Savory smells pervaded the entire building.

Following are components of the evening meal:

Three thousand pounds of turkey, 500 pounds of roast beef, 75 bushels of potatoes, 150 quarts of cranberry sauce, 75 quarts of cranberry jelly, 600 pounds of stuffing, 900 mince and apple pies, 3,800 loaves of bread, 850 gallons of coffee and nuts and apples by the bushel.

Each of the baskets given out contained bread, turkey or chickens, coffee, sugar, apples, mince pie and a Christmas War Cry.

Those who follow the sea had a part of their Christmas at the Seamen's Christian association, 399 West street, where Mr. and Mrs. George A. Hearn supplied about 500 of them with an excellent dinner.

Other men of the sea found cheer awaiting them at the International Sunshine society at 155 Sands street, Brooklyn, where the superintendent, Mrs. F. L. Smith, had prepared a monster Christmas box.

For the soldiers there were a Christmas tree and entertainment in the Young Men's Christian association quarters at Fort Wadsworth, and the army branch of the same association gave a turkey dinner to the men at Fort Columbus, on Governors island.

Christmas trees shed forth gifts at the Bowery Mission and Young Men's home at 55 Bowery during the day, and a turkey luncheon was served to 300 men and boys.

The Italian Benevolent society of 27 Hancock street celebrated its Christmas festivities by the distribution of food, clothing and boxes of presents to poor Italian families.

The President's Christmas.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—Washington has seldom celebrated Christmas more quietly. Owing to the police regulations there were no noisy demonstrations on the street. The departments were all closed, the chief officials generally spending the day with their respective families. The White House was closed to the public, and a large portion of the clerical force was excused for the day. The president put in much of the time in the residence part of the building, his principal attention being given to the children of the household, who were the recipients of many presents both from their parents and from others. The smaller members generally hung their stockings up Tuesday night, and all found upon awakening at an early hour that Santa Claus had been astir ahead of them and had left liberal contributions. Later in the day all assembled in the family room, where the general exchange of presents occurred and where a jolly hour was spent. The family dinner took place at 7:30 last night.

Christmas In Paris.

PARIS, Dec. 26.—The weather yesterday was fine, and the boulevards were thronged all day long by animated crowds of promenaders visiting the toy fair. American children in Paris were benefited by the kindliness of Mr. and Mrs. Michael De Young of San Francisco, who gave a fete in the afternoon in their apartments at the Continental hotel. An immense Christmas tree laden with glittering toys had been erected in one of the rooms. United States Embassador Porter and Mrs. Porter and Consul General Gowdy and Mrs. Gowdy were present at the distribution of gifts, and a constant stream of children left the hotel carrying armfuls of toys which Mr. and Mrs. De Young had brought specially from America.

Mrs. McKinley's Christmas.

CANTON, O., Dec. 26.—Mrs. McKinley spent Christmas day alone at her home. She was urged to join the Barber family at their Christmas home at the old Saxton homestead, but declined to do so. She did not wish to be so forcibly reminded of the Christmas days of the past as she would be by such a dinner. Mrs. McKinley's condition is as good or better than it has been since the tragedy. Relatives who see her most often state that she shows gradual improvement. She remembered many of her friends with little Christmas presents, and she received flowers and presents from all over the country.

Thousands Fed at Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 26.—The Salvation Army gave a Christmas dinner to 5,000 people in this city. Two thousand were assembled in Central armory, where they were served. The remaining 3,000 were sent baskets of provisions. At the armory Colonel Myron T. Herrick made a brief address on the work of the Salvation Army.

The Kaiser's Bounty Doubled.

BERLIN, Dec. 26.—Emperor William while walking in the environs of Potsdam tossed several three and four mark pieces to poor looking persons whom he passed. The emperor's Christmas bounty is never limited, but this year he has doubled his usual subscriptions to charitable funds.

BANQUET TO AMERICANS.

The Cubans of Havana Honor Our Navy.

HAVANA, Dec. 26.—A banquet was given to the officers of the United States fleet yesterday by the Cuban veterans. It was a grand demonstration of gratitude on the part of the Cubans toward the American navy. General Carlos Garcia presided. Governor General Wood in proposing a toast to the future republic said that when the fleet came again it would find a stable government in Cuba.

Rear Admiral Higginson thanked the Cubans for their grand outpouring of hospitality and said that the presence of the fleet had no special significance and certainly no political one. It was a source of satisfaction to him, he declared, that the navy had been an important factor in bringing about peace in the island.

Captain McCalla paid a high tribute to General Garcia, who had co-operated with him at Santiago, and to the Cubans for their courage and fortitude during the war.

According to telegrams printed in Senor Estrada Palma's official organs, General Gomez is faring badly on his political tour in favor of Palma. In the Puerto Principe province his meetings have been broken up, he has been greeted with shouts of "Traitor!" and stones have been thrown at him. General Gomez is mounted on the same horse he used during the war and is accompanied by a band of veterans. The Maso feeling is running strong in Puerto Principe.

The Nacion says Gomez is paid by the government to stump the country. He is met with that accusation on every hand. Maso's followers have withdrawn every one of their candidates, and the feeling in places is bitter.

Treasurer of New Jersey Dead.

NEW YORK, Dec. 26.—George B. Swain, treasurer of the state of New Jersey, is dead at his home in Newark from a stroke of apoplexy. Treasurer Swain was born in Warren county March 6, 1835. For many years he was engaged in the lumber business here, served twelve years as a member of the board of education and had held many minor appointive offices. He became state treasurer in 1894 and has filled that office continuously since that time. The sudden death of Mr. Swain will make necessary the immediate appointment of some one to succeed him The laws of the state do not provide for an assistant treasurer, and there is now no one with authority to sign checks or to conduct other financial transactions. The state has something like $2,000,000 on deposit in banks.

Organizing the Burghers.

PRETORIA, Dec. 26.—The formation of a new burgher corps, to be known as national scouts, has aroused great interest among the surrendered burghers. In view of numerous meetings and applications General Lord Kitchener has authorized the creation of fresh wings to operate in the southern and eastern Transvaal under prominent Boer leaders elected by the burghers themselves. It is stated that much of the recent success of the British is due to the co-operation of Collier's and Cronje's commands acting under General Bruce Hamilton.

German Tariff to Be Modified.

BERLIN, Dec. 26.—The government, yielding to Russia's uncompromising attitude regarding the tariff bill, will propose when the committee having the matter in charge meets that the minimum grain duties be stricken out. These minimum duties were put in through the influence of the Agrarians, who desired to fix a limit under which concessions could not be made in the commercial treaty negotiations. The elisions leave the ministry free to meet the views of Russia respecting grain and hay.

Mexican View of Barrett's Return.

CITY OF MEXICO, Dec. 26.—El Tiempo, a clerical organ, says that diplomatic circles and politicians are commenting on the return to the United States of Hon. John Barrett and especially when the conference had just begun the discussion of important fundamental questions. El Tiempo says it is now coming to be believed that at Washington there is discontent over the fact that the Latin nations do not show docility in accepting the leadership of the United States.

A CONFLICT AVERTED

Chile and Argentina Sign an Agreement.

REMEDY MAY NOT LAST LONG.

The Two Countries Still Continue Warlike Preparations, Though All Immediate Danger Has Been Allayed.

BUENOS AYRES, Dec. 26.—A dispatch from Santiago, Chile, says that after a fresh conference held last evening between President Riesco, Foreign Minister Yanez and Senor Portela, the Argentine minister, the new agreement was signed, the latest modifications to the former proposals being accepted.

The newspapers say the new protocol between Chile and Argentina dispels the immediate danger of war, but that the remedy is not permanent. The armies of the two countries in the meantime are continuing their warlike preparations. Chile has decided upon the erection of new fortifications at Talcahuano and Punta Arenas.

At a secret session of the Chilean senate Tuesday the government demanded authority for the expenditure of $15,000,000 in preparations for defense. The sitting was an exciting one, but it was finally decided to authorize the floating of a loan for that purpose.

According to the Diario and the Commercio, Argentina for her part, in view of the new naval acquisition by Chile, has decided upon the construction in Italy of two warships of 8,000 tons, to be ready by the end of 1902.

A dispatch from Santiago, Chile, says that Prime Minister Tocornal, replying to an interpellation in the chamber of deputies, said the statement that a new agreement between Argentina and Chile had already been signed was premature, but that a communication had been forwarded.

General Voorhees and Professor Woodrow Wilson of Princeton college were the principal speakers at the indoor celebration at the Opera House this afternoon.

Three of them are nephews of the murdered man. All the prisoners are under twenty-six years of age.

GUTHRIE, Okla., Dec. 26.—United States Indian Agent Randlett of the Kiowa and Comanche tribes is sending out notice to all persons who have staked mining claims in Indian allotments that they must vacate at once or they will be ejected from Fort Sill. THE NOBEL PRIZES.

First Awards at Stockholm and Christiania an Interesting Event.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—United States Minister Thomas has reported to the state department that events of unusual importance and interest took place Dec. 20 at Stockholm and at Christiania in connection with the first award of the Nobel prizes. Alfred Nobel, the discoverer of dynamite, who died five years ago, left substantially the whole of his vast fortune for the benefit of mankind and in his will directed that it be divided into prizes, without regard to nationality, the worthiest to be awarded the prize, whether he be Scandinavian or not. These prizes consisted of five allotments, each of more than $40,000. The awards were as follows:

In physics, to Wilhelm Conrad Roentgen, professor at the University of Munich, the discoverer of the Roentgen rays; in chemistry, to Jacobus Henricus Van't Hoff, professor at the University of Berlin; in medicine, to Emil von Behring, professor at Halle, the discoverer of the diphtheria serum; in literature, to Sully-Prudhomme, member of the French academy. In the works of peace the prizes were divided between Frederick Passy, national economist of France, and Henri Dunant of Switzerland, the leading spirit in bringing about the Geneva convention and in instituting the societies of the Red Cross.

The prize diplomas were awarded by the crown prince in person at Stockholm in the presence of a great gathering of distinguished people, and at Christiania the award was made by the Norwegian storthing convened in solmen session. Sully-Prudhomme was unable to attend because of sickness.

Fraudulent Stamp Surrendered.

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 26.—A fraudulent stamp similar to that used at the Union depot ticket office for the purpose of validating the return portions of railway tickets has been voluntarily surrendered to George K. Foote, secretary of the Kansas City Passenger association. The stamp was given to Mr. Foote by a local attorney, who said it was turned over to him by a client in this city. This unknown man begged that with its surrender the investigation of recent wholesale frauds in railway tickets started by H. C. Townsend of St. Louis, general passenger agent of the Missouri Pacific railway, and Mr. Foote be dropped. The name of the owner of the stamp was not made public. Mr. Foote says the investigation will be continued and intimates that arrests will follow.

Killed Father to Save Mother.

BRAZIL, Ind., Dec. 26.—In defending his mother from an assault by her drink crazed husband Theodore Watkins, colored, thirteen years old, shot and killed his father at their home here. Richard Watkins came home and began abusing his family. He picked up a hatchet and started after his wife, saying he was going to kill her, and attempted to strike her on the head. Theodore seized a revolver, which he fired at his father. The bullet took effect near the heart.

Engineer Killed In a Wreck.

LITTLE VALLEY, N. Y., Dec. 26.—Engineer William Copp of Buffalo was killed in a freight wreck on the Erie road near Gowanda. A portion of a coal train, including the locomotive, left the track on a heavy grade near a trestle. Engineer Copp and his fireman jumped down an embankment, but were caught by a falling car and buried under the wreckage. Copp was instantly killed, while the fireman escaped with but slight injuries.

The New-York Tribune's plans and programme for 1902 contemplate improvements all along the line, so as to keep it in the front rank of the newspaper procession. What The Daily Tribune is and what it stands for pretty nearly everybody knows. That it keeps pace in enterprise with the spirit of the age, without sacrificing decency or accuracy, is needless to say.

But a word as to the other publications issued from The Tribune office may be timely. For instance, it may not be generally known that the famous old Weekly grew and grew until it became imperatively necessary to divide it in two—The Tribune Review and The Tribune Farmer. The Review is suited alike to persons of the highest culture, to those who are educating themselves and to all who wish the week's history summarized, explained and illuminated for them. Special attention is given to municipal affairs, domestic and foreign politics, and to books and literary news. It is published every Saturday. Price, 5 cents a copy, or $1 a year.

The Farmer, issued every Thursday, is one of the handsomest agricultural papers published in this or any other country. The illustrations are superb, and the articles embrace everything relating to farms or farm work. It is a paper which farmers and all who have business dealings with them cannot well afford to get along without. $1 a year.

The Tri-Weekly Tribune occupies a field all its own. It was learned by experience that thousands of persons in various parts of the country wanted a New-York newspaper, and yet they didn't want one. That sounds paradoxical, but it isn't so much so as one might think at first glance. What they were really after was a condensed New-York newspaper which wouldn't tax either their purse or their time too much. So it came to pass that The Tri-Weekly Tribune took the place of the old Semi-Weekly. The "Tri," as it is familiarly called, appears on Monday, Wednesday and Friday, and in these three issues one may find the cream of the matter in the seven issues of The Daily Tribune. Price, $1.50 a year.

The Tribune Almanac for 1902 will be bigger, better and more valuable than ever. All the records and statistics worth having. On sale January 1. Price, 25 cents. 12 24-4

WHAT ITALY DESIRES.

Protection of Citizens Here Should Be Assured—Money Not Wanted.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—The Italian government has been renewing its efforts of late with the authorities in Washington to have our federal statutes so extended as to protect foreigners in cases arising within the jurisdiction of states, thus giving a federal remedy for lynchings and like affrays directed against Italians, such as have occurred in Louisiana, Colorado and Mississippi. It is the exchange of views in this connection which recently brought on the discussion in the Italian senate when Baron Fava interpellated the Italian premier as to the progress of an adjustment. Immediately on the arrival of the new embassador, Signor Mayor des Planches, he took up this question, which had arisen in connection with the lynching of several Italian citizens at Erwin, Miss.

In this connection Signor Mayor says:

"Under the treaty which exists between Italy and the United States the citizens of each country are guaranteed the fullest protection while residing in the other country. In the case of Americans residing in Italy they had exactly the same rights, the same protection, the same recourse to the courts, that an Italian subject enjoys. The only exception is in connection with political rights. In the case of Italians residing in the United States the treaty assures them the same rights and protection given to American citizens, but unfortunately this expression of the treaty so far as it relates to Italians in this country is somewhat theoretical, for under the American system, which limits the federal authority over states, the central government is not able to give effect to the guarantee laid down by the treaty.

"We fully recognize the difficulties of this situation, which have been as apparent to the statesmen of this country as they have to those of Italy. We have hoped this would bring about the enactment of a law which would permit the federal government to carry out the guarantees of treaties. This would be a genuine remedy for affairs similar to those which have occurred in Louisiana and Mississippi and would prevent the periodical agitation over cases arising in the states. As those cases arose they would be assured of attention under the federal authority, with careful regard for the execution of treaty obligations.

"Since the recent lynchings at Erwin, Miss., there has been more or less discussion of the payment of a money indemnity, but in the view of the Italian government the question of indemnity does not enter into the case."

Fatal Mississippi Steamer Fire.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Dec. 26.—The stern wheel steamer Sun, plying between this port and Fulton, Tenn., burned to the water's edge at 5 o'clock yesterday at her moorings at the wharf on the city front. The boat arrived from Fulton about midnight with fifteen passengers, all of whom were asleep on board when the fire broke out. Of these, three are known to be lost—D. H. Rainey and wife of Old River, Tenn., and Mrs. G. M. Tims of Richardson Landing, Ark. Their charred remains have been recovered from the wreck. The three-months-old child of Mrs. Tims is missing. It is believed that all the other persons on board escaped. The fire originated in a pile of seed cotton on the boiler deck and probably was started by a spark from the furnace. The boat was valued at $10,000 and was about half insured. The cargo was totally destroyed.

Big Fire In Rochester.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Dec. 26.—A disastrous fire of mysterious origin occurred early yesterday in the J. S. Graham Machine company's large factory on Lyell avenue. The plant, which was situated in the heart of an extensive manufacturing locality, known to the firemen as the most dangerous factory in the district in the city and covering a large area, was totally destroyed, entailing a loss roughly estimated at $100,000.

Two Christmas Fatalities.

HUNTSVILLE, Ala., Dec. 26.—Two fatalities have been reported among boys who celebrated Christmas. Tom McKnight was shot and killed four miles north of here by Charles Davis, whose pistol exploded accidentally. A boy named Jones, living in West Huntsville, was fatally wounded by the explosion of a toy cannon.

Three Negroes Killed.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Dec. 26.—Three negroes have been killed near Wilmot as the result of a quarrel over a land sale. Martin Davis and Jeff Davis, cousins, engaged in a fatal duel. James Thompson, a friend of one of the dead men, was subsequently shot by Arthur Davis, brother of Martin Davis.

Two Killed by the Cars.

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Dec. 26.—A Lehigh Valley express train from New York struck and instantly killed two workingmen at Geissinger's Station, near here. The men were strangers in this vicinity, and nothing was found on their persons by which they could be identified.

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

Fire at Shreveport, La., destroyed the furniture establishment of Jackson Bros., involving a loss of $60,000 on stock and $15,000 on building.

The large commissary of Frank B. James at Monclove, Mexico, on the Mexican International railway, was burned to the ground; loss, $150,000, Mexican currency.

The immense creosoting works of the Southern Pacific Railroad company near Houston, Tex., were destroyed by fire. The loss was about $100,000. No insurance was carried.

SHAW TO BE NAMED.

Will Succeed Gage as Secretary of Treasury.

WILSON NOT TO BE REMOVED

The Date of Transfer Has Not Yet Been Fixed, but the Change Will Probably Occur Early In January.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—It is announced authoritatively that Governor Leslie M. Shaw of Iowa will be appointed secretary of the treasury to succeed Secretary Lyman J. Gage. There will be no change in the office of secretary of agriculture, Secretary Wilson, also of Iowa, continuing to retain that portfolio.

The date of transfer of the treasury department will depend on the mutual convenience of the outgoing and incoming secretary, Mr. Gage having signified an entire willingness to remain at the head of his department until such time as it may be agreeable to his successor to take hold. It is supposed, however, that Governor Shaw will be inducted into his new office some time in January. It has been known for two or three days that Governor Shaw was slated for appointment to succeed Secretary Gage, but it was not until late yesterday that the Iowa executive accepted the tender made to him.

GOVERNOR SHAW'S POSITION.

Has Not Been Officially Tendered the Office, but Will Not Refuse.

DES MOINES, Ia., Dec. 26.—Governor Shaw when seen last evening with regard to his appointment as secretary of the United States treasury declined to talk at length about the matter, merely reiterating that the president had confidentially asked him by wire if he would accept the position if it should be tendered to him. He replied that he would accept, but up to the present time no formal tender of the position has been made by the president. However, from the tone of the dispatches from Washington he assumed the president will appoint him and that to all intents and purposes the matter has been fully settled.

The governor's term as chief executive of Iowa will not expire until Jan. 16, when Governor Eliot Cummins will be inaugurated. The legislature will convene Jan. 13, and Governor Shaw will be very busy in the interim with the preparation of his annual message, so that if the appointment by the president shall be made Governor Shaw will hardly be able to take up the duties before Jan. 20 and possibly later. The people of Iowa are greatly elated at Governor Shaw's prospective entry into the president's cabinet, but would regret very much to have Secretary of Agriculture Wilson retire in consequence, and no one would regret this more than would Governor Shaw. All Iowa people feel that Mr. Wilson is the right man in the right place in this and other administrations. With Allison as senate leader, Henderson as speaker of the house and with the prospect now of two members of the cabinet, the state is undoubtedly greatly honored and largely influential in national affairs.

Schooner and Crew Lost.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Dec. 26.—The schooner Eliza H. Parkhurst of this port has been given up for lost by the posting of her crew list by the owners. She left the Bay of Islands, Newfoundland, on Nov. 24 for this port with a cargo of salt herring. It is believed she foundered during a gale the next day. The crew numbered seven, all of whom, save Captain John D. McKinnon, belonged in the provinces.

Killed by His Horse.

KITTERY, Me., Dec. 26.—While caring for his horse in his stable Judge Samuel B. Neal was stamped to death by the animal. He was judge of the police court and a graduate of Harvard. His sister is the wife of Judge J. E. Locke of the United States district court of Florida.

Death of an Aged Woman.

HOBART, N. Y., Dec. 26.—Mrs. Rhoda Olmsted, the oldest resident of central New York, is dead, aged 101 years. Mrs. Olmsted and her family were the founders of the Five Points Mission Summer Home For Poor Children opened at Cornwall-on-the-Hudson last summer.

SHOULD BE ELMINATED.

When the wind swings around into the north and north-west, the invariable result is that a cloud of waste papers suddenly appears on West Front street between Madison avenue and Somerset street. Horses are frightened while the general appearance of the street is sadly injured.

It is but natural to suppose that these papers have been thrown out on the street by the merchants whose establishments front the street where this unsightly litter is to be found. It is not the case, however. The papers have been carried by the wind from the rear of the business blocks where they were heaped up near the brook.

It is probable that those who are responsible for the waste paper do not realize that their carelessness is so evidently shown. If they did, there would undoubtedly be a cessation of the trouble. Let, therefore, those merchants who are in the habit of throwing their waste paper in the rear of their stores and along the banks of Green brook, find some other means of disposing of it and the city will be decidedly the gainer.

The extension of Watchung avenue across to North Plainfield was urged on the grounds that it would give a free outlet to the railroad station. And in pursuance of this project a heavy assessment was borne by the property fronting thereon, only to find that the whole avenue from Front street to North avenue was to be monopolized by the trolley company. This company, with its switch and standing cars, makes almost a complete blockade of this highway, and to the positive loss in property values of every foot of property thereon. Let the new Common Council take this matter in hand. If more room is needed by the company let it buy property for such purpose. The vacant lot on the Friends' meeting house property and the old coal yard, corner of Fourth street, are both well adapted for such use.

It was a pleasant Christmas Day for Plainfield in more ways than one. Not only were the home gatherings enjoyable features of the holiday, but those who were not in circumstances to provide pleasure and happiness for their own households were looked after by the generous hearted. Thankful to say, however, these demands on the charitably inclined were fewer this year than they have been for some time. While prosperity may not have overflowed in the lap of all, there are less today in actual want than has been the case for several years past.

Now that the alterations at the city sewage disposal beds have been completed sufficiently to allow their use, the public is greatly interested to know whether or not the opinions of the experts have been proven to be correct. It will require more than a day or a week to decide as to the success of the changes made in the disposal beds. If, however, there is any serious defect, it is likely to be heard from at once. So far, the reports have been very satisfactory.

The Daily Press calendar, which made its appearance yesterday was favorably received by all. The design is a pretty one and the calendar looks attractive wherever it is hung. If there are any regular subscribers who failed to receive a copy of the calendar, they are asked to call at the office. The supply will not last long.

This evening and tomorrow night will see the Christmas entertainments at most of the local churches. Some of the programmes arranged are of an unusually elaborate nature and there is every prospect that the Christmas season will be a very eventful one for the members of the local Sunday-schools at least.

This discussion concerning a successor for U. S. Senator Sewell is most ill-timed. It is the sincere hope of all of Gen. Sewell's friends, irrespective of political belief, that he will recover from his present illness and devote many more years to the interests of New Jersey in the United States Senate.

Although there has been little said lately about the need of a coat of white paint for the fence at the North Avenue station, the necessity is just as great as ever and some day the railroad company will realize the fact.

It was a merry Christmas for many of us.

The auditorium of the church was very prettily trimmed with evergreen. A pleasing programme of tableaux, recitations and carols, together with a real "Santa Claus," was enjoyed by all. "Santa Claus" arrived a little late owing to a very busy season but his visit was nevertheless a welcome one. As it was found he had brought presents for all. Mr. Morehouse, superintendent of the school, presented the pastor, Rev. Mr. Beacon, on behalf of the church and school, with a substantial remembrance of the day.

HOW SPY HONEYMAN SAVED HIS COUNTRY

Great Grandfather of Two Boroughites Took Part in Battle of Trenton.

STORY OF ACHIEVEMENT

TOLD AMERICAN GENERAL WHEN TO MAKE ATTACK.

Beer Was Served Out to the Hessians Christmas Night and the American Troops Found Them Easy Prey.

Apropos of the celebration of the 125 anniversary of the memorable battle of Trenton today, a story is told in The Sunday Newark News, of December 15, relative to the daring and masterly stroke of a spy, who turned the tide from what seemed hopeless defeat of the cause of the colonies to ultimate victory for American arms. The man who played the part which brought victory out of defeat in that awful winter of 1776 was John Honeyman, commonly called "Spy Honeyman," of Griggstown, Somerset county. He was the great grandfather of Dr. William E. Honeyman and A. V. D. Honeyman, of the borough.

As the story runs, General Washington, driven across the Delaware, was encamped on the Pennsylvania bank of the river. A large body of the British and Hessian troops were in Trenton, under the command of generals who believed that the Americans had been finally routed and were driven to dispair. The conquering army was waiting for the Delaware to freeze over so that Washington could be pursued and captured. The invaders were jubilant and military discipline was lax. Honeyman had crossed the river and found that on the morrow, Christmas Day, beer was to be served the soldiers in Trenton and the officers would be dined at the home of the Tories.

Again he crossed the Delaware, the night before Christmas and, after being captured by American sentinels, he was taken before Washington, who received the information, and planned an attack, which was to be made early in the morning of the day following Christmas. To prevent suspicion Honeyman was ordered to be placed in a barn and a court martial was arranged for the next day. A Federal uniform was secretly placed in the barn and this he donned making his escape and again recrossing the river. In Trenton he saw a man whom he had noticed in Washington's camp and believing him to be a Tory spy followed until he saw a note sent to the Hessian general.

The general was too drunk to read it and fortunately laid it aside. Subsequently Honeyman bound, gagged and threw the Tory spy in a vacant cellar and as he was hurriedly leaving the city he heard the Federal army approaching. The rest of the story is glorious history. Some months afterwards Washington learned of the climax of Honeyman's great work in disposing of the Tory spy, who was endeavoring to reach the Hessian general to give the alarm.

One Minute Cough Cure afford immediate relief for coughs, colds and all kind of throat and lung troubles. For croup it is unequalled. Absolutely safe. GOOD-BY TO MOTHER.

Tender Scenes Recalled by Pictures of Sons Leaving the Parent Roof.

A recent writer on the early Quakers says that the mother of the famous Isaac Hopper, when he was leaving home to begin life, said:

"As to manners, remember, boy, thou wilt never meet a man in the world whose place in it is higher than thine own—or lower."

The son who was going out into the world was then only 15 years old. How many boys of that age would have wisdom and tact enough to form a code of manners on the great fact of the equality of men as children of God?

The Spartan mother had but a narrow duty to fulfill to her departing son. He had but one occasion in life to fight. At parting she gave him his shield and bade him hurry. "Return with it, or upon it." Life is more complex in these modern days. Brute courage is no longer the only virtue, or the highest one that is to win prizes. "In the struggle," says Youth's Companion.

One of the most successful men of business in this country once said to a friend: "When I left home, a poor boy, my mother said to me: 'Come back to me with clean hands, Joe—with clean hands.' And with God's help, I have tried to keep them clean for her."

A picture by a famous artist was exhibited at the world's fair in Chicago, and was constantly surrounded by silent crowds, whose faces showed how deeply it touched them. It showed the kitchen of a farmhouse; the son of the family was starting out to begin life alone; the wagon was at the door; the little box was packed ready to be carried out. His mother, a poor, worn woman, held her hands upon his shoulders, looking straight into his eyes. There were no tears in her own. She had no time for tears.

"What will you do out yonder?" her eyes asked, with desperate pleading. "Will you remember your home and your God? Will you come back to me the honest, good boy you are now?"

Thousands of men looked on that picture. They seldom made any comment on it; but hardened faces would grow tender, and keen eyes dim as they looked. Before each of them another woman's face rose, the mother whom he had left long ago, who had built such high, fond hopes upon him. What had he done? Had he kept faith with her?

In the background of each of our lives there is such a shadowy, waiting face—the mother who gave us life, at whose knee we prayed, who believed in us and loved us as no one else has ever done.

What can we tell her when we meet again? Have we kept faith with her?

ANNIE LAURIE'S GRAVE.

Sadly Neglected Resting Place of the Scotch Girl for Whom the Song Was Written.

Public notice has been directed in England to the grave of Annie Laurie, and the fact that it has been sadly neglected and has remained all these years without a tombstone is attracting attention. The St. James' Gazette remarks: "Many people are under the delusion that Annie Laurie was merely a figment of the poet's brain, but this was not so. She was the daughter of Sir Robert Laurie, and was born in Maxwelton house, which stands on the 'braes' immortalized in the song. Maxwelton house is still full of memories of this winsome girl, and in the long drawing-room there still hangs her portrait. Her lover and the author of the original song was young Douglas, of Fingland, but whether he, as is common with lovers of poetic temperament, did not press his suit sufficiently, or whether she wished a stabler husband, she gave her hand to a prosaic country laird, her cousin, Mr. Alexander Ferguson. They lived the rest of their lives at Craigdarrock house, five miles from Maxwelton, and when she died Annie was buried in the beautiful glen of the Cairn. Lady Scott Spottiwoode, who died early in the present year, was responsible for the modern version of the song."

CURE FOR RED TAPE.

Chicago Man Collects a Bill After a Hard Struggle.

Ran Up Against an Office Where They Had System—Got His Money After He Had Taught the Barnacles a Lesson.

Stories of the red tape in the government departments at Washington are common, but they are not the only places where delays in the transaction of business are found. There are concerns in every large city so hemmed in by red tape that it may take a week or so to untangle it, and a Chicago man ran into one of them not long ago.

The concern owed him a little money, and after waiting awhile for a check he went to collect it. He didn't go far, however, for he was stopped by a boy at the outer door of the first of the many offices.

"What do you want?" asked the boy.

"Money," sad the man.

"What for?" demanded the boy.

The man explained, and thereupon the boy told him that all such accounts were paid Saturdays at the cashier's office. So the man came back Saturday.

"Don't know anything about it," said the cashier. "You'll have to get an order from some one."

Then the man started out after the order and promptly ran up against the boy again.

"Write out your name and the nature of your business," said the boy, "and I'll take it in to Mr. Smith."

The man did as he was told, and word came back that Mr. Smith didn't know anything at all about it.

"If I can see Mr. Smith half a minute," suggested the man, "I think I can straighten the matter out."

"Mr. Smith has no time to see you," answered the boy, "but maybe Mr. Jones knows something about it."

Mr. Jones was equally inaccessible. Another boy guarded the outer door for him, and another statement had to be written out and sent in to him, which resulted in the announcement that Mr. Jones didn't know anything about it.

"THAT WILL WAKE THEM UP."

"Can't I see anybody in this office?" demanded the man in desperation. "It's only a small matter, and if I could get hold of some one in authority I could straighten it out in less than two minutes."

"Nix," answered the boy. "Can't see anybody here unless he knows about your business first."

The man next tried writing a letter, but it remained unanswered, so he went back in person. By this time he had become interested as well as indignant. He wanted to see how much time and labor it would take to get the money.

On the second trip luck favored him. Workmen were changing some office partitions, and he managed to slip through when no one was looking and get hold of a man at one of the desks.

"How about it?" he asked, when he had stated his business.

"Everything here," replied the man at the desk, "is done according to a system. Now, if anything is due you, you should make out a bill in regular form and—"

"Make out a bill!" cried the amateur collector. "Hang it all! I can't get a chance to present a bill to any one."

However, that seemed to be the only thing left for him to do, so he departed to make out a bill; and while he was doing it he kept getting warmer and warmer, until he reached a point where he made the bill "for services rendered, $157." Then he returned to the office and gave it to the first boy he met.

"I'll bet that will wake them up," he said to himself.

It did, says the New York Sun. The boy was back inside of two minutes with the message that "Mr. Smith says it is exorbitant. He called up the right department through the office 'phone and was told the amount due was only $7."

"Of course," said the man with the bill, "but I wanted to get action on it some way. You tell Mr. Smith that there is a discount of $150 for cash."

Word came back that a check would be mailed that afternoon; and it was. All of which shows that there is a way to wake up a red tape office.

BLOCKADED.

Some in Every Household in Plainfield, But They Are Growing Less.

The back aches because the kidneys are blockaded.

Help the kidneys with their work.

The back will ache no more.

Lots of proof that Doan's Kidney Pills do this.

It's the best proof, for it comes from Plainfield.

Mr. Richard Day, of 134 East Front street, says: "I had a miserable pain across my back and a sort of lame feeling over my kidneys. Standing any length of time, or walking any distance aggravated it greatly. I was never sick much in my life and consequently never took much medicine, so when I first began having these attacks I paid but little attention to them. They however grew worse instead of better so I had to look about for remedy. I read quite frequently in our papers about cures brought about by the use of Doan's Kidney pills so I got a box at L. W. Randolph's drug store and after taking them I felt greatly relieved. I have recommended them to my friends and those who have used them speak very highly in their praise."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

We are selling exceptionally good shoes of just this sort for men and women; children, too.

R·I·P·A·N·S

I have been a theatrical printer for the past twenty years, and am thirty-five years old. For the past four years my stomach has cost me a nice little sum, and I could only eat certain kinds of food, and anything rich like pie would upset me for two days. I had to give up smoking a pipe (which was worst of all), for just as soon as I would smoke a pipeful I would get sick, and in the morning the taste of the pipe was in my mouth. I was distressed with a fullness and bursting feeling after eating two slices of toast and one cup of coffee, and anything that tasted good, no matter how small, was very large when I ate it. A friend of mine recommended Ripans Tabules to me after seeing my sufferings (I used to lose two or three days a week from work), and said they were wonderful. He was a great beer drinker and used to fill up two or three times a week, and always on going home with a "load" took one Tabule and woke up the next morning with head clear as a bell and stomach all right. Now I thought the Tabules must be all right, and after I took just twenty I was all right. I can now eat anything and take one Tabule, and after fifteen minutes am not aware of having eaten anything. I can smoke a pipe all day and night and have no vomiting or nausea. Ripans Tabules are the finest laxative I ever took, and I always have a box of them in my pocket and another one on the shelf.

WANTED:—A case of bad health that R·I·P·A·N·S will not benefit. They banish pain and prolong life. One gives relief. Note the word R·I·P·A·N·S on the package and accept no substitute. R·I·P·A·N·S, 10 for 5 cents, may be had at any drug store. Ten samples and one thousand testimonials will be mailed to any address for 5 cents, forwarded to the Ripans Chemical Co., No. 10 Spruce St., New York.

TRIFLES OF DRESS.

Little Things Which Add to a Woman's Appearance.

Steel and black are combined with good effect on many gowns this year.

Some of the smart neckwear is trimmed with the velvet dots which make such good dress trimmings. These dots are set on a wide lace band, which is boned so as to require a lining. The transparent effect of the lace and velvet is very becoming to the skin. Dog collars of black chiffon embroidered with tiny seed pearls are exceedingly handsome with a low necked gown. White silk featherbone is used to give the necessary stiffness to these transparent collars.

Tiny rosettes of black chiffon, gathered very full, appear here and there disposed with apparent carelessness on the skirts of some of the imported ball gowns, and the sashes are frequently of this delicate material. Coat collars and revers are stylish when made of Persian panne edged with heavy guipure lace. Wide berthas of lace appear on many decollete dresses. This is a fashion, however, which can only be adopted by a tall, thin woman.

The latest dinner gown is made with short sleeves. The neck, however, is veiled by a transparent yoke of lace, which has no collar.

The beautiful bride's dress here shown is of cream liberty satin. The collarless waist is laid in fine tucks. There is a full bolero effect of lace, and the blouse portion of the waist is gathered into a plain crushed belt. Directly in front there is a full bow of illusion holding a spray of orange blossoms. The sleeves are partly draped with this illusion, which reappears in tiny puffings among the orange blossoms on the skirt. The latter is made with tiny pin tucks on the hips and a tucked beading to the three flounces of chiffon and lace, which give it fullness.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

WINTER MILLINERY.

Velvet, Fur, Lace and Beaver Are All Popular.

The new millinery shapes show decided picture effects. They are, as a rule, worn to one side and tilted forward so as to cast a shadow over the right eye. They all cling closely to the hair in the back. For day wear velvet prevails, although there is a pronounced fad for making the hat of the same material as the gown. For mornings, sailors or three cornered shapes of felt are popular. This felt closely resembles in its hairy texture the old fashioned beaver. It is most fashionable in white and in the pale pastel tints, especially pale blue. The three cornered hats are trimmed with buckles and rosettes.

Now that the weather has become cold in earnest fur hats are beginning to appear. They are, as a rule, made either in the three cornered or in the flat Spanish turban shape. Rich lace finds a prominent place on the majority of them, and they are also trimmed with beautifully shaded velvet flowers. Chinchilla mink and sable make the best hats.

The illustration today shows a hat of black velvet. The crown and brim are laid in tucks, and for trimming it has a single long ostrich plume, which is continued on the right side by an irregular mass of velvet held in the middle by a jeweled buckle. This is a smart mode and can be carried out equally well in chiffon or taffeta.

PART I.

I AM, of course, prepared to admit that there are prettier places on the face of this earth of ours than Singapore; there are, however, I venture to assert, few that are more interesting, and certainly none that can afford a better study of human life and character. There, if you are so disposed, you may consider the subject of British rule on the one hand, and the various aspects of the Chinese question on the other. If you are a student of languages you will be able to hear half the tongues of the world spoken in less than an hour's walk, ranging, say from Parisian French to Pigeon English; you shall make the acquaintance of every sort of smell the human nose can manipulate, from the sweet perfume of the lotus blossom to the diabolical odor of the Durien; and every sort of cooking from a dainty vol-au-vent to a stuffed rat. In the harbor the shipping is such as, I feel justified in saying, you would encounter in no other port of its size in the world. It comprises the stately man of war and the Chinese junk; the P. and O., the Messagerie Maritime, the British India and the Dutch mail boat; the homely sampan, the yacht of the globe-trotting millionaire, the collier, the timber ship, and in point of fact every description of craft that plies between the barbarian east and the civilized west. The first glimpse of the harbor is one that will never be forgotten; the last is usually associated with a desire that one may never set eyes on it again. He who would, of his own free will, settle down for life in Singapore, must have acquired the tastes of a salamander and the sensibility of a frog.

Among its other advantages, Singapore numbers the possession of a multiplicity of hotels. There is stately Raffles, where the globe trotters domostly take up their abode, also the Hotel de l'Europe, whose virtues I can vouch for; but packed away in another and very different portion of the town, unknown to the wealthy G. T., and indeed known to only a few of the white inhabitants of Singapore itself, there exists a small hostelry, owned by a lynx-eyed Portuguese, which rejoices in the name of the Hotel of the Three Desires. Now, every man, who by mischance or deliberate intent has entered its doors, has his own notions of the meaning of its name; the fact, however, remains that it is there, and that it is regularly patronized by individuals of a certain or uncertain class, as they pass to and fro through the gateway of the further east. This in itself is strange, inasmuch as it is said that the proprietor rakes in the dollars by selling liquor that is as bad as it can possibly be, in order that he may get back to Lisbon before he receives that threatened knife thrust between the ribs which has been promised him so long. There are times, as I am unfortunately able to testify, when the latter possibility is not so remote as might be expected. Taken altogether, however, the Hotel of the Three Desires is an excellent place to take up one's abode, provided one is not desirous of attracting too much attention in the city. As a matter of fact, its patrons, for some reason of their own, are more en evidence after nightfall than during the hours of daylight. They are also frugal of speech as a rule, and are chary of forming new acquaintances. When they know each other well, however, it is surprising how affable they can become. It is not the smallest of their peculiarities that they seldom refer to absent friends by their names. A will ask B when he expects to hear from Him, and C will inform D that "the old man is now running the show, and that, if he doesn't jump from Calcutta inside a week, there will be trouble on the floor." Meanwhile the landlord mixes the drinks with his own dirty hands, and reflects continually upon the villainy of a certain American third mate, who, having borrowed five dollars from him, was sufficiently ungrateful as to catch typhoid fever and die without either repaying the loan, or, what was worse, settling his account for the board and lodging received. Manuel, for this was the proprietor's name, had one or two recollections of a similar sort, but not many, for, as a rule, he is a careful fellow, and experience having taught him the manners and idiosyncrasies of his customers, he generally managed to emerge from his transactions with credit to himself, and what was of much more importance, a balance on the right side of his ledger.

The time of which I am now writing was the middle of March, the hottest and, in every respect, the worst month of the year in Singapore. Day and night the land was oppressed by the same stifling heat, a sweltering calidity possessing the characteristics of a steam laundry, coupled with those of the stokehole of an ocean liner in the Red sea. Morning, noon and night, the quarter in which the Hotel of the Three Desires was situated was fragrant with the smell of garbage and Chinese tobacco; a peculiar blend of perfume which, once smelled, is not to be soon forgotten. Everything, even the bottles on the shelves in the bar, had a greasy feel about them, and the mildew on one's boots when one came to put them on in the morning, was a triumph in the way of erysipheacous fungi. Singapore at this season of the year is neither good for man nor beast; in this sweeping assertion, of course, I except the yellow man, upon whom it seems to exercise no effect whatsoever.

It was towards evening, and, strange to relate, the Hotel of the Three Desires was for once practically empty. This was the more extraordinary for the reason that the customers who usually frequented it, en route from one end of the earth to the other, are not affected by seasons. Midwinter was to them the same as midsummer, provided they did their business, or got their ships, and by those ships, or that business, received their wages. That those hard-earned wages should eventually find themselves in the pocket of the landlord of the Three Desires was only in the natural order of things, and, in consequence, such of his guests as were sailors, as a general rule, eventually boarded their ships without as much as would purchase them a pipe of tobacco. It did not, however, prevent them from returning to the Hotel of the Three Desires when next they happened to be that way. If he had no other gift, Manuel at least possessed the faculty of making it comparatively homelike to his customers, and that is the desiderat*um not to be despised even by sail*or men in the far east.

As I have said, night was falling on one of the hottest days of the year, when a man entered the hotel and inquired for the proprietor. Pleased to find that there was at last to be a turn in the tide of his affairs, the landlord introduced himself to the stranger, and at the same time inquired in what way he could have the pleasure of serving him.

"I want to put up with you," said the stranger, who, by the way, was a tall man, with a hawk's nose that was not unlike the beak of the same bird. "You are not full, I suppose?"

Manuel rubbed his greasy hands together and observed that he was not as full as he had been; thereby insinuating that while he was not overflowing, he was still not empty. It will be gathered from this that he was a good business man, who never threw a chance away.

"In that case, I'll stay," said the stranger, and set down the small valise he carried upon the floor.

From what I have already written, you will doubtless have derived the impression that the Hotel of the Three Desires, while being a useful place of abode, was far from being the caravanserai of the luxurious order. The stranger, whoever he might be, however, was either not fastidious, or, as is more probable, was used to similar accommodations, for he paid as little attention to the perfume of the bar as he did to the dirt upon the floor and walls, and also upon the landlord's hands. Having stipulated for a room to himself, he desired to be shown to it forthwith, whereupon Manuel led him through the house to a small yard at the back, round which were several cabins, dignified by the name of apartments.

"Splendeed," said Manuel, enthusiastically, throwing open the door of one of the rooms as he spoke. "More splendeed than ever you saw."

LABORS OF SOMERSET COUNTY GRAND JURY WERE SHORT.

December Term Opened at Somerville Tuesday—Short List of Causes.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, Dec. 26—The December term of the Somerset county courts opened here Tuesday morning with Justice Garretson on the bench. The list of causes is not a lengthy one. Only two cases are ready and one of these was begun this morning, that of Emma A. Siebrecht against the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company.

The Grand Jury completed its labors in a day, finding only six true bills. Sheriff McMurtry's first Grand Jury was a good one. Former Senator Calvin Corle was foreman. Former Sheriff Selah Schoonmaker, Thomas Douglass, of Bernards, late Republican candidate for sheriff, Former Freeholder Everett, Dr. TenEyck and Hon. J. Erwin Hillpot were on it. The North Plainfield members were Samuel Townsend, Charles C. Duryea and Augustus VanDeventer.

Jeremiah F. Burus and Richard A. Boyce had their hotel licenses renewed. Both are North Palinfield parties.

Geo. W. Anderson appeared for D. D. Clark, Jr., who asked for an order of the court to consolidate The Record and State Centre and to change the name to The State Centre-Record, The order was granted.

The jury appeals will be taken up Jan. 14 and the court appeals Jan. 27.

Among the Plainfield lawyers in attendance were Walter L. Hetfield, Francis J. Blatz, Robert M. Clark and Henry C. Suydam.

Health and Beauty.

A poor complexion is usually the result of a torpid liver or irregular action of the bowels. Unless nature's refuse is carried off it will surely cause impure blood. Pimples, boils and other eruptions follow. This is nature's method of throwing off the poisons which the bowels failed to remove. DeWitt's Little Early Risers are world famous for remedying this condition They stimulates the liver and promote regular and healthy action of the bowels but never cause griping, cramps or distress. Safe pills. L. W. Randolph.

A NUMBER POSTPONED.

The Others Had a Delightful Time With Professional Entertainers or Elaborate Programmes by Local Talent—Those Who Took Part.

"Santa Claus" kept most of his engagements in Plainfield, last evening, even if it did happen to be an exceedingly rainy night. The dampness also failed to quell the ardor of the young people and they were out in force to meet him. The programmes, all more or less elaborate, which had been arranged to entertain the members of the various Sunday-schools until the arrival of the good old Christmas saint, were given complete, but few of the participants staying away on account of the unpropitious weather.

The Sunday-school entertainments were all good. In some cases, professional entertainers were provided, while in others the programme was supplied by the young people of the school. A few were postponed until this evening on account of the storm. Quite a number are scheduled for this evening and still a few more for Monday night.

The annual Christmas entertainment of the Sunday-school of the Crescent Avenue church was held last evening in the chapel of that edifice. It consisted of many views shown by means of the projectoscope.

In the afternoon the primary department entertainment was given in the church parlor and its programme was of the same nature as that of the evening, excepting that the little ones sang a number of Christmas carols before the moving pictures were shown.

Some of the best views produced in the afternoon and evening were the first race between the Shamrock II and the Columbia, the Montreal fire department in action, McKinley's inauguration as well as his last speech at Buffalo and his funeral at Washington and in Canton. Together with these many humorous pictures were shown.

The committee in charge of the affair consisted of G. A. Strong, the superintendent of the Sunday-school, Dr. B. vanD. Hedges, William G. Wright, Mrs. Townsend Rushmore and Miss Miller.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH.

The Christmas festivals at the First Baptist church under the auspices of the Sunday-school were greatly en joyed yesterday. In the afternoon the primary department, under the direction of the superintendent, Mrs. Powlison, had a jolly time. After the opening exercises there were recitations by Miss Ouida Hetfield, Miss Helen Myers, Miss Marie Moffett, Miss Adelia French, Miss Elsie Moore, Lawrence French and Jed. Smalley. FOUGHT BATTLE OF TRENTON OVER AGAIN

Company K Was With "Washington's" Forces and Saw Surrender of Hessians.

BIG PARADE FOLLOWED.

CONTINENTAL FORCES WERE TWO HOURS LATE IN APPEARING.

The Defeat Was Accomplished, However, and Then, After a Parade, the Guests Were All Dined.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, Dec. 27—The battle of Trenton, a bright page in American history made 125 years ago, was rehearsed in this city, yesterday, by the National Guard of New Jersey, assisted by several crack military companies. No important detail was omitted, except the daring crossing of the Delaware by General Washington and his loyal band. The attacking force was, however, about two hours late in beginning the attack.

The "Continental" forces, under the command of "General Washington," who was impersonated by Gen. W. H. Cooper, entered the city and moved through the principal streets. The attacking party consisted of the Second and Third battalions of the Second Regiment, and the First battalion of the Third Regiment, a platoon of Battery B., and the First City Troop of Philadelphia under Gen. Cooper's direct command, while the Second battalion of the Third Regiment, and another platoon of Battery B impersonated that part of the American forces commanded by Gen. Greene, in this case Col. Shinn.

Fire was opened upon the "Hessians" who were under the command of Col. Quincey O'Gillmore and the combat was very realistic. These forces consisted of the First battalion of the Second Regiment, and the batttery of Garfield Camp, Sons of Veterans. The retreat of the "Hessians" soon occurred. After being hemmed in on all sides they threw down their arms and surrendered to the division of the "Continental Army" on the site of the famous orchard now marked by the postoffice.

There was no attempt made to reproduce in appearance the two forces. After the "battle," a street parade was held, in which were a number of military and fraternal organizations as well as prominent citizens. Governor Voorhees was on the reviewing stnd. Subsequently all the visitors were dined, before leaving the city.

Company K, of Plainfield, made a creditable appearance. It left that city under the command of First Lieut. J. M. Lewis and Second Lieut. J. P. Mosher. Captain W. K. Browning met the men here and assumed command. There were fifty-nine men in that company participating in the affair. The company formed with the Third battalion, Major N. Y. Dungan commanding. They were attached to "Washington's" forces, which formed on Pennington avenue. After the day's programme was completed Company K returned to Plainfield, arriving there at 5:45 o'clock in the afternoon.

RECORD BREAKING RUSH AT THE POSTOFFICE

But Postmaster Bird and His Assistants Handled It in Good Shape.

IT IS ALL OVER NOW.

EVERY CARRIER HAD TO HAVE HELP CHRISTMAS DAY.

Time Never Known When There Was So Much Holiday Mail Matter as There Was This Year.

It was not until this morning that the Plainfield postoffice resumed the even tenor of its way. Never before in the history of the local office did the Christmas mail reach the size that it did this year. The exceedingly heavy mail required unusual efforts to care for it. As it was, all the mail received at the office Christmas day was distributed that day but the belated mail matter continued to arrive up to this morning and gave the carriers considerable work to handle it all in time.

Commencing several days before Christmas and continuing up to the hour of closing the office Christmas Day, there was one continual rush. The full force of carriers, substitutes and clerks in the office was called into service to handle the mail.

Of course, much credit for the excellent service is due Postmaster Bird, whose watchful eye was over all to see that things moved promptly. Then there is great credit due all the carriers, clerks and attaches of the office. They all worked in unison and harmony and it was this as much as anything else that brought about the excellent results.

Perhaps the greatest rush was witnessed Christmas morning, when the carriers arrived to take the mail out. The sight was one never seen before at the office. The floor was literally covered with packages and other mail matter. There was hardly room for the men to move around.

The way in which the mail had been coming in had warned the local authorities that they might expect a record-breaking Christmas mail and so they were, in a measure, prepared to care for it.

Letter Carrier E. T. VanWinkle probably had the most to carry of any. He secured a one-horse truck and two men to assist him. As it was, it required all the morning to cover his route. Every carrier was compelled to get assistance in handling his share. Several of the men had one or two assistants loaded down with packages who accompanied them over their rounds. Others utilized push carts to carry the extra load.

When they had all departed, however, the postoffice was clear of mail and every package or letter, which came to a Plainfielder by Christmas morning, was distributed before noon that day.

Yesterday's mails were still heavy and the carriers carried big loads when they went their rounds. This morning saw a few belated Christmas packages bound for Plainfield homes. The Christmas rush is completely over, however, and many words of commendation are being said for the excellent way in which the emergency was met.

Word From Trolley Co.

At the special meeting of the Common Council this evening it is expected that a communication will be received from the officers of the Elizabeth, Plainfield and Central Jersey Street Railway Company regarding the recent action by the Council, whereby the company was called down for carelessness in the operation of the road.

The second of the Casino dances will be given on New Year's Eve, and it promises to be as brilliant a society event as was the initial affair. It has been decided to make this a masquerade dance, and it is believed that it will equal if not eclipse the masquerade assembly given last season.

Seats will be reserved for nonmaskers, and they will not be permitted the use of the floor until the midnight hour, when all are supposed to unmask. On account of the accommodations the committee has been compelled to limit the attendance of out-of-town guests. The dance commences, as usual, at 9 o'clock.

Elliott T. Barrows, Frederick W. Yates, Lewis E. Waring and Lewis G. Timpson compose the membership of the committee having charge of the arrangements. The patronesses will include the same members of the smart set who served at the first dance.

HORSE WAS GONE.

Farmer Found It Wandering About and Put It in His Barn.

Theodore Shirley and Harry Martell, of this city, hired a horse from H. DeMott, Christmas Day, to visit friends at Oak Tree. The animal was tied outside the house but when the visit was concluded the horse was no where to be found. They returned without it and yesterday a search located it in a farmer's barn. The granger found it wandering about a field, Wednesday night.

SERVICES CHRISTMAS DAY.

Held at Fillmore Baptist Church, Morning and Night.

Appropriate services were held at the Fillmore Baptist church Christmas Day. The first celebration was a praise service at 5:30 o'clock in the morning and it was well attended.

In the evening another service was held. Christmas carols were sung and the pastor, Rev. E. J. Crudup, delivered a sermon on "The Birth of Christ." The Christmas offering was quite large.

Day for Reception Not Fixed.

A meeting of the committees having in charge the matter of the arrangements for Father Smyth's reception will be held this evening. At present it is undecided what will be the amount of the purse to be given the retiring rector as a tribute of esseem, but from the way the contributions are coming in it is safe to say that it will amount to several thousand dollars.

LITERARY.

The January Forum opens with an article by Rear Admiral G. W. Melville on "The Military Duty of the Engineering Institutions." The writer suggests the formulation of a plan to enable the civil scientific colleges to supplement the work of West Point and Annapolis. Prof. Paul S. Reinsch describes the opportunities afforded by "A New Era in Mexico." The list of contents includes papers on several subjects which will shortly be receiving attention in Congress. Earl Mayo contributes an estimate of the extent to which "The Americanization of England" has already proceeded. The closing paper is by Prof. Brander Matthews, who writes on "Mr. Howells as a Critic," with particular notice of his recent book on the "Heroines of Fiction."

Nothing seems lacking in the New Year number of The Ladies' Home Journal to make it the most complete issue of that periodical yet published. Cardinal Gibbons and Rudyard Kipling lead the list of contributors, the one with a strong arraignment of the "new woman;" the other with the true story of how he brought up a baby lion on a bottle! There is a wealth of good fiction. "The Wisdom of the Dove," a clever story by Lilian Brooks; the second part of "The Russells in Chicago," and the concluding chapters of both "A Gentleman of the Blue Grass" and "Christine," are all in this number. All of the regular editorial departments are unusually interesting, especially that of fashions, which is enlarged to eight pages under the editorship of Virginia Louis Ralston. The illustrations are superb. The cover is by Blendon R. Campbell, a new artist. By The Curtis Publishing Company, Philadelphia. One dollar a year; ten cents a copy.

"For three years I was troubled with dyspepsia so that I could hold nothing on my stomach. Many times I would be unable to retain a morsal of food. Finally I was confined to my bed Doctors said I could not live. I read one of your advertisements on Kodol Dyspepsia Cure and thought it fit my case and commenced its use. I began to improve from the first bottle. Now I am cured and recommend it to all." Digests your food. Cures all stomach troubles. L. W. Randolph.

—Now that the rush is over the clerks at Woodhull & Martin's store are busy taking account of stock.

COLUMN FOR THE SHOPPERS

SOME OF ATTRACTIONS TO BE FOUND AT LOCAL STORES.

A Few Interesting Items Concerning Greater Plainfield's Merchants.

Careful work is an element of success; promptness is another. The ever increasing prescription trade of Thomas Armstrong, the druggist, corner North and Park avenues, bears out this statement.

Its a cold day when you need warm clothing. Women in need of such clothing, especially warm coats, can find such at the Paris Cloak Company store on West Front street. Everything new and up-to-date.

In one part of the drug establishment, corner North and Watchung avenues, E. S. F. Randolph has fitted up an attractive booth, which is used as a perfume department. All the finest scents may be obtained here at little prices.

The man who supplies a big majority of the hats worn by women in Plainfield and vicinity must be all right. Such a person is Bonn, of West Front street. When you want to know the latest in millinery go to Bonn. He will do the rest.

A fine new rubber tired delivery wagon, artistically decorated, has been added to the service of Foss & Jeter, the seafood dealers. The vehicle is the work of W. J. Conroy, of Somerset street, and is regarded as one of the neatest in the city.

"Left!" That is what happened to the man who lost his train. The same thing will happen to all men who fail to take advantage of the bargains being offered at the Star Clothing Company store on West Front street. The goods are being sold out at low prices.

All physicians agree that invalids and weak persons need as much fresh air as possible. They also agree that carriage riding is particularly beneficial. Any style of vehicle, rubber-tired, may be engaged by 'phoning Love's livery, East Second street, near Park avenue.

Valuable prizes will be offered for the best photographs taken with the Eastman cameras during 1902. The Eastman Company will conduct the contests. Drop in at VanWinkle's on North avenue, and see some of the pictures taken with this style of camera. It will interest you.

The rush of holiday buyers at the Union Furniture Company's store on East Front street, was exceptionally heavy, but its stock has already been replenished. This firm has a number of experienced buyers and Plainfielders intending to furnish their homes will benefit by their careful purchases.

Neuman Brothers wish to extend their appreciation for the excellent holiday trade they enjoyed. It was the best in the history of the firm. They will continue to cater to their patrons in the future in the careful manner they have pursued in the past and ask that these columns be watched for their special bargains.

THEATRICAL.

For New Year's week bills as attractive as the popular Christmas week programmes which have drawn such packed houses thus far, will be presented at Manager Proctor's four New York theatres. There will be a preponderance of vaudeville of the very best grade and when quality is considered along with quantity these offerings will alone take prominence in the amusement catalogues of the big city. But although there will be an abundance of the best variety turns, the drama will not be neglected and the Proctor Stock Company will hold forth as the leading feature at both the Fifth Avenue, where "The Still Alarm" will open its second and last week, and at the One Hundred and Twenty-fifth Street, where "A Bachelor's Honeymoon" will be spent and at the Fifty-eighth Street, where "The Last Word" will be spoken. In these presentations the Stock Company will surely maintain its reputation for careful and effective work. At the houses where plays are presented the vaudeville acts will be seen between scenes of the play, but at the Twenty-third Street the policy of continuous vaudeville will maintain. Manager F. F. Proctor's new theatre in Newark will be opened within ten days; two weeks at the outside. With the clearing up of a few minor details the handsomest theatre in the east, outside of New York city, and one of the handsomest theatres in America exclusively devoted to vaudeville will be thrown open to the public.

MAY CONFESS CRIME

Light on the Hudson Tragedy Expected.

FOUR NEPHEWS ARE UNDER ARREST

Murder Which Has Stirred Up Columbia County Is Thought to Have Been the Result of a Family Fued.

HUDSON, N. Y., Dec. 27.—Harvey Bruce, one of the four nephews of Farmer Peter Hallenbeck, who are under arrest here charged with the old man's assassination on Christmas eve, is counted on to make a confession that will explain the motives which prompted the youthful quartet to their cold blooded crime.

Hallenbeck was called to his kitchen door Christmas eve while all the inmates of his house except his invalid wife and her aged mother were at a Christmas tree festival at the Reformed church, a few rods down the road. He opened the door, and four men thrust revolvers into his face.

They said nothing, but fired. He was shot in the face and arms. He turned to grab his shotgun from behind the kitchen door, and a volley of bullets was sent into his back. He fell to the floor dead, while his wife looked on. Then the murderers pumped lead into his body until their revolvers were empty.

Christmas morning Bert, Fred and Willis Van Wormer and Harvey Bruce, nephews of the murdered man, were arrested and jailed here. They do not look like farmer boys. They have clean, intellectual faces and wear city clothes. All of them have preserved absolute silence, even to denying the suspicion against them.

Columbia county is wrought up to an unwonted pitch by the assassination of Peter Hallenbeck. In the hamlet of Greenport, four miles south of here, Hallenbeck was looked up to as the leading man of the community. He was aged and wealthy.

One of his second wife's sisters, the Widow Van Wormer, had three sons, Bert, Fred and Willis. They were mischievous and seldom industrious.

Another sister, the wife of Jonas Bruce, had a boy scarcely sixteen years old, who seemed bent on following in the ways of his cousins, the Van Wormers. The eldest of the Van Wormer boys is only twenty-three.

Between the Hallenbecks and Van Wormers there has been a feud of exceeding bitterness.

According to one story, Hallenbeck, tiring of showering kindnesses on Mrs. Van Wormer and her boys, foreclosed a mortgage on her property recently, and the family moved to Kinderhook, twenty miles away.

Carnegie Aids Columbia?

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—The Brooklyn Eagle says: "It is stated on good authority that Andrew Carnegie has offered a fund to Columbia university. The exact amount of money offered to the university and the manner in which it will be used are not known. It is certain, however, that the fund is in seven figures or more. Nicholas Murray Butler, who, it is believed, will soon be elected to the presidency of Columbia university, is generally accredited with having brought about the offer from Mr. Carnegie. The gift to Columbia when it becomes a fact will be the first which Mr. Carnegie has made to any American university."

Samson Has Surrendered.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—The war department has been advised by cable from Manila of the surrender of the insurgent chieftain Samson at Mutasaron, with all his officers and men, twenty-eight cannon and forty-five rifles. Mutasaron does not appear on any of the maps in the possession of the department, but it is assumed that the surrender took place in the island of Bohol, as it was there that Samson of late has been operating with his followers, having crossed over from the former scene of his depredations, the island of Cebu.

Rock Island Extension Completed.

LIBERAL, Kan., Dec. 27.—The Rock Island extension from this place to Santa Rosa, N. M., has been completed. The El Paso and Eastern, which is being constructed from White Oaks to Santa Rosa, will not be finished before Jan. 15, when through connections will be made and the California business turned to this line.

Flouring Mill Safe Robbed.

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 27.—It has been learned that four men blew open the safe in the office of the flouring mill of H. A. Franze & Son at New Douglas, Ill., Christmas night and escaped with $1,500. The two watchmen were beaten by the robbers and were left tied to posts.

Wild Deer In a City.

WORCESTER, Mass., Dec. 27.—A wild deer was captured in the heart of this city and, after being placed in a box stall in Thomas O'Flynn's stable, died from the wild run and shock of capture. It apparently came from the Southern part of the county.

Indian Boys For West Point.

GUTHRIE, Okla., Dec. 27.—Governor Pleasant Porter of the Creek Nation has been successful in his efforts to have Congressman De Graffenried of Texas prepare a bill providing for the admission of Indian boys to the West Point Military academy.

Decreased Internal Revenue.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27. — The monthly statement of the collections of internal revenue show that the total collections for November, 1901, were $23,178,951, a decrease as compared with November, 1900, of $2,165,330.

The New-York Tribune's plans and programme for 1902 contemplate improvements all along the line, so as to keep it in the front rank of the newspaper procession. What The Daily Tribune is and what it stands for pretty nearly everybody knows. That it keeps pace in enterprise with the spirit of the age, without sacrificing decency or accuracy, is needless to say.

But a word as to the other publications issued from The Tribune office may be timely. For instance, it may not be generally known that the famous old Weekly grew and grew until it became imperatively necessary to divide it in two—The Tribune Review and The Tribune Farmer. The Review is suited alike to persons of the highest culture, to those who are educating themselves and to all who wish the week's history summarized, explained and illuminated for them. Special attention is given to municipal affairs, domestic and foreign politics, and to books and literary news. It is published every Saturday. Price, 5 cents a copy, or $1 a year.

The Farmer, issued every Thursday, is one of the handsomest agricultural papers published in this or any other country. The illustrations are superb, and the articles embrace everything relating to farms or farm work. It is a paper which farmers and all who have business dealings with them cannot well afford to get along without. $1 a year.

The Tri-Weekly Tribune occupies a field all its own. It was learned by experience that thousands of persons in various parts of the country wanted a New-York newspaper, and yet they didn't want one. That sounds paradoxical, but it isn't so much so as one might think at first glance. What they were really after was a condensed New-York newspaper which wouldn't tax either their purse or their time too much. So it came to pass that The Tri-Weekly Tribune took the place of the old Semi-Weekly. The "Tri," as it is familiarly called, appears on Monday, Wednesday and Friday, and in these three issues one may find the cream of the matter in the seven issues of The Daily Tribune. Price, $1.50 a year.

The Tribune Almanac for 1902 will be bigger, better and more valuable than ever. All the records and statistics worth having. On sale January 1. Price, 25 cents. 12 24-4

METHODISTS HAVE APPROVED.

New Constitution of the Church Has Received Necessary Votes.

CHICAGO, Dec. 27.—Announcement is made here that the new constitution of the Methodist Episcopal church, which was adopted at the last general conference of that denomination held at the Auditorium in May, 1900, and referred to the various conferences throughout the country, has finally been approved by the three-quarters vote required. The vote is as follows: Yeas, 8,196; nays, 2,513.

The element which opposed the new organic law of the church because it provided for the admission of women as delegates to the general conference made war on the new constitution all along the line, but met with defeat. One hundred and twenty-one annual conferences voted on the question, a total of 10,709 ballots being cast by delegates.

The principal changes provided for by the new constitution are: It gives women the right to sit as delegates in the general conference.

It gives laymen's electoral meetings authority to vote on constitutional questions.

It changes the vote necessary in the general conference to amend the constitution from three-fourths to two-thirds.

RUSHED BY DE WET.

British Yeomanry Thought to Have Lost Heavily.

LONDON, Dec. 27.—The following dispatch has been received from Lord Kitchener, dated Johannesburg:

"General Rundle reports that on the night of Dec. 24 Colonel Firman's camp at Zeefontein, consisting of three companies of yeomanry and two guns, was successfully rushed by a strong commando under De Wet. It is feared the casualties were heavy. Two regiments of light horse are pursuing the Boers."

Boer resistance has always been very strong in that part of the Orange River Colony which was the scene of General De Wet's Christmas coup. A great quadrangle of blockhouses is being built there, the four points of which are Vereeniging, Volksrust, Harrismith and Kroonstadt. At the southeast corner of this quadrangle is a long, open space from Bethlehem to Lindley where the square of blockhouses is still incomplete, and here De Wet made his attack.

Colonel Firman's force probably amounted to 400 men, and the disaster, especially the loss of the guns, the possession of which may enable De Wet successfully to attack the blockhouses, creates a disturbing impression.

A Double Railway Accident.

CINCINNATI, Dec. 27.—Unable to see the flagman's signal on account of fog, the engineer of the southbound Chicago express on the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton road was unable to stop the train at Hartwell until it had struck a freight crossing the track and demolished three freight cars. Four passengers and two trainmen on the express were injured. They will all recover. The wrecking train on the way to Hartwell met with an accident, killing Patrick McCoy and fatally injuring William Nipper and Louis Tenbrink. The chain of the crane broke and struck these three men while the train was in motion.

Zionist Congress In Switzerland.

BASEL, Switzerland, Dec. 27.—The Zionist congress has opened here under the presidency of Dr. Theodore Herzl of Vienna, founder of the Zionist movement to Palestine. The congress is attended by over a thousand delegates, representing every important country of the world, with the exception of Australia. In the course of his opening address President Herzl referred to his audience held with the sultan last May, in which the sultan had expressed his sympathy with the Zionist movement, said he considered the Jews to be desirable colonists and had declared himself their friend.

Fatal Quarrel Over Crap Game.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Dec. 27.—In a general fight between white men and negroes at Childersburg a white man and his son were killed and a white boy and a negro wounded. With great difficulty a general outbreak was prevented. The negroes are now in jail at Talladega. It is said the trouble grew out of a crap game, the negroes having quarreled over the winnings.

New Jersey Senators' Caucus.

TRENTON, N. J., Dec. 27.—The Republican senators caucused last night at the Republican club and decided upon Senator Asa A. Francis of Monmouth for president of the senate by a vote of 14 to 3 over Senator Cross of Union. Senator McCarter of Essex was decided upon for Republican leader.

FOOTHOLD IN TURKEY

Consul at Harput Gives Results of First Year.

SPLENDID OUTLOOK FOR OUR TRADE

The Consulate Was Established Last January After Much Haggling With the Porte—American Machinery In Good Demand.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—The state department made public extracts from the first annual report of United States Consul Norton at Harput, Turkey. Mr Norton had difficulty in securing his exequatur from Turkey, that government declining at first to grant the necessary authorization on the ground that there was no commerce at Harput to warrant it. He says that the two vilayets of Mamouret-ul-Aziz and Diarbekir compose the consular district, and during 1900 the trade aggregated something over $4,000,000, evenly divided between exports and imports. There is much to favor the growth of commercial ties between Asiatic Turkey and the United States, says Mr. Norton. The American educational effort at Harput has had widespread influence. Contact for nearly half a century with American teachers, American methods and American family life has led to a high admiration for all that bears the stamp of American make and to a deep seated confidence in American integrity and business principles. The region thus is in a particularly receptive mood for American commercial enterprise.

The establishment of the consulate in January last, it is stated, was followed by prompt efforts to open direct trade relations with the United States. Turkish farmers, he says, await with eagerness to see the workings of reapers which have been ordered from America, each of which is expected to perform in a day what eighty men now accomplish with existing facilities. Within fifteen months no less than 332 American sewing machines have been disposed of in Mr. Norton's district and have driven from the markets completely the English and German machines hitherto in vogue. In even less time seventy American life insurance policies have been issued, with prospects of many more. As to bicycles, the consul says that the one used by him personally was the pioneer in the Harput district and that "as a result of the appearance of this wheel in and about the cities of Mezreh and Harput a demand has sprung up for bicycles."

Summing up, Mr. Norton says the conditions which are favorable to the gradual building up of a reliable market for American goods in the Harput district are the increasing dissatisfaction with the cheap products of Germany, Austria and even England, the great confidence in American integrity and in the quality of American wares.

Texas Preacher Shot.

PARIS, Tex., Dec. 27.—The people of this city and surrounding country are greatly exercised over the assassination of Rev. J. M. McClinton, a preacher and farmer near Deport, who was called to his door and shot by a crowd of men. It is said that Rev. McClinton's dying statement implicated two persons, one of whom, Howard McGill, a farmer, has been arrested. A horse owned and supposed to have been ridden by the other man implicated in the preacher's dying statement was found badly wounded near the scene of the tragedy, two or three buckshot having penetrated its shoulder. The owner of the horse has not been found.

Expressmen's Strike Settled.

LYNN, Mass., Dec. 27.—The strike of the employees of the American Express company line was settled last night, and afterward the company was cheered, and in return the men received a Christmas present of $5 in gold each. In the meeting of the Teamsters' union the express company's agreement to give the men $52 a month for a ten hour day, the agreement guaranteed by the board of trade as arbitrators, was unanimously accepted. The expressmen presented Local Agent E. H. Evans with a gold signet ring in appreciation of his position during the trouble.

The Kaiser's Great Aim.

GOTHA, Germany, Dec. 27.—Emperor William, replying to an address by Prince Ernest of Hohenlohe-Langenberg, regent of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha, at the Gotha celebration declared that the great aim of his life had been the union of the evangelical church in Germany and that he hoped this day would mark the beginning of a flow of spiritual and temporal blessings throughout the whole of Germany.

Miles Takes His Medicine Like a Man

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—Lieutenant General Miles has resumed his duties in command of the army at his office in the war department. It is said that he has decided to accept the situation with the best possible grace and will say or do nothing to continue the controversy. So far as known the incident will cause no decided change in his prearranged plans, official and social, for the future.

PASSAIC RIVER POLLUTION.

The Passaic river pollution is one of the greatest sanitary problems which the New Jersey Legislature has had to solve for many a year. The report of the State Sewerage Commission has just been presented to Governor Voorhees and it contains the outline of a plan entirely different from any yet suggested to remedy this trouble.

The plan outlined by the commission is that an immense trunk sewer, to drain all the Passaic valley, be built to tidewater and extend way out into New York Bay where it cannot have any effect on that city. It is estimated that such a sewer will cost over $7,000,000, but the members of the commission believe that it will be economy in the end. It will, they say, offer the only final solution of the problem and would answer it for all time.

The construction of such sewer would be an engineering feat of no mean proportions. It is stated, however, that the contour of the land is such that it could be accomplished successfully and without being compelled to follow any roundabout path.

It would care for the sewage of Paterson, Passaic, Newark and all the smaller places which are located on or near the banks of the Passiac river and now empty their sewers into that stream.

The shooting of Patrolman Overbaugh by Isaac P. Brown, Jr., early Christmas morning, was a most unfortunate occurrence. Mr. Brown, the father of the one who fired the shot, has long been pestered by chicken thieves. He has thus lost much valuable property. There was a rumor of a visit from some of the marauders Christmas eve and the son laid in wait for the intruders with his shot gun. The idea of the policeman personally investigating noises at the chicken coop probably never entered the younger Brown's head. The expected visit, the sight of a man seemed all that was needed and he blazed away. No one doubts the fact that it was a very unfortunate mistake. That the injuries were not of a more serious character is very lucky.

The scheme to unite forces and secure the old Music Hall building as an armory for Company K and the City High School cadets appears to have fallen through. The cost to put the building in the desired condition was more than the interested ones cared to pay. As far as Company K is concerned, it is probable that Washington hall will be used as an armory for some time to come and the energies of the company turned in some other direction. Many of the local soldiers believe that a rifle range would be of immediate and lasting benefit to the company and that an effort should be made to establish one close to the mountain.

Although the vast majority of Plainfield people have heard but little of the work of the Salvation Army in this city, that praise-worthy organization has been going steadily on and has accomplished far more than most people suppose. Weeks of effort culminated in the Christmas tree and the distribution of dinners by the local officers of the Army as was chronicled in yesterday's Daily Press. It has done good work here and deserves credit for it.

One of the subjects for regret that mark the close of the career of the Common Council for 1901 is the retirement from public affairs of John B. Dumont, now president of the Council and one of its most forceful members. He has long served the city well and faithfully and his departure from the Council chamber is much to be regretted.

The Common Council of 1901 is preparing to complete its labors and will soon be ready to turn over the city's affairs to the new Common Council with little or no business left over. A meeting will be held this evening and another Monday evening. At the latter, the annual reports for the year will be presented.

No matter what the occasion, the Gesang and Turn Verein always manages to have something pleasant arranged for its members and their families. This year's Christmas celebration was no exception to the rule.

Many of the Sunday-schools of the local churches held their Christmas entertainments last evening. Many others will hold theirs tonight. All seem to be on an unusully elaborate plan.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. W. W. Warnock, of West Front street, has been entertaining relatives from Englewood.

Miss Nellie Apgar, of East Front street, has gone to Brooklyn for an extended visit with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew W. Johnson, of Duer street, spent Christmas Day with relatives in New York.

B. J. Shreve and family, of Grove street, have returned from New York, where they have been spending a part of Christmas week.

Mrs. Fred Wharton, of West Sixth street, who was recently discharged from Muhlenberg Hospital after undergoing an operation, was able to be out yesterday for the first time.

Rev. Garrett Conover and family have returned to their home at Nyack-on-the-Hudson after a visit at the home of Mrs. Conover's mother, Mrs. J. K. VanArsdale, of Grove street.

Roasts for All.

Mr. and Mrs. William L. Smalley, Jr., of Somerset street, entertained the Berkley Camping Club, a social organization, last evening. A Christmas tree laden with presents in the nature of "roasts" was the attraction of the occasion. Instrumental music, dancing and refreshments were other features of the affair.

Gifts Strayed Away.

A horse, belonging to the New York Transfer Company, drawing a truck loaded with belated Christmas packages, wandered away from the driver on East Fifth street yesterday afternoon. It was found last evening by a patrolman who placed it in Cole's livery. It was claimed this morning.

To Repeat It Later.

Contrary to the general custom in the parish the regular Christmas music rendered at Grace P. E. church will not be repeated Sunday. It will, however, be given during the church anniversary celebration in January.

Santa at Central Office.

Among those who were remembered Christmas Day by Santa Claus were the young women at the local office of the telephone company. Every one received presents of more or less value.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The storm of last night could not mar the pleasure of the members and friends of the Baptist Sunday-school in enjoying their annual Christmas exercises which were held in the church. Considering the bad weather the attendance was unusually large, and all were well repaid for braving the element as the programme was a very pleasing one. "Santa Claus" arrived during the evening, much to the delight of the little ones. Before leaving presents were distributed to all the pupils. Charles Vincent, on behalf of the school and church, presented the pastor, Mr. Shott, with a pleasing reminder of his last Christmas as superintendent of the Sunday-school. Mr. Shott responded very feelingly and thanked all for their expression of confidence in their pastor.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Clark held a family reunion of their children and grandchildren at their home on Front street, Christmas Day. Among those who sat at the table to dinner were Mr. and Mrs. Peter Smith and child, of Lincoln; Mrs. Cass Acheson and son, of Hazlet, this State; Frederick Clark and family and George A. Clark and family.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The Christmas exercises of the Baptist Sunday-school will be held this evening, at 7:30 o'clock. One of the special selections which will be sung is a duet and quartette, Mrs. R. B. Manning and Miss Emma Faulks singing the duet assisted by Harry J. Manning and C. A. Cubberley in the quartette. Miss May Gage will recite, "What Chistmas Means;" Bernard Fafye, "Holidays;" a dialogue, "Tidings of Great Joy," will be rendered by four li tle girls. Miss Florence Johnson is to recite "A Christmas Picture," which will be followed by an exercise, "What a Little Child Can Do," by Majorie Cubberley, Rebecca Arrowsmith, Lloyd Harris, Willie Winans and Elwood Johnston. The pastor will make an address to the Sunday-school and congregation, followed by another exercise by six boys. Candy and oranges will be distributed.

In spite of the inclement weather, Camp No. 41, P. O. S. of A., held its regular business meeting, last evening. The principal business was the election of officers which resulted as follows: President, William Clawson; vice-president, Reune B. Manning; master of forms, Thomas P. Page; conductor, Charles Brantingham; inspector, Richard Elliott; guard, Charles Monsell. The past president will be Joseph Eckert, and the financial and recording secretaries, Harry J. Manning and Claude A. Cubberley respectively. The trustee for eighteen months is Charles H. Brantingham.

A Plainfielder who refused to divulge his name was run into on Plainfield avenue by an unknown party, last night. The Plainfielder's trap was nearly demolished but with the help of several passers-by he succeeded in resuming his journey.

An Envangelist's Story.

"I suffered for years with a bronchial or lung trouble and tried various remedies but did not obtain permanent relief until I commenced using One Minute Cough Cure," writes Rev. James Kirkman, evangelist, of Belle River, Ill. "I have no hesitation in recommending it to all sufferers from maladies of this kind." One Minute Cough Cure afford immediate relief for coughs, colds and all kind of throat and lung troubles. For croup it is unequalled. Absolutely safe. Very pleasant to take, never fails and is really a favorite with the children. They like it. L. W. Randolph.

Going Into Business.

Frank Neal, of West Front street, has had plans drawn for improving his property at the corner of West Front street and Central avenues. He proposes to take a portion of the front of the house for several stores. At present he will make the stores one story in height. REPUBLICS BACKBITE

Colombia and Venezuela Now Charge Bad Faith.

WAR HAS NOT YET BEEN DECLARED.

General Castro, Unable to Surround Liberals in Their Mountain Retreat, Will Try to Cut Off Supplies.

COLON, Colombia, Dec. 27.—Newspapers just received here from coast towns in Colombia and Venezuela have much to say concerning the present status of the Venezuelan-Colombian imbroglio. The gist of these various newspaper articles is to the effect that each republic is still recriminating against the other for permitting the mustering of arms, troops, ammunition, etc., and the actual invasion of the other's territory in alleged violation of the laws governing the relations of friendly nations. These newspapers contain no news of a declaration of war by either Colombia or Venezuela. They set forth that the policy of Colombia is one of readiness to meet any emergency; hence she will make continued efforts to increase the numbers of her troops now on the Venezuelan frontier.

The Colombian gunboat General Pinzon, with 700 troops on board, has left here for Rio Hacha. It is reported from the interior of Colombia that there has been no recent serious fighting there. A few Liberal insurgents were found near Honda, on the Magdalena river. They were easily defeated and dispersed by the government troops.

The Colombian Conservative general Castro, considering it next to impossible to surround the Liberal leader Lorenzo and his followers, who are now in La Negrita mountains, has come to the conclusion that the government's best policy is strongly to garrison the interior towns in the neighborhood of the Liberal retreat, thus cutting off Lorenzo's supplies and ultimately forcing him to surrender.

General Castro is an old Indian fighter. He has campaigned in the Guajira peninsula and in the Colombian department of Cauca. He is familiar with the Indian tactics of warfare used by Lorenzo.

Mourning For McKinley In Guam.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—Assistant Secretary Darling has received a dispatch from Commander Seaton Schroeder, naval governor of Guam, acknowledging the receipt of official notice of the death of President McKinley and inclosing a letter of condolence signed by the leading citizens of Guam. Commander Schroeder says that the officers, men and civilians in Guam unite in assuring the department of their profound sorrow for the country's inestimable loss. A deputation of the Filipino prisoners of war waited on the governor and expressed sincere sorrow for the death of the late president.

Falling Crane Kills Three.

CHICAGO, Dec. 27.—Three men were instantly killed and four injured by the falling of a steel crane at the American Bridge works yesterday afternoon. All of the injured with the exception of one are seriously hurt. Thirty men were working in the vicinity of the crane at the time of the accident, and many of these had narrow escapes. Three were caught beneath the huge mass of steel, and each man was crushed so badly as to be almost unrecognizable. The crane was guaranteed to hold thirty tons, but was carrying only twenty tons at the time of its collapse.

Naughty Russian Freshmen.

ST. PETERSBURG, Dec. 27.—The freshmen of the Kharkov Veterinary institute handed the chemistry professor a note a few days ago calling upon him, "in view of his disconnected lectures, based on a textbook twenty years old," to vacate his chair instanter. The professor felt aggrieved. During thirty years' experience as a professor he had never taught such freshmen. The minister of education has sent them home, 150 in number, to meditate upon their conduct.

A Fatal Celebration.

ARMADALE, P. E. I., Dec. 27.—Four men while celebrating forced an entrance into a boarding house here early yesterday morning, and in a fight between them and the lodgers Captain John Warren shot and killed one of the intruders named Dennis Brown. The other three disappeared.

Senator Sewell Failing.

CAMDEN, N. J., Dec. 27.—The physicians attending United States Senator William J. Sewell give out the information that their patient is much weaker. Unless there is some improvement shown very soon they believe that the senator will not live much longer.

A Pontifical Mission to England.

ROME, Dec. 27.—It has been decided to send a pontifical mission to the coronation of King Edward. This mission will be organized on lines similar to the one which attended the Victorian jubilee. The head of the mission has not yet been decided upon.

Increased Incorporation Business.

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 27.—There have been over 700 stock companies incorporated in this state during the past year. This is considerably more than during the previous year. The average capital of the companies is larger than during the previous year.

Weather Probabilities.

Partly cloudy; slight temperature changes; fresh to brisk east to southeast winds, becoming west.

KEEP OFF THE EARTH

During the cold and wet weather as much as possible—that is, keep as much shoe leather between the soles of your feet and Mother Earth as you can conveniently carry. It's wisest in the beginning and cheaper in the end to provide yourself with shoes having good solid soles—cold-proof and water-proof, if possible.

We are selling exceptionally good shoes of just this sort for men and women; children, too.

Well built, with broad, heavy soles and with stout uppers.

They're a very paradise of rest for weary feet, and a paradise of economy for weary purses.

FUR FASHIONS.

The Latest Shapes—Expensive and Inexpensive Boas.

As the season advances furs become more and more attractive. The tendency seems to be toward fancy effects. Fur animals are no longer considered the smart thing by women who faithfully observe the changes in fashions. Flat stole and cape effects prevail, but by capes are meant the short ones reaching only about the shoulders and terminating in the front in two long stole shaped pieces. Capes reaching to the waist line are considered suitable only for middle aged women. Three-quarter capes, however, of sable, mink and ermine are used for carriage wear and for theater wraps. Chinchilla, ermine, sable and silver fox are the most costly furs. The silver fox ranks highest in the scale, a good muff selling for as high as $750. Chinchilla is becoming rarer and rarer. It is eked out with sable and other furs in a variety of ways. As it wears hardly more than one season it is a most extravagant purchase.

Foxes of all shades are cheap and pretty. The fashion seems to be to make them up without the heads, trimming them instead with bunches of tails.

The up to date ermine jacket in the sketch is made blouse shaped, with a postillion back. The wide collar of sable is cut in graceful curves. The sleeves, which are loose below the elbow, have wide cuffs of the sable. A jeweled belt confines the fullness of the blouse at the waist line. With this is worn a waist having a full front of chiffon. The skirt which accompanies the jacket is of pearl gray cloth. It has three gored flounces headed by an application of strapped cloth and deeper gray velvet.

The muff is of sable ornamented with six tails. The hat is of white felt trimmed with two pale blue ostrich plumes. JUDIC CHOLLET.

SEPARATE WAISTS.

The Shirt Waist Has Turned Into a Soft Tucked Blouse.

Of late separate waists harmonize with the skirts with which they are worn. A pale colored waist will be worn with a pale gray cream or white skirt.

lace. A favorite way of renovating a white waist is to trim it with a bertha of wide lace into which are appliqued medallions of pale tinted panne or silk. All over lace blouses are made with elbow sleeves and collarless necks, the only trimming being a big chou of velvet over the left breast. Blouses of velveteen are used both for dressy and other occasions. For the former they come in pale colors in plain and pompadour designs.

The shirt waist has developed into a soft affair, tucked and bloused at the waist line with a dainty stock and belt. Sometimes there is a suspicion of applique about it.

The newest blouse sleeve is laid in tucks at the shoulder and wrist.

White chiffon and cream lace compose the dressy waist in the sketch. The yoke and upper part of the sleeves are laid in tucks, which are so arranged that they follow the curves best suited to the figure. There is a bolero effect of cream lace and irregular shaped applications on the upper sleeves and cuffs. The belt is of crushed white panne. JUDIC CHOLLET.

My Strangest Case

BY GUY BOOTHBY.

Author of "DR. NIKOLA," "THE BEAUTIFUL WHITE DEVIL," "PHAROS, THE EGYPTIAN," Etc.

(Copyrighted, 1901, by Ward, Lock & Co.)

The stranger gave a ravenous sort of croak, which might have been a laugh or anything else, and then went in and closed the door abruptly behind him. Having locked it, he took off his coat and hung it upon the handle, apparently conscious of the fact that the landlord had glued his eyes to the keyhole in order that he might, from a precautionary point of view, take further stock of his patron. Foiled in his intention he returned to the bar, murmuring "Anglish peeg" to himself as he did so. In the meantime the stranger had seated himself upon the rough bed in the corner, and had taken a letter from his pocket.

"The Hotel of the Three Desires," he reads, "and on March the fifteenth, without fail." There was a pause while he folded the letter up and placed it in his pocket. Then he continued: "This is the hotel, and to-day is the fifteenth of March. But why don't they put in an appearance? It isn't like them to be late. They'd better not play me any tricks or they'll find I have lost none of my old power of retaliation."

Having satisfied himself that it was impossible for anyone to see into the room, either through the keyhole or by means of the window, he partly disrobed, and, when he had done so, unbuckled from round his waist a broad leather money belt. Seating himself on the bed once more he unfastened the strap of the pocket, and dribbled the contents on to the bed. They consisted of three Napoleons, 15 English sovereigns, four half sovereigns and 18 one-franc pieces. In his trousers pocket he had four Mexican dollars and some cosmopolitan change of small value.

"It's not very much," he muttered to himself after he had counted it, "but it ought to be sufficient for the business in hand. If I hadn't been fool enough to listen to that Frenchwoman on board, I shouldn't have played cards, and then it would have been double. Why the deuce wasn't I able to get monsieur ashore? In that case I'd have got it all back, or I'd have known the reason why."

The idea seemed to afford him some satisfaction, for he smiled, and then said to himself as if in terms of approbation: "By Jove, I believe you, my boy!"

When he had counted his money and had returned it once more to its hiding place, he buckled the belt round his person and unstrapped his valise, taking from it a black Tussa coat which he exchanged for that hanging upon the handle of the door. Then he lighted a Java cigar and sat down upon the bed to think. Taken altogether, his was not a prepossessing countenance. The peculiar attributes I have already described were sufficient to prevent that. At the same time it was a strong face, that of a man who was little likely to allow himself to be beaten, of his own free will, in anything he might undertake. The mouth was firm, the chin square, the eyes dark and well set; moreover, he wore a heavy black mustache, which he kept sharp-pointed. His hair was of the same color, though streaked here and there with gray. His height was an inch and a half above six feet, but by reason of his slim figure, he looked somewhat taller. His hands and feet were small, but of his strength there could be no doubt. Taken altogether, he was not a man with whom one would feel disposed to trifle. Unfortunately, however, the word adventurer was written all over him, and, as a considerable section of the world's population have good reason to know, he was as little likely to fail to take advantage of his opportunities as he was to forget the man who had robbed him, or who had done him an ill turn. It was said in Hong-Kong that he was well connected, and that he had claims upon a viceroy now gone to his account, that, had he persevered with them, might have placed him in a very different position. How much truth there was in this report, however, I cannot say; one thing, however, is quite certain; if it were true, he had fallen grievously from his high estate.

When his meditations had continued for something like ten minutes he rose from the bed, blew a cloud of smoke, stretched himself, strapped his valise once more, gave himself what the sailors call a hoist, that he might be sure his money belt was in its proper position, and then unlocked the door, passed out, relocked it after him, and returned to the bar. There he called for certain curious liquors, smelt them suspiciously before using them, and then proceeded deliberately to mix himself a peculiar drink. The landlord watched him with an appreciative surprise. He imagined himself to be familiar with every drink known to the taste of man, having had wide experience, but such an one as this he had never encountered before.

"What do you call it?" he asked, when the other had finished his preparations.

"I call it a 'Help to Reformation,'" the stranger replied. Then, with a sneer upon his face, he added: "It should be popular with your customers."

Taking the drink with him into the veranda outside, he seated himself in a long chair and proceeded to sip it slowly, as if it were some elixir whose virtue would be lost by haste. Some people might have been amused by the motley crowd that passed along the street beyond the veranda rails, but Gideon Hayle, for such was his name, took no sort of interest in it. He had seen it too often to find any variety in it. As a matter of fact the mere sight of a pigtail was sufficient to remind him of a certain episode in his career which he had been for years endeavoring to forget.

"It doesn't look as if they are going to put in an appearance to-night," he said to himself, as the liquor in the glass began to wane. "Can this letter have been a hoax, an attempt to draw me off the scent? If so, by all the gods in Asia, they may rest assured I'll be even with them."

He looked as though he meant it!

At last he rose and, having returned his glass to the bar, donned his topee, left the hotel and went for a stroll. It was but a short distance to the harbor, and he presently found himself strolling along the several miles of what I have already described as the most wonderful shipping in the world. Knowing the spot where the British India boats from Calcutta usually lie, he made his way to it, and inquired for a certain vessel. She had not yet arrived, he was informed, and no one seemed to know when she might be expected. At last, tired of his occupation, he returned to his hotel, and in due course sat down to supper. He smoked another cigar in the veranda afterwards, and was on the point of retiring for the night, when two men suddenly made their appearance before him, and accosted him by name. He immediately sprang to his feet with a cry of welcome.

"I had made up my mind that you were not coming," he said, as they shook hands.

"The old tub didn't get in until a quater to nine," the taller of the two newcomers replied. "When did you arrive?"

"This afternoon," said Hayle, and for a moment volunteered no further information. A good poker player is always careful not to show his hand.

"I suppose this place is not full?" inquired the man who had last spoken.

"Full?" asked Hayle, scornfully. "It's full of cockroaches and mildew, if that's what you mean?"

"The best company we could possibly have," said the taller man. "Cockroaches and black beetles don't talk and they don't listen at keyholes. What's more, if they trouble you, you can put your heel on them. Now let's see the landlord and see what he's got to offer us in the way of rooms. We don't want any dinner, because we had it on board the steamer."

Hayle accompanied them into the bar, and was a witness of the satisfaction the landlord endeavored, from business motives, to conceal. In due course he followed them to the small, stifling rooms in the yard at the back, and observed that they were placed on either side of himself. He had already taken the precaution of rapping upon the walls in order to discover their thickness, and to find out whether the sound of chinking money was to be heard through them.

"I must remember that thirty-seven and sixpence and two Mexican dollars are all I have in the world," he said to himself. "It would be bad business to allow them to suppose that I had more, until I find out what they want."

"The last time I was here was with Stellman," said the taller of the men, when they met again in the courtyard. "He had got a concession from the Dutch, so he said, to work a portion of the West Coast for shell. He wanted me to go in with him."

"And you couldn't see your way to it?"

"I've seen two Dutch jails," said the other; "and I have no use for them."

"And what happened to Stellman?" asked Hayle, but without any apparent interest. He was thinking of something else at the time.

"They got his money, his boat and his shell, with three pearls that would have made your mouth water," replied the other.

"And Stellman?"

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For Week Beginning Dec. 29. Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

Topic.—Numbering our days.—Ps. xc.

The Ninetieth Psalm was written by Moses. It is the oldest poetical selection in sacred literature. The sublimity of its language and the solemnity of its teachings have always been admired. In majestic tone it sets forth the eternity of God and, contrasted with it, the frailty of man and the brevity of human life. "Before the mountains were brought forth or ere Thou hadst formed the earth and the world even from everlasting to everlasting Thou art God." This of God, but of man: "Our days are passed away in Thy wrath. We spend our years as a tale that is told. The days of our years are threescore years and ten, and, if by reason of strength they be fourscore years, yet is their strength labor and sorrow, for it is soon cut off, and we fly away."

The consciousness of the brevity of life suggested to the psalmist the prayer to God, "So teach us to number our days that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom." Well may we all bear in constant remembrance the important fact that life is short and that we may, we should, pray to God to teach us to number our days. Man often fails to appreciate the brevity and uncertainty of life. He lives as if he were always to live amid his present surroundings. With God it is different. He is conscious, as we are not, of man's narrow span of life, and we need to pray that He may teach us to number our days, to keep properly before us the fact that life here will have an end, and that at no distant day.

The purpose of numbering our days is a practical one—"that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom." Many in numbering their days apply their hearts unto folly. Life being short, they reason that it should be wasted on the grounds that it is too short for the accomplishment of great results. "A short life and a gay life" is the motto of many. The brevity of life is made an excuse for folly, for a sinful, wasted life. But this is not the idea in the mind of Moses. He would have God remind us of the brevity of life that we may wisely use our lives. Life being short, there is no time for folly, no time for wastefulness. "You have only a few years to live," said a physician to a hardworking, eminent clergyman, "and should cease from your arduous labors." "If that be the case," replied the servant of God, "I must work all the harder, since I have so little time to do my life work in." Numbering our days, let us be wise. Let us apply our hearts to wisdom. Let us give our lives to service. Let us work the works of Him that sent us, since so soon the night is coming when no man can work.

BIBLE READINGS.

Ps. xxxix. 1-13; cxix. 81-88; Eccl. xii, 13, 14; John ix. 4; 1 Cor. vi, 19, 20; Eph. v. 15-21; Col. iv, 1-6; II Pet. iii, 8-14; Rev. xxii, 12.

How to Cultivate Reverence.

There are two elements in reverence, love and awe. We love God because He is our Father; we fear God because of His majesty and holiness. To reverence Him as we ought we must have a child's affection and a sense of the difference between our weakness, sin and ignorance and His infinite power, wisdom and purity. The irreverent man is ignorant both of God and of himself. It must be confessed that it is in many ways an age of little reverence. So much that men held sacred has been called in question, so confidently have the overturners of accepted beliefs spoken their own belief that Christianity has been overturned, so thoroughly has the crust of ancient prejudice and observance been broken up that in some quarters it seems as if the fear of God and the respect for man alike have departed from the earth. Some of us who would fain be reverent find ourselves caught in eddies of unbelief from which it is difficult to escape. We feel, as all right thinking men must feel, that we must approach God with humility, but we know not how to cultivate in ourselves that spirit of reverence which we know is befitting.—Congregationalist.

All of One Piece.

Our religious life is all of one piece. We ought not to delude ourselves with the notion that we are serving God when we are at the same time dealing unfairly with our fellow men or indulging in loose and scornful utterances concerning them. These two things are not consistent with each other. If we desire to show that we are sincere Christians, we must do it by upright character and a meek and gentle attitude toward all men.—Nashville Christian Advocate.

The Victory.

God will not be hurried. The building of a Christlike character is not work for a day. Experience cannot be acquired without experiment. It is not innocence God has in view for us, but growth by overcoming. Patience must have her perfect work. Triumph now would be premature and petty, but the way of faith and patience is the way that leads to victory, which shall be part and parcel of the final glorious triumph of the Son of Man.—Isaac O. Rankin.

The Wonderful Simplicity.

That Jesus' message is so great and so powerful lies in the fact that it is so simple and, on the other hand, so rich; so simple as to be exhausted in each of the leading thoughts He uttered; so rich that every one of these thoughts seems to be inexhaustible and the full meaning of the sayings and parables beyond our reach. But, more than that, He Himself stands behind everything that He said.—Adolph Harnack's "What Is Christianity?"

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Topic For the Week Beginning Dec. 29, "Africa For Christ"—Text, Acts viii, 29.

"Go near and join thyself to this chariot."

From populous city to caravan track in the desert is a great change. God's work calls Philip and all other true disciples to go wherever human hearts are in need. The revival in Samaria gave greater results in numbers than the trip to the south; but, judged by after influences, the conversion of the treasurer of Ethiopia was one of the most important events of apostolic times. The Abyssinian church may not have made the progress it should have made, but it has never become extinct.

The gospel was early carried to Africa, but even to this day Africa has not been won to the gospel, because no determined attempt has ever been made until recent years to accomplish such a purpose.

A generation since and the only parts known to civilized nations were scarcely more than a fringe around the outside of the continent. Now all is open to commerce and Christianity.

Nothing can exceed in fascination the story of the opening of the dark continent to the knowledge of the outside world. A short time since, and there were almost no books of value to be found on the subject. Now the literature is immense in volume.

An evening or series of evenings can be spent profitably and entertainingly by a company in any League chapter on Africa. Let one person briefly review the work of Moffat and Livingstone with a homemade outline map large enough for all to see the routes traveled. Another should give the work of Stanley and other explorers in the central part of the country. A short sketch of the missions of various Christian nations and their location would preface the way for a survey of the work of our own church.

Our mission to Liberia and its varying fortunes should be comprehensively presented. Dr. Reid's "Missions of the Methodist Episcopal Church," volume 1, will give all needed facts until quite recent years. The reports of the Missionary society will furnish additional items of Bishop Taylor's work and the administration of Bishop Hartzell.

From the same sources can be found all that will be needed regarding the work in Portugese West Africa, in Angola and in east Africa, in Rhodesia and Inhambane.

Since the beginning of the Boer war new interest has been awakened in our missions in southeast Africa, and their importance for the future is more fully recognized. However the war may progress, there must before many years be great advance made in that land. The dream of a railroad "from Cairo to the Cape" will not long lack fulfillment. The engineering enterprises of Great Britain on the Nile are the most stupendous undertakings the world has ever seen. The effect on Egypt in every way must be profound. Changes only less startling are rapidly altering all the institutions and people of central Africa. Railroads and steamboats are everywhere carrying trade and travel. Our missions are well located and efficiently manned.

In the forward movement of the League for missions intelligent interest should be taken in Africa. Bishop Hartzell and several of our missionaries have collected views, which have been made into stereopticon slides, which are available for use by any League on correspondence with S. Earl Taylor, 57 Washington street, Chicago, or Walter J. Yates, Hazardville, Conn.

Regular Habits.

Regular habits are conducive to health, and if one is in poor health systematic exercise and faithful obedience to the laws of life are, above all, necessary in regaining what has been lost. The same thing holds true in keeping the soul in good spiritual condition or in curing it of sin sickness. Persistent obedience to the commandments of God, regular hours of reading, meditation, attendance on church services and doing good to others will finally, if patiently adhered to, bring back faith, hope, love, peace and happiness. Regularly and continuously these things must be practiced if it is to be well with one's soul.—Reformed Church Messenger.

How to Obtain Holiness.

Be determined to have it. God does like to see people tremulously in earnest for the right. It will not avail to talk about it. The discussion of technicalities, even in one's own mind, without accepting the truth so far as known only tends to mystify. Do not speculate or philosophize. "There are many points in it that you will never understand till its own light blazes in your soul." Having seen the possibility, do not longer delay, but resolve to have it.—American Friend.

A Rich Dividend.

The honest service of Jesus Christ pays the soul a rich dividend of solid satisfaction. There is no wretchedness in a true Christian's trials. His bruised flowers emit sweet fragrance. The fruit of the Holy Spirit are love, joy and peace. The promise of the Lord Jesus is that his joy shall be full. The sweetest honey is gathered out of the hive of a busy, unselfish, useful and holy life.—Theodore L. Cuyler.

The Master's Touch.

In the still air the music lies unheard;
In the rough marble beauty lies unseen;
To wake the music and the beauty needs
The Master's touch, the Sculptor's chisel keen.

Great Master, touch us with Thy skillful hand;
Let not the music that is in us die!
Great Sculptor, hew and polish us, nor let
Hidden and lost Thy form within us lie!

Spare not the stroke; do with us as Thou will;
Let there be naught unfinished, broken, marr'd.
Complete Thy purpose that we may become
Thy perfect image, O our God and Lord!

In connection with the selection of plans prizes were awarded to four out of the six competing architects in order of excellence. Tracy & Swartout received first prize, which gives them the commission for erection of building. The second prize was $125 and was won by Louis C. Hickman. A. L. C. Marsh won the third prize, $75, and the fourth prize, $50, was awarded to Woodruff Leeming.

The other two architects in competition were Alfred E. Barlow and Charles H. Smith. Now that the plans have been chosen the committee will at once secure bids for the work of construction.

Health and Beauty.

A poor complexion is usually the result of a torpid liver or irregular action of the bowels. Unless nature's refuse is carried off it will surely cause impure blood. Pimples, boils and other eruptions follow. This is nature's method of throwing off the poisons which the bowels failed to remove. DeWitt's Little Early Risers are world famous for remedying this condition They stimulates the liver and promote regular and healthy action of the bowels but never cause griping, cramps or distress. No Disturbance.

Andrew McCardell, superintendent of the foundry at the Pond Machine Tool Works, says that there was no disturbance in the foundry Tuesday and that the two men reported to have quarreled there are not employed there.

SANTA CLAUS IN THE RAIN

here a series of tableaux were given. The first half consisted of pretty formations and graceful movements, while the last half comprised the representations of familiar games, such as "Going to Jerusalem," and "Blind Man's Bluff." The boys were neatly attired in white suits with different colored sashes, while the girls wore white dresses. Miss Isabella Taylor was the queen, Miss Elizabeth Winn and Miss Ethel Smith, fairies; Dorance and Carlton Smith, fiddlers; Fred Crowther and Ernest Conover pages, while Goerge Rogers, Harold Vanderhoff, the Misses Helen Pierce, Amy Moore and Beulah Rogers helped to make up the party. Miss Edith Cairns assisted in making the tableaux complete. During the first half Miss Whitney read the Christmas story, and Miss Mae Batchelor presided at the piano During the last half Miss May Whitney was at the piano. The various scenes were enchanting and the calcium lights as operated by John Neagle made them more so. Interspersing the tableaux the scholars were entertained by Alfred E. Pearsall, of Westfield, who gave several humorous selections in his usual pleasing fashion. Mrs. F. M. Wade was expected to sing, but was detained.

After the entertainment Santa Claus appeared in the person of Frank Jones, and he made all happy with his comical sayings and distribution of gifts to the pupils. This concluded the festival. The committee under whose auspices the affair was given consists of J. G. McLaughlin, Miss Florence Marsh, Miss Edith Cairns, Miss Grace Yerkes, Mrs. Powlison, Miss Sue Woodland.

WARREN CHAPEL.

Notwithstanding the stormy weather Warren chapel was crowded last evening by an audience well aware that there was something good in the form of entertainment in store for it. It wa the annual Christmas entertainment of the Sunday-school and in all respects it proved a successful affair.

The programme was a continual treat and the applause was unceasing while it lasted. Miss Saidee Mae Howell rendered some clever piano solos and Miss Willis did equally as well as a vocalist. Miss E. DuBois Benton caught the audience with some recitations, which were particularly well rendered and Miss Cahoone received unlimited commendation for her execution of solos on the violin. Beside the local talent there was J. E. Garretson, of New York, who mystified the crowd with his juggling ability and with his performance as a bell ringer.

Before the completion of the formal programme Rev. J. O. McKelvey presented to Former Mayor Place, on behalf of the latter's class, a fine silk umbrella, and Rev. Robert D. Schoonmaker, on behalf of Rev. Mr. Mc Kelvey's class, presented the latter with a handsome Morris chair. The recipients made neat speeches in thanking their classes for the Christmas remembrances. Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the exercises.

SOCIETY OF FRIENDS.

The First Day school of the Society of Friends, of this city, held its annual Christmas festival in the meeting-house, corner of Watchung avenue and East Second street, last evening. There was a large attendance of adult members as well as children of the school, despite the stormy night.

A short entertainment preceded the serving of refreshments, which consisted of ice cream and cake. In full the numbers given were as follows: Concert reading, "A Christmas Thought," by the school; recitation, "Shoes or Stockings," Miss Margery Cooley; recitation, "The Poppyland Limited Express," Clifford Vail; recitation, "I'd Like to be a Santa Claus," Miss Helen Poole; reading, "A Family Reunion," Miss Agnes Cooley; reading, "How the New Year Came In," Miss Mabel Vail; recitation, "Nature's Face Washing," Ruth Stryker; reading, "What the Choir Sang About the Bonnet." Miss Ethel Lorton; "A True Story of Lewie, a Buffalo Street Waif," by Miss Margaret Vail, superintendent of the First Day school; concert reading, "A Song of the Twentieth Century," by the school.

MARCONNIER CHAPEL.

"The Promise Fulfilled," was the title of the Christmas service given at Marconnier chapel last evening. The inclement weather did not interfere with a good attendance. There was a Christmas tree.

Willie Robertson made the opening address. Recitations were given by the Misses Mary Morrison, Nettie Stover, Jennie Robertson and Lillian Schwenk, Daisy and Iva Morrison, little tots, Miss Mary Morrison, the Misses Amy Lupher, Gertrude and Lizzie Comer, May Pyatt, Nettie Stover, Annie Nelson, Mary Morrison and Richard Campbell, Fred Stover and Monroe Pyatt.

There was an address by M. Seymour Purdy, and a vocal solo by Mrs. Lucy Schenck. Following the entertainment Santa Claus appeared in the person of William Compton, who distributed presents to all. Those receiving Bibles for regular attendance were Fred Stover, Robert Morrison and Richard Campbell. Monroe Pyatt and Willie Morrison received Bible dictionaries.

Joesph D. Moon had charge of the music, while Mrs. H. W. Marshall presided at the piano. The committee on decorations was Mrs. H. W. Marshall, Miss Fanny Stover and Miss Carolyn Kelly. H. W. Marshall, as superintendent of the school, was in charge.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.

The Christmas festivities at the Congregational church last evening were a success. In part first there were songs and recitations by the primary department. Then came nursery rhymes, including "Boys and Girls Come Out to Play," "Little Bo Peep," by the Misses Maude Emmons, Oliver Hedden, Florence Wyckoff, Lila Duy, Ruth Day. Other songs were given by Miss Katherine Day, Miss Nettie and Clarence Steiner, the Misses Margaret Fisher, Emma Van-Alstyne, Katherine Day, Mary Forbes. "Little Jack Horner," was given by Stanley Fisher, while "Little Boy Blue," was sung by Miss Myra Emmons. Harold Miller took the part of "Little Boy Blue." "The Old Woman Who Lived in a Shoe" was enacted by Miss Mary Whiton and a troop of the younger children of the school, who made a visible appeal for the Italian Mission in New York to which the school sends gifts every year. The birthday jug of the primary department was broken and added to the collection.

Gifts were given to the members of the primary department and candy to the whole school, while the sexton, Geo. Dean, was remembered with a gift. The chairman of the committee was Miss May Harold. Miss Minnie G. Morse was the accompanist, assisted by Walter Reynolds.

GRACE M. E. CHURCH.

A Christmas party was held by the primary and cradle departments of the Grace M. E. Sunday-school yesterday afternoon. The pupils participated in an entertaining programme and Andrew Wilson amused them by his antics as Santa Claus, throwing candy among the little ones and distributing presents, mainly consisting of games, dolls and books. Miss Belle Lunger and Miss Alice Carroll, the teachers, had charge of the affair.

TEA TABLE TALK.

Short Sketches That Are Not Always News, But Just as Interesting.

A live duck placed in the cellar at the Hotel Kensington, Tuesday night, was the cause of much trouble about 4:30 o'clock Christmas morning. At that hour William Totten, who looks after the furnace at the hotel, went to the cellar to stoke the fire. As he descended the cellar stairs, lantern in hand, he accidentally stepped on the duck. The duck seriously objected to such treatment and resented it by rising in all his dignity. He made a circuit of the cellar and once or twice made a dive at Mr. Totten. The latter thoroughly frightened dropped his lantern, and with all possible speed hastened to North avenue where he searched for a policeman. He declared that the devil was in the cellar and he proposed to get him out. He failed to find a copper, however, and it was some time before Mr. Tot ten could be persuaded to return and complete his task.

SANTA CLAUS COMES AGAIN

Visited More of the Local Sunday-Schools Last Night in Pleasant Fashion.

FESTIVITIES ENJOYED.

A Variety of Programmes Pleased the Young People—Christmas Cantatas Were the Most Popular—Gifts and Candy for the Little Ones.

More Christmas entertainments were held by local Sunday-schools, last evening, and more little folks were made happy. This time, "Santa Claus" had a delightful evening for his visit and the result was evident in the large crowds which thronged all the churches where the entertainments were held. While Christmas cantatas were the most popular form of entertainment, some of the Sunday-schools varied their programmes. Below will be found the programmes in detailed form:

TRINITY REFORMED CHURCH.

The primary department of the Trinity Reformed church Sunday-school enjoyed its Christmas festival, yesterday afternoon, in the lecture room of the church. Like all previous celebrations it was a jolly time for the children.

The programme opened with a vocal selection by a chorus of eight girls, the Misses Jessie Smith, Gertrude Schleif, Ethel Vail, Edith Richards, Lillie Smith and Gertrude Enander. This was followed with recitations by the Misses Anna Vail, Adelaide Fritz, Evelyn Fritz, Jennie Thompson, Jennie Briemer, Helen Smith, Helen Woolley, May Porter and George Coles. There was also a song by Miss Edna Oliver, a vocal duet by the Misses Bessie and Annie Randall, accompanied by Miss Hattie Randall, and the singing of carols by the school.

Refreshments were served and the children received boxes of candy Mrs. J. M. Tier, superintendent of the primary department, was in charge, assisted by all the teachers. Mrs. Scofield presided at the piano.

In the evening the older pupils of the Sunday-school assembled in the church and were entertained with moving pictures. The machine was operated by an expert from Brooklyn and the large number of interesting pictures shown proved to be a source of great enjoyment to all.

The pictures shown were some of the very latest including the yacht race between Columbia and Shamrock II, a raid on a saloon by Carrie Nation, the Pan-American by day and night, the visit of President McKinley to the Exposition, his memorable speech there, many of the scenes attendant upon the obsequies of the late President. Interspersing these pictures were some of an amusing character.

At the close of the entertainment there was the distribution of the usual gifts to members of the school.

BETHEL CHAPEL.

The Bethel chapel Sunday-school entertainment took place last evening under the direction of the superintendent, Stephen A. Ginna. There was a fair sized attendance.

Thomas Tilney rendered a solo accompanied by Miss Clara Lane. Recitations were given by the Misses Cora Shipley, Mildred Lane and Ada Johnson. Candy, toys and dolls were given the little ones. Eugene O'Reilly's orchestra furnished the music and added much to the enjoyment.

The committee on arrangements consisted of Abraham Brown, chairman, Miss Clara Lane, Charles E. VanHorn, Charles Irby, Miss Euphemia Dorsey, Miss Annie Broadnax, Mrs. A. Brown, B. Sutton and Miss Gangwey.

FIRST M. E. CHURCH.

An entertaining as well as instructive Christmas affair was given by the Sunday-school of the First Methodist church, in Vincent chapel, last evening. It consisted of a series of tableaux illustrating the origin of Christmas customs. There was an unusually large attendance.

The first tableaux represented the old Roman festival of the Saturnalia, which is the Christmas of today. Those participating in the scene were

FIFTH ANNIVERSARY.

Monroe Avenue M. E. Church Will Celebrate it Sunday, Jan. 5.

The congregation of the Monroe Avenue church will celebrate the fifth anniversary of its organization Sunday, Jan. 5. In the morning, Rev. Dr. Thos. O'Hanlon, president of Pennington Seminary, will preach the anniversary sermon. In the evening Francis E. Whiteside, of Drew Theological Seminary, will furnish a history of the church and Dr. O'Hanlon will deliver the address before the members of the Senior and Junior Epworth Leagues. There will also be special music.

FATHER SMYTH'S RECEPTION

DECIDED NOT TO HOLD IT UNTIL AFTER JANUARY 15.

Committee in Charge of Arrangements Held a Meeting Last Evening.

The proposed reception to Rev. P. E. Smyth, the departing rector of St. Marys R. C. church, has been postponed until after the middle of the coming month. This decision was arrived at in a meeting of the committee on arrangements held in St. Mary's Lyceum, last evening.

The reason for the extension of the time is that many, who desire to contribute towards the purse to be presented the retiring priest, are unable to do so at the present time. It was also stated at the meeting by Father Farley that the church duties of next week might interfere with its being held at an early date. On motion of John H. Hillman the date of the recepion was postponed until a date after January 15.

In all forty-nine subscription books are in the hands of the committee's members, and the showing made by nine of the holders, who reported last evening, was excellent. The entire city has been divided into districts and there are designated persons to collect in each of these. Another meeting of the committee will be held and all the members are expected to be present on that occasion.

Arthur Boone presided at the meeting last evening and John P. Owens acted as secretary until the arrival of the regular officer, M. J. Cashin. Mr. Hillman received the donations collected and reported at the meeting.

OFFERING FOR HOSPITAL.

Will be Taken at the Plainfield Churches Tomorrow.

The annual offering for Muhlenberg Hospital will be taken by the churches of Plainfield tomorrow. The management of the hospital will be very glad to have that fact remembered by all intending worshippers, as well as by those who may be unable to be present, as the hospital needs liberal donations at the present time because of the large and constantly growing work that it is doing in the community.

For those who prefer to make their donations direct, they can be sent to H. P. Reynold, treasurer, Washington Park, North Plainfield, or to any member of the Board of Governors.

Funeral of H. E. Scribner.

The funeral services of the late Henry E. Scribner, son of Prof. and Mrs. Henry S. Scribner, of Alleghany City, Pa., were held Thursday afternoon from the home of Mrs. Joseph Myers, on East Front street. Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards, of the Crescent Avenue church, assisted by Rev. Dr. John C. Bliss, a former pastor of the church, conducted the services. The interment took place in Hillside cemetery.

Arranged a Banquet.

The persons who presented the cantata of "Queen Esther" at the Y. M. C. A. recently for the benefit of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, will enjoy a banquet in the parish house Monday evening.

At Home of Groom.

The reception following the wedding of C. Perrine and Miss Edna Post, Tuesday evening, was held at the home of the groom and not at the home of the bride's parents.

Election at Mizpah Lodge.

Mizpah Lodge, No. 1, U. O. of I. O. L., will hold a special meeting this evening and elect officers. The members will have their Christmas tree entertainment January 2.

Soon to Start Work.

The Schepflin Clothing Company, recently organized, is preparing to commence operations at the place of business on West Front street.

L. T. L. Festival.

The Loyal Temperance Legion will unite in a Christmas festival this evening at the W. C. T. U. rooms. Every member is urged to attend.

YOUNG CLERGYMAN WEDS A PLAINFIELD BRIDE

A Society Wedding at the Crescent Avenue Church This Afternoon.

HOLIDAY DECORATIONS.

MISS PAULINE F. HUMPHREY TO MARRY REV. E. L. WALZ, JR.

He Will Assume His Duties as Pastor of the Congregational Church at Plainfield, Vt., After Honeymoon.

A society event of the Christmas season will be the Humphrey-Walz nuptial ceremony, which takes place at the Crescent Avenue church at 4 o'clock this afternoon. The bride is Miss Pauline Fowler Humphrey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. Humphrey, of Hillside avenue, and the groom is Rev. Ernest Louis Walz, Jr., of New York.

Undoubtedly the wedding will be a brilliant affair, for many society folk from New York, Chicago and this city are among the bidden guests. Christmas decorations will adorn the interior of the edifice. The groom has been an associate pastor of the Old Church of Land and Sea, on the East side, New York, for the last year, and is well-known in this city, where he formerly resided,. He is the son of E. L. Walz, of LaGrande avenue. He has accepted the pastorship of the Congregational church, at Plainfield, Vt., and will assume his duties immediately upon the completion of his honeymoon.

Miss Humphrey has only recently become a member of the local smart set, having resided in New York and Chicago until a short time ago. In those cities she was socially prominent and it is likely that there will be a goodly representation of society folk from each present at the event. Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards, pastor of the church, will officiate. He will be assisted by Rev. Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst, the noted reformer of New York.

Frederick W. Walz, of New York, a brother of the groom, will be the best man and the list of ushers includes Rev. J. H. Dennison, Rev. W. R. Jelliffe, both of New York; George Campbell Harding, of Pittsburg, Mass.; William B. Gilbert and James P. Murray, both of this city; and John B. Innerarity, of New York, a brother-in-law of the groom. Rev. Messrs. Dennison and Jelliffe, are associate pastors of the Church of Sea and Land, N. Y. Rev. Mr. Dennison has been abroad for a year and expects to assume Rev. Mr. Walz's place at the church.

Miss Lucy H. Humphrey, a sister of the bride, will be the maid of honor. The bridemaids will be Miss H. Zephine Humphrey, of New Haven, Conn., a cousin of the bride; Miss Ethel Genung, of Brooklyn, a cousin of the groom; Miss Katharine Ludington, and Miss Belle Noyes, of New York. On account of the unusual number of friends which both of the young people have there will be no public reception, and only the intimate friends and the relatives of the bride and groom have been invited to the house after the ceremony.

MIANTONOMO'S CHIEFS.

Chosen at Meeting of the Tribe Held Last Evening.

At a meeting of Miantonomo Tribe, No. 118, Improved Order of Red Men, last evening, the following chiefs were elected: Prophet. Fred Bowe; sachem, Thomas Sheridan; senior sagamore, Charles McGinley; junior sagamore, Joseph Crosby; chief of records and collector of wampum, Charles L. Holstein; keeper of wampum, A. J Stiglitz; trustees, three years, William Newcorn; two years, M. A. Leahy; representative to Great Council, J. T. Green; alternate, Charles L. Holstein.

OYSTER SUPPER.

Will Mark Departure of the Old Year for Warren Boys.

The Warren Engine Company boys at a special meeting, last evening, accepted the invitation of Red Jacket Engine Company, of Elizabeth, to particiapte in a ball to be given by the latter company New Year's night.

It was also decided that an oyster supper should be given New Year's eve, in place of a pancake supper originally intended. The committee in charge of this affair consists of Jacob Higgins, Charles Stahl and William G. Debele. An entertainment will be provided as well.

SANTA CLAUS VISITED PERSEVERANCE LODGE

He Brought Nice Little Gifts For All the Knights Present.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

SANTA HAD TROUBLE IN GETTING TO THE LODGE ROOMS.

Each Gift Was Accompanied by a Verse—Santa Looked Like George O. Stevens—The Officers Elected.

All the good little knights in Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, K. of P., received presents from Santa Claus last evening. The knights had gathered together to hold their annual election, and old Santa wired them from the North Pole that he would drop in during the meeting.

All evening long, while the business session lasted, Santa sent telegrams from various points of his journey and at last he telegraphed from North Plainfield that "Newt" Smalley had "collored" him and that if he could ever "break away" from the discusion of "municipal ownership" he would visit the boys. At last Santa put in an appearance. In "general contour" he much resembled George O. Stevens, a worthy knight.

All sorts of presents he gave the men of the lodge and attached to each was a clever little verse, which like the present was a gentle "roast" on the recipient. The poetic effusions of Santa Claus gave one the idea that he had previously consulted William N. Runyon. Samuel Robinson received a live goat. After forty of the knights had been remembered in this fashion boxes of candy were given to "the little scholars," in classes of five. The "chicken bone class" and the "pig tail class" were well remembered. Later refreshments were served and Santa Claus said "good bye."

The committee in charge of the arrangements had fixed up a Christmas tree which was a wonder in its way. The members of the committee were William N. Runyon, chairman, Charles M. Ulrich, Jacob Blimm, Jr., Robert L. Lee and James McGinley.

At the business session the following officers were chosen: Councillor commander, William N. Runyon; vice chancellor, Charles M Ulrich; prelate David Bush; master of the work, James Armstrong; master at arms, James McGinley; inner guard, Samuel Clouston; outer guard, Peter Strem; master of the exchequer, J. B. Higgins, keeper of records and seal, Charles McGinley; representative to Grand Lodge, William Young, alternate, Donald McInnes; trustees, Samuel Robinson, for three years, David Bowden, for two years.

BECKER BRINGS SUIT.

Starts Proceedings for $5,000 Against E. S. Hooley for Alleged Malicious Prosecution.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, Dec. 28—Papers have been filed in the Supreme Court in a suit for $5,000 damages brought by George Becker, of Middlesex county, against E. S. Hooley, of North Plainfield, in which the planitiff alleges false imprisonment and malicious prosecution.

This is a result of the trouble between the plaintiff and defendant occuring last June, when Mr. Hooley's famous bull dog and Mr. Becker's calf had a combat at the home of Mr. Becker. At the time, it was alleged, that Becker threatened to shoot Mr. Hooley's daughter.

In this new suit Becker charges malicious assault, in that he was taken into custody by Mr. Hooley without due process and detained severally at his home, the borough police station and Justice Warden's office in Dunellen.

He also cites the fact in the declaration that each time the Grand Jury failed to find a bill against him, and he now claims that his reputation has been injured and that he has been put to great trouble and expense. The plaintiff is represented by William Newcorn.

Cause of Delays.

Traffic on the New Jersey Central, west of Easton, was badly disarranged, Thursday, through another serious washout near Mauch Chunk. Temporary tracks had been laid in Mauch Chunk and these were all swept away.

Chosen Grand Master.

Abram W. Brown, of West Third street, was elected grand master of the colored F. and A. M., grand lodge of New Jersey, at a session of that body held in Camden yesterday.

CHRISTMAS GIFTS FOR MANY POOR CHILDREN

Annual Christmas Tree of Relief Association Held Yesterday Afternoon.

AT WASHINGTON HALL.

TWO HUNDRED CHILDREN WERE MADE HAPPY WITH PRESENTS.

Game, Toy, Book or Doll for Each in Addition to Stockings and Mittens—Committee in Charge.

There may have been many happy children in the homes of Plainfield's wealthy citizens, Christmas morning, after Santa Claus' visit but their joy was small in comparison to the glee which lighted up 400 juvenile faces in Washington hall, yesterday afternoon. St. Nicholas wasn't there in person but he was ably represented by the women connected with the Plainfield Relief Asosciation who distributed gifts, candy and oranges to the children. Perfect delight was stamped on the face of every one as he or she passed out of the hall clutching a miniature battleship, a game or a curly haired doll.

The free distribution of gifts, yesterday, was the continuation of a plan originated by Mrs. William A. Woodruff, formerly agent of the Relief Association, six years ago. She conceived the idea of providing toys at Christmas for children whose parents were unable to buy them. Since then she has had a Christmas tree at her home every year and the number of children attending grew constantly. Last year there were 200 at her home and it was then perceived that larger quarters would have to be obtained.

This resulted in Washington Hall being engaged for the distribution, yesterday, and last season's attendance was just doubled. It required a great deal of work on the part of those in charge to take care of them all, but it was eventually accomplished.

Every boy and girl was given the toy he or she craved the most and, in addition, each was furnished with mittens and stockings. The articles were placed on tables and were handed out in accordance with a list of names previously prepared. There was also a large Christmas tree in the center of the hall which delighted the little ones.

The committee in charge of the affair consisted of Mrs. E. T. Barrows, Mrs. E. R. Ackerman, Mrs. William A. Woodruff and Miss Mary Tweedy. They were assisted in distributing by Mrs. C. E. Ryder, Mrs. John M. Whiton, Mrs. S. R. Struthers, Mrs. DeLany, and the Misses Tracy, E. VanBoskerck, Florence Huntington, Anna Miller and Kathleen Ryder.

CHRISTMAS CANTATA.

Elaborate Affair Planned by the Park Avenue Baptists.

The Park Avenue Baptist Sunday-school will hold its Christmas entertainment Monday evening, when thirty or more of the teachers and pupils of the school will give a cantata, entitled "Santa Claus' Defenders," by Charles H. Gabriel, "The Santa Claus Man of the World."

He has made a great reputation in this line. This new one for the season, 1901, will give him still wider fame among Christmas cantata lovers. Among its novelties is "Santa's" fairy which produces four magic dolls who speak, sing, recite and cry. They convince "Mr. Discontent" of his error in thinking "Santa" a myth. Then there is an energetic newsboy; a band of "Santa Claus' Defenders"; four spinsters who sing a taking song, entitled "Do You Think So? Yes, I Do, and So Do I." The music is charming throughout. The principal characters will appear in costume.

A cordial invitation is extended to all to be present.

Case Was Dismissed.

In the city court, this morning, the complaint of Miss Florence Babbitt against Robert Seals, was dismissed by City Judge Runyon. Miss Babbitt failed to prove her charges. Seals was represented by Counsellor William A. Coddington.

Holy Innocents' Day.

St. John's day was commemorated in Grace church and the Church of the Holy Cross yesterday morning by the celebration of Holy Communion. Today is Holy Innocent's day and is being observed in the usual way by the Episcopalians.

CAR CAUGHT FIRE.

Philadelphia Train Had to Leave Its Baggage Car Behind.

A baggage car on the Philadelphia train, which arrives in this city at 7 o'clock in the evening, caught fire enroute from a hot box Thursday evening, and when it reached the North Avenue station was all ablaze. The crew and depot attendants fought the flames for some time but were unable to quell them. The car was finally sidetracked where the fire could be fought to better advantage and was finally put out. The exterior of the car was badly damaged. The contents were uninjured.

TREE AT CHILDREN'S HOME

CHRISTMAS WAS PLEASANTLY CELEBRATED THERE YESTERDAY.

Gifts For the Children Were Distributed During the Afternoon.

Among the many festivals being held at this time none have been more enjoyable and accompanied with more pleasure and profit than that of yesterday afternoon at the Children's Home. There are at present nineteen children at the Home and all were made happy yesterday by the kind remembrance of their friends among the members of the Children's Home and others in the city and borough.

The tree was lighted at 4 o'clock, at which time the children marched into the parlor. Here the eyes of the little ones glistened as they beheld the many beautiful things displayed for them. At the beginning a prayer was offered by Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards, after which there was the customary distribution of gifts to the children. Mrs. Kimball, president of the Children's Home Association, assisted by the matron, Miss Hendrickson, and Miss Ella Serrell and Mrs. Frank Rowley, took charge of the distribution and personally attended to each child.

As usual, there were present several of the boys and girls who have previously been at the Home, but have since been taking care of themselves, having reached that age when this is possible. There were five such persons yesterday and they thoroughly enjoyed the reunion and the gifts received by them.

The members of the association are very grateful to all who assisted in making yesterday's event so successful. Especially kind were the merchants of the city and borough. The donations will make it possible for the Board of Managers to continue this grand work successfully and with less inconvenience.

Visiting in Washington.

Miss Mary Lee Mann, of 1308 Watchung avenue, is spending the Christmas holidays in Washington. She is making a round of visits. Monday she was a guest of President and Mrs. Roosevelt at a tea. Christmas Day she was entertained by Colonel and Mrs. Johnston Livingston de Peyster at a dinner. At present she is visiting the daughters of the late General Emery, and will later be one of a house party at the Naval Observatory, the residence of her cousins, Captain and Mrs. Davis.

Not Arrested.

John E. Moran, residing at 516 West Fifth street, desires The Daily Press to state that he has never been arrested on any charge of being implicated in a disturbance on North avenue. Moran and another young man were interrogated by Judge Runyon and Chief Kiely concerning an alleged disturbance on that thoroughfare but the city officers found no evidence against them and no complaint was made in the matter.

Death of Miss Randolph.

The death of Miss Nellie F. Randolph, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reune F. Randolph, of Mount Pleasant, occurred last evening in New York. Miss Randolph was a trained nurse in a New York hospital. Her death was due to hasty consumption. The funeral services will be held from the residence of the parents tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

No Danger.

In order to allay the fears of neighbors, Dr. Albert Pittis, the borough physician, examined Mrs. Miller, who resides near the mountain, to ascertain the nature of illness supposed by some to be smallpox. He reported that it was nothing more than ordinary case of blood trouble.

Entertainment for Machinists.

An entertainment will be given to the employes of the Potter Press Company and the Pond Machine Tool Company at the Y. M. C. A. this evening. A good programme is promised. There will also be some social features.

GETTING READY FOR CLOSE OF THE YEAR

Big Batch of Little Things Considered at Special Meeting of Common Council.

RECEIVED FEW REPORTS.

COMMITTEES REPORTED ON A HOST OF PETITIONS.

Decided to Pay Sewer Bed Contractors When the Street Commissioner is Satisfied—Lots of Other Minor Business.

Considerable business of a routine nature occupied the attention of the Common Council, last evening, in special session. The members made progress in closing up the business of the year and preparing for the final meeting to be held Monday evening, when the annual reports for the year will be presented. In the absence of President Dumont, Mr. Buckle occupied the chair. All other members were present except Mr. Craig.

Street Commissioner Gavett reported that during September, October, November and December, twenty-two sewer permits were granted, making a total of 1,513 to date. Collector F. H. Smith reported that during the past month seventy-four tax warrants were issued, six were returned and $128.25 collected. The report of City Judge William N. Runyon showed that during the year 507 cases appeared before him. Sixty-four were committed, and sentence was suspended on 293. Twenty-four were dismissed and 123 fined. The total amount received in fines was $546 and the disbursements were $92.39.

At this time Mr. vanHerwerden offered several matters for consideration. He moved that the bids of The Daily Press, News and Monach Printing Company for printing the ordinances be filed. He offered a resolution that a note for $3,500 be executed to renew two notes, one for $2,000 and the other for $1,300, now due, and another resolution that $2,000 be borrowed for sewage improvement work.

Still another resolution by Mr. vanHerwerden provided that the proportion of the amounts received from Martin Act taxes be apportioned to the different funds at the proportionate rates. He returned the petitions of Arthur L. Otterson, who was unjustly taxed for personal and poll tax, Charles Yaeger, L. E. Cadwell, John Taylor, William Albert and Joseph Case, who were assessed dog tax and who do not own dogs, and Robert VanWyck, who was unjustly assessed for personal tax, and moved that the petitions be granted. Similar action was taken regarding the petition of L. B. Woolston, who objected to paying a tax of $8.65 which should have been assessed to the Naylor Paint Company.

Mr. vanHerwerden returned the petition of E. T. Newkirk, who objected to paying a dog tax. The committee has no jurisdiction in the matter as the petitioner failed to appear before the Commissioners of Appeal. The same action was taken in the case of Patrick Rossio, who asked for a reduction of taxes and did not appear before the Commissioners.

Regarding the petition of James Guttridge, who asked for exemption from taxes to the amount of $500 because he is an exempt fireman, the committee reported adversely as he was a member of the Scotch Plains fire department. An adverse report was made by the committee regarding the petition of Robert Marcley who asked for damages for the loss of chickens killed by dogs. Both of the last two-named cases were referred to the corporation counsel before a report was made.

Mr. Tolles offered a resolution that the bill of the Gleason-Kiely Contracting Company be paid but withheld until the street commissioner is satisfied that all claims against the company have been settled. Another resolution by Mr. Tolles provided for the return of the bond given by Eugene L. Babcock in the matter of macadamizing Madison avenue from Front street to Greenbrook.

A recess of five minutes was taken at this time to allow the auditing committee time to audit all bills so that they could be passed upon and paid. After this was done the Council adjourned.

Miss Mary Thompson, of Washington D. C., and Miss Alice Thompson, of Oswego, N. Y., are spending the holidays at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Thompson, of Rockview terrace.

The display of furniture which Powlison & Jones have been showing for the past few months is said by those in a position to know to be far beyond that of firms in much larger cities. They are enabled to do this by means of the ample floor in their commodious building while their show windows are equalled by no others in the city.

In Case of Accident.

MYSTERY IS SOLVED.

Body of Nell Cropsey Found In the River.

HAD BEEN MISSING FIVE WEEKS.

The North Carolina Girl For Whom Search Had Been Made Unceasingly Since Nov. 20 Was Drowned.

ELIZABETH CITY, N. C., Dec. 28.—The body of Nell Cropsey, who mysteriously disappeared from her home on the night of Nov. 20, has been found in the river opposite the Cropsey home by two fishermen. The news of the finding of the body flew over the town like wildfire, and within a short while over 2,000 persons had assembled on the river bank waiting for the body to be brought ashore. The coroner immediately took charge of the body, a jury was selected, and two physicians were called in to make an examination. The evidence given by the physicians does not tend to show any external or internal signs of violence. On the verdict of the jury will depend the rearrest or discharge of James Wilcox, Jr., son of Sheriff Wilcox, who was the last person seen with the girl. He called on her the night of her disappearance and on leaving the house asked her to accompany him to the door. She went with him and was not seen again. Wilcox says they quarreled at the door, and he left the girl standing on the porch.

Anticipating that trouble may be brewing for young Wilcox, the naval reserves have been ordered out to maintain order and peace and to see that no violence is offered Wilcox. By order of the mayor all the barrooms in the city have been closed. Wilcox has been removed from the mayor's office, where he has been since his arrest, to the county jail for his own protection, and a strong guard has been placed around the jail to see that no violence is offered him.

The family of the dead girl refuse to express an opinion as to the cause of the death of Nell Cropsey. The mother of the girl is completely prostrated. She has watched daily, hoping for the return of her daughter alive, and the sad ending of the disappearance has completely broken her down.

Wilcox apparently maintains the same indifferent air that has characterized his actions all the way through this case.

Historical Association Meets.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—The seventh annual meeting of the American Historical association and the annual meeting of the American Economic association began here last night and will continue for several days. For their initial gathering the two organizations held a joint session at the Columbian university, at which General Adolphus W. Greely, chairman of the local reception committee, presided. The features of this session were the addresses of the presidents of the respective associations, Mr. Charles Francis Adams of the Historical association speaking to the topic "An Undeveloped Function" and Professor Richard T. Ely of the Economic association having for his subject "Industrial Liberty." There was a large attendance of members of both associations.

The Missouri Launched.

NEWPORT NEWS, Va., Dec. 28.—Members of the president's cabinet, with their families, and several bureau chiefs of the navy department were here as guests of the Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock company to attend the launching of the battleship Missouri, which took place at 11 o'clock today. A large number of senators, members of the house and others were present, including Senator Francis M. Cockrell of Missouri and his daughter, Miss Marion Cockrell, who acted as sponsor at the launching. The Missouri is a sister ship of the Ohio and the Maine. Her contract price was $2,885,000. Her keel was laid Feb. 7, 1900, and on the latest construction report she is set down as 51 per cent completed.

A Kentucky Gusher.

BARBOURSVILLE, Ky., Dec. 28.—It is reported that promoters arranged to sink gas and oil wells in this county to a depth where they are certain that oil will be found in paying quantities and then "plug" the wells, leaving the impression that they were a "dry hole" in order to keep down prices for land leases. Since Christmas the overseers have been absent, and, it is claimed, the drillers went too deep. The result was a gusher six miles from Barboursville yielding 2,000 barrels a day. The oil became ignited, destroying all the machinery and surrounding timber, shooting up a distance of over a hundred feet every twenty minutes.

Alleged Counterfeiter Arrested.

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—Reuben Wallman, who was arrested yesterday in New Haven, Conn., by agents of the secret service, was brought to this city and was arraigned before Justice Thomas in the federal circuit court, Brooklyn. Wallman is said to be one of the gang of counterfeiters whose plant was raided at Astoria, N. Y., Dec. 7, and he is the tenth man arrested in this case. The other nine have all been indicted. Wallman pleaded not guilty to the charge of counterfeiting and was held in $5,000 bail.

Kruger Will Send a Letter.

AMSTERDAM, Dec. 28.—As the result of conferences between a clergyman, the Rev. Mr. Broekhuyzen, and the Boer leaders here it has been decided to send C. M. Wessels to the United States in January bearing a letter from Mr. Kruger to President Roosevelt.

BURIED, BUT IS ALIVE

Holburn, Mourned For Dead, Sailed Around the World.

WRONG CORPSE IN FAMILY PLOT.

More Than a Year Ago the Husband Left Family In Search of Work and Never Came Back—Supposed Remains Were Interred.

NEW-YORK, Dec. 28.—Henry Holburn of 143 Ainslie avenue, Brooklyn, received a letter yesterday from his son Frank, whom he thought he had buried last March in the family plot at Cyprus Hills cemetery.

The letter was dated San Francisco and stated that the writer was well and prosperous. He asked his father to look up his wife and tell her that he intended to send for her and their two children very soon.

This communication threw the Holburn household into a great state of mind. They were perfectly sure that Frank was dead, and they had been religiously visiting his grave and putting fresh flowers on it every week.

The reason they thought he was no more was that a year ago last September he went away, telling his wife and other relatives that he was going to look for work. He had lost his place in a jewelry store in this city and was disgusted because he could not get another.

After he left months went by and no word came from him. None knew whither he had gone. Last March one of the family read in the newspapers of the finding of the body of a man frozen in the Hackensack meadows. The description tallied with that of Frank Holburn, and some of them went to see the body.

It was in bad shape; but, from some scars, they decided that it was he, and the father brought it over to Brooklyn and had it interred. The widow tried to collect insurance from the Legion of Honor, but failed for lack of proof of death. There was no doubt, however, in the minds of any of the family that Frank was gone for good.

Now comes the letter. There is very little of explanation in it. The writer says that he has been around the world. The presumption is that he shipped on a sailing vessel and has just reached Frisco. He does not say why he kept silent so long. His "widow" will go out of mourning, and she has already written him to either come back on the first train or let her know where she can find him, so that she may start with her children to see him.

Part of Census Report Published.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—The director of the census announces the completion and publication of part one of the report on population, being volume one of the census reports. This volume contains 1,229 pages and comprises statistics on population of the states and territories by minor civil divisions, center of population and its median point, population of incorporated places, urban and rural population, population by sex, general nativity, country of birth, foreign parentage, citizens and years in the United States and an appendix giving a statement of territorial acquisitions. It has been possible to issue this first report about three and a half years earlier than in previous decades owing to the fact that the legislation of 1899 gave much better opportunity to those in charge of the census office to expedite its labors. The completion of this report required a force of 2,000 people during the latter part of 1900 and more than 1,000 persons during the greater part of this year.

Gales on Newfoundland Coast.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Dec. 28.—Furious gales have swept the coast of Newfoundland and wrought much destruction among the shipping and fishing properties at Bay of Islands, Newfoundland, where several American vessels were seeking cargoes of herrings. At Placentia, on the west coast, the fishing boats suffered great damage, and the wharfs and waterfront buildings were destroyed. It is feared that the seas will inundate the entire hamlet. Both the breakwater and the railroad pier have been partly demolished. The rising waves are making serious inroads into the land.

Begs Wife to Return.

PORT HURON, Mich., Dec. 28.—Maggie Madwick, who is in jail here awaiting trial on a serious charge, has received a letter from her aged husband, Elias Madwick of Walford, Ont., whom she deserted some time ago, stating that he had just received a letter from his brother in England stating that he had fallen heir to $50,000. He begs her to return to him, saying he forgives the past and go to England with him to claim the amount. The police will probably release the woman, provided she goes direct to her husband.

The Depew-Palmer Nuptials.

NICE, France, Dec. 28.—Miss May Palmer and United States Senator Chauncey M. Depew were married yesterday by the civil ceremony required by law. The civil marriage took place in the American consulate and was conducted by United States Consul Harold S. Van Buren under a special dispensation of the secretary of state. Miss Palmer being a Catholic, the first religious ceremony will take place in the Church of Notre Dame today at 11 a. m. Then will follow a wedding in the American church at 12 noon.

Wheat Crop Damaged.

GUTHRIE, Okla., Dec. 28.—Oklahoma farmers say the dry winds of the past few days have done a greater damage to the winter wheat crop than all the cold waves combined. Wheat on the uplands has suffered greatly.

DEATH OF SENATOR SEWELL.

New Jersey Loses One of Her Foremost Citizens.

CAMDEN, N. J., Dec. 28.—United States Senator William J. Sewell, who died at his home here yesterday, had suffered from diabetes, complicated with stomach and heart trouble, for over two years, but his condition was not considered serious until about a year ago. His constant attention to the duties devolving upon him in his official capacity resulted in 1899 in a collapse.

A trip to Europe was beneficial, and he soon recovered sufficiently to resume his duties. Toward the end of the last session of congress he developed a complication of diseases and, acting on the advice of his physicians, again visited various health resorts in Europe. Upon his return, his condition showing no improvement, Senator Sewell went to Asheville, N. C., where he remained two months. He returned to his home last month, and for a few days a slight improvement in his condition was noted.

Within the last two weeks a succession of sinking spells greatly weakened him and compelled his physicians to abandon the hope of prolonging his life.

General William J. Sewell was born in Ireland in 1835 and came to this country in early boyhood. When fourteen years old he entered a commission house, but soon shipped in the merchant marine service, making two voyages to China. He became second mate of a clipper ship before giving up the sea and re-engaging in business.

Mr. Sewell went to Chicago, where he engaged in the banking business, with but partial success, remaining there until the outbreak of the war, when he again came east. He became a captain in the Fifth New Jersey regiment, which was being mustered in, and left for the front. He participated with conspicuous courage in all the engagements in which his regiment took part, including the battle of Spottsylvania in May, 1864.

In the battle of Chancellorsville, General Mott having become disabled, Sewell took charge of the brigade, leading it forward at a critical time. He led it into a brilliant charge and achieved one of the most magnificent successes of the war. He captured eight colors from the enemy and retook the regimental standard of a New York regiment which had been captured.

His efforts were equally brilliant at Gettysburg, where he was wounded. He was made lieutenant colonel of the Fifth regiment in July, 1862, and colonel three months later. In September, 1864, after recovering from his disability, he became colonel of the Thirty-eighth regiment and remained with it in the field until the close of the war. He was made a brevet brigadier general of volunteers April 9, 1866, for gallant and meritorious conduct in the battle of Chancellorsville and brevetted as major general at the close of the war.

General Sewell was elected to the United States senate in 1881, succeeding Theodore F. Randolph. He gave way to a Democrat six years later. In 1895, however, he re-entered the senate, taking the place of John R. McPherson. At the beginning of the present year he was re-elected for a full term of six years.

Glass Workers Meet.

MUNCIE, Ind., Dec. 28.—Representatives of the American Window Glass company, the Federation of Co-operative Glass Companies, the American Window Glass Jobbers' association and a large number of unaffiliated companies met in Muncie today for the formation of a closer alliance for the purpose of maintaining prices. The selling agreement under which the American and independent companies have been operating for a year will expire Dec. 31, after which the trusts will fight each other unless a reconciliation shall be effected within the next few days, which is regarded as unlikely.

Died to Save Her Sister.

DANBURY, Conn., Dec. 28.—In an attempt to save her sister Susie and Ira Baisley, who had broken through the ice on White's pond, Ollie Atherton, aged fourteen, was drowned. Workmen, attracted by the cries of the three children, succeeded in rescuing young Baisley and Susie Atherton, but Ollie was drawn under the ice and drowned before she could be reached by the workmen. Her body has not been recovered.

General Alger Gaining.

DETROIT, Mich., Dec. 28.—General Alger's condition is favorable to a complete recovery. No change is noticeable except that he continues to improve slowly.

The New-York Tribune's plans and programme for 1902 contemplate improvements all along the line, so as to keep it in the front rank of the newspaper procession. What The Daily Tribune is and what it stands for pretty nearly everybody knows. That it keeps pace in enterprise with the spirit of the age, without sacrificing decency or accuracy, is needless to say.

But a word as to the other publications issued from The Tribune office may be timely. For instance, it may not be generally known that the famous old Weekly grew and grew until it became imperatively necessary to divide it in two—The Tribune Review and The Tribune Farmer. The Review is suited alike to persons of the highest culture, to those who are educating themselves and to all who wish the week's history summarized, explained and illuminated for them. Special attention is given to municipal affairs, domestic and foreign politics, and to books and literary news. It is published every Saturday. Price, 5 cents a copy, or $1 a year.

The Farmer, issued every Thursday, is one of the handsomest agricultural papers published in this or any other country. The illustrations are superb, and the articles embrace everything relating to farms or farm work. It is a paper which farmers and all who have business dealings with them cannot well afford to get along without. $1 a year.

The Tri-Weekly Tribune occupies a field all its own. It was learned by experience that thousands of persons in various parts of the country wanted a New-York newspaper, and yet they didn't want one. That sounds paradoxical, but it isn't so much so as one might think at first glance. What they were really after was a condensed New-York newspaper which wouldn't tax either their purse or their time too much. So it came to pass that The Tri-Weekly Tribune took the place of the old Semi-Weekly. The "Tri," as it is familiarly called, appears on Monday, Wednesday and Friday, and in these three issues one may find the cream of the matter in the seven issues of The Daily Tribune. Price, $1.50 a year.

The Tribune Almanac for 1902 will be bigger, better and more valuable than ever. All the records and statistics worth having. On sale January 1. Price, 25 cents. 12 24-4

HALLENBECK MURDER CASE.

Circumstantial Evidence Seems to Tighten About the Nephews.

HUDSON, N. Y., Dec. 28.—The coroner's inquest in the case of Peter A. Hallenbeck of Greenport, who was murdered at his home last Tuesday, was continued yesterday by Coroner Lisk. The chain of circumstantial evidence seems to be tightening around the four young men under arrest on suspicion of being implicated in the murder, Willis, Burton and Frederick Van Wormer and Harvey Bruce. Hallenbeck was shot down in the doorway of his house, about eighteen miles from Kinderhook, where the prisoners reside.

At the inquest Mrs. Van Wormer, stepmother of the Van Wormers; Pearl Louise Van Buren, sweetheart of Willis Van Wormer; George H. Brown, a liveryman; Mrs. Mariah Connor and two daughters testified in behalf of the prisoners, swearing to their being in Kinderhook, eighteen miles from the scene of the murder, between one and two hours after the crime was committed. They were positive in their statements, which were not shaken under cross examination.

Demond Vener, a notion dealer at Kinderhook, swore that on Monday two of the prisoners purchased two masks in his store. The masks represented devils' faces. On Tuesday evening, he testified, the other prisoners bought two more. The prisoners were personally known to the storekeeper.

The murderers wore masks when Peter A. Hallenbeck was killed.

The wheels of a wagon which the prisoners hired on the day of the murder are said to correspond exactly with those leading from the scene of the crime. The horse driven to the wagon had a peculiar shoe, and an impression identical with this peculiarity was also, it is stated, found in the soft earth in the vicinity of the Hallenbeck home. The shoes worn by the prisoners on the day of their capture are said to fit the shoeprints left in the snow.

Interest in the case is intense. The prosecuting officers declare they are confident the right men have been arrested. So far, however, the evidence is entirely circumstantial, and the defense in the coroner's hearing declare they can establish a satisfactory alibi.

CAPTAIN LEARY DEAD.

First Governor of Guam and Famous For Samoan Incident.

BOSTON, Dec. 28.—Captain Richard P. Leary, U. S. N., formerly governor of Guam, died at the United States Marine hospital at Chelsea, where his brother-in-law, Dr. J. Fairfax Irwin, is the surgeon in charge.

Death was due to heart disease, from which the captain had suffered since his return from Guam.

The body will be taken to Annapolis, where it will be given a naval burial.

Captain Leary was held in high regard by his fellow sailors because of the nerve he showed in the presence of two German warships in the harbor of Apia, Samoa, during the stirring times which wound up in the tremendous hurricane that wiped out the German and American navies in those waters in 1889. Leary was in command of the little Adams, a third rate vessel of antique type, and, finding the Germans about to interfere forcibly in support of their own candidate for the Samoan chieftainship, he cleared ship for action, first placing himself in position to command either approach, and forbade interference. He was not molested and remained at his post until the American squadron under Admiral Kimberly arrived, when he was sent north in the Adams, thus escaping the great hurricane. He was a unique figure as the first naval governor of the island of Guam, which he ruled as he would his ship, breaking up immorality by obliging the natives to marry, calling upon the men for a certain amount of work every week and even prescribing the minimum number of poultry which should be maintained in each family. He was appointed from Maryland and entered the naval service in 1860. He commanded the San Francisco during the West Indian campaign of the Spanish-American war.

A Fatal Railway Accident.

SCRANTON, Pa., Dec. 28.—An Ontario and Western railroad coal train drawn by engine No. 201 ran away on the heavy eighty foot grade going down the mountain on the Scranton division east of Poyntelle, Wayne county, yesterday. Near Preston Park, in passing a switch frog, it jumped the track, plunging down a hill for nearly 100 feet. The engine and forty gondola cars, all loaded, were piled in a mass. Four trainmen were killed.

British Had Ten Killed.

LONDON, Dec. 28.—Details received here from South Africa of the ambuscading near Beginderyn, Orange River Colony, Dec. 21 of 200 mounted infantry by 300 Boers and forty armed natives led by Commandant Britz show the British losses to have been ten men killed and fifteen wounded. The losses of the Boers are not known.

WARSHIPS ASSEMBLE

Germany's Attempt to Coerce Venezuela Watched.

UNITED STATES NOT TO INTERFERE.

German Authorities Disavow Any Intention to Acquire South American Territory—Only Wish Is to Enforce Demands.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—The gathering of German warships in the vicinity of Venezuela and the presence in the same locality of many American, British, French and other foreign warships is directing attention to the imminence of the naval demonstration Germany is about to make against Venezuela. Thus far the German government has not made known the exact details of her proposed move, the official communications to the United States being confined to an inquiry as to the attitude of this government on the question of a demonstration in view of the purpose on the part of Germany not to acquire any permanent foothold in Venezuela. The answer of this government was entirely satisfactory to the German authorities, who since have proceeded with the execution of their plans for coercing Venezuela. It is said to be probable that the first move by Germany will be the establishment of a blockade of Venezuelan ports, so as to prevent the introduction of food products into Venezuela and thus starve the besieged into submission.

Venezuela, it is said, is entirely dependent on the outside world for its supply of corn, which is a staple among the Venezuelans. The Germans are expected to occupy one or more of the main ports of Venezuela, probably La Guaira or Maracaibo. In this connection most positive assurances have been given to the United States government that the occupation is to be temporary and for such length of time as will permit the collection of the debt due to Germans, thus disposing of the report that there is any ulterior purpose to establish a German coaling station on Venezuelan soil.

On the part of Venezuela it is semi-officially understood that President Castro has made known that he is prepared for any eventuality. There is complete silence, however, as to the defensive measures Venezuela is adopting, but there is no indication that she is laying mines or preparing in any way to resist an occupation of La Guaira or Maracaibo, which are such open ports that they are practically defenseless against such powerful armament as the Germans can bring to bear. The reliance of Venezuela appears to be on the practical difficulties Germany will encounter. Venezuela herself, it is asserted, has no need of outside supplies, and, while corn is much used, in an emergency there are many other cereals which can be put to use. The interior of Venezuela is regarded as safe, as it is said that it would take at least 200,000 German soldiers to make headway through the wild and uneven country against guerrilla tactics.

There appears also to be much reliance on the part of Venezuela in the sentiment and sympathy which can be aroused within the United States when an European invader is actually operating on American soil and Venezuela issues a declaration of war.

The presence of the north Atlantic squadron and many other American warships in West Indian waters is the source of much speculation in Germany and Venezuela. The Berlin officials are assured that the presence of American ships has nothing to do with Germany's plans against Venezuela, but at Caracas the presence of American ships in the neighborhood is looked upon with satisfaction and is construed as distinctly significant.

PLANS FOR HOSPITAL.

The news that plans for the new buildings of Muhlenberg Hospital have finally been selected will be welcome, indeed, to the Plainfield public. Those who have had the slightest acquaintance with the present hospital accommodations have long realized the need of more commodious and up-to-date buildings for Plainfield's hospital. It has seemed as if the Board of Governors was unduly slow in starting the work. It is probable, however, that the men who are at the helm in this movement understand the situation better than anyone else and that they will see that no time is really lost in securing this needed improvement for the city.

While these plans have not yet been approved by the board itself, there is no doubt but the approval will be forthcoming. The subject will probably be brought up at the regular meeting of the board Monday evening. Action on the subject may, therefore, be expected.

The building committee was empowered some time ago to secure proper plans. A competition was arranged for which a number of architects entered. It is a subject for local pride that one member of the winning firm is a Plainfielder. Another Plainfielder was included in the list of those who were awarded lesser prizes for the merit of their drawings.

The death of United States Senator Sewell comes as a great blow to the people of New Jersey, despite the fact the physicians gave but little hope of recovery during the last few weeks of the fatal illness. For years, he has been the central figure in the Republican ranks in the State. The leadership has been his, not through any unfair means, but by virtue of his superior ability and generalship which have combined to make him the natural head of the Republican party in this State. Now that he has passed away, his guiding hand at the helm of party affairs will be sorely missed and New Jersey will have lost one of the most stalwart figures on the floor of the United States Senate. Gen. Sewell was a man respected and admired by all who knew him, irrespective of political belief. He was a powerful and fast friend and an honest opponent. He will long be remembered as one of the greatest of the many great men who have risen in public affairs in New Jersey.

For some reason which has not been made public, the caucus of the Republican State Senators was held considerably earlier than was first anticipated. It resulted as was generally predicted. Senator Francis was chosen president and Senator McCarter Republican leader on the floor. Senator C. A. Reed, of Somerset, is made the head of that unofficial but very powerful organization, the "steering committee."

Music was furnished by Harold's orchestra. The Christmas decorations used during the holidays were retained and looked just as attractive as ever

The committee, under whose auspices the dance was given, consists of Mrs. Charles A. Reed, Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. McGee, Mr. and Mrs. S. St. John McCutchen, Miss VanDeventer, Allan B. Laing, Jan vanHerwerden and C. E. Murray. The third dance will be given during Easter week on a date to be announced later.

FELL IN SEWER BEDS.

Thrilling Adventure of Driver to Hay Wagon Who Found Himself Beneath the Load.

A teamster, driving a load of hay along West Front street, Thursday night, became drowsy from the effects of a number of drinks taken enroute from the country and fell asleep. He awoke several hours later to find himself beneath the hay, reposing in one of the disused beds at the city disposal plant. It was with some difficulty that the night watchman at the beds hauled him out in time to prevent his being suffocated.

The horses finding themselves unguided had turned into Rock avenue and thence on to one of the embankments bordering the disposal beds. They approached too near the edge after wandering about some time and the load was eventually tipped over. The hay was removed yesterday afternoon.

JUNIORS' ELECTION.

Officers Chosen at Meeting of Benevolent Council Last Night.

Honeyman; assistant recording secretary, Charles Suhr, Jr.; conductor, I. N. Wyckoff; warden, W. Fisher; inside sentinel, A. Wilson; outside sentinel, G. S. Martin; trustee, 18 months, R. M. Clark; representative to State Council, two years, A. G. Adams.

A law to establish an orphans fund in the State was adopted. The officers-elect will be installed at the next meeting, at which time an entertainment will be given and refreshments served by the good and welfare committee. All members are requested to be present.

An Envangelist's Story.

"I suffered for years with a bronchial or lung trouble and tried various remedies but did not obtain permanent relief until I commenced using One Minute Cough Cure," writes Rev. One Minute Cough Cure afford immediate relief for coughs, colds and all kind of throat and lung troubles. For croup it is unequalled. Absolutely safe. Very pleasant to take, never fails and is really a favorite with the children. They like it. L. W. Randolph.

of flesh and strength, little barking, obstinate cough and a little pain in the chest may not mean galloping consumption, but they are signs that prudence will not neglect. BOTH FROM PACIFIC COAST

QUIET WEDDING OF MISS BUTLER AND H. C. BREEDEN.

Took Place This Morning at the Residence of Dr. Ellis W. Hedges

With a very quiet and simple ceremony, Miss Emma Butler, daughter of Mrs. Charles C. Butler, and Henry C. Breeden, both of San Francisco, were married this morning at 11:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Ellis W. Hedges, of Watchung avenue.

The ceremony was witnessed only by the members of the immediate families. Soon afterward Mr. and Mrs. Breeden, accompanied by Mrs. Butler, left for San Francisco, where they will reside. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. William E. Honeyman, of Lincoln place, who is a cousin of Dr. Hedges.

The bride wore a travelling gown of black cloth, trimmed with blue, with hat to match. Both she and the groom were unattended. Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served.

The bride is quite well-known in this city, having visited here a number of times. The groom is the manager of the Standard Oil Company's office in San Francisco. Both he and his wife have a host of friends on the Pacific coast. They have been the recipients of a great many presents of value and use, but to save much inconvenience most of them have been retained in San Francisco and will await the arrival of the couple at their future home.

There will also be anthems and other music including solo work by Miss Louella Harris, William Holmes and George Smith, and William Paulding DeNike, on the 'cello. Howard Case, organist of the church, will have charge of the service.

At the close of the service an offering will be received in behalf of the Organized Aid Association.

—Fruit and plenty of it, at Neuman Brothers. The best India River oranges and grape fruit, extra sweet California oranges and Malaga grapes.

SPECIAL PROGRAMME.

Will be Given at Sunday-School of Park Avenue Baptist Church.

A special programme will be given at the Park Avenue Baptist church Sunday-school tomorrow afternoon at 2:45 o'clock in place of the regular review lesson. There will be short addresses by the pastor, Rev. J. W. Richardson and others, bearing upon the history of the school during the past year. Special music will be a feature of the occasion. A cordial invitation is extended to all to be present.

Health and Beauty.

A poor complexion is usually the result of a torpid liver or irregular action of the bowels. Unless nature's refuse is carried off it will surely cause impure blood. Pimples, boils and other eruptions follow. This is nature's method of throwing off the poisons which the bowels failed to remove. DeWitt's Little Early Risers are world famous for remedying this condition They stimulates the liver and promote regular and healthy action of the bowels but never cause griping, cramps or distress. Safe pills. L. W. Randolph.

Senior Dance.

An enjoyable dance was given in the Seminary last evening, under the auspices of the Senior class. Plainfield's prominent young people to the number of 100 were in attendance. The class is composed of the Misses Ethel Smalley, of Bound Brook; Ruth Titus, Louise Curtis and Eleanor Stimpson, of this city.

TRADE CONDITIONS.

Enormous Holiday Business—Large Distribution of Christmas Gifts.

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

Up to the last hour on Christmas eve the eager buying continued, while many orders will not be filled before the year's end because of the avalanche of business offered. Preparations were made for unusual activity, but in many cases stocks and facilities proved utterly inadequate. Holiday mail was 40 per cent heavier than last year's, which gives some measure of the expansion.

Distribution of Christmas gifts among the employees of large firms and corporations was on the same scale, often the increase over last year amounting to 100 per cent, while the profit sharing at the end of the year will reach unprecedented figures. It is noticed that southern trade shows less satisfactory gains over last year than at other sections, which is not surprising, as the principal product of the south has averaged from $8 to $10 a bale less than a year ago, while the quantity thus far marketed shows no commensurate increase.

Following closely upon the interruption by floods and storms last week, transporting and manufacturing facilities were further handicapped by numerous accidents. Iron furnaces and steel mills were tied up, and the movement of coke was hampered. This resulted in such insufficient supplies of fuel that many stacks were banked at a time when full activity was especially desired. The situation as to coke is more critical than at any previous time this season. As high as $3.50 per ton was offered for prompt delivery without securing supplies.

Notwithstanding the high level of quotations as compared with earlier years, wheat exports for the week from all ports of the United States, including flour, amounted to 3,540,972 bushels compared with 2,756,014 bushels a year ago and 2,417,018 bushels two years ago. Interior receipts were light.

Failures for the week numbered 250 in the United States against 237 last year and 23 in Canada against 18 last year.

EDUCATORS BUSY.

Meeting In Syracuse, N. Y., Calls Out Large Array of Talent.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Dec. 28.—The five hundred educators from all over New York state who have been assembled in four conventions in this city for the past two days transacted a large amount of business yesterday, every session being attended by the full quota of instructors who have registered in each department.

Four conventions were going all day. In the city hall there were three—namely, the convention of the grammar school principals, that of the associated academic principals and the New York state training teachers' conference. At the medical college on Orange street the sixth annual meeting of the Science Teachers' association of the state was also being held.

Leading questions of the greatest prominence in educational circles at the present time were the topics for discussion at each convention, and the papers that were read and the addresses that were made were received with the utmost enthusiasm. A number of college presidents, including President Raymond of Union, President Davis of Alfred university and President Rhees of Rochester, besides a large number of college professors, were in attendance, and there was, if anything, even more than usual interest taken in all the discussions. Social functions were not wanting either, and many were the reunions among college friends. A large number of banquets in the evening rounded out a full day for the educators.

Forged Secretary Hackett's Name.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—George L. Dorre, a corporal in the marine corps, is under arrest at the marine barracks for the alleged forgery of the name of Frank W. Hackett, formerly assistant secretary of the navy, to a check for $286 on the Riggs National bank. The signature was closely scrutinized by the cashier, and Dorre, becoming alarmed at the delay, ran from the bank before he could be identified. The prisoner admitted his guilt and gave as his reason that he could not keep his expenses within his pay, $37.50 a month. He had been detailed as orderly for Mr. Hackett, who liked him so well that he had secured the man a promotion to the rank of corporal.

Nordau Addresses Zionists.

Basel, Switzerland, Dec. 28.—Max Nordau, the author and physician, delivered a brilliant speech yesterday before the Zionist congress. M. Nordau spoke on the physical and intellectual amelioration of the Jews and advised them to cease emigrating from eastern Europe to the sweating dens of London and New York. He said that those already there should organize themselves into co-operative bodies for their mutual betterment, and he deprecated the system of early marriages among this race.

Another Policeman Sentenced.

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—Six months in the penitentiary was the sentence imposed upon Edward Glennon, former wardman of the Tenderloin, by Recorder Goff. Glennon's counsel appealed to the supreme court for a stay and will try to get a new trial.

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

A severe storm raged in the northwestern states.

Three men were killed in a furnace explosion at Sharpsville, Pa.

The czar accepted an invitation to attend King Edward's coronation.

Charges against Sheriff Caldwell of Erie county, N. Y., were made to Governor Odell.

BOICE, RUNYON & CO.,

I have always been strongly opposed to lending my name or influence to put before the people any medicine not in general use by the medical profession, believing that were nine-tenths of the so-called medicines now in use stricken out of existence mankind would be the gainer and the science of medicine no loser. For the past few years my wife, who is now sixty-two years of age, has suffered terribly from indigestion and could not take even a small amount of food in her stomach without causing distress, and the only relief she could get was from the use of bi-carbonate soda, which was only temporary. Last March I saw Ripans Tabules recommended so highly that I made up my mind to get some and unknown to my wife give them a thorough trial. Through a druggist I obtained a package of the Tabules and my wife commenced using them. They were of full strength and acted too freely on the bowels. I then wrote and obtained some of the chocolate coated Tabules of half the strength and these acted like a charm. My wife is now herself again, can eat a good meal without the least distress and has discontinued taking Ripans Tabules. However, a good supply is kept on hand for fear the old enemy may again appear.

WANTED:—A case of bad health that R·I·P·A·N·S will not benefit. They banish pain and prolong life. One gives relief. Note the word R·I·P·A·N·S on the package and accept no substitute. Ten samples and one thousand testimonials will be mailed to any address for 5 cents, forwarded to the Ripans Chemical Co., No. 10 Spruce St., New York.

Dear Sirs—Two years ago I had very bad corns and callouses on my feet, I went to a chiropodist and paid him $5.75 for taking them off. In less than a month they were back again. I then tried your CORN CURE and used only three bottles, costing 45c, and am happy to say it has taken them off completely. They have not troubled me now for over a year. I consider your HEPBURN'S CORN CURE the best I have ever used.—

FOR STREET WEAR.

Suits Are Becoming More and More Like Dresses.

Tailor mades are jauntier than ever. Many of them closely resemble dresses. The sleeves are puffed, and there is a deal of application about the blouses and skirts. A costume shown in a fashionable tailor's establishment had its skirt accordion plaited into a stitched yoke of plain cloth. This yoke effect was continued a little way up on the blouse waist, which was also in accordion tucks stitched down to give the snug tight fitting look so necessary to a smart coat. Then there was a yoke and a smart little standing up collar, also of the broadcloth. There seems to be a marked tendency toward trimming suits of black broadcloth with stitched bands of cloth in pastel tints, and also many embroidered and Persian vests are used with soft fronts of lace and chiffon.

CHEVIOT TAILOR MADE.

Most of the collars are flat, or else they stand up military fashion. This is to allow the wearing of the new fur boas, which are in flat stole shapes this year. For those who wish to wear a long coat and who cannot stand the Louis Quinze or redingote effects there is a loose three-quarter length which gives very becoming lines.

Broadcloth and velvet are the proper materials for dressy occasions, but cheviot and zibeline are most stylish for all other occasions.

A very smart tailor made is here shown. Black cheviot was used for the original model, and this was trimmed with strappings of black panne. The coat has a high standing up collar and a short inner vest effect showing the waist beneath. The strappings are disposed so as to give the best possible lines to the figure. The sleeves have bell shaped upper and tight fitting under sleeves, which extend well over the hand. The skirt is plain, with the exception of a series of perpendicular straps, one of which outlines the bottom of the skirt in the back.

FLAT EFFECTS.

The Millinery of the Season Is Very Simply Trimmed.

Some of the newest millinery has a very bare and untrimmed appearance, more especially the large toques of velvet with flat crowns and brims of folded velvet, where the sole decoration is a group of flowers or a couple of plumes poised on the left side. Very stylish hats are made entirely of lace, with ribbon borderings of velvet. One recently seen had black velvet borderings, with a knot of turquoise crepe de chine inside the front brim, which was slightly raised. There were also two rosettes of velvet on the left side which held a black and blue quill.

All sorts of fine lace and tucking are used to face the brims of hats. In the case of the three cornered toques now so much in vogue, chiffon is shirred and then banded with narrow velvet ribbons.

Today's picture shows a hat made of sable. It is tilted to one side, as are all fashionable hats this season. The crown is enriched by a band of black velvet sewed with lace application. A wide scarf of lace partly veils the brim and droops gracefully behind. A cluster of tinted velvet chrysanthemums ornaments the raised side, and on the band there is an accordion plaited chou of black chiffon held by a buckle of brilliants.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

My Strangest Case

BY GUY BOOTHBY.

Author of "DR. NIKOLA," "THE BEAUTIFUL WHITE DEVIL," "PHAROS, THE EGYPTIAN," Etc.

[Copyrighted, 1901, by Ward, Lock & Co.]

"Oh, they buried him at Sourabaya. He took the cholera, so they said, but I have heard since that he died of starvation. They don't feed you too well in Dutch jails, especially when you've got a concession and a consul."

"I HAD MADE UP MY MIND THAT YOU WERE NOT COMING," HE SAID, AS THEY SHOOK HANDS.

The speaker looked up at his companion as he said this, and the other, who, as I have already said, was not interested in the unfortunate Stellman, or had probably heard the tale before, nodded his head in the direction of the room where the smaller man was engaged on his toilet, to the accompaniment of splashing water. The movement of the head was as significant as the nod of the famous lord of Burleigh.

"Just the same as ever," the other replied. "Always pushing his nose into old papers and documents, until you'd think he'd make himself ill. Lord, what a man he would have been for the British museum! There's not his equal on ancient Asia in the world."

"And this particular business?"

"Ah, you shall hear all about it in the proper time. That'll be to-morrow morning, I reckon. In the meantime you can go to bed, and content yourself with the knowledge that, all being well, you're going to play a hand in the biggest scoop that ever I or anybody else have tackled!"

Mr. Kitwater, for such was the name of the gentleman, began his preparations for the night, vigorously cursing the mosquitoes as he did so. He was a fine-looking man, with a powerful, though somewhat humorous cast of countenance. His eyes were large and not unkindly. His head was a good one from a phrenological point of view, but was marred by the possession of enormous ears which stood out on either side of his head like those of a bat. He wore a close-cropped beard, and he was famous for his strength, which indeed was that of a giant.

"Hayle, if I can sum it up aright, is just the same as ever," he said, as he arranged the mosquito netting of his bed. "He doesn't trust me, and I don't trust him. But he'll be none the less useful for that. Let him try to play me false, and, by the Lord Harry, he'll not live to do it again."

With this amiable sentiment Mr. Kitwater prepared himself for slumber.

Next morning they met at breakfast. All three were somewhat silent. It was as if the weight of the matter which was that day to be discussed pressed upon their spirits. The smallest of the trio, Septimus Codd by name, who was habitually taciturn, spoke scarcely a word. He was a strange little man, a nineteenth century villain in a sense. He was a rogue and a vagabond, yet his one hobby, apart from his business, was a study of the past, and many an authority on eastern history would have been astonished at the extent of his learning. He was never so happy as when burrowing amongst ancient records, and it was mainly due to his learning in the first place, and to a somewhat singular accident in the second, that the trio were now foregathered in Singapore. His personal appearance was a peculiar one. His height was scarcely more than four feet six inches. His face was round, and at a distance appeared almost boyish. It was only when one came to look into it more closely that it was seen to be scored by numberless small lines. Moreover, it was unadorned by either beard or mustache. His hair was gray, and was worn somewhat longer than is usual. He could speak fluently almost every language of the east, and had been imprisoned by the Russians for sealing in prohibited waters, had been tortured by the Chinese on the Yangtse, and, to his own unextinguishable disgrace, flogged by the French in Tonquin. Not the least curious trait in his character was the affection he entertained for Kitwater. The pair had been together for years, had quarreled repeatedly, but had never separated. The record of their doings would form an interesting book, but for want of space cannot be more than referred to here. Hayle had been their partner in not a few of their curious undertakings, for his courage and resource made him a valuable ally, though how far they trusted each other it is impossible to say.

Breakfast over they adjourned to the veranda, where the inevitable cigars made their appearance.

"Now let's hear what you've got to say to me?" Hayle began.

"Not here," Kitwater replied. "There are too many listeners. Come down to the harbor."

So saying he led his companions to the water side, where he chartered a native boat for an hour's sail. Then, when they were out of earshot of the land, he bade Hayle pay attention to what he had to say.

"First and foremost you must understand," he said, "that it's all due to Coddy here. We heard something of it from an old Siamese in Hanoi, but we never put much trust in it. Then Coddy began to look around, to hunt up some of the musty records, and after awhile he began to think that there might be something in the story after all. You see it's this way: You know Sengkor-Wat?"

"Sengkor how much?"

"Sengkor-Wat—the old ruin at the back of Burmah, near the Chinese border. Such a place as you never dreamt of. Tumble-down palaces, temples, and all that sort of thing—lying out there all alone in the jungle."

"I've seen Amber," said Hayle, with the air of a man who makes a remark that cannot be lightly turned aside. "After that I don't want any more ruined cities. I've got no use for them."

"No, but you've got a use for other things, haven't you? You can use rubies as big as pigeon's eggs, I suppose. You've got a use for sapphires, the like of which mortal man never set eyes on before."

"That's certainly so," Hayle replied. "But what has this Sengkor-Wat to do with it?"

"Everything in the world," Kitwater replied. "That's where those rubies are, and, what's more, that's where we are going to find them."

"Are you joking, or is this sober earnest?"

He looked from Kitwater to Codd. The little man thus appealed to nodded his head. He agreed with all his companion said.

"It's quite true," said he, after a pause. "Rubies, sapphires and gold enough to make us all millionaires times over."

"Bravo for Sengkor-Wat, then!" said Hayle. "But how do you know all this?"

"I've told you already that Coddy found it out," Kitwater replied. "Looking over his old records he discovered something that put him on the track. Then I happened to remember that, years ago, when I was in Hanoi, an old man had told me a wonderful story about a treasure chamber in a ruined city in the Burmese jungle. A Frenchman who visited the place, and had written a book about it, mentions the fact that there is a legend amongst the natives that vast treasure is buried in the ruins, but only one man, so far as we can discover, seems to have taken the trouble to have looked for it."

"But how big are the ruins?"

"Bigger than London, so Coddy says!"

Coddy nodded his head in confirmation of this fact. But still Hayle seemed incredulous.

"And you are going to search all that area? It strikes me that you will be an old man by the time you find the treasure, Kitwater."

"Don't you believe it. We've got something better to go upon than that. There was an old Chinese traveler who visited this place in the year—what was the year, Coddy?"

"Twelve hundred and fifty-seven," Codd replied, without hesitation.

"Well, he describes the glory of the place, the wealth of the inhabitants, and then goes on to tell how the king took him to the great treasure chamber, where he saw such riches as mortal man had never looked upon before."

"But that doesn't tell you where the treasure chamber is?" argued Hayle.

ARE HARD WORKERS

Busy Statesmen Who Never Take a Christmas Vacation.

Members of Appropriations, Ways and Means and Finance Committees of House and Senate Get No Rest.

[Special Washington Letter.]

"THE lives of government clerks must be very monotonous," said Congressman William Alden Smith, of Grand Rapids, Mich., as we were riding from the capitol on an electric car.

"I have often watched them going to and coming from their offices. Now it is four o'clock in the afternoon, and they are coming out of the departments in great droves. You notice that nearly all of them rush for the street cars. That is partly because they are tired, and partly because so many of them live away out in the suburbs. They walk in the mornings, and ride in the evenings.

WILLIAM ALDEN SMITH.
(Representative in Congress from the Fifth Michigan District.)

"Every morning, from eight o'clock until almost nine, the thousands may be seen walking towards the departments, all of them carrying little packages containing their lunches. Some of them walk as much as two or three miles on fair days on their way to their work, and it probably does them good. But, after being shut up in the departments, where many rooms are illy ventilated, or not ventilated at all, they are as tired out by four o'clock as the giant tillers of the soil are when they have worked from sun-up to sun-down.

"There is something procrastinating or somnolent in the atmosphere of this city," continued Mr. Smith. "At my home I am always in my office at eight o'clock each morning. Here it is a task and a struggle for me to get to the capitol by ten o'clock. It is the same with my family, too. We do not get up so early as we do at home, and we do not go to bed so early as we should. I have brought servants with me this year, and am trying to keep house instead of being an uncomfortable boarder. But I find that the servants have breathed the somnolent air of Washington, and they do not get up and go about their work as they did at home. Maybe they see the indolence of other servants in the neighborhood, and are putting on the airs of this community. I hope that a season here will not spoil them for their duties at home when we go back at the close of this session of congress.

"The government clerks, I understand, only work half-days during the Christmas holidays. The six half-days of vacation are not taken from their annual leaves of 30 days. They are very fortunate folks in the matter of days of rest. No other class of working people have 30 vacation days with pay given to them every year. And it is good pay, too."

The congressman did not mention the fact that men in his class also easily acquire the resting habit in this city. No sooner do the congressmen gather here than they begin to talk about the Christmas vacation. They are annually in session about two weeks in December, doing nothing but preliminary legislative work, when they adjourn for two weeks or longer in order that they may go to their homes for Christmas and New Year's dinners with their families. They also receive good pay during their restful periods.

"Uncle Jimmy" Edwards, whom everybody here knows, says: "I have sat at the door of the democratic side of the senate for almost 25 years when the congress has been in session, and there has never been a year when a Christmas vacation of less than two weeks has been taken, except about 15 years ago. There was a short session of congress. President Cleveland threatened an extra session unless certain legislation was accomplished, so that on that occasion the Christmas vacation was only five days. But that was an exception to the rule. I like the rule, however, because when the statesmen are on vacation I also am on vacation, and drawing my pay all the while. They can't 'vacate' too often to please me, and the other employes feel the same way about it."

While the congress is absent from the capitol building there are a few statesmen and employes who are hard at work, and their labors are of the greatest importance. The chairman of the house committee on appropriations, Mr. Cannon, of Illinois, and the chairman of the senate committee on appropriations, Mr. Allison, of Iowa, are working on the details of the permanent appropriation bills; those which require especial attention every year at their hands. And with them are the clerks of their committees, Mr. Courts and Mr. Cleaves; two gentlemen who have handled appropriation bills for so many years that their services are exceptionally valuable to the country, as well as to the congress. They never take vacations for the Christmas holidays, nor for any other holidays while the congress is in session. Moreover, those employes work on the details of appropriation bills during the long vacations when the statesmen are away from this city for months at a time. They have no time to acquire the habit of too much resting.

During the past 20 years the annual appropriations for the expenses of the government have increased from $300,000,000 to $600,000,000. As the country grows in population the federal employes necessarily increase in number. This was true before the expansion of territory which was incidental to our clash at arms with a foreign foe.

The secretary of the treasury sends to the congress each year a report of the expenditures of the government for the past year, with estimates for the probable expenses for each ensuing year, and all of these estimates require careful consideration. Each department of the government, and each bureau of the several departments, presents, through the secretary of the treasury, estimates for the development of its work. If it were not for the watchfulness of the congressional guardians of the treasury the annual appropriations would increase the more rapidly. Each bureau chief wants increased appropriations, and the sum total is always alarmingly large. The committees on appropriations study the requirements of each bureau, and make appropriations less than the amounts asked for in a majority of the cases.

The chairmen of the committees on appropriations, and the committee clerks are charged with great and grave responsibilities. While the senators and representatives are taking their vacations and giving heed usually only to those matters which concern their states and districts, these diligent and faithful public servants are looking after the income and outgo of the government. When the committees on appropriations make their reports on the great appropriation bills, the congress adopts those reports and acts in accordance with their recommendations.

It is a popular fallacy that every member of congress carefully studies these matters. They do nothing of the kind. They know practically no more about the appropriation bills for which they vote than the people do at home, who never see the bills. They take it for granted that what the chairman of each committee reports is all right.

There are members of two other committees who have not the time to acquire the Washington habit of overrestfulness. The house committee on ways and means and the senate committee on finance have duties which necessitate careful attention to details and investigation of finacial conditions. The congress devolves upon those committees the work of levying taxes by customs duties and internal revenue. The chairmen particularly must be familiar with the resources of the government, the necessity for cutting down the revenues or of increasing them. From those committees, for example, came the bills which increased the federal revenues for the war with Spain, and the resultant increased expenditures.

SERENO E. PAYNE.
(Chairman of the House Committee on Ways and Means.)

While the committees on appropriations make provision for expenditures of the executive, legislative and judicial departments of the government, these other committees see to it that there is always sufficient money in the treasury to meet those appropriations. Their members must know exactly what amount of taxation should be laid upon every article, from a needle to a barrel of whisky. You may well understand that the statesmen charged with such far-reaching affairs must be far-seeing and broad minded. Other members may take time for vacations and even for junkets, but these gentlemen must remain at their posts. In congressional affairs they are "the men behind the guns," who keep the ship of state on even keel. Senator Aldrich, of Rhode Island, is chairman of the senate committee on finance. Representative Payne, of New York, is chairman of the committee on ways and means.

The emphasis placed upon the importance of the work of these four committees is not intended to minimize the work of the numerous other committees, but to show that there are some of our public servants whose duties are exceptionally important, so that they cannot enter upon that somnolent condition which Congressman Smith, of Michigan, so graphically and truthfully portrays as characteristic of large classes in our national capital.

ALL PLEADED NOT GUILTY

PARTICIPANTS IN AFFRAY AT DANTZ'S HOUSE WERE ARRAIGNED.

Happenings at Yesterday's Session of the Somerset County Courts.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, Dec. 28—At yesterday's session of the county courts, Judge Schenck disposed of the following indictments: Wm. Mills, of North Plainfield, indicted for bigamy, pleaded not guilty and will be tried Jan. 13.

Salvator and Leonardo Velardo, for atrocious assault and battery on Gietano Dantz, each pleaded not guilty and were released under $300 bail each to appear Jan. 13 for trial. Their bondsman was Charles M. Meeker. All are North Plainfield parties.

Gietano Dantz, who was indicted for atrocious assault and battery on Salvatore Velardo in North Plainfield, pleaded not guilty, also and was released in $300 bail to appear for trial Jan. 13. Lorenzo Paoli was his bondsman.

Thomas Pariso, of Bound Brook, who is charged with assault and battery on Carmino Fararo, pleaded not guilty and will be tried Jan. 13.

Before Justice Garretson the celebrated case of Irie C. G. Reynolds against Aaron L. Gray, in ejectment, was tried. F. A. Pope was counsel for the plaintiff and C. T. Cowenhoven for the defense.

Gray claimed to be a tenant on the farm of Mrs. Reynolds in Frankiln township. Her counsel stated that she was entitled to possession a year ago last July, as she had given the three days' notice to quit. The Justice construed the writing between them to be not a lease but a mere contract for land, without any right of possession, and directed the jury to bring in a verdict for the plaintiff.

This was rather an abrupt ending to one of the most sensational trials that has taken place here in a long time.

In the dinner scene, Harlan Snodgrass was the cook carrying the boar's head. The last of the series was Christmas in America. Santa Claus was represented by R. F. Fenno and two little children in bed, by Mabel Cook and Catherine Bingaman.

Miss May Whitney sang the songs of the nations, and James R. Joy gave an appropriate reading prefacing each tableaux. An orchestra of nine pieces led by Wilson Derby furnished musical selections. Over sitxy pupils of the Sunday-school took part in the affair. The costumes were a feature and the beauty of the various scenes was enhanced by the calcium light effect operated by J. Hervey Doane.

Miss Gertrude Gnyer recited "Christmas Everywhere" during the entertainment. At the conclusion of the formal programme, R. F. Fenno, as Santa Claus, distributed presents among the pupils of the intermediate department and boxes of candy to the pupils of all departments.

The Bible class presented a collection of books to the teacher, J. M Derby, and the Sunday-school remembered Miss Gertrude Sharp and Isaac Kennedy with purses of money.

In the afternoon the primary department had its entertainment. After parlor games had been played rerfeshments were served and later R. F. Fenno, costumed as Santa Claus, distributed the presents. Those in charge were Miss Susie Davies and Miss Horne, and Mrs. Arthur Crone and Mrs. Thomas McDonald.

The committee, to whom credit is due for the elaborate entertainment in the evening, consisted of Mrs. Frank French, chairman, and the Misses Snyder, Horne and Dyer, and Mrs. Arthur Crone.

HOPE CHAPEL.

The attendance at the exercises in Hope chapel, last evening, was exceptionally large and the programme rendered was the best in years. The feature was a dialogue, entitled "The Revolt of Santa Claus," in which fourteen boys and girls, dressed in costumes to represent different nations, took part.

"Santa Claus" was admirably represented by Miss Grace E. Overton. The other parts were taken by the Misses Mabel Farley, Christina Thompson, Bertha Jones, Rosa Droll, Lizzie Porter, Ruth Kenney and Ethel Manchester and William Steenson, Valentine Steenson, Harry Kenney, James Kenney, Frank Rimmer, Joseph Walls and Ted House. The affair was arranged by Miss Grace E. Overton, assisted by the Misses Katherine Overton, Margaret Abbott and Grace Burt.

The remainder of the programme consisted of selections by the primary department, carol singing by the school, a recitation by Miss Edna Burr and a duet by Miss Anna Warnock and Harold Leach. On its conclusion the primary department was given books and dolls and the older pupils were treated to candy and oranges.

In full charge during the evening was a committee consisting of I. W. Travell, chairman, Mr. and Mrs. N. C. King, Mrs. George Gray, the Misses Grace E. and Katherine Overton, Helen Hall and John Cose, and Henry Pearce.

The chapel was decorated by a committee consisting of John Cose, chairman, Matthew Sweeney, Walter Foster, Benjamin Evans, Harry Holland and Charles Meyer and members of the Christian Endeavor Society.

GRACE M. E. CHURCH.

Grace M. E. church was well filled, last evening, when the Christmas entertainment of the Sunday-school took place. There were three parts, the gigantic picture book, tableaux and pantomime.

In the first number, the gigantic picture book, Miss Edna Sebring represented a little girl mystified over the way Santa Claus makes picture books, and Miss Jennie DeMott took the part of the fairy grandmother. The tableaux scenes were Cinderella, sleeping beauty and beauty and the beast.

Those taking parts were the Misses Bessie Conroy, Edna Sebring, Grace Woolston, Laura Dean, Kittie Ruttlidge, Stella Kline, Sadie Bilyou, Lillie Mason, Marion Major, Ettie Bodenheimer and Bertha and Edith Mantz, and Russell Doeringer, Lyle Beaching, Russell Conroy and Albert Teeter.

The shadow pantomimes were the "Story of the Oysterman" and the "Story of Mary Jane." Mrs. Dyckman Winckler read the stories while the Misses Bessie Conroy and Alice Mason, and Lyle Beaching, Charles and Russell Doeringer were the characters. Andrew Wilson as "Santa Claus" made a speech and this concluded the programme.

For Superintendent John Valiant, Benjamin Schuck presented handsome calendars to the teachers. Candy was distributed among the pupils. The committee on arrangements consisted of Miss Mary Grace Steiner, chairman, Mrs. Anna Most and Mrs. George Bird.

EAST THIRD STREET CHAPEL.

The Chistmas festival of the East Third Street chapel Sunday-school was held last evening. Great pains had been taken by the committee on arrangements to make the affair a success and succeeded admirably.

The programme was well balanced. Among its features were cornet solos by DeWitt Frazee and recitations by Miss Emery. Fred Dunavan was "Santa Claus," and his antics caused no end of fun. Christian Utzinger acted the part of the Snow Man. Presents were distributed to the little ones and all received candy. Superintendent L. W. Randolph presented bottles of perfumery to the teachers and he received frm them a handsome silver spoon, gold mounted.

The committee consisted of L. W. Randolph, and the Misses Alice Woodland and Deborah Winn and Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Braider.

CHURCH OF HEAVENLY REST.

The Christmas exercises for the pupils of the Sunday-school connected with the Mission church of the Heavenly Rest, were held in the parish house. They consisted of carol singing, recitations by Fred Thompson and Fred VanOrden and solos by Valley Brooks, Agnes VanOrden and Florence Phillips. At the conclusion of the programme gifts were distributed by William Winans Moore.

Mr. Moore was in turn agreeably surprised on receiving a handsome memorandum book, the joint gift of the school.

The committee in charge of the exercises consisted of Mrs. E. E. Brown and Miss Elizabeth Foster.

CHRISTMAS WEEK ENDS WITH CHURCH WEDDING

Marriage of Miss Pauline F. Humphrey to Rev. Ernest L. Walz, Jr., Saturday.

AFTERNOON CEREMONY.

BRILLIANT NUPTIAL FUNCTION WHICH WAS LARGELY ATTENDED.

Ceremony Performed by Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards, Assisted by Rev. Dr. C. H. Parkhurst, of New York—The Bridal Party.

Miss Pauline Fowler Humphrey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. Humphrey, of Hillside avenue, and Rev. Ernest Louis Walz, Jr., of New York, were married at the Crescent Avenue church, Saturday afternoon, before a large assemblage of friends from New York, Chicago and this city. It was a brilliant nuptial function and coming, as it did, at the close of the Christmas week it served as a happy climax to an eventful season.

The interior of the stately edifice was adorned with Christmas greens and floral designs. It was precisely at 4 o'clock when William H. Hillman, organist of the City Park church, New York, commenced the opening strains of the wedding march from "Lohengrin" and at that moment the bridal party entered.

The ushers came first. They were Rev. J. H. Dennison, Rev. W. R. Jelliffe, and John B. Innerarity, of New York; George Campbell Harding, of Pittsfield, Mass.; and William B. Gilbert and James P. Murray, of this city. Miss H. Zephine Humphrey, of New Haven, Conn.; Miss Ethel Genung, of Brooklyn, and the Misses Belle Noyes and Katharine Ludington, of New York. Preceding the bride, who was accompanied by her father, Henry M. Humphrey, was the maid of honor, Miss Lucy H. Humphrey, the sister of the bride.

In front of the pulpit the groom and his best man, Frederick W. Walz, of New York, joined the bridal party and the nuptial ceremony was performed. Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards, pastor of the church, was the officiating clergyman, and he was assisted by Rev. Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst, the distinguished divine of New York.

As Mr. and Mrs. Walz wended their way down the main aisle at the conclusion of the ceremony, Mendlessohn's wedding march was rendered by Mr. Hillman.

The reception which followed at the home of the bride's parents was in the nature of an exclusive affair, only the relatives and intimate friends of the young couple being the chosen guests. A delightful wedding supper was served and after receiving the felicitations and profuse congratulations of the guests Mr. and Mrs. Walz departed on their honeymoon.

The bride was gowned in white satin, entrain, heavily trimmed with silk and pearl embroidery, which is a family heirloom, having been brought over from France many years ago. There was also trimming of Venitian point lace. Her veil of tulle was caught up with a spray of orange blossoms. The shower bouquet was of bridal roses. The gowns of the maid-of-honor and the bridemaids were of white organdie, trimmed with cream lace. They wore white Leghorn hats and carried large bunches of holly. Lillies of the valley were the boutonnieres of the ushers.

In the large and valuable collection of gifts receved by the brde were dainty designs in silver, cut glass, china and Favrile glass as well as some attractively framed pictures.

At the conclusion of their honeymoon trip, Mr. and Mrs. Walz will repair to their new home in Plainfield, Vt., where the groom will assume his duties as pastor of the Congregational church, of that place, to which he has recently been called.

Before the bridal party made its appearance at the church door, Mr. Hillman played with much expression "The Wedding Day at Troldhaugen."

Mashed a Finger.

William Emmons, of Coddington avenue, mashed a finger and received severe bruises on the face, while unloading heavy stones on Somerset street yesterday morning. He accidentally fell heavily on the side of the wagon.

Christmas Party.

In honor of her children, Joseph and Sadie, Mrs. Henry Moskowitz, of East Front street, gave a birthday party Christmas Day. Singing and recitations were the features.

FEATURES OF CHRISTIANITY

THREE DISTINCTIVE ONES OUTLINED IN SERMON.

Last of Series of Special Sermons by Pastor of Trinity Reformed Church.

The last of a series of three special sermons was delivered yesterday morning at Trinity Reformed church by the pastor, Rev. Cornelius Schenck. The subject was "The Three Distinctive Features of Christianity."—"Incarnation," "Atonement," and "Regeneration."

The pastor said the advent of Christ was amply prepared for by God, and in the discourse a week ago it was shown that the advent of Christ was to save souls. The first feature, "Incarnation," the speaker said showed God assuming human form and being tabernacled with men. In referring to the second feature, "Atonement," he said that men has been out of harmony and violated the laws of God. Now, Christ has made atonement for sin through sacrifice. Dr. Schenck considered regeneration one of the most important of the three features, and he said that the religion of Christ would last forever because it contains what man must have.

In conclusion, Mr. Schenck made a few remarks appropriate to the new year and urged all to have a desire to live more holy and devoted lives for Christ for the advancement of his cause.

UNEXPECTED FINALE TO BOMBARDMENT OF EGGS

Patrolman Higgins Captured Offenders and Made Them Clean Up the Debris.

'TWAS DONE AS A JOKE.

BUT ALL VESTIGE WAS REMOVED BY CAREFUL SCRUBBING.

Three Small Boys Bombarded Front of Mrs. Seal's Home With Ancient Eggs Saturday Afternoon.

Patrolman Morris Higgins assumed a new role, Saturday afternoon. In addition to meting out summary justice to three mischievous boys, he afforded a half hour's entertainment for 200 delighted spectators.

In their wanderings about town, Edward and Christopher Eskerson and Edward Linzer found some eggs of an uncertiain age in the rear of a grocery store. They were confiscated by the boys who could find no target at which to hurl them until they reached Liberty street. Then a sign attached to the front piazza of Mrs. Seal's home caught their eye. The next moment a fusilade of eggs began. Some hit the sign, some spattered over the front door and a few more scattered about the porch.

When the supply of eggs gave out the boys decamped but not in time to escape Patrolman Higgins' eagle eye. All three were captured and marched back to Mrs. Seal's house. Mrs. Seals at once fell in with a plan suggested by the patrolman. Procuring pails and scrubbing brushes all three culprits were put to work removing the mess.

All three were made to take off their coats. While one carted water the other two were made to go over the entire piazza and the front part of the house beneath it with scrubbing brushes. They were kept at it until not a vestige of the eggs was to be found.

The crowd which gathered to witness the fun offered all sorts of suggestions as to how the work should be done. Several times the boys attempted to make a reply but when they caught the patrolman's stern glance they returned to the task without a word. When it was completed to the satisfaction of Mrs. Seals and Patrolman Higgins they were allowed to go.

Details Concerning the Christmas Exercises Which Were Held in Number of Churches Saturday and Sunday.

Sister Philomena was in charge of the exercises. She was assisted by the other sisters of St. Joseph's Home, who teach in the various departments of the Sunday-school. A number of Christmas hymns and carols were sung and afterwards ice cream and cake and hot chocolate were served to the pupils.

A pleasant feature of the affair was the presentation of a handsome umbrella to Rev. Father William Miller, the rector, by the teachers. The pastor remembered the faithful work of the teachers by giving each a beautiful silver statue of the Sacred Heart, of diminutive size. As the pupils passed out of the room when going home each was handed a large box of candy.

NEW YEARS AT BOYS' CLUB

AN EXCELLENT ENTERTAINMENT HAS BEEN PLANNED.

There Will be Gymnastics of Various Kinds and Some Vaudeville Turns.

The first gymnastic exhibition of the Boy's Club will be given New Year's Eve at the club house on Sycamore street. The boys are practicing nightly in the gymnasium under the instruction of Mr. Saugstad.

There will be a dumb bell drill and exercises on the horse by the class, and individual work such as swinging rings, chin balancing, swinging and balancing trapeze, juggling, slack wire walking, combination acrobatics, and wrestling, including several vaudeville features.

The club has the reputation of having some really clever gymnasts among its members. Frank Sheperd, Clarence Pope and Bertie Hansen have proved themselves gymnasts of ability, and there are several others who will no doubt win approval. No admission will be charged and the parents and friends of the members will be ccrdially welcome.

As the members are very busy practicing for the exhibition they have decided not to allow any visitors tonight. The members are all requested to be present this evening as it will be the last night they will have for class practice.

Programme Given by Members of Loyal Temperance Legion —The Gifts.

The members of the Loyal Temperance Legion enjoyed their annual Christmas celebration, Saturday evening, in the W. C. T. U. rooms on Madison avenue. The attendance was the largest in the history of the Legion. A good sized tree, well filled, was one of the attractions.

After an opening song, "Christmas Night," there was a recitation, "The Little One's Welcome," by the Misses Mabel Seals, Mildred Dennis, Anna and Ethel Vail, Grace Lamatti, Julia Lamatti and Elsie Clark. Other rceitations were "The Child Jesus," by the Misses Anna Vail, Clara Weber and Ethel Schuck; "Work and Play," by Russell Miller; "At Seven in the Morning," by Willie Cooney; "Just Before Christmas," Clifford Vail; "Christmas," the Misses Mildred Dennis, Ruth Moore, Elsie Clakr, Grace Lamatti, Julia Lamatti, Lizzie Frank and Chas. Schuck, John Frank and Russell Miller; "The First Christmas," Miss Helen Woolley. There was also a lullaby song by the Misses Julia and Grace Lamatti, Lizzie Frank and Ethel and Anna Vail and a cradle song by the Legion.

Other features of the programme was a vocal solo by Mrs. Honeyman and the Chautauqua salute given by the Legion to Mrs. Elizabeth Parse, Mrs. R. K. Case and Mrs. M. C. Dobbins, who were present as officers of the Union. One of the most enjoyable parts of the prorgamme was the phonograph selections given by Mrs. George Macintyre.

At the close Mrs. Case made a few remarks to the children as past president. The roll call then followed and the children received boxes of candy. Miss May E. Howley, as president of the Legion, was in charge, assisted by Mrs. Dudley Miller and Mrs. Ira West.

Met An Awful Fate.

An awful fate was met by Mrs. Henry Conley and her two children, Harry and Mary, on South Thirtieth street, Philadelphia. They were burned to death Christmas night in their home. Henry Conley and one other son escaped with frightful burns. David T. Kenney, Andrew Kenney and John S. Kenney, who are cousins of Mrs. Conley, attended the funeral in that city yesterday.

FATHER SMYTH BID HIS FRIENDS FAREWELL

Last Sermon to the Members of His Parish Before His Departure.

GIVEN IN THE MORNING.

ASKED FOR SAME GOOD TREATMENT FOR HIS SUCCESSOR.

Reviewed Many Things That Had Happened Since His Location in Plainfield—A Large Congregation Present.

Rev. Father P. E. Smyth's farewell words as retiring rector of St. Mary's church were spoken by him, yesterday morning. They were uttered in a voice choked with emotion which openly betrayed his great feeling at leaving a people with whom he has worked and advised for nineteen years. Nearly the entire parish was present despite two previous masses and the inclement weather. There was also present many members of other Plainfield churches, including several well known divines.

In his opening remarks, Father Smyth paid a high tribute to Father Egan, who is to be his successor, and asked that the same kindness and fidelity be given him as the present pastor had received for so long a time. He told of Father Egan's work in other fields and bespoke for him continued success with his new charge, being assured that he would receive its support and consideration such as a man in his position needs.

Continuing Father Smyth said his years in Plainfield had been happy ones. True, he had had cares and troubles but all had been surmounted and all had been benefitted by the conflict. Asking his hearers to go back to the time when he first assumed charge of St. Mary's church and recall the conditions which existed, he thanked God for the progress made.

"I couldn't ask for a better parish or a better home," he said, "but honestly and sincerely I've learned to know each one of you too well and a change will do us good. A new priest coming in has more energy and doesn't know the people and consequently will have to search them out and will learn new things in regard to them. Nineteen years ago a few little troubles existed here which have since been cleared and the feeling now between pastor and people is good. I take satisfaction in the knowledge that I, even in a small way, have helped create this good feeling.

"I have no recommendations to make for the future, no suggestion to offer and my principal motive for leaving I have placed before you. I hope you will give me credit for it. But one more thing more I have to say and that is, encourage the Parochial school. If I were dying tonight my last wish would be that you keep up and support the church school. Our children must be trained in religious matters as well as for the walks of life and the school will do it."

In a brief interval previous to concluding Father Smyth took occasion to speak of the financial condition of the church. The total debt is now on the parish buildings, exclusive of the church which is clear, is about $17,000. Of this amount $10,000 is on the school, $5,000 on the convent and the remainder in notes. During the past year the receipts were $10,000 and from this $3,750 of the debt was paid off. In the nineteen years that Father Smyth has been at the head of the church $17,000 worth of repairs had been made to the buildings and $23,000 in interest had been paid on the church debt.

COLUMN FOR THE SHOPPERS

SOME OF ATTRACTIONS TO BE FOUND AT LOCAL STORES.

A Few Interesting Items Concerning Greater Plainfield's Merchants.

Alex Lusardi, fruit dealer, has a good stock of Lucca oil from Lucca, Italy, which he guarantees. He also has a good stock of nuts, lemons, oranges and other fruit.

Only the best quality, but any quantity of cut flowers, may be obtained quickly form William H. Brower's Sons, 946 Broadway, New York, by leaving an order with John L. Brower, 127 East Fifth street.

Don't forget that the New Year's dinner will taste twice as good provided some of the little delicacies, which go to make up a hearty menu are on the board. Consult R. W. Barnes, the delicatessen dealer, of Park avenue.

It has been decided by scientists that pure candy will harm no one. If you eat such sweets be sure and get the kind that are pure. This you will find at Campbell's confectionery on West Front street. He makes all his own candy.

While you are making resolutions for the new year, just include one that you will go to Cashin's on Park avenue and start the new year in proper fashion by ordering a new suit of clothes. The fit and price are in strict harmony.

The local florists enjoyed a heavy trade during the past week and some of them have had difficulty in replenishing depleted stocks. This is not the case at A. E. Lincoln's, however, as the store is always filled with palms, plants and fresh cut flowers.

In a family where there are children it is essential that the milk supply should be absolutely pure. As a further aid to this result sterilizers are now the proper thing. W. Lindsay & Company, of Mountain avenue, have just purchased a new sterlizer, thus insuring the purest milk obtainable.

An opportunity to get something for nothing is offered by C. E. Hepburn & Company, the druggists, corner of Park avenue and Second street. A crisp $5 bill will be awarded the customer guessing the nearest to the correct number of kernels of corn in a quart bottle displayed in the show window.

Isaac Lederer, the enterprising West Front street merchant, is already stocking up with a fine line of "after" holiday goods. The week following Christmas is regarded by the layman as a dull business period but Mr. Lederer is doing all possible to dispel this idea. Bargains and the best of goods are the trade weapons he uses.

FINE CONCERT.

Men's Choral Club Will Make Its Initial Appearance Jan. 20.

Manager Maze Edwards has arranged with the Men's Choral Club, of Plainfield, for a concert at the Casino, Monday, January 20. This will be the first public appearance of the club, which is made up of well-known business and professional people. Its advent will undoubtedly attract much attention.

Wm. E. MacClymont, choirmaster of the Church of the Holy Cross, of this city, and organist of Holy Trinity Episcopal church, of New York, has been directing the rehearsals of the organization and at the concert will officiate as conductor. The club will also have the valuable services of two great artists—Wm. P. DeNike, cello soloist, and Dr. Carl E. Dufft, basso soloist of the Marble Collegiate church, of New York.

Many Visitors Expected.

At the Christmas tree entertainment to be given next Thursday evening under the auspices of Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., a large number of visitors are expected from other councils. The officers-elect will be installed, after which there will be a jollification.

Of Benefit to You.

D. S. Mitchell, Fulford, Md.: "During a long illness I was troubled with bed sores, was advised to try DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve and did so with wonderful results. I was perfectly cured. It is the best salve on the market." Sure cure for piles, sores, burns. Beware of counterfeits. L. W. Randolph.

Mr. Tallman Improving.

It was William M. Tallman and not William M. Stillman, who fell from exhaustion a few nights ago while on his way home. Mr. Tallman lives on Maple avenue and he lay exposed to the terrible weather for three hours before discovered. He is now steadily improving.

OMAHA FLIER WRECKED.

Four Killed and Eighteen Injured by a Collision at Malta, Ill.

CHICAGO, Dec. 30.—Four persons were killed and eighteen injured, several of them possibly fatally, in a collision on the Chicago and Northwestern railroad yesterday at Malta, Ill., sixty miles west of Chicago. The trains in collision were the Omaha flier, an eastbound passenger train, and an eastbound freight train. The wreck caught fire, and two passenger coaches, one sleeping car and eight freight cars were burned, and another sleeping car was partly consumed.

The dead: George W. Rudio, western agent of the Kirk Soap company, residence in Omaha; Mrs. George W. Rudio, Omaha; D. C. Nichols, Council Bluffs, Ia., and E. B. Duncan, sleeping car porter, Chicago.

The injured passengers were attended immediately by surgeons from Rochelle and Dekalb and later were removed to St. Luke's hospital, in Chicago, by special train.

The freight train had taken a siding at Malta, but the train was longer than the siding, and the freight locomotive protruded upon the main track beyond the side track. The incoming train from the west was not stopped until the two locomotives "cornered" at the switch, the passenger engine being thrown into the ditch and several coaches piling upon the wreck. The cars caught fire from the locomotive.

A statement given out by officials of the railroad company explains that the switch at the east end of the siding was opened through mistake and that responsibility probably lies with some member of the crew of the freight train. The statement places the company's property loss at about $30,000.

PAN-AMERICAN CONGRESS.

Recommendations by the Committee on Water Transportation.

CITY OF MEXICO, Dec. 30.—The committee on water transportation of the international American conference will present its report this week. The recommendations suggested are those of Hon. Volney W. Foster, the American member of the committee, and they will be presented to the conference in the following form:

First.—That so far as may be practicable all port charges upon ships be combined in one charge, to be called tonnage dues and levied as such, due consideration being given to equitable adjustments of such dues upon ships in cargo and those in ballast.

Second.—That gross tonnage of vessels be taken as a basis for the collection of tonnage dues.

Third.—That each of the republics here represented be recommended to modify port and harbor regulations so that vessels entering and clearing may do so with all possible dispatch and that to assist in securing this result respective countries shall encourage the building of most modern discharging facilities.

Fourth.—For the purpose of promoting commerce and mutual intercourse a uniform system of maritime and customs administration nomenclature be adopted which shall designate in alphabetical order in equivalent terms in English, Spanish, Portuguese and French the commodities upon which import duties are levied, to be used by all the American republics for the levying of customs imports which are or may hereafter be established, and are also to be used in shipping manifests, consular invoices, etc., but not to affect in any manner the right of each nation to levy the import duties they may now have in force or which they may hereafter establish.

Rebel Leader Takes to Mountains.

CARACAS, Venezuela, Dec. 30.—General Luciano Mendoza, president elect of the state of Carabobo, who rebelled against President Castro, marched on La Victoria and was said to have been defeated and who was later reported to have escaped to the neighborhood of San Juan de los Moros, is now said to have reached Villa de Cura, in the state of Miranda, where he was routed by the government troops. In company with a small number of followers he escaped and reached La Puerta, where he was again overtaken and again defeated. Accompanied by only forty men, General Mendoza passed Ortiz, in the state of Guarico, Dec. 24. He was proceeding in the direction of the mountains, considered to be almost inaccessible.

Twenty Japanese Missing.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Dec. 30.—Twenty Japanese are missing from Steveston and are supposed to have been killed or drowned in the destruction of a Japanese boarding house between Steveston and Point Roberts on Thursday morning. The boarding house stood out on piles, and not a vestige of the structure now remains. The place was two miles from Steveston, and it was impossible to reach it during the storm.

Argentina Rejects the Protocol.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30.—Advices received by Senor Infante, the Chilean charge, confirm the news already published that the Argentine minister at Santiago had informed the Chilean minister of foreign affairs that Argentina could not accept all the terms of the protocol heretofore signed for the settlement of the dispute and that some changes would be necessary in the instrument.

NO FRICTION EXISTS

General Chaffee and Governor Wright Deny Reports.

MILITARY AND CIVIL RULERS AGREE.

All Stories to the Contrary Regarding the Situation at Manila Pronounced Baseless—Order Out of Chaos.

MANILA, Dec. 30.—General Chaffee when questioned concerning the alleged friction between the civil and military authorities in the Philippine archipelago said that absolutely no such friction existed and that perfect harmony prevailed between the two authorities. General Chaffee said that the only occasion when there had been anything approaching friction was in the matter of habeas corpus proceedings in the case of Oakley Brooks and that upon this occasion a solution of the difficulty satisfactorily to both authorities had been found.

General Chaffee said that he and the members of the commission had at times differed in their views, but that these differences were of purely personal opinion. He said that his relations with Governor Taft and Acting Governor Wright and the other commissioners were both officially and socially extremely pleasant and that he thought that the published statement of friction between the civil and military authorities here must have resulted from a misunderstanding of the facts of the case.

General Chaffee concluded by saying that he thought the prospect of subduing the insurrection in all places to be promising.

When Acting Governor Wright was questioned on this same matter, he said:

"Where men of sense are at the head of affairs there is not likely to be much cause for alarm of friction."

Governor Wright has a great admiration for General Chaffee. Referring to the work accomplished by the United States Philippine commission during the last year, Governor Wright said:

"Out of darkness has come light, and immense and wondrous strides have taken place. A year ago everything outside of Manila was practically chaos. Now, outside of the few provinces where the insurrection still exists, everything is in a most flourishing condition. In the 300 miles from Manila north to Aparri not a hostile shot has been fired in many months, while houses have been built and are still building and crops have been planted.

"These same conditions," said Governor Wright, "apply to the larger part of southern Luzon."

Governor Wright said he was satisfied that the majority of the Filipinos recognize and appreciate what has been done and that their leaders were doing all in their power to bring the remaining insurgents to a peaceful view of the situation.

Concluding, Governor Wright said that the natives inhabiting the island of Samar had during all their history been an unmanageable race and that he was not surprised at their present hostility.

Five insurgent officers and 175 men, with 6 cannon, 51 rifles and 17 shotguns, were surrendered yesterday to the American authorities on the island of Cebu. It is now believed this island is pacified.

Poisoned by Candy.

ALTOONA, Pa., Dec. 30.—Three women are lying at the point of death at Blue Knob, this county, the result of eating candy saturated with embalming fluid. They are Rosa and Viola Ickes and Mrs. George F. Noffeker. On Christmas eve twins of John Allison died, and the undertaker stood a bottle of the embalming fluid on a shelf. It upset and spilled some of the contents on the candy. No one knew it, however, and later Mrs. Allison treated her sisters, the Ickes girls, and her grandmother, Mrs. Noffeker, with the candy. They suddenly became deathly sick. Holes were burned in their tongues, cheeks and mouths by the poisonous fluid.

To Buy Land In Palestine.

BASEL, Switzerland, Dec. 30.—The Zionist congress now in session here has resolved to establish a fund of £200,000 to be devoted to the purchasing of land in Syria and Palestine. Collections for this fund will be made in all the countries in the world. The congress also decided to form organizations in various countries to promote the objects of the present congress and to hold biennial congresses.

A Probable Murder.

CUMBERLAND, Md., Dec. 30.—William McMillen, aged seventy-six years, an eccentric mineralogist, who had been missing for four days, crawled down the mountain near Barton and died shortly after he was found. He was in the habit of carrying his savings on his person, but when his clothes were searched no money was found upon him. It is thought he was murdered.

Rosebery Leaves the Liberals.

LONDON, Dec. 30. — The Daily News, a Liberal organ, today admits that Lord Rosebery has declined to act with the Liberal party, and, although the paper regrets his voluntary severance from this party, it thinks it well that the air has been cleared and that Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman is more firmly installed in the leadership.

A Fatal Collision.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Dec. 30.—An East Lake street car collided with a number of freight cars attached to a switch engine at Twenty-seventh street and First avenue, and one man was killed, and two others were injured.

A PEKING SENSATION

Chinese Attend a Dinner at Which Were Women.

PROGRAMME FOR COURT'S RETURN.

Dowager Empress Trying to Assert Her Importance—Two Thousand Additional Troops Enter the Capital.

PEKING, Dec. 30.—Considerable sensation has been caused in Chinese official circles by a dinner given at his residence by United States Minister Conger and which was attended by the leading officials of the Chinese foreign office. Among the officials present were Ma Tung, a former Boxer leader, and Wang Wen Shao, one of the Chinese plenipotentiaries. The dinner was attended by several American ladies.

It was formerly the custom for prominent Chinese officials never to enter a foreign legation except upon the most formal occasions, while the meeting of foreign ladies socially would have been considered as degrading as would the associating with Chinese women upon the same footing.

This event is significant of the progressive tendency of today which has recently been manifested in many ways.

A party of Mantchoo princes, including Prince Su, collector of taxes on goods entering Peking, started Saturday to meet the Chinese court. Prince Su intends to press his claim to be sent as an envoy to Great Britain upon the occasion of the coronation of King Edward.

The dowager empress is making vigorous efforts to assert herself before the Chinese populace, with a view of retrieving the prestige lost by her during the last few years.

The programme for the court's return to Peking provides that the emperor shall precede the dowager empress to this city in order that he may be enabled to meet the dowager empress with great honors at the station when she arrives subsequently.

Two thousand additional Chinese troops entered Peking last Friday.

The Austrians have mounted two large guns upon the fortifications surrounding their legation. The other foreign legations keep their guns concealed. Although the British are well supplied with artillery and the Germans can occasionally be seen drilling on their glacis with field and rapid fire guns, the Americans, who hold the crucial position at the Chammen gate, are not supplied with artillery.

The ministers of the foreign powers at Peking have agreed that when the Chinese court returns here if they are merely invited to dine with the tsungli-yamen, as heretofore, instead of with the Chinese emperor in the palace, as was recently stipulated, that they will all refuse the invitation.

At Newchwang the Russians have secured control of the telegraphs and cables. This action on the part of Russia is causing disputes between that country and the foreign consuls at Newchwang.

New York Legislature.

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 30.—In three days the legislative machinery of the state of New York will be set in motion for the one hundred and twenty-fifth time in its history. Although the date set for the opening of the senate and assembly is a legal holiday, next Wednesday nevertheless will witness the convening of both houses. As is customary, caucuses will be held by both parties tomorrow night. Speaker S. Fred Nixon will be selected as the majority nominee for speaker. Assemblyman George H. Palmer will be the choice of the minority for the same office. This makes him the minority leader. Assemblyman J. P. Allds of Chenago will be the majority leader on the floor. Colonel Archie E. Baxter will again be selected as clerk of the assembly. There will of course be no change in the senate leaders and officials, as there was no election of senators this year.

Odell Opposed to Open Sunday.

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 30.—Governor Odell has written a paragraph for his message in which he declares absolutely against Justice Jerome's plan for opening the saloons during certain hours on Sunday. Those who have seen the draft of the message say that the governor will meet the issue squarely and express his unqualified disapproval of any attempt to "continentalize the American Sabbath." He has indorsed the position of a large class which is unalterably opposed to Sunday opening, and his language conveys the impression that, no matter what the legislature may do, he as governor will do all in his power to prevent any relaxation of the Sunday laws.

Our Representative to Spain.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30.—Hon. J. L. M. Curry of this city has been selected by the president to represent the United States at Madrid on the occasion of the "coming of age" of the young King Alfonso XIII. on May 17. Dr. Curry was the United States minister to Spain during the years 1885 to 1889, the first administration of President Cleveland. He was present in his official capacity at the palace when the king made his advent into the world. Mrs. Curry will accompany him.

Fire in a Pennsylvania School.

POTTSTOWN, Pa., Dec. 30.—The new east wing of the Hill Preparatory school was destroyed by fire early Sunday morning, entailing a loss of $40,000. The wing contained the swimming pool, manual training room, classrooms and dormitories. Most of the contents of the rooms were saved.

WINTER FLOODS.

Pennsylvania Streams Over Their Banks—Great Danger Threatened.

LANCASTER, Pa., Dec. 30.—A heavy rainfall has been continuous in this section for thirty-six hours. All the streams in the county are swollen greatly beyond their usual volume, and the Conestoga creek has overflowed its banks to an extent unknown in recent years. The bridge crossing this stream at Engleside is threatened with destruction, and traffic on the Lancaster-Strasburg railway, of which the bridge is a link, has been suspended. The bridge has begun to move and, it is believed, will be washed away. It was erected seventy-five years ago.

High water at the plant of the Lancaster Electric Light company at Rock Hill, on the Conestoga, affected the system, and sections of the city are in darkness. The Susquehanna river is rising rapidly. At Safe Harbor, where the Conestoga empties, the rise in the river is at the rate of six inches an hour. The tracks of the Port Deposit and Columbia railroad at this point are submerged, and much apprehension is felt for property on low lying ground. At Bald Friar, farther down the river, a landslide has occurred, covering the tracks at Columbia and Marietta.

New Jersey Towns In Danger.

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Dec. 30.—The heavy rains of the last twenty-four hours have caused the Raritan river and its tributaries to flood the Raritan valley and do much damage to farm lands. The situation is serious, and the business section of Bound Brook is again threatened with inundation, such as it experienced in the winter of 1896. The river at that point has already flooded the tracks of the Brunswick Traction company and stopped traffic. The river is rising at the rate of ten inches an hour, and the residents in the lower portion of the town have become alarmed and are moving to the upper stories of the buildings.

West Virginia Streams Swollen.

HINTON, W. Va., Dec. 30.—Heavy rains here for the past thirty-six hours have caused Green Brier and New rivers to become very high. They are rising six inches an hour. The damage along both streams will be heavy. The Chesapeake and Ohio tunnel at Allegheny is blocked by cars being derailed by a landslide.

Floods In Georgia.

COLUMBUS, Ga., Dec. 30.—Owing to the recent rains the Chattahoochee river at this point is a raging torrent, the water having risen to a point thirty-eight feet above low water mark. The large stone dam of the Columbus Power company on North Highlands has broken in two places.

Flood Warnings Sent Out.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Dec. 30.—Heavy rains over the entire upper basin of the Tennessee river will produce a flood tide. The weather bureau predicts that the river will pass the danger line here by noon today, and flood warnings have been sent out.

Wrecks Caused by Flood.

OPELIKA, Ala., Dec. 30. — Two wrecks occurred on the Western Railway of Alabama on account of heavy rains, which caused two embankments to give way. One man was killed, three were injured, and the property loss is heavy.

The Potomac Threatens.

CUMBERLAND, Md., Dec. 30.—The Potomac river is rapidly rising, and a flood is threatened as a consequence of thirty-six hours of incessant rain.

Federation of Railway Brotherhoods

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Dec. 30.—The employees of the Wyoming division of the Lehigh Valley railroad have started a movement for the federation of the brotherhoods of engineers, firemen, conductors, trainmen, switchmen and telegraphers, which they expect to extend along the entire line from New York to Buffalo. A joint meeting of delegates from all the brotherhoods was held at Pittston, and the men were in session for two hours. Representatives of each brotherhood favored the movement, believing that with the aid of the others the grievance of all could be readily adjusted. After a general discussion a committee comprised of members of each class of workmen was appointed to arrange the preliminaries for the federation, and another meeting will be held in a short time.

Miss Cropsey's Funeral.

ELIZABETH CITY, N. C., Dec. 30.—Funeral services over the body of Miss Nellie Cropsey, whose remains were discovered in the Pasquotank river after a search lasting several weeks, were held in the Methodist church here yesterday. The church was crowded to suffocation, and the streets leading to it were lined with people, who uncovered as the hearse drove past. The Rev. R. R. Tuttle conducted the services, assisted by the Revs. C. W. Duke and J. B. Forbes of the Baptist church. At the conclusion of the services the body was placed in the Sunday school room and later will be taken by Andrew G. Cropsey, uncle of the girl, to Brooklyn for interment.

NEW YORK BANKS.

Superintendent Kilburn Talks Plainly About Loan Associations.

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 30.—Superintendent of Banks Frederick O. Kilburn in his annual report, which will be transmitted to the legislature on Wednesday, recommends that he be given power to inspect and supervise personal loan associations or that they be removed entirely from connection with the state banking department. Concerning them he says:

"Such associations have been invested by the state with a benevolent or charitable character, whereas most of them rival Shakespeare's famous character in stipulating in their transactions the most merciless terms which the necessities of their customers compel them to accept and then in exacting from their victims the uttermost condition nominated in the bond.

"The great state of New York, having a due regard for its dignity and for its obligations to the unfortunate and distressed, cannot afford longer to stand sponsor for the character of benevolence which its statutes ascribe to these personal loan associations nor to consent that they continue to enjoy the right to wring from those forced to borrow upon harsh terms so ruinous rates of interest and such exorbitant charges in other directions. I regard it as a duty to humanity rather than an ordinary official obligation that I speak concerning it as I have done.

"Twelve state banks were closed during the fiscal year and eight authorized. The number of this class of banks reporting to the department is 198. Their aggregate capital is $28,245,[illegible] and their surplus and undivided profits $29,176,768. Their aggregate resources are $403,477,331, a gain of $52,397,059 over 1900.

"There are sixty-one companies under the supervision of the department."

From Jan. 1 to July 1 savings bank deposits increased $40,492,170, or nearly $6,000,000 more than in the corresponding period of the preceding year, and the gain for the year from July, 1900, to July, 1901, was $65,540,241 and this notwithstanding the heavy withdrawals during a few weeks prior to the presidential election, due to apprehension regarding the possible result of that contest.

The superintendent recommends that it be made by law compulsory upon the part of every board of bank directors to examine periodically and as often at least as once in every six months the assets and liabilities of their respective institutions and report the result under oath to the superintendent of banks.

BRUCE CONFESSES.

Story of the Hudson Assassination Revealed.

HUDSON, N. Y., Dec. 30.—Harvey Bruce, one of the four youths charged with the murder of their uncle, Peter A. Hallenbeck, on Christmas eve, has made a full confession, freely admitting his own guilt and giving details of the crime.

Yielding to the entreaties of his aunt and his mother to save himself at least from the electric chair, he broke down, and, with tears streaming from his eyes, told the story of the tragedy. This he repeated before witnesses and signed a written statement.

Bruce declared that he had been induced to join his cousins—Burton, Willis and Frederick Van Wormer—and that they had fired the first shots at the old farmer. The confession resulted in the sudden suspension of the inquest by Coroner Lick.

Many citizens in Columbia county believe that the murder was the result of a family conspiracy with a double motive, revenge and cupidity.

Robbed of $6,000 In Gold.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Dec. 30.—A special to The Chronicle from Washington, Ga., says that the Misses Battle, two elderly maiden ladies living at Barnett Junction, on the Washington branch of the Georgia railroad, were robbed at an early hour in the morning of $6,000 in gold. When the robbers entered the house, the women, hearing a noise, investigated, lighting a lamp. The robbers dashed a bucket of cold water on the one holding the lamp and overawed them. The women lived alone in the house. Several previous attempts had been made to rob them during the last few months. The ladies believe the robbers were white men, having recognized one of them, they say.

A search discovered him hanging by a clothesline in the barn.

COMING DIPLOMACY.

Canadian Border Controversies Likely to Be Settled.

A LONG DRAWN OUT DISPUTE.

Lord Pauncefote Desires to Clear Up All Difficulties Between Great Britain and United States Before His Term Expires.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30.—It is expected that efforts will be renewed before long for the settlement of the numerous controversies which have long existed between the United State and Great Britain growing out of relations along the Canadian border, the Atlantic fisheries, warships on the great lakes, the Alaskan boundary and other questions. Heretofore the negotiations designed to secure a settlement of the matters recited have not proved effective largely because of the cumbersome machinery of negotiation, and this has led to a belief that much more could be accomplished by direct negotiations between Secretary Hay and Lord Pauncefote on the main points and the subsequent assembling of a commission representing the United States, Great Britain and Canada to give form to the basis of agreement rendered.

The British authorities have expected for some time that when the isthmian canal treaty was once disposed of there would be a renewal of efforts to adjust the Alaskan boundary and other pending questions, the canal treaty being regarded as one of many pending issues. Now that the British government has yielded the Clayton-Bulwer treaty and other points in the isthmian negotiations it desires to take up some of the other questions in which they have important interests involved.

Lord Pauncefote desires to clear up all pending differences and have "a clean slate" before his present term as embassador comes to a close. When he came to Washington, there were four great issues between the two governments. The first of these was the Bering sea controversy, which had reached an acute stage. Diplomacy disposed of this issue. The second issue was over Venezuela, which, like the seal question, at one time threatened war, but the efforts of diplomacy were again successful in averting trouble and bringing about a settlement.

The third important issue was on the isthmian canal, which has been satisfactorily disposed of by the recent Hay-Pauncefote treaty. This leaves only one issue remaining in order to bring about a "clean slate"—namely, the border controversy both as to Canada and Alaska. The British officials usually link these various boundary controversies together, as they are more or less connected. At present a modus vivendi exists as to the Alaskan boundary chiefly for the purpose of avoiding a clash along the border and holding each side in check until a final boundary is determined upon. It seems to be conceded on both sides that the modus cannot be carried on indefinitely and that sooner or later the main question of establishing a permanent boundary must be settled. Just what steps will be adopted are not disclosed, but it seems likely that direct negotiations and the subsequent assembling of a commission will commend itself to the parties concerned as the most feasible procedure.

Farewell to Hofmann.

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—A large audience, including most of the notables in the music world of the metropolis, paid a flattering tribute to Josef Hofmann on the occasion of his farewell piano recital at Carnegie hall. The programme offered some of the best selections from Beethoven, Mendelssohn, Schubert, Chopin, Rubinstein, Wagner and Moszkowski, giving the pianist opportunity for a full display of his wonderful technic and sympathetic work. The closing selection was the overture from "Tannhauser" and was followed by a demonstration which resulted in the pianist playing four additional selections.

A COMPARISON.

There is food for considerable thought in an editorial which appeared in last week's issue of the Morris County Chronicle. Editor Lindsley publishes at the head of his editorial column a list of some of the local possibilities for the new year. As Morristown is often pointed out as one of the ideal suburban cities, it is interesting to know just what that place still lacks.

Most prominently brought out is the dissatisfaction with the present service of the D. L. and W., both with New York and Dover. Faster time and more trains are mentioned. A trolley is suggested. A wish is expressed to have fewer children on the streets at night. This immediately suggests to mind a curfew law and the thought of a curfew law for such a good town as Morristown is rather a shock.

Among the municipal improvements referred to are more macadamized streets, dollar gas and electric light, and manual training in the public schools. Then comes the surprising request that there be fewer hard cider and poker joints.

Because we live in Plainfield and its troubles are brought home more forcibly in consequence, many Plainfielders are given to the belief that this city is worse off than many of its neighbors. This tabulation of the troubles of an ideal community like Morristown is therefore a revelation to many. When these things are compared with Plainfield's kicks, it certainly looks as if the people of the city and borough were unusually well favored. Just at present, unsatisfactory service on both steam and electric roads is engaging the attention of the population of Greater Plainfield but there is reason to hope that the condition of both will eventually be improved. And notice, Morristown hasn't any trolley at all and complains about the lack of proper railroad facilities.

The Daily Press has often pointed out the excellent work which is being done by the Plainfield Relief Association. The distribution of gifts, both useful and otherwise, Friday afternoon, was only another evidence of the successful accomplishments of that organiaztion. Four hundred children, from families whose means were too small to permit of celebrating the Christmas festival in the old fashioned way, were made happy. Means are required to carry on such work and the association depends on the generosity of the people of Plainfield for its support.

The work of the Common Council for the year of 1901 will be completed this evening, when the concluding session of the City Fathers will be held. As usual, most of the annual reports will be presented. One of the most important of these reports is that of the street committee, which includes that of the street commissioner. This report will be published in full in tomorrow's Daily Press and will make very interesting reading for those who are at all interested in municipal affairs.

For the first time in a decade, the local interest in chess has been revived. The Young Men's Christian Association has conducted a tournament this winter which has proved decidedly successful. The game is a good one and well worthy of encouragement and it is to be hoped that the work of the association in that direction will be continued.

Santa Claus has not quite completed his Christmas visits to Plainfield. Tonight and Wednesday night, the jolly old Christmas saint is booked to appear in a number of places.

WHAT OTHERS SAY.

Clippings From Other Newspapers Which May be of Interest to Plainfield and Its Citizens.

Let's see; didn't Mayor Smalley appoint a committee on municipal ownership to investigate and report on a system of water works, to be under the absolute control of the borough? It must have been a long time ago, but the Plainfield Water Supply Company seems to be hanging on just the same, and does not seem to be worrying itself as to the final outcome.—North Plainfield Review.

One Minute Cough Cure afford immediate relief for coughs, colds and all kind of throat and lung troubles. For croup it is unequalled. Absolutely safe. Very pleasant to take, never fails and is really a favorite with the children. They like it. L. W. Randolph.

Health and Beauty.

A poor complexion is usually the result of a torpid liver or irregular action of the bowels. Unless nature's refuse is carried off it will surely cause impure blood. Pimples, boils and other eruptions follow. This is nature's method of throwing off the poisons which the bowels failed to remove. DeWitt's Little Early Risers are world famous for remedying this condition They stimulates the liver and promote regular and healthy action of the bowels but never cause griping, cramps or distress. Safe pills. L. W. Randolph.

Gossip of Present-Day Doings in the Baseball World

What? Johnny McGraw, the best-known man in baseball, a philosopher! It would be difficult for those whose acquaintance with the redoubtable "Muggsy" extended no farther than the sight of the little fellow playing third base to imagine the pugnacious athlete in the role of a philosopher. Yet, at the recent meeting of the American league, when the magnates held their annual "pow-wow," McGraw astonished his colleagues with wit, humor and philosophy.

The Convention Fever Is On.

"Just got in from Baltimore," remarked McGraw, as he walked into the hotel corridor dressed like a successful leading man in a popular play. "Thought I might be late, you know, and walked briskly from the railroad station. A matter of five minutes in an annual baseball meeting is as important as a grain of sand on the seashore. What, no heavy 'villains' wearing gum shoes waiting to sandbag me! That's too bad. Of course, the preliminary directors' meeting is being held. That is so important, you know. They have to tell the anxious public who won the pennant last year. Then there are our accounts—auditing these statements, of course, is a terrible task. Guess baseball men have the convention fever, and will never recover unless they are innoculated with 'non-ponderous germs.' Those germs are better than Irishmen in a ball team. They knock out all shams and bring people down to rock bottom business. The chances are the board of directors is in session, tilted back on chairs to a man, and sitting in a room that is blue with cigar smoke."

McGraw's smile when he said this drove one of the reporters to the neighboring office building on a Sherlock Holmes quest. Subsequently he reported that McGraw had correctly "sized up" the situation. The pseudo ponderous body of directors was in session, but had a camp fire been burning inside the circle of baseball warriors, and had a captive National league spy been bound to a property tree from some theater, the meeting would have been but a trifle more melodramatic.

"You-see," continued McGraw, when he had carefully checked his $100 overcoat, "baseball men like to travel hundreds of miles to sit in a circle and deliberate. If the supreme court only knew how massive were the brains of the magnates, the justices would go out and play golf and leave decisions to the board of directors.

"There will be nothing done at the annual meeting that could not be accomplished by writing a few letters. But as the Amalgamated Association of Objectors to the Negative in Photography, the Association of Sons of Fathers of the Real Sons of Maryland, etc., insist upon holding annual meetings, so do the baseball fellows. It's fine to occupy a sleeping-car all by yourself and tell the wondering porter that you are going to the annual meeting in Chicago to save the baseball world $1,000,000. That dignitary of the car will shine your shoes every half-hour if you permit him.

"It's delicious to pose in a hotel lobby while all of your newspaper friends are telling the nimble artists to 'catch him when he points his finger.' I strongly suspect that by this time the dear public thinks the annual session of baseball magnates is something of a mutal admiration society. I'm in favor of baseball men holding their annual sessions at home with a bottle of ink and four stub pens and three quires of linen paper for ammunition. Besides, just think of the danger a player-manager runs when he visits the annual session. He might be kidnaped by a National league villain. Or he might have a caller, such as Jim Carney, the king of prairie league managers, who would pour tales of big money into his ears and sign him for the season to captain and lead the Dreadnaughts or the Daisy Cutters. If it were not so prodigiously ponderous, an annual meeting might be called a serious waste of time, money and breath. I recall the days when I, with other players, used to haunt the corridors of the hotel down in New York when the National league temple of mystery was sizzling with deals, counter-deals, mysteries deeper than the Charlie Ross case, and every magnate who passed through the portals wore gum shoes and a brigand's cloak. For convention fevers take a prescription composed of 50 parts of railroad tickets, ten parts of inconvenience in traveling, ten parts of hotel bills, ten parts of tobacco smoke and 20 parts of hot air and buncombe. However, if it is fashionable to have this fever once or twice a year, I suppose I'll have to uphold my dignity as a magnate by submitting to its ravages. The fever leaves scars."

Going to a League Meeting.

And this is "Muggsy," the infielder whose sobriquet was given to him by critics because he could browbeat an umpire into submission quicker than Jesse Burkett, Hughey Jennings, Freddie Clarke or any of the famous loud talkers of the diamond! "T" Donahue, the wisest backstop who ever saved a pitcher a wild pitch, heard "Muggsy" expatiate, and declared to a friend that McGraw had sharpened his tongue on hot crab meat a la Maryland, at his Baltimore home.

Of course, a gathering of the powerful in baseball without Capt. A. C. Anson would be a decided frost. Your uncle keeps his hand in by trotting around at the annual meets and, under the fire of pleasantry, often amuses his auditors with a wealth of reminiscent gossip. Towering above the throng, in which were President Ban Johnson, Vice President Charles Somers, the Boston magnate; "Connie" Mack, Virgil Garvin—the tallest pitcher on the slab within the memory of man—Tom Loftus, the new manager of the Washington team; smiling Frank Dwyer, who will direct the Detroit club next season, and a host of other celebrities, Capt. Anson brought up the subject of crooked baseball, when some one told him that the American league had placed a ban on betting on games by providing a penalty of ejectment from the grounds.

Uncle Anson Defends the Game.

"In my long experience on the diamond—"

"Let's see; you played ball 54 years, did you not?" interrupted John McCarthy, the outfielder.

"Don't be hard on the old man," replied Capt. Anson. "As I was saying, in all my time on the diamond, I never heard of a crooked deal in baseball. Years ago there used to be considerable betting on games, but the men who played could not be reached by the gamblers. Everybody knows that baseball men play just as conscientiously as they know how to play, and it would be the most difficult thing in the world for a man to successfully carry out a job to 'throw' a game.

"One day when I was in a justice court during the preliminary hearing of the case against the Chicago club of the National league, for playing on Sunday, the prosecuting reformer, who knew as much about the game of ball as we played it as I do about the source of the Nile, approached me to enter into conversation.

"'This baseball business, Mr. Anson,' he began, 'is like a lottery, is it not?'

"'Well the element of luck plays a big part,' I replied.

"'You just pool the money and fix on the side what will win, I suppose?' he said.

"What I said to that man was not printed in the record. He was prosecuting us, no doubt in full sincerity, but as there was no law in the state against Sunday ball playing, we won our case. Do you know that I gave that fellow a ticket for every game of ball we played at home that season, expecting that he would go out to see how the boys fought to win. But he never appeared."

"Sold the tickets, I suppose?" was the comment of a bystander.

"No, sir," retorted Anson. "He saved them all, and at the end of the season told me that it was against his principles to see a lot of men hired to play baseball. This opened the way for me to argue the matter with him, and—"

"To-day he is the chief rooter," interjected another bystander.

"No, sir," retorted Anson. "He saved team that rolls Saturday evenings, and the lights are put out in the alleys at three minutes to 12 o'clock. His next venture will be golf, and then we will get him around to the idea that there are as good men playing baseball for compensation as are to be found in any walk of life."

"Every ball player in the land is sorry for Big Amos Rusie, the pitcher, who could not stand prosperity," remarked Pitcher Jimmy Callahan, as the conference of ball players was about to break up. But the players are going to derive a great deal of sound advice from Rusie's case. They are saving their money. The ball player who can keep in the glare of the calcium for more than five or six years and keep up his earning capacity, is not the rule. He's the exception."

The Fall of Rusie—Still He's Happy.

Rusie once made $6,000 a year twirling for New York. He thought he could always earn that generous salary. "Good fellows" helped him spend the money. Age, increased avoirdupois and a dead arm came to "Mighty Rusie" and the managers of fast teams in the big league no longer saw in Rusie the drawing card. They perceived that he was a back number. Rusie, finding the profession practically closed to him, went to work as a day laborer. He is happy and contented and his change in living has brought back to him the love and companionship of his devoted wife, who had to get a divorce. Rusie can earn in several years the amount that an indulgent baseball club used to give him for less than 100 hours of actual work a season. His case points a moral to every athlete. The specter of uselessness comes to every athlete who is careless about his ways of living. There will be no day laborers among the thrifty baseball men. When they cease to be efficient on the diamond they will have a competence sufficient to live upon.

How to Boil an Egg.

A method to prepare soft and medium cooked eggs has been evolved by the repeated laboratory tests at the University of Illinois. Using a granite-ware saucepan of one quart capacity, a pint of water was heated over a gas flame; when the water boiled the gas was turned off and an egg which had been kept in the refrigerator, was dropped in the water. Without disturbing the vessel or relighting the flame, the former was covered closely and the egg allowed to remain in the water six minutes. It was then soft-cooked. One kept in two minutes more was medium-cooked. This way of preparing boiled eggs is recommended for its certain result of digestibility.

BOICE, RUNYON & CO.,
Park Avenue and Railroad.

It was at Fort Slocum, in New York Harbor, during the Spanish war. An officer lay on his bunk, feeling, as he said, decidedly uncomfortable, when the post surgeon came in. The Colonel said he was suffering from indigestion. "Well," said the doctor, "Is there anything that you have been in the habit of taking that generally helps you?" "Yes," said the Colonel, "there is one thing and the only thing that has ever done me any good, but you can't give it to me." "What is it?" said the doctor. "A Ripans Tabule," was the Colonel's reply. A fellow officer standing by spoke up cheerfully: "Why, Colonel, I can fix you out," and he produced a 5-cent carton from his waistcoat pocket. The best thing about the story is that it did fix the Colonel up all right, and the doctor, manifesting an interest, was told what R-I-P-A-N-S are, what they are used for, and what great good they were doing in the community. After he had looked the circular through the doctor remarked, "Well, I don't see why that is not a good thing."

WANTED:—A case of bad health that R-I-P-A-N-S will not benefit. They banish pain and prolong life. One gives relief. Note the word R-I-P-A-N-S on the package and accept no substitute. R-I-P-A-N-S, 10 for 5 cents, may be had at any drug store. Ten samples and one thousand testimonials will be mailed to any address for 5 cents, forwarded to the Ripans Chemical Co., No. 10 Spruce St., New York.

CHILDREN'S CLOTHES.

They Are as Elaborate as Those of Their Elders.

Children's garments this winter follow the fashion of those of their elders. They are covered with fine tuckings, stitchings and embroideries. The babies' coats especially show a wealth of fine needlework. A pretty model has the triple cape effect, the edge of each tiny cape being finished with a scalloped application of white panne. One of the newest frocks for a little girl is made of fine white wool crape, the entire dress being laid in horizontal pin tucks. It is trimmed with heavy yellow guipure laid in shaped bands, and through this at intervals are passed narrow velvet ribbons.

A knotted sash of black velvet ribbon completes this thoroughly French costume. The prejudice against having black on a child's dress seems to have died out, for one sees these chic touches of black quite frequently even on very young children.

The smart child's coat here shown is of coffee brown cloth, lined throughout with satin of the same shade. The coat depends principally for style on the heavy stitchings, which simulate an empire effect. A narrow collar and revers of mink give it a softening touch. The muff is also of the mink. The large picturesque hat is of pale blue felt trimmed with pompons of dark brown and velvet ribbon of the same shade.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

COLD WEATHER COSTUMES.

Dresses of Checkerboard and Striped Velvet Are Novelties.

The latest Paris models in gowns show much larger sleeves. This increase, however, is chiefly noticeable below the elbow, where in some dresses it attains very "floppy" proportions. Velvets and velveteens make charming gowns. The most popular of these materials are either pressed into fine checks or else striped. Checkerboard velvets, as they are called, are simply plain colored velvets with the nap stamped in different directions to give the goods the effect of being checked. These velvet gowns are, many of them, made up with the skirts stitched down into narrow box plaits, which are allowed to flare at the bottom. The bloused waists are treated in a similar manner. Yokes of fine lace are introduced, and there are frillings and puffings of this at the elbow and wrists.

Nearly all the cloth gowns have a touch of velvet. Perpendicular bands of this appliqued down the skirt are a novelty, as are also velvet and lace appliqued figures, with the under material cut out to show a bright colored lining.

Gored flounces figure on nearly every skirt. The newer models have as many as half a dozen of these increasing in width as they reach the bottom. The trains of all dressy costumes are longer than ever.

A simple but charming gown is shown in today's picture. It is made of royal blue velvet, and it is trimmed with deep saffron lace. The skirt is perfectly plain, with the exception of a graduated flounce. The waist is laid in box plaits, with a square yoke of all over lace outlined by the heavy lace applique. Down the front there also runs a broader strip of this applique. The full undersleeves are of the all over lace, the belt of pale yellow silk to match the lace.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

My Strangest Case

BY GUY BOOTHBY.

Author of "DR. NIKOLA," "THE BEAUTIFUL WHITE DEVIL," "PHAROS, THE EGYPTIAN," Etc.

[Copyrighted, 1901, by Ward, Lock & Co.]

"Perhaps not, but there are other ways of finding out; that is, if a man has his wits about him. You've got to put two and two together if you want to get on in this world. Coddy has translated it all, and this is what it amounts to: When the king had shown the traveler his treasure, the latter declared that his eyes were so blinded by its magnificence that he could scarcely mount the steps to the spot where his majesty gave audience to his people. In another place it mentions that when the king administered justice he was seated on the throne in the courtyard of the Three-headed Elephants. Now what we've got to do is to find that courtyard, and find it we will."

"But how do you know that the treasure hasn't been taken away years ago? Do you think they were such fools as to leave it behind when they went elsewhere? Not they!"

Though they were well out of earshot of the land, and alone upon the boat, Kitwater looked round him suspiciously before he answered. Then a pleasant smile played over his face. It was as if he were recalling some happy memory.

"How do I know it?" he asked, by way of preface. "If you'll listen for a moment, I'll tell you. If you want more proof, when I've done, you must be difficult to please. When I was up at Moulmein six months ago, I came across a man I hadn't met for several years. He was a Frenchman, who I knew had spent the most of his life away back in Burmah. He was very flush of money at the time, and kept throwing out hints, when we were alone, of a place he knew of where there was the biggest fortune on earth, to be had for the mere picking up and carrying away. He had brought away as much of it as he could, but he hadn't time to get it all, before he was chased out by the Chinese, who, he said, were strong in the neighborhood."

Kitwater stopped and rubbed his hands with a chuckle. Decidedly the recollection was a pleasant one.

"Well," he continued, "to make a long story short, I took advantage of my opportunity, and got his secret out of him by . . . . well, never mind how I managed it. It is sufficient that I got it. And the consequence is, I know all that is to be known."

"That's all very well, but what became of the Frenchman? How do you know that he isn't back there again filling his pockets?"

"I don't think he is," Kitwater replied, slowly. "It put me to a lot of inconvenience, and came just at the time when I was most anxious to leave. Besides, it might have meant trouble." He paused for a moment. "As a matter of fact, they brought it in 'suicide during temporary insanity,' brought on by excessive drinking,' and that got me out of the difficulty. It must have been insanity, I think, for he had no reason for doing away with himself. It was proved that he had plenty of money left. What was more, Coddy gave evidence that, only the day before, he had told him he was tired of life."

Hayle looked at both with evident admiration.

"Well, you two, taken together, beat cock-fighting," he said, enthusiastically. Then he added: "But what about the secret? What did you get out of him?"

"Here it is," said Kitwater, taking an old leather case from his pocket, and producing from it a small piece of parchment. "There's no writing upon it, but we have compared it with another plan that we happen to have, and find that it squares exactly."

He leaned over Hayle's shoulder and pointed to a certain portion of the sketch.

"That's the great temple," he said; "and what the red dot means we are going to find out."

"Well, suppose it is, what makes you send for me?" Hayle inquired, suspiciously.

"Because we must have another good man with us," Kitwater replied. "I'm very well, but you're better. Codd's head piece is all right, but if it comes to fighting, he might just as well be in Kensal Green. Isn't that so, little man?"

Mr. Codd nodded his head.

"I said, send for Hayle," he remarked in his quiet little voice. "Kit sent, and now you're here, and it's all right."

"Codd speaks the truth," said Kitwater. "Now, what we have to do is to arrange the business part of the matter, and then to get away as quickly as possible."

The business portion of the matter was soon settled, and Hayle was thereupon admitted a member of the syndicate for the exploration of the ancient town of Sengkor-Wat in the hinterland of Burmah.

For the remainder of the day Hayle was somewhat more silent than usual.

"If there's anything in their yarn it might be managed," he said to himself that night, when he was alone in his bedroom. "Kitwater is clever, I'll admit that, and Coddy is by no manner of means the fool he pretends to be. But I'm Gideon Hayle, and that counts for something. Yes, I think it might be managed."

What it was he supposed might be effected he did not say, but from the smile upon his face, it was evident that the thought caused him considerable satisfaction.

Next day they set sail for Rangoon.

PART II.

The shadows of evening were slowly falling as the little party of which Kitwater, Codd and Hayle, with two Burmen servants, were members, obtained their first view of the gigantic ruins of which they had come so far in search. For many days they had been journeying through the jungle, now the prey of hope, now of despair. They had experienced adventures by the score, though none of them were of sufficient importance to be narrated here, and more than once they had come within a hair's breadth of being compelled to retrace their steps. They rode upon the small, wiry ponies of the country, their servants clearing a way before them with their parangs as they advanced. Their route, for the most part, lay through jungle, in places so dense that it was well-nigh impossible for them to force a way through it. It was as if nature were doing her best to save the ancient city from the hand of the spoiler. At last, and so suddenly that it came upon them like a shock, they found themselves emerging from the jungle. Below them, in the valley, peering up out of the forest, was all that remained of a great city, upon the ruined temples of which the setting sun shone with weird effect.

"At last," said Hayle, bringing his pony to a standstill and looking down upon the ruins. "Let us hope we shall have penetrated their secret before we are compelled to say good-by to them again."

"Hear, hear to that," said Kitwater; Septimus Codd, however, never said a word; the magic hand of the past was upon his heart, and was holding him spellbound.

They descended the hill, and, when they had selected a suitable spot, decided to camp upon it for the night.

Next morning they were up betimes; the excitement of the treasure hunt was upon each man, and would not let him tarry. It would not be long now, they hoped, before they would be able to satisfy themselves as to the truth of the story they had been told, and of the value of the hopes in which they had put their trust. Having eaten their morning meal, they took counsel together, examined the plan for the thousandth time, collected their weapons and tools, bade their servants keep a sharp look-out, and then set off for the city. The morning sun sparkled upon the dew, the birds and monkeys chattered at them from the jungle, while above them towered the myriad domes and sculptured spires of the ancient city. It was a picture that once seen would never be forgotten. So far, however, not a sign of human life had they been able to discover; indeed, for all they knew to the contrary, they might be the only men within 50 miles of the place.

Leaving the jungle behind them, they found themselves face to face with a curious stone bridge, spanning the lake or moat which surrounded the city, and in which the lotus flower bloomed luxuriantly. When they had crossed the bridge, they stood in the precincts of the city itself. On either hand rose the ruins in all their solitary grandeur—palaces, temples, market places, and houses in endless confusion; while, at the end of the bridge, and running to right and left as far as the eye could reach, was a high wall, constructed of large stones, each one of which would have required the efforts of at least four men to lift it. These, with a few exceptions, were in an excellent state of preservation. Passing through the massive gateway the travelers found themselves in an open square, out of which streets branched off to the right and left, while the jungle thrust in its inquisitive nose on every possible occasion. The silence was so impressive that the men found themselves speaking in whispers. Not a sound was to be heard save the fluttering of birds' wings among the trees, and the obscene chattering of the monkeys among the leaves. From the first great square the street began gradually to ascend; then another moat was crossed, and the second portion of the city was reached. Here the buildings were larger, and the sculpture upon the walls more impressive even than before. In the narrower streets creepers trailed from side to side, almost shutting out the light, and adding a twilight effect to the already sufficiently mysterious rooms and courtyards to be seen within.

"This is by no means the most cheerful sort of place," said Hayle to Kitwater, as they passed down a paved street side by side. "Where do you expect to find the great temple and the courtyard of the Three Elephants' Heads?"

"Straight on," said little Codd, who was behind, and had been comparing the route they were following with the plan he held in his hand.

RODE ON BULL MOOSE.

Novel Exploit of a Plucky New York Sportsman at Churchill Lake, in the Maine Woods.

Riding on the back of a wild bull moose was the daring feat recently performed by Paul Libby, of New York city. Mr. Libby made two attempts to ride the animal before he could remain on his back long enough to have a photograph taken.

This exciting adventure occurred recently in Maine. Mr. Libby, with Charles Wake, also of New York city, in company with two guides, were on a 300-mile canoe trip through the picturesque lakes and rivers of the Pine Tree state.

the waters leading to the Allegash river, and came the entire length of the St. John river to Fredericton.

Here they saw lots of game, including dozens of moose. It was the closed season, so the tourists were restricted to shooting with kodaks. They enjoyed some great fishing, however. When the party arrived in their canoes at Churchill lake, they came upon a gigantic bull moose enjoying a swim in the icy water.

Sam Cole, a guide of a jocular turn of mind, offered to bet Mr. Libby that he could not mount the moose's back. Without a moment's hesitation Mr. Libby accepted the wager. He leaped from the canoe and landed squarely on the back of the animal, which, frightened by the advent of this unexpected passenger, promptly sank to the bottom of the lake. Mr. Libby held on to the ears of the moose and was carried down with him. Beneath the water Mr. Libby deemed it wise to slide off the back of the animal.

The moose soon came to the surface again, and to the great relief of Mr. Wake and Guide Cole Mr. Libby arose a second later. The moose swam aimlessly around and seemed to have lost his bearing. Nothing daunted by his failure, Mr. Libby prepared to try again, and Mr. Wake got the camera ready. This time Mr. Libby landed well forward on the back of the moose and rode him, holding on by the ears, Tod Sloan fashion, for about a minute. He then slid off the slippery back of the animal, which swam to the other shore and disappeared like a flash into the forest.

HE WANTED A BEAR.

But When He Met One Face to Face the Bold Hunter Fled in the Other Direction.

"The sickest man I ever took into the woods," said an Adirondack guide, near North creek, "was a lawyer who came in from Buffalo last fall to kill a bear. He said he was going to kill one if it took all season. He wanted a rug of his own killing for his office. He stayed in the woods three weeks, and wouldn't look at deer or small game. Finally he had to go home. He sent his stuff out to the railroad by team, and walked out himself, saying that would be his last chance at a bear.

"Sure enough, he went around a big rock and met a bear face to face in the trail. He forgot what he was after, forgot he had been hunting three weeks for this very animal, forgot that he wanted a rug for his office, and even forgot that he had a gun. He turned and sprinted in the direction from which he came till it all came over him that that bear was just what he wanted. Then he stopped, went back," said the guide, according to the New York Times, "and saw from the tracks that the bear had gone a good deal faster than he did, and in the opposite direction."

HEAVY RAINS BRING FLOODS

HIGH WATER IS REPORTED ON EVERY SIDE.

Rainfall is Heaviest in December For Fully Ten Years.

The continued rain since Saturday afternoon has been almost unprecedent. All the waters in this section of the State have risen far above their normal height. The total amount of the rainfall is 3.35 inches and this is only until 8 o'clock this morning.

Thus far for the month of December the rain fall has aggregated 7.36 inches, which exceeds any reported for the same month during the last ten years. As the average rainfall for December is but 3.14 inches, the excess so far is 4.22 inches. The weather bureau now promises a cessation of the storm, and in its place will come clear cold weather.

At Bound Brook, Main street is flooded and passengers on the trolleys are transferred at that point. the cars not being able to move through the water. The same condition pratically exists at Cranford where the streets are badly flooded.

Here in Plainfield and in the borough the well macadamized roads have stood in good stead and the citizens have not suffered from flooded streets.

Dolls, and other presents were given to the younger children and a box of candy and an orange for the others. Howard J. Runyon, superintendent of the school, was in charge.

Saunders, of Washington Park, vice-president of the Ingersoll-Sergeant Drill Co., and is entitled "Winning England's Position as World's Greatest Exporter."

Shaw, of New York, officiated and was assisted by Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, of this city. Interment was made in the Seventh-Day Baptist cemetery in this city.

COUNCIL ENDS YEAR'S WORK

Many Reports, Some Business and Sundry Bouquets Occupied the Session.

COMPLIMENTS PASSED.

Two Letters Received From the Trolley Company—Old Indebtedness Wiped Out and Balance Left in the Treasury—Chief Doane's Recommendations.

To all practical purposes the Common Council for 1901 is no more. The last session of the old body was held last evening. After transacting a considerable amount of ordinary business and passing a few "bouquets" about, the council adjourned. President Dumont and Councilmen Randolph, Coriell, Mellick, Tolles, Buckle, Gloak, Lee and Craig were present, while Councilmen Clifton and vanHerwerden were absent.

The report of City Treasurer William F. Arnold was presented and the summaries read. This report will be published later in the daily papers of the city, as per resolution. President Dumont took occasion to refer to this report by saying that in 1899 there was borrowed in anticipation of taxes $26,500, while at the close of this year there are no bills and there is a balance of $17,000. In 1899, the fire department owed $6,800. This year there is a balance of $1,800 and $4,200 in uncollected taxes is due the department. There is this year a total of $19,000 on hand as against $8,000 in 1899. This, Mr. Dumont said, was an excellent showing.

The report of Chief T. O. Doane, of the fire department, showed forty officers and men on the pay roll. There are 298 hydrants, with a pressure of seventy-five pounds. Two new hydrants were located during the year. There are 5,200 feet of hose, eleven horses, nine of which are owned by the city. There are thirty-eight fire boxes.

During the year there were seventy-nine alarms, a decrease of thirteen. There were twenty-eight box alarms, twenty-nine by telephone and twenty-two still alarms. The various causes are as follows: Chimney and defective flues, 27; unknown, 6; stoves and ranges, 6; locomotive sparks, 3; grass, 3; lamps, 3; spontaneous combustion, 2; gasolene, 2; bonfires, 4; debris, 2; gasolene motor, 2; leaves, 2; kerosene stove, 2; incendiary, 1; gas stove, 1; outside city, 1; children and matches, 2; children and lantern, 1; fireworks, 1; tinsmith, 1; mice and matches, 2; sun, oil and water, 1; alarm, 1; explosion of chemicals, 1; collision of oil cars, outside city, 1; cigar, 1.

The losses and insurance are as follows: On buildings, $8,295; insurance on buildings, $31,900; loss on contents, $3,772; insruance on contents, $15,125; total amount of insurance, $47,025; insurance collected, $12,067; total value of property involved, real estate, $59,100; personal, $22,800.

By way of recommendations, Chief Doane renewed his request for a transmitter at headquarters. He also asked that the fire alarm wires in the centre of the city be placed underground, and that another full paid fireman be employed. He suggested that the city dispose of the old hose wagon at No. 3 house in the West End and purchase a more modern one. He reported that the present wagon is sadly in need of repair. He also asked for an ordinance governing the sale and storage of gunpowder and other combustible material. He recommended that a license be granted for the dealing in these explosives. In accordance with a motion two hundred copies of this report will be printed in pamphlet form to be distributed by Chief Doane.

The report of Captain Kiely, of the police department, showed that during the year there have been 530 arrests, 433 whites and ninety-seven colored. There was collected in fines $546. The force consists of nineteen men, and the captain suggests that additional men be appointed so that the seventy-four miles of streets in the city can be covered more fully. The expenditures for the year were $15,996.87 out of the appropriation of $16,000.

Building Inspector T. O. Doane's report showed that 151 permits were issued during the year, the estimated value of buildings and repairs being $459,100.

The report of the street committee was presented by Mr. Tolles and appears in full in another column.

The finance committee's report was presented by Mr. Lee, in the absence of the chairman. This showed none of the appropriations have been exceeded and that practically an indebtedness of $9,000 in the general fund and $6,000 in the fire fund has been wiped out. The committee cited the fact that next year it will be necessary to issue bonds for sewer improvements.

Mr. Lee offered a resolution that J. B. Coward be given notice that the Common Council will give up its present quarters, including the officers of collector, city clerk, mayor and street committee, April 1. Mr. Tolles explained that this resolution was offered for the purpose of giving the new Council the right to renew its contract with Mr. Coward or select other quarters if it so desired. When the vote was taken Councilmen Dumont and Coriell voted no. The latter at first did not vote, but the President could see no reason why he should be excused and called for his expression, which he gave with some emphasis.

At this point Mr. Dumont inquired of the finance committee regarding a conference recently held, when the collection of James E. Martine's taxes was considered.

Mr. Lee, speaking for himself, said that he could give no information on the subject as he had not been acquainted with the matter. Mr. Dumont took exception to Mr. Lee's remarks and said that he was surprised that some action had not been taken. He felt sure that the person referred to wants a chance to get rid of paying his tax and he for one did not want to be a party to any such scheme. He hoped that such an opportunity would not be given.

Mr. Mellick explained matters by stating that Collector Smith informed him that the corporation counsel had issued the necessary notices to be sent to the various tenants occupying Mr. Martine's property and that they would soon be sent out. Hereafter the city will collect Mr. Martine's rents.

Mr. Tolles referred back several petitions, including one for the widening of Madison avenue, one from property-owners asking that the new hospital be located at some other place than that selected and another one regarding crosswalks and sidewalks. These will be considered by the new Council.

Mr. Coriell made a few remarks at this time concerning the fire department, particularly about the financial status. He said that during the year the indebtedness was reduced to $4,500 and that there are now no bills to pay. He said that all the buildings have been renovated and repairs made where needed. He recommended the purchase of 1,000 feet of hose next year.

The resignation of Frank Day as a regular fireman was received and accepted. Mr. Tolles, on behalf of the street committee, asked that the committee be excused at this time from making a report on municipal water works, as negotiations are now pending with the Plainfield Water Supply Company.

Mr. Buckle took occasion to commend the police department for excellent work and said that he felt sure that the same standard of efficiency established by former Councilman Barrows had been maintained.

Mr. Lee gave his report as chairman of the alms committee. This showed the receipts to be $4,980.57 and the disbursements $4,449.91. There are at present twenty-eight persons receiving aid from the city, sixteen less than last year. Of this number thirteen are at the Industrial Home. Four persons died during the year. The committee thanked the Organized Aid Association for hearty co-operation.

Mr. Lee asked for $50 with which to purchase a new device for properly heating the rooms at the Industrial Home. This device is to be placed on the range and is guaranteed to fill the bill. The appropriation was granted.

Mr. Lee inquired as to whether the Elizabeth, Plainfield and Central Jersey Street Railway Company had made any reply to the recent action taken by the Council regarding certain violations of the ordinance under which the road is operated. In reply two letters were read by the clerk. One was from Col. Hine acknowledging receipt of the resolution adopted by Council, and stating that it had been referred to John N. Ackarman, the new general manager. The other letter was from Mr. Ackarman, under date of December 14, saying that the resolution had been received and he would soon meet the committee for the purpose of adjusting differences.

This concluded the business of the evening and the rest of the time was devoted to an exchange of complimen-

A CHRISTMAS CANTATA WAS WELL RENDERED

Large Audience Saw "Santa Claus' Defenders" at Park Avenue Baptist Church.

"SANTA CLAUS" THERE.

MARTIN STUTZMAN MADE HIT AS "GRIMY," THE NEWSBOY.

List of Those Who Took Part in the Cantata—Miss Florence G. Hawkins and Her Class Were in Charge.

An assemblage of people, numbering well up in the hundreds, witnessed at the Park Avenue Baptist church, last evening, an elaborately costumed and well enacted Christmas cantata. It was an unqualified success in every way. Only pupils belonging to the Sunday-school took part.

The cantata was entitled "Santa Claus' Defenders" and pictured the efforts of the children and their friends to defend the mission of their patron saint, Santa Claus. Opposed by those who had no sympathy with the pleasures that enter so largely into the hearts of children, their convincing arguments finally succeeded in converting these opponents to their way of thinking.

Throughout the cantata there were many choruses and carols. Of the speaking parts, the palm was taken by Martin Stutzman, garbed as "Grimy," the newsboy. Other parts well taken were "Mr. Discontent," Charles VanWinkle; "Nita," Miss Violet VanWinkle; "Peace," Miss Reignette Marsh; "Good-Will," Miss Emily Runyon; "Love," Miss Lillian Richardson; and "Santa Claus," Harry Hall. The latter caused much laughter by his original jokes and witticisms on members of the school and local hits.

In all the affair was decidedly novel and spoke volumes for the ingenuity of Miss Florence G. Hawkins, the director. In this she was assisted by the members of her Sunday-school class composed of the Misses Bessie Giles, Elsie Giles, Lillian Richardson, Priscilla Beatrice Emmons, Emily Runyon, Elizabeth VanWinkle and Reignette Marsh and Mrs. Green.

At the conclusion of the cantata, the pupils of the Sunday-school were given presents and the customary boxes of candy.

The entire list of those appearing in the affair is as follows: The Misses Elma Runyon, Elizabeth VanWinkle, Priscilla Beatrice Emmons, Cora Brokaw, Bernice Swentzel, Elsie Giles, Arline Brown, Marjorie Brown, Anna Clark, Lillian Cuming, Maud Harris, Bessie Giles, Annie W. Wyckoff, Adelia Runyon, Violet VanWinkle, Reignette Marsh, Emily Runyon and Lillian Richardson and Mrs. Annie J. Lowry and Mrs. Laura E. Krom; Messrs. Herbert Brokaw, Aaron D. Thompson, Jr., Ernest Whitney, John Swentzel, Augustus Nash, Harry Thompson, Charles VanWinkle, Martin Stutzman, Arthur Whitney, Irving VanWinkle, Stewart Freeman and Harry Hall. A children's chorus was composed of Florence Smalley, Autumn DeLaney, Bernice Swentzel, Anna Clark, Arline Brown, Martha Soper, Susie Whitney, Ethel VanWinkle, Elinor Stutzman, Mildred Odam, Marjorie Brown, Mary Leveridge, Grace Weeks, Lillian Cuming and Maud Harris. Mrs. E. Frank Vail acted as accompanist.

The Modern Clubhouse.

The Chronicle, a weekly insurance journal, published in New York, contains an interesting article on "Modern Club Houses," by Evarts Tracy, of Hillside avenue. It gives many timely hints on the construction of fire proof club houses and their interior arrangements. A handsome reproduction of the Yale Club skyscraper on Forty-fourth street is shown in illustration.

Dog Supposed to be Mad.

A small dog, owned by George Taylor, of Elmwood place, and supposed to be mad, was shot Saturday by Patrolman Charles Gamo. The dog was running wildly about the yard and snapping furiously. To save any further trouble his life was cut short.

Plainfield Lodge Officers.

Plainfield Lodge, No. 44, I.O.O.F., at its regular meeting, last evening, elected the following officers for the ensuing year: Noble grand, Frank Miles; vice-grand, Wm. Jimmerson; financial secretary, Elias Bird; recording secretary, J. F. Sheppard; treasurer, James Clarkson.

VERDICT FOR HORSE OWNER

W. C. HENDRICKSON GIVEN $550 FOR KILLING OF HORSE.

Suit Against Philadelphia and Reading by Owner of Stock Farm at Belle Mead.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, Dec. 31—In the Circuit Court here, yesterday, before Justice Garretson, an exceedingly interesting case was tried between Wm. C. Hendrickson, the owner of a big stock farm at Belle Mead, and the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company. Hendrickson, who was the plaintiff, had a valuable brood mare, which got out of the pasture and wandered on the tracks, where it was struck by a locomotive and killed

Dungan and Reger, counsel for the plaintiff, claimed that the railroad company was obliged to build and maintain a fence along its tracks; that the fence was down and Hendrickson's horse went through it on the tracks and was killed.

The company endeavored to show that the fence had not been down more than a day at the longest and that it had no knowledge and no means of knowing that the fence was out of repair.

In his charge to the jury the Justice said that if it was determined that the company knew, or ought to have known, that the fence was down, it was negligence on the part of the company to leave the fence in that condition. Hence, the company was liable for the result of the accident.

Hendrickson claimed $600 damages. The jury, after a half hour's deliberation, brought in a verdict for $550. James J. Bergen appeared for the company.

In the Orphan's Court a citation, requiring Frederick A. Pope, of this place, administrator of the estate of the late Mary Hatchett, (colored) of North Plainfield, to render his accounts, was made returnable Friday. Geo. Hatchett, of North Plainfield, is next of kin. He is represented by Lawyer Horace Coddington.

Subscription Affair Held at the Casino Last Evening by the Younger Society Set.

A junior subscription dance was given at the Casino last evening. The dancing hall was adorned with Christmas greens and the floor was well crowded, there being not less than 150 of the young prople on the floor.

Pound's New York orchestra furnished the music, which was especially good. At midnight C. Ames Brooks and Lawrence L. Tweedy led the German. Later refreshments were served, Stewart Ivany being the caterer.

The patronesses were Mrs. D. H. Rowland, Mrs. C. E. Brooks, Miss Isabel Tweedy, Mrs. W. T. Kaufman, Mrs. Pliny Fisk, Mrs. F. G. Mead, Mrs. J. W. Stimson and Mrs. H. A. Schuyler.

THE YEAR'S WORK ON STREETS AND SEWERS

Full Text of the Annual Report of Councilmanic Streets and Sewers Committee.

MUCH WORK WAS DONE.

LIST OF STREETS MACADAMIZED AND REPAIRED.

The New Street Signs—Work at the Sewage Disposal Beds—Enlargement of Sanitary and Storm Sewer Systems.

The annual report of the committee on streets and sewers, presented at the meeting of the Common Council, last evening, was as follows:

To the Honorable the Common Council of the city of Planfield:

Gentlemen:—During the year 1901 the work of improving the condition of the streets, as begun in previous years, has steadily progressed, and we believe that the efforts of your committee during the year that is past have met with general approval.

New Macadamizing.

West Eighth street has been macadamized from Grant avenue to Monroe avenue, and the gutters protected by paving where necessary, the property owners contributing $706.44.

Rock avenue has been macadamized, for a width of fourteen feet, from the Central Railroad of New Jersey, to a point north of Dunellen avenue. The property owners south of Front street contributed toward the cost of that portion of the work, and a large part of the stone for the section north of Front street was furnished by the contractors for the new disposal works. The following streets have also been macadamized but not entirely completed: First, Second and Third places; West Sixth street from Park avenue to Plainfield avenue; Orchard place; Carlton avenue from Watchung avenue to Putnam avenue.

The cost of this work is being defrayed by the issue of temporary bonds, to be retired as the assessments are paid.

This list could have been considerably extended, as a majority of the owners on a number of other streets were anxious to have them macadamized. It was thought wise, however, to be somewhat conservative in the matter of issuing bonds, so only those streets were undertaken which were near the centre of the city and well built up. On streets in the outlying districts your committee has always been ready to recommend the payment of a proper portion by the city whenever the property owners were ready to subscribe the balance.

Ordinances have been prepared for macadamizing Spooner and Hobert avenues, the property owners having expressed their willingness to pay their proportion of the cost.

During the year, assessments for the city's portion of cost of macadamizing have been paid on East Sixth street, East Ninth street and West Third street, amounting, with interest, to $1,688.94, and the sum of $700.00 has also been paid to the collector on account of anticipated assessments against the city for macadamizing done this year.

Re-Macadamizing.

The following streets have been remacadamized during the year: East Second street, repaired east of Richmond street for Street Railway Company; Watchung avenue, from Front street to Fifth street; East Front street, from Park avenue to Watchung avenue, and preliminary work from Netherwood avenue to Leland avenue; Woodland, near South avenue and north of Prospect avenue; Belvidere avenue, from Woodland avenue to Ravine road; South avenue, east from Richmond street and east from Belvidere avenue; West Ninth street; West Eighth street, portions; Madison avenue, from Seventh street to Stelle avenue; Liberty street, from Second street to Eighth street; Plainfield avenue, from Front street to C. R. R. of N. J.; Clinton avenue, from Front street to Second street; West Second street, from Liberty street to Central avenue; West Front street, finished from Park avenue to Clinton avenue, and preliminary work from Clinton avenue to Rock avenue; Somerset street, preliminary work; Grant avenue, from Front street to Fourth street; Washington street, preliminary work; East Fourth street, east of Washington street.

The work of grading and macadamizing Elm place was started, but, owing to the unusually early cold weather, it was necessary to postpone further work for the present, but it should be completed at the earliest possible opportunity. Other streets needing re-surfacing or repairs are the following:

Somerset street, to be completed; East Fourth street, to be completed; West Front street, to be completed; Washington street, to be completed; East Front street, Richmond to Leland; North avenue, Park to Watchung; Madison avenue, Front to Fourth; Central avenue, Front to Eighth; Richmond street, Second to Fifth; Fifth street, Watchung to Plainfield; Plainfield avenue, C. R. R. of N. J. to City line; Grove street; Belleview avenue; Rahway road.

The work on Plainfield avenue has been delayed in anticipation of the construction of a street railroad to South Plainfield; which would, of course, almost destroy a pavement sixteen feet wide; we are informed that the track will probably be laid during the coming spring.

Your committee has been in consultation with the Street Railway Company in relation to disposal of storm water from the vicinity of Woodland and Belleview avenues, and has delayed repairs on the latter avenue until provision can be made for the water which has damaged the macadam so seriously.

Grading and Turnpiking.

The dirt streets of the city have been cleaned once or more by the city scraper; gutters have been deepened and in most cases the streets have been rolled. We feel that this work is fully worth its cost, as most of the streets keep in good condition afterward and the taxpayers consider that these streets should have some attention, even if they are not macadamized.

The streets requiring the most work of this kind were the following: Leland avenue, Netherwood avenue, Johnston avenue, Berkeley avenue, Highland avenue, Webster place, Cushing road, Prospect avenue, Randolph road, Field avenue, Sherman avenue, Monroe avenue, Elmwood place, Giraud avenue, North avenue, Manson place, Spooner avenue, Berckman street, LaGrande avenue, east of Richmond street, Kensington avenue, Hillside avenue, unmacadamized portions, Clinton avenue.

After the heavy rains of August 24 extensive repairs were found necessary on Hillside, Watchung, Putnam, LaGrande and North avenues, West Third street and others.

By agreement with the property owners on Giraud avenue, this street was widened 17.4 feet, making it of a uniform width of 50 feet; when the Freeholders of the two counties can agree upon the details of construction, a bridge of the same width will be constructed, and Giraud avenue will then become a most attractive connection between the city and borough.

Storm Sewers.

New storm sewers have been constructed in West Third street and Clinton avenue to carry off the water which has so many times caused washouts on West Third street, west of Manson place; it also connects with a private eighteen-inch storm sewer draining the streets and property to the southeast.

The Albert street storm sewer has been extended 200 feet to the south gutter of Front street, to avoid the flooding of that side of Front street, caused by the rails throttling the culvert.

In Plainfield avenue an eighteen inch sewer has been laid from the C. R. R. of N. J. to Third street and two of the six catch basins and inlets have been completed; when the others are finished, the deep gutter depressions at this intersection can be filled in and the whole crossing be much improved.

Owing to the delay in receiving pipe for the sanitary sewer in South avenue, the proposed storm sewer in that avenue has not been constructed, as it is intended to be laid above the sanitary sewer in the same ditch.

Most of the pipe has been paid for, however, and the cost of construction will be small.

During the improvement of West Second street, a new inlet and connection with the storm sewer was made at the west corner of New street, which allowed of abolishing the gutter depression across West Second street.

The accumulation of storm water on West Fifth and West Sixth streets is very serious, especially at New street, where in heavy showers, lakes extending several hundred feet are formed, covering the roadway entirely from sight. We would recommend that a storm sewer be constructed in Arlington avenue, from West Fifth street to Cedar brook, for the relief of this section.

Crosswalks and Culverts.

Only twelve new crosswalks have been laid during the year, but repairs, including considerable new stone, have been made to many of the old ones.

CHRISTMAS FESTIVALS AT LOCAL PARISHES

Grace and Holy Cross Parish Sunday-Schools Held Their Festivals.

GIVEN LAST EVENING.

AFTER A MUSICAL SERVICE, GIFTS WERE PRESENTED.

Appropriate Addresses Were Made at Both Exercises—After Service All Adjourned to Parish House Where Tree Was.

All the children of Holy Cross parish were made happy, last evening, by the Christmas tree exercises held by the Sunday-school. Choral evening song was first held in the parish church and the principal feature of the service was the singing of Christmas carols by the vested choir and pupils of the school.

Rev. E. E. Madeira made the address, his remarks being particularly appropriate for such an occasion. The choir led the children to the parish building at the conclusion of the service. There has been erected a handsome Christmas tree, beautifully adorned. Beneath it was banked a load of toys, all of a valuable grade and such as are seldom given on such occasions. After these presents were distributed the exercises were at an end.

The Christmas festival of Grace Episcopal prish Sundaay-school was held in the church edifice, last evening, and a large congregation, made up principally of the pupils, was present. Evensong was sung. Its special feature was the rendition of Christmas hymns and anthems by the vested choir and the Sunday-school. Addresses were made by the rector and curate. The offertory was: "Behold I Bring You Good Tidings."

The choir led the recessional to the parish building where the children enjoyed their Christmas tree. The distribution of gifts was made by the rector. Every member of the Sunday-school got a handsome present and a box of candy and prizes were given for faithful attendance.

To Mrs. W. A. Freeman was given a half dozen plates, the gift of the pupils and a shopping bag, the gift of a friend. Rev. E. M. Rodman, the rector, received a book, "Life in Greece," and Rev. J. H. Wilson, the curate, another book, "In The Levant," both being presents from the Sunday-school.

BIRD WAS HELD.

For Grand Jury on Charge of Kidnapping Thirteen-Year Old Italian Boy.

The hearing of Fred Bird, of East Front street, charged by Sylvester DeLago with kidnapping his thirteen-year-old son, was held before Justice Nash at police headquarters, yesterday afternoon. The defendant was held for the Grand Jury in $200 bonds. The amount was immediately furnished.

Bird acted as his own counsel and maintained that the boy was beaten by his father at home and also that he asked to go to South Carolina with him. Counsellor Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., for the State, declared that the boy could not give his consent as he was not the age required by law. He also stated that Bird took the boy despite the father's objections.

COLUMN FOR THE SHOPPERS

SOME OF ATTRACTIONS TO BE FOUND AT LOCAL STORES.

A Few Interesting Items Concerning Greater Plainfield's Merchants.

You can well afford to make new year's resolutions today. Start now by determining to dress becomingly. John G. Bantle, of Watchung avenue, is the tailor, who will help you out with suggestions in this line.

Modern housekeepers always want their homes, especially their kitchen, well supplied with the latest utensils. A walk through H. E. Gayle's hardware store will make your selections easy and you will pay only what is reasonable.

Owing to extensive alterations that will be made to the store building, I. H. Boehm, of West Front street, has decided to close out his entire stock of house furnishings below cost. Some idea of the reduction in prices may be gained from his ad.

One does not have to be a bloated bond-holder to wear up-to-date clothes these days. M. Weinberger, the West Front street clothier, has made it possible for everyone to wear the best clothes. His prices are so low and his goods are first-class.

There's no need of Fred Endress using time to tell the people that the meat to be found at his market is the best to be had anywhere in the city. His patrons have long since become acquainted with the fact and others are learning it daily from the former.

To carry goods from one season to another is like letting your money lie idle in a bank. That's all that should be hinted at when reporting the fact that toys, books and novelties may be purchased at Harper's Bazaar, on Park avenue near Fourth street, at ridiculously low prices.

It is well-known that there are a number of young people in this city whose engagement will soon be announced. To make the event one of great pleasure the engagement ring should be purchased at J. Hervey Doane's on Park avenue. He has just the kind that make other girls envious.

Its an easy matter to tell a man who buys his shoes at M. C. VanArsdale's. He is one of those envied creatures who traverse the streets without a limp and always appears to be comfortable about the feet. VanArsdale's is the store where good fitting shoes as well as good wearing ones are to be had.

"A pleased customer is our best advertisement" is the way P. B. Hodge, the Y. M. C. A. pharmacist puts it. He is evidently well advertised as scores of people are ready to testify to the courteous treatment tendered them by Mr. Hodge and the superiority of his goods. His pharmacy is now one of the most up-to-date in the city.

TWO ORCHESTRAS.

Many Novel Features Planned for Masquerade at Casino.

Arrangements have been made by the committee in charge of the masque ball, in the series of Casino dances, to take place this evening, for two orchestras. One will be of stringed instruments and will be used for the dances and the other will be of brass instruments and will be used for the military marches, which will be a feature of the affair.

One this occasion no single tickets will be sold except to out-of-town guests. Members of the smart set in this city will have to purchase season tickets in order to gain entrance at this function. Some novel features are booked for the midnight hour.

AT PARK CLUB.

A Euchre Party With Novel Prizes Tomorrow Evening.

Under the auspices of the entertainment committee of the Park Club a euchre party will be given New Year's night, when all persons attending are expected to bring an article of the value of twenty-five cents. The winners will draw prizes after the games. On the evening of Tuesday, January 7, there will be an "Evening with Cards," a different game being played at each table. There will be prizes for the winners.

Of Benefit to You.

D. S. Mitchell, Fulford, Md.: "During a long illness I was troubled with bed sores, was advised to try DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve and did so with wonderful results. I was perfectly cured. It is the best salve on the market." Sure cure for piles, sores, burns. Beware of counterfeits. L. W. Randolph.

Miss Cora Tomlinson, of New York, is visiting her mother in the Babcock building.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrews, of Westerly, R. I., are visiting Mrs. Ira West, of West Fifth street.

Mrs. Samuel Clark, is spending the week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Homan, of Hillside avenue.

New culverts have been constructed at East Second street and Johnston avenue, East Third and Richmond streets, and on West Eighth street west of Grant avenue. The following culverts have been rebuilt: 1—North and Leland avenues; 1—North and Netherwood avenues; 2—Watchung and Kensington avenues; 1—Putnam and Carlton avenues.

The culverts at Park avenue and Fifth street have been widened; those at West Second and Liberty streets have been altered to discharge more water into the Plainfield avenue storm sewer, and the culvert at North avenue and Richmond street has been provided with cast iron covers, the stone covers having been found too weak for the heavy loads passing to and from the freight house. Alterations have been begun on the culvert at East Fifth street and Watchung avenue so as to carry the water more freely under the street railway tracks.

Flagging and Curbing.

During the year 7,340 lineal feet of flagging have been laid, and 3,408 feet of curbing have been set.

The present practice in serving flagging notices has not proved satisfactory, and we recommend that in future only a limited number of notices should be served at one time and, upon the expiration of the time limit, that the Common Council should immediately proceed to fully complete the work called for, before serving further notices.

Street Lines and Monuments.

During the year the Street Commissioner has further extended the work of defining the street lines by iron and stone monuments, and a large number of the street intersections have been completed.

Miscellaneous.

The new steam roller has given entire satisfaction, and the saving in coal, as compared with that consumed by the former roller, has been about ninety cents a day.

Six hundred and eighty-three new street signs were purchased during the year, and all but eleven of them have been put up. We believe that no other expenditure made by your committee has given more general satisfaction than the amount paid for these signs.

In response to requests of the Common Council, the Union County Freeholders have erected new bridges over Cedar brook at North and Netherwood avenues, thereby greatly improving the condition of both streets during heavy rains; another bridge is much needed over Cedar brook at Berckman street.

During the repair of the city buildings at the disposal works, sheds were altered to accommodate the steam roller and sprinkling wagon; the former has been housed for the winter, and the latter is now undergoing a thorough overhauling, including new four-inch steel tires.

We believe that a saving of comfort and expense would result from the use of a street sweeping machine, which would be operated in the business portion of the city after the stores were closed for the night, by the same horses which would be used the next morning, with carts, to remove the sweepings. The best machines can be so adjusted as to level off loose stones into depressions, so that they are suitable to use on macadam streets, even if the latter are not in the best condition.

Sewers.

Considerable difficulty has been experienced this year from stoppages of house drains caused by the intrusion of roots, and many property owners have had the pipes taken up and relaid with heavy Portland cement joints, in some cases substituting cast iron pipe. The street sewers have worked satisfactorily, only one stoppage occurring, that being caused by a mixture of stone dust and water from a stone sawing machine.

All the sewers and flush tanks are inspected and tested about every two months, and all are in good order.

The contractor for sanitary sewers in North, South and Leland avenues has been unable to proceed with his work, owing to scarcity of cars delaying delivery of pipe. It seems probable that quite a number of other extensions to the sewer system will be demanded in the near future.

The completion of the new disposal works has been delayed long beyond the proper time, partly by the difficulty of securing so large a quantity of suitable filling material, but partly, we are compelled to say, by lack of energy on the part of the contractors.

We are much encouraged, however, by the experience of other places, and by the comments of visitors at the works, to believe that the new system will prove a satisfactory one to the city.

As there was no longer any intention of removing the buildings on the property to make room for more filtration beds, we have had the dwelling, barn and smaller buildings repaired, and the dwelling painted.

We recommend that in the spring the said filtration beds be planted with various crops and that every effort be made to get the entire plant and property into most attractive condition possible.

BEYOND DOUBT.

These Facts Must Convince Every Plainfield Reader.

That which follows is the experience of a resident of Plainfield. Incredulity cannot exist about the statement because it can easily be investigated.

Mrs. I. L. Holmes, of 442 West Second street, says: "I used several boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills for backache and derived more benefit from them than anything else. Before I tried this remedy I was bothered almost constantly with a severe pain across the small of my back, so bad at times that I thought I must give up. If I sat down and got up or was lying down and atttempted to rise quickly or retained one position for any length of time, sharp, acute pain always followed. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised for such troubles and went to L. W. Randolph's drug store and got a box. They helped me from the first and I improved right along under the treatment."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S.

IRON AND STEEL HEAD THE LIST.

Over Fifty Per Cent of These Combinations Were Formed During Eighteen Months From Jan. 1, 1899, to June 30, 1900.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31.—Census statistics just made public on industrial combinations show a total authorized capitalization May 31, 1900, for the 183 corporations reported of $3,607,539,200 and capital stock issued of $3,985,200,868. Of this total the authorized capital includes $270,127,250 in bonds, $1,259,540,900 in preferred stock and $2,077,871,050 in common. The capital stock issued comprises $216,412,759 in bonds, $1,066,525,963 in preferred stock and $1,802,262,146 in common stock.

The total value of all the products of the combinations reported is $1,661,295,364, and, subtracting the value of the products of the hand trades, or mechanical and neighboring industries, which amount to $1,216,165,160, the products of the industrial combinations in 1900 are found equivalent to over 20 per cent of the total gross products of the manufacturing industries of the country as they existed in 1890. The 183 corporations reported employed an average of 399,192 wage earners, receiving $194,534,515 in wages. Employment also was given to 24,585 salaried officials, clerks, etc., receiving a total of $32,653,628 in salaries. Miscellaneous expenses of these combinations aggregated $151,851,077. The total cost of material used was $1,085,083,828.

The 183 corporations reported control 2,029 plants that were active during the census year and 174 reported as idle during that period. The returns show an average of 11 active plants to each corporation. Of all these industrial combinations 63 were organized prior to 1897. Over 50 per cent of the total number of such corporations were chartered during the eighteen months from Jan. 1, 1899, to June 30, 1900. The statistics of industrial combinations exclude all corporations manufacturing and distributing gas and electric light power, it being impossible to trace all of the latter, and they do not generally possess the same economic significance. The returns show that the iron and steel industry is at the head of the list, with a gross product of $508,626,482, which is more than double the value of the product of any other group, except food and kindred products, and represents nearly one-third of the total gross value of products of all the industrial combinations.

Governor Voorhees Names Johnson.

TRENTON, N. J., Dec. 31.—Two important conferences of state Republicans were held here yesterday afternoon. The subject most under consideration was the vacancy in the state treasurership caused by the death of George B. Swain. Incidentally the vacancy in the United States senate caused by the death of General Sewell was discussed. Governor Voorhees said after the conference that he had offered the appointment of state treasurer to First Assistant Postmaster General Johnson and that at the conference Mr. Johnson was earnestly urged to accept the place. Mr. Johnson promised to take the matter under consideration.

Branch Bank In Palestine.

BASEL, Dec. 31.—The Zionist congress which opened here last week has arrived at a provisional decision by which the Colonial bank is to keep a certain sum available for the acquisition of concessions. It has been decided to establish a branch bank in Palestine, with a capital not to exceed 400,000 francs, to be confined for the present to a strictly banking business and not to be directly connected with the work of colonization. It is also announced that up to the end of last November 352,112 one pound shares had been taken in the Jewish Colonial trust in London.

Lady Cashier Held Up.

BOSTON, Dec. 31.—A man entered the office of the Prudential Insurance company in Roxbury yesterday and, pointing a revolver at the head of the young woman cashier, Wilhelmina Nott, demanded what money she had. The terrified young woman gave the man about $60 which was in the drawer, and he left at once. The police have not been able to trace him.

Death of a New Jersey Millionaire.

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—Theodore Berdell, a wealthy resident of Summit, N. J., and a leading figure in the smelting and refining business, is dead at his home here after an illness of several weeks. He was about fifty-two years old and was rated at about $5,000,000, all of which he had amassed through inventions for smelting and refining ores.

Killed at Grade Crossing.

NEW CASTLE, Ind., Dec. 31.—Nancy Reeder and John Edwards were struck and instantly killed by an eastbound Pennsylvania train. Both bodies were horribly mangled, that of the woman being carried on the pilot of the engine for a quarter of a mile. The accident happened at a dangerous grade crossing where two persons had been previously killed.

Large Estate For Charity.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 31.—The will of George W. Farr, Jr., a prominent jeweler, disposes of an estate valued at $255,000, a large portion of which is bequeathed to charitable institutions, most of them in this city.

RELIEF FOR CUBANS.

General Wood to Order Reduction of Railroad Tariffs.

HAVANA, Dec. 31.—A decree reducing the railroad tariff on sugar and tobacco an average of 25 per cent will be issued by Governor General Wood today.

Cuban planters have long protested against the alleged excessive rates on these products from points in the interior to the seaports. According to the new decree the rates will also, as far as possible, be made uniform throughout the island. The decree further provides that the railroads will be granted hearings in their petitions to show that their earnings cannot stand the proposed reductions.

The return of General Maximo Gomez to Havana did not bring forth the big demonstration that had been predicted for the occasion. Although General Gomez was welcomed by six bands of music, less enthusiasm was shown than in the Maso manifestations. The Maso followers had arranged a demonstration in opposition to the one to welcome General Gomez; but, fearing trouble, this was prohibited by the authorities.

NO SETTLEMENT.

An Effort to End Scranton Strike Proves Fruitless.

SCRANTON, Pa., Dec. 31.—Another fruitless conference arranged by outside parties was held last night between President Clark of the Scranton Railway company and a committee of the striking employees. The company would offer nothing except what it has offered all along—namely, that it would take back such of the old men as it needed, or about 56 per cent of those still on strike, the company to exercise its discretion in selecting the men to be reinstated.

The strikers' committee would accept nothing less, its members stated, than the reinstatement of all the strikers in a body as a union at an advance in wages and shorter hours.

The company's proposition was voted upon by the men a month ago and unanimously rejected.

Franciscan Monk Dead.

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—Brother Pascal, one of the oldest members of the Franciscan order in the United States, is dead at the monastery in West Paterson, N. J. Brother Pascal, who was eighty-five years old, had been a member of the order sixty years. He came from Germany when the monks were banished from that country and was one of the pioneers of the order in the United States. He is said to have been the descendant of a German nobleman.

Increase For B. and O. Employees.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 31.—Official announcement was made at the general offices of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad of an increase in the wages of trainmen and switchmen on that road. The increase will average about 8 per cent and was made without a request from the employees, the large business and increased duties convincing the management that their wages should be raised. The important increase is in the compensation of firemen.

A Good Fishing Season.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Dec. 31.—The fishing season which closes today has been very satisfactory to the Gloucester fleet. The entire catch was 160,000,000 pounds. Of this amount 125,901,541 pounds, valued at $3,100,000, was landed at this port. The rest went to Boston, New York, Newport and other points along the Atlantic coast. The Gloucester fishing fleet now constitutes 375 vessels.

Our Bridges Please New Zealanders.

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, Dec. 31.—The government of New Zealand has decided in the future to order all steel bridges from the United States. This decision comes as a result of the recent experience of the Manawatu Railway company, when the American bid on a big steel viaduct amounted to one-quarter of the price bid by English firms.

Gans Too Much For Youngs.

PHILADELHIA, Dec. 31.—Joe Youngs of Buffalo was completely outclassed by Joe Gans of Baltimore last night in what was to have been a six round bout at the opening of the New Washington Sporting club. Gans had everything his way from the start, and in the fourth round Youngs had enough and retired.

NEWARK, N. J., Dec. 31.—Mrs. Margaret Hoagland, twenty years old, of 814 Bergen street scratched her finger with a pin on Christmas day. Blood poisoning set in, and while she was ill a baby was born to her. Both mother and child died.

GOVERNORS MEET.

Fight Against Railway Consolidation Will Be to a Finish.

HELENA, Mon., Dec. 31.—No action was taken yesterday at the meeting of the governors and attorneys general of the northwestern states called to consider plans for opposing the proposed consolidation of the Northern Pacific, Great Northern and Burlington railway systems. From the discussion at these meetings, however, it is considered probable that the plan of Governor Van Sant of Minnesota will be indorsed by the executives of the other states who are present and that the fight against the railroad consolidation will be carried to a finish. What this plan is Governor Van Sant refuses to state until the meeting shall have taken action. The meetings were held in Governor Toole's private office and behind closed doors. There were present besides Governor Toole and Attorney General Donovan of Montana, Governor Van Sant and Attorney General Douglas of Minnesota, Governor Herreid and Attorney General Pyle of South Dakota, Governor Hunt and Attorney General Martin of Idaho and Attorney General Stratton of Washington. Governor McBride of that state not being able to be present on account of the death of the late Governor Rogers.

Governor White of North Dakota was also expected to attend the conference and, in fact, had telegraphed Governor Van Sant that he would be present. In a later telegram, however, he stated that it was impossible for him to attend the meetings.

The meeting was organized by the election of Governor Van Sant as chairman and Attorney General Martin of Idaho as secretary. Governor Van Sant made a brief speech in regard to the objects of the meeting, giving a brief history of the proposed railway consolidation and the effect he believed it would have on the states affected.

A Temporary Injunction.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Dec. 31.—Judge Elliott of the district court of Hennepin county has granted a temporary order restraining the officers of the Northern Pacific railroad from retiring the preferred stock of that company. The order was issued on the application of Peter Power of New York, who holds a hundred shares of the common stock and who came on from New York with his attorneys for the purpose of beginning the action.

Mr. Peavy was stricken with pneumonia several days ago, but his physicians felt confident that he would recover. A dispatch from Sioux City, Ia., dated Sunday, says: "One million four hundred thousand dollars are staked on the life of Frank H. Peavy, who is one of two men in the United States who carry single life insurance policies of $1,000,000. The other is George Vanderbilt."

Repairs For the Newark.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31.—The navy department has authorized extensive repairs to the cruiser Newark at the Boston navy yard. She has been able to make only comparatively short runs, the trip from the Azores over to this side being accomplished with difficulty. It is now proposed to increase her coal capacity, so that she will be able to make long runs. Her present batteries will be preserved, although most of the guns will have new mounts. These and some lesser repairs will cost $75,000.

A Medal For Schley.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31.—The Maryland councils of the Junior Order of United American Mechanics last night presented to Rear Admiral Winfield S. Schley a magnificent medal studded with diamonds as an evidence of their personal esteem and admiration of his services to the country. The presentation took place in Admiral Schley's apartments in this city and was made by a committee from the councils which came over from Baltimore on an afternoon train.

Schooner Burned. Crew Saved.

BOSTON, Dec. 31.—A cablegram just received in this city announces the burning at sea of the four masted schooner James W. Fitch of this port, Captain E. G. Parker, which sailed from New York Nov. 28 for Rosario, with 11,000 casks of oil, 600,000 feet of lumber and about 3,000 shooks. The destruction of the vessel occurred on Dec. 18. The entire crew was saved and landed at Ponce, Porto Rico.

Will Rebuild Burned College.

WOOSTER, O., Dec. 31.—Rev. L. E. Holden, president of Wooster university, recently destroyed by fire, has returned from an eastern trip and announces that a well known millionaire has promised to give $100,000 toward rebuilding on condition that $40,000 be raised by the citizens of Wooster and $100,000 outside of Wooster. The trustees will go to work at once to comply with the requirements.

THE HOLIDAY FLOODS

Heavy Rains Cause Great Damage at Many Points.

PHILADELPHIANS DRIVEN FROM HOME

The Schuylkill River Over Its Banks. Industrial Plants Closed—The Susquehanna Threatening—Suffering In Southern States.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 31.—The rain which fell almost incessantly for nearly two days resulted in a dangerous freshet in the Schuylkill river, and the water of that stream is 15½ feet above normal. All of the big industrial plants along the Schuylkill at Manayunk and Norristown, near here, are flooded, and work has been suspended.

The county bridge at Port Kennedy, Pa., has been wrecked by the flood, and the tracks of the Philadelphia and Reading railway at Spring Mill, about eight miles from here, are submerged.

In this city the river is out of its banks near the Baltimore and Ohio railroad station, the water having backed out to Twenty-fourth street, the first thoroughfare east of the station. Cellars of dwellings are flooded, and many residents along the river early in the day sought safer quarters.

Two new brick dwellings in Kensington, in the northwestern section of the city, collapsed early in the day, having been undermined by the heavy rain. The houses were not occupied.

Many farms at Tacony, Wissinoming, Collegeville, Holmesburg and Torresdale, suburbs of this city, have been seriously damaged by the storm, and the cellars of the residences are flooded. Small creeks emptying into the Delaware river are out of their banks, and the flatland between Frankford and Bridesburg is under several feet of water.

A Harrisburg dispatch says that the Susquehanna river is again rising, and there are indications of another flood if the rain continues to fall as heavily as it has during the last two days.

Paxton and Conologuinot creeks and the Yellow Breeches creek below Harrisburg are bankful and rising. The indications are that similar conditions exist in the creeks above Harrisburg, as the heavy rainfall has been general throughout the state.

A Pittsburg dispatch says that it is believed danger of a flood at that point has been averted by a drop in temperature.

Floods In Virginia.

RICHMOND, Va., Dec. 31.—There has been a tremendous rush of water down the James river. The people in the lower part of the city are moving out, and the wharfs at Rocketts are under water. The extreme lower part of the city is cut off. Owing to the fact that the wires are down along the James River division of the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad nothing can be learned definitely of the conditions above. Fears are entertained that the freshet will be the heaviest in years. The Rappahannock took a tremendous rise, putting the Fredericksburg gas works and electric light plant under water and plunging the city in darkness. Luray reports a great freshet in the Shenandoah which has seriously interfered with the running of trains.

Southern Railways Tied Up.

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 31.—President Wickersham hopes to have the Atlanta and West Point track in condition for traffic as far as West Point, Ga., today. Mail for New Orleans and Texas points is being sent around by way of Birmingham and Meridian, while Pensacola, which is usually reached via Montgomery, is being served through Jacksonville. The river at West Point has begun falling, and all danger is believed to have passed. No trains have been run over the East and West railroad since Saturday. The company's trestle over Etowah river, near Cartersville, Ga., is covered, and the track for four miles beyond is under water.

Railroad Traffic Crippled.

ROANOKE, Va., Dec. 31.—Railroad traffic in southwestern Virginia has been seriously interfered with for the past forty-eight hours owing to the heavy fall of snow and rain during the last two weeks. Many washouts are reported on the Norfolk and Western main line, the Roanoke and Southern and the Shenandoah Valley railways. John Wright lost his life in this county while attempting to cross a swollen stream on a horse. A heavy fall of sleet and snow at Christiansburg has prostrated the telegraph and telephone lines in that vicinity.

Costly Dam Carried Away.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Dec. 31.—The flood in the Tallapoosa river has broken the dam of the Tallassee Electric company, 180 of the 670 feet of solid masonry giving way. The dam cost $400,000. The power was to have been turned into Montgomery early in January. Two hundred feet of the Tallassee Cotton mills' stone dam was broken, and the loss is estimated at $50,000. The rainfall was over seven inches, and ten feet of water poured over the whole length of the power company's dam.

Could Not Change His Color.

BUFFALO, Dec. 31.—John Jackson, a negro bellboy, formerly employed at the Genesee hotel, drank carbolic acid and died in great agony. Jackson was in love with a white woman and has been taking an electrical treatment in an endeavor to change the color of his skin. Disappointed in the results of the treatment, Jackson killed himself.

The Bubonic Plague at Smyrna.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31.—Consul Lane, at Smyrna, has cabled the state department that the bubonic plague has broken out at that point.

WORKING FOR THE PUBLIC.

In the annual report of the street committee of the Common Council, which was presented to the Council last evening and is published in full in today's Daily Press, attention is called to the purchase of new street signs by the city. It is properly stated that no investment ever made by the city has received such public approval. It can also be truthfully added that the general erection of signs throughout the city was one of the greatest public improvements made during the year which ends tonight.

The Daily Press is not given to idle boasting but it does seem eminently proper on this, the last day of the year, to call attention to one of the principal achievements of The Daily Press during the last twelve-month. For three months, we called the attenion of the Common Council and the people to the immediate need of street signs. Now we have them. A similar course was pursued with regard to the borough and now North Plainfield is equally well equipped in that particular.

The Daily Press is and will always remain the people's paper. We are not here to fight the battles for either political party. We are simply looking after the best interests of the people of Greater Plainfield, as we see them, and will strongly oppose any measure which tends to interfere with those same interests.

Street signs were demanded and The Daily Press voiced the belief of the people when it advocated them so strongly. The question of municipal ownership of a water plant came up. Public opinion favored it. There was, however, a demand for an immediate adjustment of the rates of the Plainfield Water Supply Company which everyone admitted were not based on equitable principles. The installation of water meters, where desired, promised immediate relief. So The Daily Press has strongly advocated water meters.

It may not be that our efforts to secure the installation of water meters will be successful. The company possesses a monopoly here and who can blame its officials particularly if they try to get everything possible. The people, however, want water meters and either the company will put them in eventually or else it will suffer in the end.

Poor Bound Brook. Every time it rains hard some enterprising newspaper correspondent adds slightly to his income and incidentally gives the reputation of that town another poke. Its location is not a most fortunate one but a great deal of this talk about floods there is greatly exaggerated. There are flat lands bordering the town along the Raritan which are flooded with but a slight rise of water and it gives the impression that the town itself is in serious danger. Occasionally it has happened that a torrent of water has swept through the place but these occasions have been very few and far between.

It is not pleasant news to the councilmen that they must all gather in the council chambers tomorrow evening to conform with the law and organize the new Common Council. Such, however, is the decision of Corporation Counsel Marsh who says that the new law requires it. As far as the city's interests are concerned, it doesn't make any particular difference which night the meeting is held but it is always best to obey the law and that is what the Common Council proposes to do if possible.

An observing writer speaks of a demand which was actually created by newspaper advertising, remarks the Philadelphia Record. He affirms that the enormous sales of a substitute for coffee have been "the work of the magnetic influence of persistent newspaper advertising, and nothing else."

There is promise that the new year will begin with a pleasant day. Nice weather on the holiday will be particularly appreciated as Christmas was so unpleasant.

With the beginning of the new year, the new management of the street railway company will start its new campaign. What are to be the changes?

As tomorrow will be New Year's Day, a legal holiday in New Jersey, The Daily Press will not be issued.

"QUEEN ESTHER" BANQUET

PLEASANT TIME FOR MEMBERS OF CAST IN CANTATA.

Given by Women's Friendly Society of Church of Heavenly Rest Last Evening.

A delightful occasion was furnished by the Woman's Friendly Society of the Church of the Heavenly Rest at the parish house, last evening, to those who aided in making the cantata of "Esther, the Beautiful Queen," rendered at the Y. M. C. A. early in the month, a marked success.

The parish hall was tastefully adorned with flags, banners, Chinese lanterns and Christmas greens, as well as cut flowers. At one end of the room on a platform was formed a bower in imitation of a citron grove. This was styled the "Citron Grove of Shushan." Beneath the canopy was a large banquet board laden with a goodly feast. It was here that the "royal party" dined during the latter part of the evening.

An impromptu prorgamme was a feature, among the numbers being a solo by Miss Grace Phillips; a recitation by Mrs. Charles Steiner and a piano solo by Miss Ida Tallamy. The reception committee consisted of Mrs. B. K. Burke, Mrs. William Grannatt and Mrs. Charles Grave. The waitresses were the Misses Elizabeth Matthews, Edna Phillips, F. Marguerite Phillips and Eleanor Williams.

The members of the Woman's Friendly Society, who acted as a committee, were: Mrs. Edward E. Brown, Mrs. Alfred Brooks, Mrs. Benamin K. Burke, Mrs. Juan A. Babcock, Mrs. Henry W. Fraleigh, Mrs. William Grannatt, Mrs. Russell Hazard, Mrs. Charles Graves, Mrs. Francis G. Moore, Mrs. William C. Peck, Mrs. James H. Phillips, Mrs. William Tallamy, Mrs. Henry D. Thompson and Mrs. W. Ericson Van Norden.

An Envangelist's Story.

"I suffered for years with a bronchial or lung trouble and tried various remedies but did not obtain permanent relief until I commenced using One Minute Cough Cure," writes Rev. James Kirkman, evangelist, of Belle River, Ill. "I have no hesitation in recommending it to all sufferers from maladies of this kind." One Minute Cough Cure afford immediate relief for coughs, colds and all kind of throat and lung troubles. For croup it is unequalled. Absolutely safe. Very pleasant to take, never fails and is really a favorite with the children. They like it. L. W. Randolph.

tary remarks. Mr. Mellick was the first to speak. He expressed his gratification concerning the pleasant relations during the past year with President Dumont, who now retires. He said that the Council is fully acquainted with what Mr. Dumont has done and all could appreciate his devotion and faithful service to the city. He had been a student of the city affairs and he moved that a vote of thanks be extended to Mr. Dumont for his agreeable manner and fair treatment.

Mr. Dumont responded with a few well chosen words. He said that his service had not been a burden to him. He was interested in the city and its affairs. He referred to the fact that in the last two years the same membership of the Council had passed from the Nineteenth to the Twenty Century. He believed that the Council had been a strictly business one, which was no reflection on other Councils. He believed that the present Council's record was a clean one, and no better wish could be extended to the new Council than that the body show a clean record. He thanked the members for the kind expressions of regard.

Mr. Buckle continned the compliment by referring to Mr. Craig, who will retire this year. He expressed his regrets over Mr. Craig's retirement and said that he always found him a congenial worker. Mr. Craig responded with a few words, thanking all for the courtesy shown. He said that he performed his duty from the heart and his relations had been pleasant. In conclusion, Mr. Buckle remarked that the present Council has much to be proud of when actions are judged by results. This concluded the speech-making and the Council adjourned.

Health and Beauty.

A poor complexion is usually the result of a torpid liver or irregular action of the bowels. Unless nature's refuse is carried off it will surely cause impure blood. Pimples, boils and other eruptions follow. This is nature's method of throwing off the poisons which the bowels failed to remove. DeWitt's Little Early Risers are world famous for remedying this condition They stimulates the liver and promote regular and healthy action of the bowels but never cause griping, cramps or distress. Safe pills. L. W. Randolph.

Stephens; chaplain, Mrs. Johnson; treasurer, Mrs. Elizabeth Naylor; inside guard, Mrs. Bechtle; outside guard, Mrs. Moore; flag bearer, Mrs. A. G. Perry and Mrs. Wentzell; delegate to State convention, Mrs. Day; alternate, Mrs. Naylor.

RAN THROUGH TOWN.

Frightened Horse Nearly Went Through Bank Window.

A horse belonging to the Rockfellow Grocery Company, left untied on Orchard place, at 5:30 last evening, ran away through Front street. It escaped several collisions by narrow margins.

In attempting to turn the corner at Park avenue, the animal ran on the sidewalk at the City National Bank. It would undoubtedly have crashed through one of the large plate glasses but for a wheel of the wagon catching in the curb. The runaway was thrown down and captured. It was claimed by the driver, Harry Holmes, who followed it up town. The wagon was slightly damaged.

AROUND THE WORLD.

W. B. Rittenhouse Sailed This Morning on Steamer Maristow.

He will probably return by the way of Honolulu, making a circuit of the world.

Hand; vice grand, James Neil; recording secretary, Robert Humphrey; financial secretary, Floyd Fuller; treasurer, J. P. Allis. The other officers will be appointed and the installation will take place early in January.

Setting a Prisoner Free.

A man with rheumatism is a prisoner. His fetters are none the less galling because they are invisible. To him Perry Davis' Painkiller comes as a liberator. Rubbed well into the swollen, stiffened joints, it not merely drives away the pain, it makes the muscles pliable so that the prisoner becomes a free man. There is but one Painkiller, Perry Davis. 25 and 50 cts.

Death of Mrs. Polhemus.

Mrs. Jane Winsor Polhemus, an old resident of Somerville, died at her home there yesterday. She was eighty-two years old and was well known in this city. She was the grandmother of Mrs. P. B. Hodge, of Plainfield avenue. The funeral will be held from her late residence Thursday afternoon.

Committee Met.

A meeting of the committee having charge of the subscriptions for the purse to be presented to Father Smyth, pastor of St. Mary's church, on the occasion of his departure, was held last evening. Nothing of importance was done. Another meeting will be held Sunday afternoon.

A CRUISER SENT OUT

German Vessel Ordered to Venezuela.

OTHER WARSHIPS ARE TO FOLLOW

The Kaiser's Government Desires Only to Enforce Claims Due Subjects—Will Not Incur Enmity of the United States.

BERLIN, Dec. 31.—The small German cruiser Gazelle has been ordered to sail immediately from Kiel to Venezuelan waters. The government intends to send one or two other small warships to reinforce the present German squadron in the Caribbean sea. The additions to Germany's naval force in the Caribbean will not be sufficient to give rise to suspicions among the people of the United States that Germany meditates anything beyond the collection of claims due German subjects. The German government desires beyond anything else in this matter to avoid disturbing the government or the people of the United States.

The German newspapers are full of expressions of this kind, and many of these expressions are so much alike that it is easy to infer their utterance was suggested by the government. A remarkable thing is the fact that there is not a single unkind expression toward the United States in any of this newspaper comment.

Even the dispatch from Washington to a New York newspaper to the effect that persons of importance in the war and navy departments consider war between Germany and the United States to be inevitable has been reproduced everywhere throughout Germany. It is discussed coolly and for the most part treated with incredulity.

"We hope that this opinion," says the Berliner Neueste Nachrichten, "which grew out of the Spanish war and which we consider to be wholly erroneous, will soon give place to a more correct conception of Germany's aims. It is quite unreasonable that the people in the United States holding such opinion should connect this opinion with the Venezuelan affair, insomuch as Washington has been fully informed of Germany's intentions."

The Tageblatt prints a double leaded cable dispatch from Washington setting forth that the principal military and naval authorities there consider that war between the United States and Germany sooner or later is inevitable. The United States embassador, Andrew D. White, informed the German newspaper men who called at the embassy that the reports of the possibility of war between the United States and Germany were the "thinnest kind of sensational nonsense."

Sudden Death of Mrs. Muir.

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—Mrs. Edla Coleman Muir, daughter of the late Senator McPherson of New Jersey, is dead at the Manhattan hotel, this city. Mrs. Muir suffered from pneumonia, complicated with measles. A cablegram was sent to Mrs. Muir's husband, Dr. Joseph Muir, who is the United States consul at Stockholm, Sweden. Mrs. Muir will probably be buried beside her father and mother in Washington.

He Nominated Greeley.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Dec. 31.—Louis Carmichael, who nominated Horace Greeley for president at the national convention at Baltimore in 1872, will at his own request spend the winter in the Delaware county poorhouse at Delhi. He was at the time of the nomination a prosperous farmer and well known Democrat. He has since lost his property, is a cripple and seventy years old.

Missionary and Converts Massacred.

LONDON, Dec. 31.—The Shanghai correspondent of The Daily Express cables that a missionary and a number of Christian converts have been massacred at Ningshafu, in Kansu province, where Prince Tuan and General Tung Fuh Siang are residing. The correspondent says it is asserted that the troops of General Tung Fuh Siang are responsible for the massacre.

Engineer Killed.

COLUMBUS, Miss., Dec. 31.—A passenger train on the Southern railway was derailed at Ittabena, Miss., yesterday. A tree had been blown across the track by the storm, and when the train struck the engine was turned over, and the balance of the train left the track. Engineer McWilliams was buried under the train and killed. No other casualties have been reported.

Burglars Carry Off a Safe.

MORRISTOWN, N. J., Dec. 31.—Three men committed a daring burglary at the Denville hotel, in Morris county, six miles from here, in the early morning. They carried off in a wagon a safe weighing 1,500 pounds, but had to leave it in a field unopened in order to escape. The hotel is run by William N. Rapp, formerly a police justice in Newark.

Naturalists and Scientists Meet.

CHICAGO, Dec. 31.—Naturalists and scientists from all parts of the country are gathered at the University of Chicago for the twentieth annual meeting of the American Society of Naturalists. Nine affiliated societies met with the American society, and the halls and rooms of the university biological laboratory were filled with the visitors.

We are selling exceptionally good shoes of just this sort for men and women; children, too.

SHEER MATERIALS.

They Are the Proper Thing For Evening Gowns.

Never before have evening gowns been so beautiful. They are appliqued and reappliqued until hardly an inch of the original material can be discerned. Wide bands of costly lace are sewed with silver spangles, and these are placed over materials of cobwebby texture and softness. The lining silks of these gowns are lustrous, and soft liberty satin is much used, and the necessary fullness below the knees is afforded by numerous ruffles. Very often a white gown will be trimmed with wide bands of cream medallion lace into which are set ovals of Persian silk or chiffon.

Flowered chiffon forms the material of many stylish dresses. It comes this season in very large patterns on cream or pale tinted grounds. Orchids and roses form the most popular patterns.

but it is so expensive that only the rich can afford it. Very chic and at the same time inexpensive dresses are made of the numerous novelty nets and thin crapes. Gowns of this sort are made up over two linings, one of mousseline and the under one of silk.

A dainty evening gown is here pictured. The material is pale green tulle striped in silver. The blouse waist is made full with a fichu effect across the bust and tucked shoulder caps. The skirt has a wide ruffle headed by a lace applique. The whole style of this simple dress is given by the spray of roses which starts on the left shoulder, is tacked on the right hip and from there falls to the knees. Such floral decorations are very popular this winter.

DAINTY UNDERWEAR.

Much Beading and Insertion Are Used Upon It.

The newest lingerie is much decorated with beadings, through which run pure white or colored ribbons.

Nightgowns are many of them made of soft china silk, and a favorite model is covered with insertions of yellow lace. It has a short empire waist bordered by two rows of this insertion, and the sleeves are banded with it at intervals of two inches. There is a wide flat collar edged with lace, of which there is a frill down the front. The bottom of the nightgown has a wide flounce, also banded with the insertion. The corset cover which goes with this is in the shape of a blouse, banded with perpendicular insertions.

White lace petticoats for evening wear are beautifully fitted with single or triple flounces plaited with insertions, and a broad heading through which satin ribbon is run and tied at intervals into small bows.

Pale tinted underwear is no longer so much the fashion as it was last winter. White is used by the best people.

The blouse corset cover in the illustration is particularly adapted to a slender figure. It is made of fine batiste and valenciennes lace. The upper portion consists of tucks outlined by insertions. The shoulder straps, also tucked, are edged by a wide frill of the valenciennes. The fullness is confined at the waist line by a ribbon run through a wide beading.

My Strangest Case

BY GUY BOOTHBY.

Author of "DR. NIKOLA," "THE BEAUTIFUL WHITE DEVIL," "PHAROS, THE EGYPTIAN," Etc.

[Copyrighted, 1901, by Ward, Lock & Co.]

As he spoke they entered another square, and saw before them a mighty flight of steps, worn into grooves in places by the thousands of feet that had ascended and descended them in days gone by. At the top was a sculptured gateway, finer than anything either of them had ever seen, and this they presently entered. Above them, clear of the trees, and towering up into the blue, were the multitudinous domes and spires of the king's palace, to which the gateway above the steps was the principal entrance. Some of the spires were broken, some were covered with creepers, others were mutilated by time and by stress of weather, but the general effect was grand in the extreme. From courtyard to courtyard they wandered, but without finding the particular place of which they were in search. It was more difficult to discover than they had expected; indeed, they had walked many miles through deserted streets, and the afternoon was well advanced before a hall from Codd, who had gone on ahead of them, informed them that at last some sort of success had crowned their efforts. When they came up with him they found themselves in a courtyard somewhat larger than those they had previously explored, the four corners of which were decorated with three united elephants' heads.

"BY THE GREAT POKER, WE'VE GOT IT AT LAST," CRIED KITWATER.

"By the great poker, we've got it at last," cried Kitwater, in a voice that echoed and reechoed through the silent halls.

"And about time, too," cried Hayle, upon whom the place was exercising a most curious effect. "If you've found it, show us your precious treasure chamber."

"All in good time, my friend, all in good time," said Kitwater. "Things have gone so smoothly with us hitherto that we must look for a little setback before we've done."

"We don't want any setbacks," said Hayle. "What we want are the rubies as big as pigeon's eggs, the sapphires and gold, and then to get back to civilization as quick as may be. That's what's the matter with me."

As I have already observed, the courtyard in which they were standing was considerably larger than any they had yet entered. Like the others, however, it had fallen sadly to decay. The jungle had crept in at all points, and gorgeous creepers had wreathed themselves round the necks of the statues above the gateway.

"I don't see any sign of steps," said Hayle, when they had examined the place in silence for some minutes. "I thought you said a flight of stone steps led up to where the king's throne was placed?"

"Codd certainly read it so," Kitwater answered, looking about him as if he did not quite realize the situation. "And how are we to know that there are not some steps here? They may be hidden. What do you think, little man?"

He turned to Codd, who was looking about him with eyes in which a curious light was shining.

"Steps must be somewhere," the latter replied. "We've got to find them—but not to-night. Sun going down. Too late."

This was undoubtedly true, and so, without more ado, but none the less reluctantly, the three travelers retraced their steps to their camp upon the hillside. Hayle was certainly not in a good temper. The monotony of the long journey from civilization had proved too much for him, and he was ready to take offense at anything. Fortunately, however, Kitwater was not of the same way of thinking, otherwise there would probably have been trouble between them.

Next morning they were up and had breakfasted before the sun was in the sky. Their meal at an end, they picked up their arms and tools, bade their servants have a care of the camp, and then set off on their quest once more. There was a perceptible change, however, in their demeanors. A nervous excitement had taken possession of them, and it affected each man in a different manner. Kitwater was suspicious, Hayle was morose, while little Codd repeatedly puckered up his mouth as if he were about to whistle, but no sound ever came from it. The sky overhead was emerald blue, the air was full of the sweetest perfumes, while birds of the most gorgeous plumage flew continually across their path. They had no regard, however, for nature's beauties. The craving for wealth was in their hearts, rendering them blind to everything else. They crossed the stone bridge, passed through the outer portion of the city, proceeded over the second moat, and at last, with the familiarity of old friends, made their way up the steps towards the courtyard of the king's palace.

"Now, my friends, listen to me," said Kitwater, as he spoke throwing down the tools he had been carrying, "what we have to do is to thoroughly sound the whole of this courtyard, inch by inch and stone by stone. We can't be wrong, for that is the courtyard of the Three Elephants' Heads, there can be no doubt. You take the right-hand side," he went on, addressing Hayle; "you, Coddy, must take the left. I'll try the middle. If we don't hit it to-day we'll do so to-morrow, or the next day, or the day after that. This is the place we were told about, and if the treasure is to be found anywhere, it will be here. For that reason we've got to set about the search as soon as possible! Now to work!"

Using the iron bars they had brought with them for the purpose, they began their task, bumping the iron down upon each individual stone in the hope of eliciting the hollow sound that was to reveal the presence of the treasure chamber. With the regularity of automatons they paraded up and down the walled inclosure without speaking, until they had thoroughly tested every single stone; no sort of success, however, rewarded their endeavors.

"I expected as much," said Hayle, angrily, as he threw down the bar. "You've been humbugged, and our journey is all undertaken for nothing. I was a fool ever to have listened to your nonsensical yarn. I might have known it would have come to nothing. It's not the first time I've been treasure hunting, but I'll swear it shall be the last. I've had enough of these fooleries."

A dangerous light was gathering in Kitwater's eyes. He moreover drew the iron bar as if in anticipation of trouble, and placed his fists defiantly on his lips.

"If you're going to talk like that, my boy," he began, with never a quaver in his voice, "it's best for us to understand each other straight off. Once and for all, let me tell you that I'll have none of your bounce. Whether or not this business is destined to come to anything, you may rely upon one thing, and that is the fact that I did my best to do you a good turn by allowing you to come into it. There's another thing that calls for comment, and you can deny it if you will. It's a fact that you've been grumbling and growling ever since we left Rangoon, and have made difficulties innumerable where you needn't have done so, and now, because you think the affair is going to turn out badly, you round upon me as if it were all a put-up job on my part to rook you of your money. It's not the thing, Hayle, and I don't mind saying that I resent it."

"You may resent it or not, as you darned well please," said Hayle doggedly, biting at the butt of his cigar as he spoke. "It don't matter a curse to me; you don't mean to tell me you think I'm fool enough to stand by and see myself—"

At that moment Codd, who had been away investigating on his own account, and had no idea of the others' quarrel, gave a shout of delight. He was at the further end of the courtyard, at a spot where a dense mass of creeper had fallen, and now lay trailing upon the stones. The effect upon his companions was instantaneous. They abandoned their quarrel without another word, and picking up their crowbars hastened to the spot where he was waiting for them.

MANY TESTS MADE.

New York Commissioner of Agriculture Reports Work Done.

ALBANY, Dec. 31.—The commissioner of agriculture in his annual report to the legislature states that comparatively little oleomargarine was sold within the state during the past year and that in all probability nearly all that was exposed for sale was detected by the men working in his department. During the year 176 such detections were made and reported to the attorney general for prosecution.

"A great majority of these cases," says the report, "were in New York city and were mostly against persons who were clandestinely attempting sales, induced by the large profit or margin that comes from the sale of such goods as butter at a butter price. The milk law is being enforced as best we can. Violations of the law detected during the year were 4,160. The amount of milk received in New York city during the year 1901 was 14,000,000 forty quart cans.

"The vinegar law is being enforced, and the whole number of cases referred to the attorney general for prosecution was thirty-six."

The commissioner reports the amount of sugar beets raised in this state during the year for manufacture into sugar, in the aggregate, was about 47,000 tons and that from this will be manufactured about 9,000,000 pounds of sugar.

The department has caused the examination of over 700 dairies and herds. The number of cases of disease found to exist aggregated 175. About 400 head of cattle have been tested with tuberculin for tuberculosis, and thirty horses have been tested with mallein for glanders.

Immortelles For Maine Heroes.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31.—Mrs. I. Shillington of Chicago has forwarded to Secretary Long a beautiful anchor made of immortelles, with the request that it be placed on the graves of the dead of the battleship Maine in Arlington cemetery. The flowers have been turned over to Colonel Patten of the quartermaster general's office, who will see that the lady's request is complied with. Mrs. Shillington is the mother of Henry Shillington, one of the men who lost their lives when the Maine was blown up in Havana harbor. She has sent a similar tribute of love and affection to the cemetery every year since the interment of the victims at Arlington.

Miller Named For Comptroller.

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 31.—Governor Odell has appointed Nathan L. Miller of Cortland county as state comptroller to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Erastus C. Knight of Buffalo. He also appointed G. D. B. Hasbrouck of Ulster county as a judge of the court of claims to succeed John F. Parkhurst of Bath, resigned. Nathan L. Miller is a prominent attorney of Cortland, Cortland county. He is chairman of the Republican general committee of that county and was a candidate for a court of claims judgeship.

Many Collieries Flooded.

SHAMOKIN, Pa., Dec. 31.—Rain which fell almost continuously for forty-eight hours flooded a number of collieries in this region. Water rose so high in the Henry Clay shaft that all the mules were hoisted to the surface and the operations closed down for an indefinite period. One thousand employees were rendered idle. The plant is owned by the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron company.

Ice Crop May Be Ruined.

NEWBURG, N. Y., Dec. 31.—The water in the Hudson river is so muddy the outlook for the ice crop is discouraging. The water has been dirty for a fortnight. The city of Poughkeepsie is supplied from the river, and complaints of bad water have been many. The icemen are building an artificial lake to reap a supply for the city.

Youth Defended His Mother.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Dec. 31.—Elza Bennett, twenty-one years old, shot and fatally wounded his stepfather, Edward Bishop, at their home, in West Indianapolis. An investigation showed that the boy had shot in defense of his mother, who had been struck and abused by Bishop.

Schooner Wrecked.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Dec. 31.—The British schooner Vita, Captain Fitzgerald, having on board 1,200 quintals of fish from Bonavista for St. John's, was wrecked on Saturday night off Kelligrews. The crew was saved. This is the second schooner lost during Saturday's gale.

PLANS ALL TOO ELABORATE

REPORT, MADE CONCERNING THE HOSPITAL BUILDINGS.

Those of Tracy and Swartwout Were Most Satisfactory and They Will Prepare New Ones.

Following the transaction of routine business at the regular meeting of the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital, held last evening, the members received with much regret the resignation of H. P. Reynolds as treasurer of the organization. Mr. Reynolds has held the office for many years, but ill health has made it impossible for him to perform the duties devolving upon him.

The resignation was accepted and William C. Kinney, of 828 Madison avenue, was elected in his place. Mr. Kinney was first elected a member of the board in the place made vacant by the resignation of E. B. Clark.

The building committee reported that it had examined various plans offered for the new hospital buildings and that Tracy & Swartwout had been selected to be the architects. The plans submitted were all too elaborate and the successful architects will at once prepare others on a more modest scale in order that actual building operations may begin within the near future.

Miss Young, matron of the hospital, rendered her report for the past month as follows: Patients admitted 26; discharged cured 25; improved 3; not improved 1; died 1; remaining 15; treated for the month 45; dispensary patients treated 43; visits made by latter 204.

W. C. T. U. Business Meeting.

There will be a regular business meeting of the W. C. T. U. in the rooms on Madison avenue at 2:30 o'clock. There will be important business and all members are urged to attend.

—The newly-elected chiefs of Wetumpkah Tribe, No. 229, Improved Order of Red Men, will be raised up Thursday evening.

MANY RESIGNATIONS.

New Management of the Trolley Company is Making Changes.

Thomas C. Barr, the recently-elected president of the Elizabeth, Plainfield and Central Jersey Railway Company, has commenced operations to reduce the executive force of the road.

General Superintendent James Smith was the first to go. Since then the following have sent in their resignations: Assistant Superintendent W. B. Taylor, John Tobert, Auditor C. W. Harden, John Gibray, cashier at the Westfield main office, D. G. Knight, the road master, and E. R. Collins, the advertising agent.

It has also been rumored that the present force of motormen was to be retired and men from Woreester, Mass., were to be assigned in the vacant places. This is denied by President Barr.

Injured in Arresting Man.

In tussling with a colored man who he had placed under arrest on Cottage place last evening, Special Deputy Dennis Carney fell over a bicycle and fractured his shoulder blade. He was assisted to his home and the injured member was set by Dr. Long. The prisoner skipped.

LOST HIS FISH AND MONEY

DAVID PRATTIS HAD MARY HENDERSON ARRESTED FOR THEFT.

But, in Justice Nash's Court, He Failed to Connect Her With Theft.

David Prattis, colored, employed on the extension work at Pond's, received some back pay amounting to $15, Saturday night. He had a few drinks, bought a quarter's worth of fish and when he reached the home of Thomas Henderson, on the Boulevard, was feeling pretty good. He couldn't resist the temptation to wave $13.75 in the faces of several of Henderson's guests just to make them envious.

It wasn't long afterward before Prattis was sent home and when he reached there his pocketbook was gone. So was the $13.75 and the fish. He thought Mary Henderson had taken it because she was suspiciously near him several times and had her brought before Justice Nash, this morning.

He failed to prove his charge and the complaint was dismissed. Prattis feels as bad over the loss of the fish as he does the money. He had to go without anything to eat all day Sunday as that was to be his entire menu.

LUNCHBOX SOCIABLE.

Followed an Entertainment by Sons of Temperance.

Howell Division, No. 97, Sons of Temperance, held a lunch box social and entertainment in its rooms, last evening. The attendance was very large and the proceedings were greatly enjoyed.

Grady, of Trenton, and John Maney; vocal solos by the Misses Edgar, of Westfield, Florence Acker and Anna Warnock, of this city; recitations by the Misses A. Ohl, Try Mattox and Helen Taylor; banjo, violin and mandolin selections by G. Speer and W. Randall.

The committee in charge of the affair were as follows: Programme, S. B. Scribner, M. Armstrong and Mrs. A. Angleman; entertainment, Miss A. V. Scribner, Miss May Thompson and Mrs. M. Terry.

GROUND BROKEN.

Work Started This Morning on New Mill of Watchung Silk Co.

Work was commenced this morning digging the cellar for the new silk mill to be erected on Chatham street, opposite the North Plainfield cemetery. The architect is William Clum and W. C. Smith has the contract for the mason work. The building will be hastened toward completion as fast as possible, as the company will have to vacate its present quarters within a short time. There was a meeting of the company, yesterday, when matters pertaining to the operation of the mill were discussed.

To the Home of the "57."

The annual convention of the salesmen of the Heinz Pickling Company takes place in Pittsburg, Pa., tomorrow. The employes in this section will be conveyed by special train from Jersey City leaving at 7 o'clock tomorrow morning over the New Jersey Central and B. and O. systems. P. H. Bennett, of Duer street, the local salesman, will accompany the delegates.

Meridian of Greenwich.

Greenwich, as an English town, is nothing very remarkable, but as the headquarters of Father Time it is the most important spot on the earth. Its time is in every longitude of the globe, and every land—excepting Spain, Portugal and Russia—measures the hours from its meridian. No navigator on duty is without Greenwich time in sight, and every town and geographical point is known by its distance east or west from the Greenwich observatory. Ask the time, and the answer is always in even hours ahead or behind Greenwich, or else the exact Greenwich time. In Great Britain, Belgium and Holland you get the Greenwich time. One hour before Greenwich time rules in Germany, Austria-Hungary, Denmark, Italy, Sweden, Norway and Switzerland. So it is around the earth—every tick of every clock regulated by Greenwich time.—St. Louis Republic.

Color of Scots' Hair.

A curious investigation reported to the British association traces the origin of complexion by the surnames. It was based, according to a contemporary, on an examination of 14,561 school children of East Aberdeenshire, and a calculation of the pigmentation of the hair and eyes for 59 most frequent surnames. The darkest hair and eyes belong to surnames common in fishing communities, verifying the tradition that the fishing population of East Scotland is of Belgian origin. The pigmentation of Highland surnames correspond closely with that of their districts of origin. The surnames of Wallace, Pirie, Grant, Park and Birnie have strong blond tendencies; those of Cordiner, Cruickshank, Stephen, Strachan, Buchan, Paterson and Whyte are darkest; and Rennie, Scott, Grant and Thompson show most red hair.—London Graphic.

WHAT IS SCHEDULED FOR NEW YEAR'S DAY

Lots of Things Will Happen This Evening and on New Year's Day.

MANY WATCH MEETINGS

SOCIETY PLANS TO HAVE AN ACTIVE TIME OF IT.

Watch Meetings This Evening—Big Time at Boys' Club—Masquerade at Casino—Y. M. C. A. Star Course Tomorrow Night.

Another year passes into history at 12 o'clock tonight and the new year will be ushered in by festivities and meetings of a varied nature. Watch meetings tonight and joyful celebrations tomorrow are among the events scheduled. The prospects are that the weather will be clear and cold, but not so chilly as to interfere with the people's holiday.

A watch meeting will be held at Grace Episcopal church, commencing at 11:30 o'clock this evening, a feature of which will be the full choral service. The M. E. churches have also scheduled a watch meeting, which begins at 9:30 o'clock at Vincent chapel. It will be a song service during which Rev. G. W. Smith, presiding elder of the Elizabeth district of the M. E. church, will preach. From 10:45 until 11 o'clock, there will be an intermission, after which the watch meeting proper will commence. This will be a love feast and consecration service.

At Trinity Reformed church there will also be a watch meeting under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society. It will start promptly at 11 o'clock. M. Seymour Purdy will make an address of an appropriate nature. Everyone who attends is expected to participate in some manner.

Rev. E. E. Jackson, pastor, announces a watch meeting will be held at the Mt. Olive Baptist church, commencing at 8 o'clock. Until 10 o'clock a praise service will be held and at the latter hour the pastor, Rev. E. E. Jackson, will preach on "Great Entertainment on a Large Scale." At 11 o'clock the watch meeting will begin.

A bal masque will be the feature at the Casino and all Plainfield society will join in the function. Two orchestras will furnish the music. At the midnight hour some novel features will be introduced. In Saengerbund Hall, the Gesang and Turn Verein will hold "open house." The Warren Engine Company boys will enjoy an oyster supper at their headquarters on Somerset street. Beside these affairs there will no doubt be a number of private parties given by city and borough folk.

The first gymnastic exhibition of the season will be given by the Boys' Club, at its club-house on Sycamore street.

At midnight you will hear the whistles blow and the charge of firearms as well, and then comes the birth of 1902.

A special service will be held in St. Peter's Lutheran church at 10:30 o'clock in the morning.

Of course the new year's day dinner will be a general attraction and little need be said about it. In the afternoon from 1 until 6 o'clock the congregation of Hope chapel will tender a reception to its pastor, Rev. L. R. Howard, in the chapel building. A reception will also be held by Rev. Dr. Wm. R. Richards, pastor of the Crescent Avenue church, at his home on East Front street. Rev. C. E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, will also be "at home" during the same hours as Dr. Richards, namely, from 4 until 7 o'clock, but his reception will be held at the church. George Morton, of West Front street, has returned to Yonkers, after a visit with his parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard W. Beebe, of Madison avenue, are receiving the congratulations of their friends over the arrival of a young son, born yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis L. Millar, formerly of Plainfield, but residents of Schenectady, N. Y., for the past year, have recently removed to Fort Wayne, Ind., where they will make their home. Mrs. Millar was formerly Miss Eudora Grant, of this city.

TWO DELAYS.

Caused by Accidents to Locomotives at Somerville.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, Dec. 31—There were two delays in passenger trains here yesterday because of accidents to locomotives.

A driving pin ran hot in the "hog" that pulled the 10:12 train in the morning and another locomotive had to be sent for. The locomotive drawing the 2:31 train, broke in the centre during the afternoon and it took a half hour before an exchange in locomotives could be made.
